Do You Ride in the Winter?

There is opportunity for lots of enjoyable riding in the course of the "off season," and if you have the proper thing to ride you make a mistake when you wrap it up and lay it on the shelf for the winter. When the roads are frozen, a common safety with rigid fork or with any but the best spring fork is not the proper mount, unless you are willing to have the buttons shaken off your clothes and your anatomy paralyzed by vibration.

These things are not commonly desired by riders of the best taste—hence they ride VICTORS. The Victors lead in the matters that appeal to a rider of good judgment and long experience. You will notice and admit this as the years roll on.

THE PNEUMATIC TIRE.

As I meet various makers and sellers of cycles, the question "What do you think of the pneumatic tire" is sprung with a regularity indicating that there is a widespread doubt, and also indicating that my opinion is considered essential. Having been infallible in the past, it is not strange that the trade should rely on me for pointers on which to base their future.

The pneumatic tire is a "big thing," so far, if you have seen it you will agree, but it is also a big thing in results accomplished. This corpulent device has marked one of the "giant strides" in cycledom. It has done what probably nothing else could. It has made possible that which at one time I believed could not be. Any product of the ingenuity of man which can turn out results equal to those, deserves all the praise it will get. An all-metal bicycle "fitted" with a pneumatic tire rides as easily as a Hickory machine does with a common tire, and I don't know what higher compliment it could be paid. I would like to suggest an improvement on the present method of inflating. I think there should be a small air pump attached to frame of machine, so that by pressing a lever on the handle-bar some sort of gear would connect and work the pump. The air could be let into tire through a pipe leading to the hub and out through the centre of axle by means of a "stuffing box." I have refrained from patenting this arrangement for the same reason that I am wearing an old overcoat. I hope you won't say anything about it until it is more nearly perfected, (I mean the air pump.)

I was in the Mechanics' Fair last night looking after my other bones, when I overheard the following between a prominent bicycle dealer and a visitor. I will not reveal the identity of either, further than to say that the dealer is a tall man, who isn't tongue tied, and whose place of business is at Odd Fellows' Hall, 509 Tremont street, Boston.

The visitor asked the usual questions about a pneumatic tired wheel, which the said dealer had on exhibition. These questions were answered in a manner which was original, and very nearly complete. There was one point, however, on which the visitor had not yet been enlightened, and that was how the air was forced into the tire. When the other questions had been disposed of, he looked admiringly up at the dealer and asked, "Do you blow up these tires with your mouth?"

The question comes to us often, "do you intend to put any pneumatic tires on the Hickory bicycle next season." This is a question that will be fully replied to shortly.

P. S. A good way to keep from freezing to death is to repeat rapidly, in a loud tone of voice and regardless of the weather, "I am very warm."

A letter from Robert Bonner (forwarded to us by an observing friend) on the important subject of the "nobler animals," says that "Maud S." and "Sunol" measure respectively one and two inches higher at the hips than at the withers, and our friend adds, "these noble animals since they have got along in years often carry their heads very high, but when they are eating grass (or crow) they are not so high forward as they are behind."

If testimonials are in order, how will this one do?"

COLTON, N. Y., Oct. 4th, 1890.

STERLING ELLIOTT, Newton, Mass:

Dear Sir—I always read your advertisement in the BICYCLING WORLD. I was especially pleased with the one entitled, "You can't answer a man's argument by pointing at the holes in his coat." I was again reminded of it by the manner in which the "nobler animals," wheel-barrows, etc., have been allowed to drop out of the advertisements of ——. I have never yet seen a Hickory Bicycle, but you have made me want to, and I will look into it before buying my next year's mount.

STOVER BICYCLE MFG. CO., Freeport, Ill.

IN these hustling times when everything is rushing at a break-neck speed toward an unabridged future, how pleasant it is to pause and calmly review the improvements made in everything pertaining to Bicycles, since the day on which we took our first unholy header from a wooden bone-shaker.

Man is a jealous pleasure taker, you may cheat him in business, libel him in politics or bunco him in York, and when he finds himself out-witted, he gnashes his teeth, swears some, and comes up smiling, but will he tell you he has been "done?" No, not by a large majority; only let him be disappointed in some pet pleasure, whether his marriage arrangements be broken up, his bicycle broken down, or the rain keep him from attending the funeral of his mother-in-law, no matter how trifling the incident may be he will go about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may shoot.

All great thinkers from Aristotle to Bill Nye have recognized that concentration, or oneness of aim is the only true path to prosperity, this path is so seldom trodden and so obscure that few of the millions who pass along the great highway of Mediocrity; notice the finger board on which is written—"To Certain Success"—having kept one eye on the above notice, and the other on public opinion, as to Bicycles. We agree "in toto" with Whittier, who says that:

"All of good the past hath had,
Remains to make our own time glad,"

And speaking of gladness and Bicycles, which naturally go hand in hand, we might incidentally remark that during the past few months, and in the intervals between shipping large consignments of UNIONS No. 9 and No. 10 to North, South, East, West, and other important centers, too numerous to mention, we have been amusing ourselves with another safety, with the result that we have to annonnce an addition of twins to our family, in which are concentrated all the good points of the past and approved features of the present, together with a PERFECTLY PERFECT SPRING FRAME, the simplest, most graceful and mechanically exact thing of the kind ever incorporated into a bicycle. It is the joyful outcome of many trials and troubles, particularly trials; it has been tried and failed not; weighed in the balance and found to be 44 lbs.; is masculine or feminine, according to order, and if you will continue to "WATCH THIS SPACE," we will shortly introduce you to Unions No. 12 and No. 13.

"SWIFT" A, SPRING FRAME, 40 lbs.

MAXWELL HOUSE,
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 23, '90.

Gentlemen:—Now the season is nearing its close, I am anxious to give my opinion of my mount. I think the "Swift" Spring Frame the best machine in the world. It is positively faster than any rigid frame, and easier to push, especially so on rough Macadam roads. The machine will stand a great deal the hardest of work, and requires very little adjusting. I sold one to a 160 lb. rider. He at first was stuck on a * * *. I promised him that if after two months' riding he then wanted a * * *, I would give him one for the "Swift." He has never called for it. I have never had any trouble to amount to anything with the "Swifts."

Yours Respectfully,

J. S. ROLER.

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 31 OCTOBER, 1890.

THAT manufacturers are reaching out after the perfect non-vibrating tire is shown by the fact that in England alone over eighty patents on tires and special rims for same have been granted during the past few months. In America the inventor has not been idle, and while the crop of patents does not number anything like that of the English record, yet an examination of the patent records shows that something has been done on this side of the water.

Things are mixed on this patent matter, and a casual examination of the records divulge quite a number of developements in that line, among which we take pleasure in presenting a few that came under our notice.

In 1845, Mr. R. W. Thompson had patent issued to him in England for hollow, expansible tire of rubber canvas, or any water and air tight material, inflatable with air introduced at high pressure. (See page 845 in our issue of October 24.)

In 1847, a Mr. R. W. Thomas patented, in the United States, an elastic tire for carriage wheels, made of a hollow rubber tube.

In 1874, Mr. A. Wietlisbach of Newark, N. J., patented a rubber tire composed of rubber tubing, held in place on the wheel tire by means of rod or wire passed through the hole of the tube, the ends of wire or rod, drawn together by means of a turnbuckle arrangement.

In 1889, W. Leggett of Passaic, N. J., patented an ovoid, hollow rubber tire with the hole of the same shape, the hole being filled with a solid, metal core.

In June, 1888, A. W. Thomas had some six or eight patents issued to him, covering hollow, inflatible tires, made of rubber or other flexible water and air tight material. The material for inflation is named as either air, gas or any liquid. The wearing portions of the tires to be reinforced by tougher and wear resisting material of some kind. The forms of the tires proper were either of the common, single tube form or double OO, like two o's, the inner edges of which touched. Another form was to have the hollow tube made of strips, the edges bent over and secured by various means to the rim so as to secure an air and water tight, hollow chamber, the inflating agent to be forced into the tuoes until a proper condition of inflation is secured.

In March, 1890, Mr. Jno. B. Dunlop of Belfast, Ireland, filed in the United States patent office his claim for a patent on the now well known pneumatic tire. The wording of this claim is as follows: "A hollow, inflated wheel tire for cycles and other vehicles. The combination is an inner, expansible tube and outer protective covering of strengthening folds of cloth or canvas or linen, and protective strips of caoutchoue interposed between the edge of rim and strengthening fold or layer." This patent of Mr. Dunlop's was filed in the English patent office, October 1888. [See page 845, our issue of October 24.)

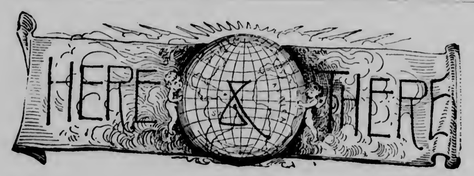
In the present issue will be found on page 15 a description of a patent issued to Mr. A. H Overman for a cushion tire.

The above is an epitomized statement of patents noticed, and does not take into account any of the eighty patents which we alluded to as having been issued in England. There is enough material here, however, to show that there is likely cause for discussion and perhaps litigation, and probably the courts will be called on to decide whether any of the pneumatic tire patents or any of the plain, tubular tire patents are good. For our part we think the validity of the patents will hinge on the peculiarity of construction, and where the simple tubular form is departed from, as for instance the Overman form.

WHILE on the question of pneumatic and cushion tires it would be well to remember that in this country we have had to depend entirely on reports from English sources as to the practical workings of these two forms of tires. Opinions differ, and while some assert that both are practical for general use there are many who are conservative and point out the defects of the present and known forms of both pneumatic and cushion.

None can gainsay the luxury of riding a pneumatic, and in a like but lesser manner the comfort of the cushion cannot be disputed. These are the acknowledged good qualities, but we cannot ignore the charged weaknesses.

So long as care in inflating and riding is used and so long as surfaces are ridden over which are devoid of sharp stones or other cutting material the pneumatic will no doubt last indefinately. But with all due deference to our riders we must take them as we find them, and it is a sorrowful fact that a large percentage of the riding public are not careful of their wheels.



The difficulties encountered in making the cushion are not so hard in the solution, though it is claimed that certain weaknesses have been developed in this the more smple form of anti-vibration tire Many manufacturers claim to have overcome these difficulties.

There is no doubt that there is a tendency of the larger tires to slip sideways on wet or greasy surfaces, but as the majority of our riding is not done on wet and greasy surfaces we think that fault can be called practically nil.

In this country we are very much in the dark as to the wearing qualities of either of these tires in actual use on the road, and it is therefore folly for us to speak other than guardedly, as we speak by hearsay only. Nothing but actual use and experience will teach us. We do not mean the personal use of one or two persons or experience of a few weeks, but we mean the actual results arrived at after the riding public have used the tires a full season. That only can give us the knowledge we crave.

One thing must be acknowledged and that is the question of tires will be the absorbing one for both manufacturers and riders for the coming season, and it is to be sincerely hoped that the vexed problem will be solved satisfactorily and that a form of pneumatic or cushion tire will be forthcoming, if not already here, which will fill the requirements of both maker and user to their mutual satisfaction and profit.

NOTES BY "HAWKSHAW."

If the English wheelmen keep on copying the American ones they will in a short while be almost abreast of the times. The latest advance they have made is to open in London the Cyclists' Club, and the English papers are all of a flutter over it. The club is located upon Bird Cage Walk, and has for a steward the headwaiter of the House of Commons; from this fact and the peculiarly captivating name of its location, I am of the opinion that the thing will be a success. It is nearly twelve years ago now since the Boston Bicycle Club opened its doors, and since then all over the country have club houses been built or rented by wheelmen until there are to-day perhaps more bicycle clubs in America than any other form of club house, and yet England, the parent of the sport, is but just wakening to the desirability of wheelmen having local habitation as well as a name. It is an awful long time for them to use in thus awakening, and yet it is better late than never, and I wish them every possible form of success and prosperity, and once they are fairly lodged in their new home I know they will look back upon the time they were without it as so much of life wasted, from a cycling point of view at least.

While I am in every way against the sale and hire of racing men by the large athletic clubs, yet I am not prepared to say that it is an evil unmixed with good, since undoubtedly by the money and efficient handling of these clubs has the fast times of the present season been made possible. Only through constant practice, judicious training and entire devotion to racing can a man be expected to do his best performances, and at present I do not think the country possesses any rider of ability, rich or willing enough to do this on his own account, so that to the generous expenditures of these clubs must the credit be given for most all of the notable performances of this season.

Canines and cyclers have never been the very best of friends in any country, but I think they must be unusually antagonistic to each other in France, since I see advertised in the French wheel papers a clip for holding a whip upon the handle-bar of the machine, so that the rider may ever have it ready for use when he and his canine enemy meet at close quarters.

M. Pierre Giffard in Le Figaro, Paris, has written an article upon the bicycle, which he terms "the aureoled goddess of the avenues and boulevards," and apotheosizes it as "La Reine Bicyclette." He goes into the ancient history of the machine and naturally claims for it an entire French extraction. The writer shows the usual layman's lack of knowledge in many things, though the entire article is a laudatory one of the wheel and its riders. In one place he says, "Almost one-half of the riders of the world are women," a statement hardly warranted by the facts. In France, however, he says they do not form so large a proportion, "because of the French woman's extreme fastidiousness about her appearance." I am of the opinion, however, that this cannot be the cause of French women not taking to the wheel, as an accompanying illustration by the celebrated artist, Mars, shows a very handsome woman mounted upon a sort of three-wheeled safety and dressed in a costume so scant that it would not be accepted even at Asbury Park for a bathing suit, who far from appearing "fastidious about her appearance," is actually engaged in a battle with bouquets with a group of bystanders. Verily, the French people are beyond the understanding of any one except themselves, and their cycling devotees differ not from the rest of the nation in this respect.

During the winter months, when the weather causes members to more often seek the comforts of their club houses, it has been the custom of the Corinthian yacht clubs and the canoe clubs to have weekly or monthly talks upon topics of interest appertaining to their respective sports, a plan that I think could very easily be copied to an advantage by our prominent wheel clubs. A night could be chosen, at least one month ahead, to be devoted to a debate upon some important topic, say upon that of tires, and on that night members could assemble in the club house and listen to the reading of papers upon the advantages and disadvantages of the various forms of pneumatic, solid and cushioned tires; such as wished could join in the debate, while all will be benefited by what they heard. On another evening one of the photographically inclined members might be induced to give a magic lantern lecture upon some summer tour he had taken, and in many other ways could the winter evenings be used to benefit the club man, while at the same time it amused him and by keeping him interested caused time to pass swiftly and pleasantly past. I should like to see some of our energetic clubs take hold of this idea and give it a trial, as I am convinced that the result will be satisfactory to all concerned.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

"EYESEE."

Regrets are expressed by all the Louisville Wheelmen at the departure of Chief Consul A. J. Lamb. His efforts in behalf of cycling have made him friends all over the State, and the Louisville Cycling Club loses one of her staunchest supporters.

Jake Bauer will start next May for a tour around the world. He expects to take it easy, and may prolong his absence for two or three years.

Prince Wells, lately reinstated by the L. A. W., has settled in Louisville, and is now a member of the Independents.

Loui Hart spent a few days with the Independents last week and boomed the Birmingham meet. If you want to find out about Bluegrass pikes ask Loui. He says they are away up in "G."

The Louisville Cycling Club have issued cards for a dance Thanksgiving eve, and the Independents hold their pool tournament next day. Phil Laib is favorite.

If taking time by the forelock is possible, the boys have a death grip, as committees have been appointed by both clubs to confer with the Chief Consul in regard to the L. A. W. meet next June.

Unlike Eastern clubs we have not members and money galore down here, and in order to build a track the following plan was adopted, and it may be a suggestion to some other wheelmen who wish a track, and yet have not abundance of the wherewithal. A committee of two was appointed by each club, and the committees selected a fifth. The Track Association then formed with these five as the officers, and a piece of ground leased and the tickets sold at $2.00 per year. The first sale of tickets brought in enough to pay for grading, etc., and later returns brought in enough to put it in first class shape, and every day the track is covered with flyers gradually coming down to the record line.

BOSTON NOTES.

"TONEY."

The strains of merry music, together with the melodious voices and laughter, which issued from out the Cadets Armory in Charlestown last Thursday evening were indicative of a jolly good time, so much so in fact that I started to enter the hall. A sentinel stood at the outer gate as if to bar my passage, but when I murmured the simple word "Toney" he gave way before me and presented arms. Walking into the hall I saw the familiar faces of youths known throughout the State as active members of the Charlestown Rovers and young ladies known throughout Charlestown as members of the leading social circles were on all sides of me. In the centre of the hall stood Capt. Carle P. Cubberly in all the dignity and splendor of a full-dress suit. The cycling dancing-master first balanced himself on one foot and then on the other, and after putting the "awkward squad" through a course of dancing sprouts he decided that they might go home to their parents. But the majority of them preferred to remain and dance away the time until the last hours of the declining day.

The gentlemen honored by membership in the Medford Bicycle Club decided to inaugurate the social season by holding the first of their series of dancing classes in the Opera House of the town that bears their name.

The Somerville Cycle Club room on Winter Hill presents the appearance of one that might have been burglarized, and when expressing that opinion to the members of the club they hastened to inform me that they were preparing to move into their new quarters on Marshall street, and that as soon as they had got comfortably settled and Capt. Cubberly stops watching that working skeleton at the Mechanics' fair they will receive their friends in a fit manner. When the events occur the gentlemen are to take particular pains to correct the erroneous idea that they are all "schorchers," and while burying the hatchet with other clans will allow the only scorcher in the club to recite several of his escapades in the motherland.

Passing along Main street, Cambridgeport, the other evening I came in contact with a member of the cycling organization bearing that name humming to himself, "Oh, for a lodge in some vast wilderness, where rumors of oppression and deceit may never reach me more," and when I inquired the cause of this soliloquy he replied that "one would think by the beastly weather we have had for the past two Sundays that the captain of the noted Press Cycling Club had called runs for those two days, thus cheating them out of their nutting excursion." But this explanation did not "jibe" with the song he was muttering and when pushed for another, answered, "Our president has resigned." This was startling news, and upon further investigation proved to be true, although the club has not as yet accepted the resignation of President Bean.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

"TREB."

Some time ago it was announced that W. F. Murphy would open an establishment in Brooklyn for the sale of bicycles, and that he would be backed by a prominent wheel concern, who were to erect a handsome house, complete in every way, somewhere near the Park Plaza. Wheelmen are beginning to question this; no sign has been made by Murphy, and unless something materializes shortly, we must believe that the bottom of the scheme has dropped out.

In all probability a series of friendly match games will be arranged to take place between the Kings County bowling team and that of the Brooklyns. Both clubs would enjoy this, and some slight prize of no very great value would be sufficient, simply as a memento, rather than any trophy of bitter defeat. The games would furnish an opportunity for the clubs to visit each other and exchange fraternal hospitality.

The social season at the Brooklyn club will be inaugurated by a club dinner on November 17th, after which the regular monthly reception will be resumed and a good time generally had, until the riding season opens again.

Next season I suppose we shall all have to buy new wheels, the agitation caused by the introduction of air into the manufacture of tires will cause a revolution in the trade and among the riders as well. Anything in the line of progression looking toward additional comfort will be welcome, expense or no expense.

CHICAGO.

"TWINKLE."

The principal cycling clubs of this city are infatuated with the game of indoor base ball. This novelty in ball playing is due to the ingenuity of George Hancock of the Farragut Club of this city, and although the story of the incident relating to his first conception of the game has been oft-told, I will tell it again. In the gymnasium one Saturday night there was an exhibition of the "manly art" between First Lieutenant Snerwood and a local middle-weight. The sparring was not at all spirited and of course the holders of ring seats were much disappointed. They howled out their derision with as much unseemly noise as was compatible with the dignity of this model club and howled on until the principals lost interest in each other and threw their gloves at the howlers. One of these mushy missles settled upon the optic of the future father or indoor ball. As a second one came sailing towards him he met it with his heavy walking stick and it landed in the hands of one Kelly, a handsome member of the club. He threw the glove to another, who in turn fired it at the president, who, forgetting his dignity and whose name is Glover, slid across the slippery floor and caught a difficult fly. The scene resembled one of our young days when we played "Bull-pen" at district school. But Hancock had the idea and went to work on the manufacture of suitable balls, bats, rules of the game, etc., and at this day the game is the leading winter craze in the West.

The Lincolns and Chicagos met at Rosalie Hall Saturday night, but the Chicagos, nursing yet their wrath of a year ago when the tide went 15 to 1 to their sorrow, sailed in and pounded Pitcher Crawford nigh unto the portals of despair. Score, 8 to 2.

The Lincolns were applicants to mid-winter league this season, but failed of admission through the disloyalty of one of their own dear members.

Touching upon the subject of the New York Athletic Club sending a racing team to Europe next season, it is not likely that this organization will go a begging for riders.

If any Western man is to be one of the team it will of course be Lumsden.

The "Pride of the West" was recently asked whether he would go on such an expedition provided he was placed on the list. Arthur replied, "Yep," with no hesitation.

A local daily recently printed more than a column on the merits of Chicago wheelmen. Among the number of course was George Barrett, who has developed into a safety rider of the front rank. The correspondent remarks, however, that Barrett's closest competitor is W. C. Thorne.

It always has been, and I think is yet, the prevailing opinion that upon equal conditons W. C. is the superior rider, although it must be admitted Barrett is his closest competitor.

PARISIAN NOTES.

"PEDALS."

As the season advances the races become less numerous here as well as in the United States, where, as I learn through Bicycling World, the records have been getting a shaking up. With all the racing which goes on in France (every Sunday and fete day in many of the larger towns) the world's records are seldom or never approached. Why this should be so is a debatable question, but one reason is that, having few or no racing tracks, training, up to the English or American standard, becomes difficult and almost impossible.

The championship of France for ten kilometres was run at Cognac two weeks ago, M. Cottereau won in 19m. 20s., M. Medinger, second, and M. Chereau, third. The same day also the Union Velocipedique de Seine et Oise, held a twenty-four kilometre road race over a hilly road, which was won by M. Larcque in 57m with M. Brandau, second, in 59m. 10s.

The same M. Larcque has since then distinguished himself by doing 210 kilometres over the road in twelve hours, pushing sixty pounds of wheel and baggage.

The joys of a racer's life! The 100 kilometres championship of the department of the Mayenne was run off recently, and the only two riders who finished, came in neck and neck, so that it was declared a dead heat, and the weary couple, after having done their distance in 4h. 25m., find themselves compelled to do it over or forfeit the prize!

The following is a translation of the cards issued by the Prefect of Police to cyclists:

VELOCIPEDES.

(Personal card for circulation in Paris.)

M. X, living at ——street, is exceptionally authorized to circulate on bicycle, safety or tricycle, in the public ways of Paris, which have been interdicted by the ordonnance of police of the 9th November, 1874, on condition that all the other requirements of said law be complied with. The Prefect of Police.

Paris, ——1890.

This charming document must be applied for on a printed form on stamped paper, which retails in the tobacco shops for twelve sous. On this blank, the unfortunate being who owns a wheel and wants to ride it in Paris, must state, firstly; whether or not he is a member of any wheel organization; secondly, he must prove that the wheel he claims to own has not been pilfered from some one else. In other words he must furnish a receipted bill (another stamped paper affair) from the dealer or person who sold him the wheel. Thirdly, fourthly and-so-forthly, he must state name, age, residence, occupation and half a hundred other things, the omission of any one of which renders his application food for the office cat. After a week or ten days he receives a notification to call at the Prefecture of Police where, if he is lucky, he gets his card on payment of five cents more to cover cost of said card and its official seals, stamps and signatures.

Having thus become the proud possessor of permission to wander awheel over any street in the metropolis, let us see what happens to our friend when he tries to avail himself of this permission. He starts, let us suppose, from the Place de la Concorde to ride towards the Bois. Naturally he takes the Champs Elysees, confident in knowing that he may laugh to scorn the sergeants-de-ville who may attack him. Hardly has he passed the Horses of Marly when a policeman rushes frantically at him.

"Halt, there! Have you a card?" The cyclist dismounts, draws his card from his pocket, shows it to the policeman, who after examining it knowingly, and glaring at the unfortunate wheelman for having dared to disappoint him by having said card, returns it; the cyclist pockets it, mounts and continues his way. A hundred yards further on a second policeman pounces on the cyclist.

"Halt there! Your card, please!" The above programme is repeated and the wheelman, once more in the saddle, moves on. A hundred steps more and policeman No. 3 appears, and thus it is that seven different policemen insist on being shown that precious card ere our friend reaches the Arc de l'Etoile!

This is the experience which befalls one and all nowadays in Paris, and the cyclists are asking themselves whether the last state of affairs is not worse than the first. Time alone can cool the policemen's ardor and render it possible to enjoy a ride in the city.

[This account by "our correspondent on the spot" of how it is done in France does not tally with the item we published two weeks ago describing the overpowering politeness of the Paris policeman.—Ed.]

I quote from the Petit Journal of Oct. 12 as follows: "The last meeting of the Parisian Cyclists' Club was honored by the presence of M. M. Allen and William Sachtleben, the two American cyclists at present on their tour around the world. These gentlemen, on the invitation of the president took part in an excursion, which included Nogent-le-Roi, Maintenon and Chartres. Messrs. Allen and Sachtleben were delighted with the cordial reception which they received at the club rooms; they have promised to write often of their adventures. They will go to Spain via Bordeaux, thence follow the southern coast of Spain and the Mediterranean Sea, cross Italy, Austria and Turkey to Constantinople."

An anecdote as a finale—also quoted from the above source: "A lady cyclist was recently run into by a wagon and quite severely bruised. Her husband brought suit against the driver of the vehicle and demanded 275 francs damages for injury to the machine, but he was content to estimate the injuries of his wife at 25 francs. Heart of stone!"

PORKOPOLIS NOTES.

"STAR."

One warm midsummer day, when the air was full of moisture and the mercury making desperate efforts to reach the top of the thermometer, a solitary wheelman was toiling up a steep, rough and uninviting grade. As dripping with perspiration and gasping for breath he reached its summit he was met by a team, and as he bounced about over the bumps and ridges in attempting to pass it, the off horse said to the near one: "That does my heart good! Oh, that all mankind might be compelled to toil and sweat over these thoroughfares that they might realize how our lives are embittered and abbreviated by the parsimony which provides such miserable highways!"

The cyclist was again in the middle of the road and with difficulty picking his way over the uneven surface when he was set upon by a loudly barking cur, and in attempting to divide his attention between the dog and the ruts he suddenly came to grief "My, what fun!" maliciously exclaimed the dog as he turned, and seeing the mischief he had wrought ran through an open gate.

Slowly and painfully the wheelmen gathered himself together, climbed into the saddle and resumed his journey. As he turned off at a cross road, a dilapidated barn-yard fowl perched on a stump, flapped its wings, and cried, "Ha! There goes the voracious glutton who feasts on my offspring! Down with the villain!"

Onward, still onward, our wheelman went, and as he was coasting a passably fair grade, a bird perched on the topmost bough of a lofty oak sang to its mate: "See! Here comes one who has fled from the noise and smoke of the crowded city to this secluded vale that he may breathe pure air and revel in scenes that will make him forget the discomforts of this noisesome prison." Onward, still onward, our wheelman pressed, but as he understood the language of neither bird nor beast all these remarks were lost on him.

For once in many moons I am enabled to write without the necessity of announcing the advent of a new club. They have sprung up so rapidly of late that I may possibly have omitted several. I will gladly make amends, however, if some one will call attention to any I have missed. I expect to be able in my next letter to tell all about the Ladies' Bicycle Club to be organized next week.

I was misinformed when I stated that the Orioles were organized from the remnants of the Buckeyes. I have since been told that none of them were ever members of the Buckeyes.

I saw a statement in a telegram to the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette to the effect that the wheelmen of Dayton, O, were getting up a road race for a prize of $100 in cold cash! Now I have always been of the impression that although the League does not recognize road racing, yet they would consider all who start in such an event for a money prize as professionals and expel them. Am I right? [You are correct.—Ed.]

DETROIT.

"JUDGE."

Love is quietly stealing into our ranks, and a couple of weeks ago claimed one of our oldest and most popular wheelmen, Mr. R. F. Medbury, better known as Bob, genial Bob, for so many years the hard working Secretary of that active organization, the Star Bicycle Club, and at present the Vice President of the Detroit Wheelmen. The lady was Miss Minnie Davie, the stepdaughter of Bruce Goodfellow, the well known manager of Mabley & Co.'s vast stores. Mr. Medbury has been an earnest worker in wheeling circles for many years, and his friends all wish him and his charming bride all that is best and good.

Mr. Fred Abel, Detroit's best celloist, is getting up a first class musicale, which will be given under the auspices of the Detroit Wheelmen, probably at Philharmonic Hall. If the members of the club take hold of this as they ought, the treasury of the club should be enriched to the extent of two hundred dollars.

Among the old veterans of the Detroit Bi. Club are several fine musicians; they have organized an orchestra, and will give concerts at the club rooms all through the winter.

I see that both correspondents from Detroit in the Wheel and American Athlete agree with me as regards Metzger for Captain. Thank you gentlemen.

Mr. J. Josiphie has been appointed acting Secretary in place of Jas. Kelsey, resigned. Mr. Josiphie is a gentleman of marked ability, and is well known in wheeling circles in Omaha, Neb.

Flyn's Pontiac-Detroit record still stands. Old Herm Osborne is just itching to get at it, but the weather clerk calmly sits up in his little coop and gives us nothing but rain, rain, mud, mud, and Flynn, oh! he simply — !!—?—!

A pool table has been added to the rooms of the Detroit Wheelmen; we now have a very complete little club house. In the basement a family of three live, who take care of the rooms and furnish lunches to club members.

Remember Detroit in '91.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

In regard to the use of aluminum as a metal for bicycle construction the following will prove of interest. Mr. A. H. Overman says: "We have been experimenting for several years with aluminum, and are obliged to say that up to date we have had no success whatever. The metal seems to be unfit for bicycle purposes, except when very little of it is used as an alloy with other metals, in which case there is no saving of weight, and steel is found to be far better."

Mr. Frank Wing and companion, of Ottawa, Ill., have just returned from a cycling tour to Mammoth Cave, Ky. They report a fine time and will freely give information to other riders who think of taking the same trip. They went by way of Peoria, Sept. 12–13, Springfield, St. Louis, Cairo, Madisonville, Litchfield, Louisville, Lexington, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Bloomington, Ill.

American manufacturers should not lose sight of the fact that there is to be an International Exhibition at Kingston, Jamaica, to open January 27. Space is free and all goods admitted free that are not sold on the island. Mr. T. T. Stokes, general manager for the New England manufacturing interests, at 44 Boylston street, writes: "There are no finer or firmer roads anywhere than Jamaica. Bicycling is just being taken up; a run through the island would be a grand winter's trip; lovely weather, cool in morning and evening. I hope to take a good show of wheels, they must sell."

The members of the Ladies' Bicycle Club, of Englewood, Ill., intend to keep in good physical training during the winter months by daily club swinging exercises. The ladies of this club are also making preparations for a series of sociables to be given during the non-riding months.

The Treasury Department at Washington has been requested to permit the free entry of a trunk of personal effects and an old bicycle imported by a friend of the owner. The letter states that all the articles have been used abroad, except those reported new, and that Tests and Comparisons May be Odious, but Lordy! how They Tell.

Montclair, N. J., Aug. 15, 1890.

GORMULLY & JEFFERY MFG. CO., Chicago:

Gentlemen—A friend and myself had a dispute as to the merits of your light roadster and the * * * light roadster. We each purchased a machine, he a * * and I a 54-inch semi-hollow rim Light Champion, weighing about 39 pounds, his the same. We took a trip to Albany and through Fulton County, New York, over some rather rough roads. He is lighter than I, yet his machine, when we took account of conditions, had loosened both wheels and several spokes; mine was as sound as a dollar everywhere, although with my weight and luggage, having 25 pounds more weight, it carried me through in better condition. Respectfully yours, the Collector refused to admit the goods on the grounds that they were not in actual use at the time of their arrival. Assistant Secretary Spaulding, in reply, says that the action of the Collector was in accordance with Paragraph 732 of the new Tariff law, and the Department must therefore decline to interfere. The Assistant Secretary says that the Department decided in accordance with an opinion of the Attorney-General, that a bicycle accompanying a passenger should be regarded as a personal effect.

HARRY D. KING.

The Hazleton (Pa.) Wheel Club formally opened its new rooms in the Dryfoos Building last Wednesday week. Dancing was indulged in and it was long after midnight before the last guest had departed.

The members of the Capitol Bicycle Club of Washington, D. C., are merry fellows and they know how to enjoy the social season. Last week Wednesday was one of the club's regular cider and peanut feasts, to which in the way of intellectual refreshment was added a mock debate on the tariff. Various members or supposed members of the House were personated by Messrs. Littell, Olds, Schooley, Low, Williamson, Lyon, Borden, Lipton and Godwin, while Mr. Wooten served as clerk of the House. Mr. Hanna posed as sergeant-at-arms and Mr. Edmonston as Mr. Pruden of the White House staff. The debate was spirited and funny.

C. C. Hopkins, of Denver, Col., who was reinstated as an amateur a few weeks ago, was again put out of the fold and adjudged a professional within a couple of weeks' time. Things are very much mixed in Denver on the amateur question.

A request appeared in a late issue of this paper for suggestions for an appropriate name for a mixed club of ladies and gentlemen. A correspondent sends us the following, which has a decided Hiawathan flavor: "Shemustgotoo."

W. W. Stall, accompanied by Mrs. Stall, will sail for England on the City of New York, Nov. 12th, and he expects to return to this country about December 17. Mr. Sweeting of the Sweeting Cycle Co. of Philadelphia will also sail for England some time next month to be gone from four to six weeks.

"The writer, an enthusiast on the wheel himself, rode around to the Dayton (O.) Bicycle Club house a few evenings since, and there found a merry set of some thirty-five or forty of its members enjoying themselves, some at cards, some at the piano, others telling their experiences on the wheel, in fact, in any way to have a royally good time. The club house is nicely furnished, is heated by natural gas and presents a home-like appearance. Too much credit cannot be given the club. It organized early this spring with a membership of about twelve, and at once made itself a League Club, and their charter No. 256, hangs conspicuously in one of their rooms. Last year there were six L. A. W. members in the city, and through the energetic efforts of the Dayton Bicycle Club there are now nearly eighty, and the city ranks second in L. A. W. membership in the State. The boys are full of energy, and the club has recently been incorporated under the State Laws of Ohio. That there were more clubs in our ranks as determined and energetic as this, what a help to the League it would be."

A correspondent writes us: "Mr. and Mrs. D. B Bonnett of the Elizabeth Wheelmen are in England. Mr. Bonnett reports a pleasant trip over on the American Line steamer Ohio, Capt. Sargeant, sailing from Philadelphia. For the benefit of Mr. Fraternity he wishes to say that the Ohio is a good boat to travel in, no crowd, staterooms extra large in size and on upper deck, price of passage very reasonable. You get a great deal for your money when the size of the stateroom, its position, good table, A1 attendance, etc., are considered. The 'Ohio' is a ten-day boat."

Mr. A. Schoeninger, President of the Western Wheel Works, Chicago, arrived in New York on October 18th, after a four months' sojourn in Europe. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter. The party left for Chicago the next day.

An invitation comes to the editor of the World to be present at the opening of the new club house of the Illinois Cycling Club, which is to take place October 31st. We acknowledge the courtesy with thanks, and only wish we could be present.

In our issue of 17th October, we spoke of a presentation made to Mr. C. J. Moore by the Lozier & Yost Bi. Mfg. Co., and through misunderstanding of the circumstances, reported Mr. Moore as having severed his connection with the Lozier & Yost Bi. Mfg. Co. This part of the item was a mistake, Mr. Moore is still Superintendent of the above Co.'s works, and(as our correspondent who corrects us says) "he will remain with the Lozier and Yost Bi. Mfg. Co. an indefinite length of time."

A new club has been started in Gotham called the Columbia Cycle Club. The club starts with 20 charter members. The organization intends taking an active part in racing as well as social matters. In December a minstrel entertainment will be given by them at the Metropolitan Opera House. A club house is now the aim of the new club.

The Bay State Bicycle Club of Worcester is also prospering. It moved into its new quarters last week. The suite is composed of five rooms in all, parlor, reading room, billiard room, pool room and wheel room. The furnishing of the rooms is not quite completed, but everything will be in apple pie order by the middle of November.

The ladies of Baltimore, Md., have taken steps towards starting a club composed entirely of ladies. The preliminary meeting was held at the residence of Mrs. Albert Mott, 203 Lenox street, Baltimore, last Tuesday eaening.

As an indication of the vast number of cycles used in Washington, D. C., we notice the frequent reports of collisions and accidents that appear in the Washington papers. There is no place in the United State where such a large proportion of citizens use the cycle as in Washington. This accounts for the frequent reports of smash-ups that we see in the local papers.

Two Danbury (Conn.) brothers, aged 14 and 15 respectively, named J. R. and G. Gleen, toured from Danbury to Washington, D. C., in four and a half days. They left for Richmond, Vt., Oct. 26, and it is their intention of going as far South as Savannah, thence home via bicycle.

The Baltimore clubs have been having fun taking century runs. Three of the Chesapeake Wheelmen and three of the Centaur Club did their little 100 miles within the prescribed time, but Mr. Le Cato of the Maryland Club took the honor in riding 123 miles.

A well-known cyclist while testing a machine fitted with a cushion tire recently was asked, "Do you find any vibration?" "No," he replied, "there is no vibration only, an occasional metallic jar!"

Stillman G. Whittaker has gone to England to be absent an indefinite time.

For some time past wheelmen of Philadelphia have been annoyed by the hostilities of certain hoodlums living on Park avenue and Oxford street. Complaint was made to Chief Consul Boyle and the police were notified to keep a lookout. The result was that four boys were arrested and held for trial.

Suit for $1000 damages has been brought against Edward Allen of Erie, Pa., by Miss Bridget Manion of the same place. The lady alleges that Allen knocked her down with his bicycle and she sustained painful injuries.

The name of the cycle club of Waltham, Mass., composed of ladies and gentlemen, will bear the name of Norumbega Wheel Club in honor of the famous city of the Charles.

The supervisors of Richmond Co., N. Y., (Staten Island) have awarded contracts amounting to $50,000 for paving 6 1-2 miles of country roads with Macadam or Telford. Bids are called for the repairs and repaving of 30 miles of country roads. These repairs are being made under the bill which became a law last spring and which authorizes the Supervisors of Richmond County to raise on the bonds of the country $240,000 for the repair of country roads. Already $100,000 has been secured under this law.

Forty-seven of the Union County (N. J.) Roadster Bicycle Club, of Linden, N. J., attended divine service a week ago at the Episcopal Church in Rahway, by special invitation of the rector, the Rev. Dr. Norton. After service the club ran to Plainfield, thence to Elizabeth, and from that point trained it home.

A Montreal (Quebec) judge the other day awarded $100 damages to a bicyclist who had been run down by an express wagon. This decision is based on the wheelman's right of way as equal with horse vehicles.

What narrow-minded creatures one does hear of now and again. It seems that the Rev. J. G. Hamner is pastor of the Wickeliffe Presbyterian Church and that the reverend gentlemen rides a bicycle, a fact much to his credit. A vast majority of Mr. Hamner's parishioners approve of the clergyman enjoying the sport, while a small (in more ways than one) portion of his congregation lose respect for the pastor because, forsooth, he rides a bicycle, wears knee breeches, and, horrors of horrors! he has actually been heard to whistle while on the street!

Mr. Charles Schwalbach of Brooklyn, N. Y., has sent out the following circular to the wheelmen of the 8th, 9th and 22d wards of the 10th Assembly district, New York: "* * * Mr. Samuel R. Tourmey has received the regular Republican nomination for member of Assembly, and we, as wheelmen, want to see to it that he is elected. Why? Because he is a friend of the wheel and of wheelmen; because he proposes to introduce and push through the Assembly bills to provide for improvements in roads, for the repairs of existing thoroughfares and for the establishment of a macadamized bicycle road from Prospect Park to Coney Island. * * * "

The South End Wheelmen of Philadelphia will have a theatre party Nov. 14, and the play selected is "All the Comforts of Home" at the South Broad Street Theatre.

Julius Glueck of Philadelphia filed a claim in the Common Pleas Court last week against the firm of Bardsley & Birtwell, claiming $10,000 damages. Glueck states that while riding his bicycle on Broad street, between Diamond and Norris streets, on Sept. 12 last, he was run down by the firm's wagon, his machine wrecked and he himself hurt.

No wonder the pneumatic tire sometimes burst with indignation when it hears the names applied to it. Here are a few: Automatic, Aromatic, Dogmatic, Pennymatic, Rheumatic, Hose Cart, Steam Roller, Sausage, Pudding Bag, etc.

Mr. W. H. Ross, United States manager of Singer & Co., has just returned from a well earned two weeks' vacation in the mountains. Mr. Ross returns from his outing much refreshed and fitted for a rushing business in '91.

President McCune of the Union Cycle Co. says it makes him "feel ten years younger when riding a wheel." Mr. McCune is a great young man.

Mr. Charles F. Stokes of Chicago is on his way East.

FROM A CHICAGO CORRESPONDENT—TO THE LADIES.

Upon a calendar which graces the writer's desk is printed this bit of news: "The lady bicyclist has become such a familiar figure on the asphalt streets of Washington that she no longer excites comment."

Now we have hundreds of lady riders in this breezy burg out here, but speaking in a wide and general sense, she is not entirely free from comment.

It is not because she rides a wheel, but because of the way she rides it. A very dear friend of mine, who has several times promised to be a sister to me, rides a wheel, and the following is the synopsis of a lecture which I recently delivered to her at reduced rates:

Don't dress yourself up like a jay; at any rate don't be a bluejay, as blue is conspicuous, while brown or gray is modest and dust concealing.

Don't ride with eight inch cranks, as it is productive of too much apparent motion, and reminds me of my father's old farm horse that was string-halted on both sides.

Don't have your seat so far back that you are almost on a balance like I used to be on my ———, because it stretches your arms out straight until you look as if you were afraid of the handle-bar. Do not be afraid of the bar; it is harmless as long as nothing passes over it.

Get a wheel to fit you; get a common-sense shoe with a low instep and you will also find that a patent leather black does not attract as much attention as the "silver slipper," finish which is so much affected by new riders.

Do not "know all the boys who ride wheels," for some of them are very modest, and upon being spoken to by a strange lady, almost forget their own identity.

Do not forget that we all want you to be an intellectual and moral support to our growing league; a bright and attractive figure within our dusty ranks; a sunbeam to our day; a light unto our shadow. Twinkle.

"GRIFF" IN THE VERMONT HILLS.

A RACE WITH A TRAIN.

Yes, 'tis a pull up the mountains, but does not the view repay it? At every bend of the road you stop a moment for rest and one more glimpse at the ever-changing scene. See! what a beautiful panorama lies at your feet

How lovingly the clouds cling to the hill-tops. See! the sunshine and shadow playing hide and seek in the valleys and the wonderful autumn tints blend like some grand mosaic.

Away up the valley the Connecticut River gleams like a broad ribbon of silver. We are on a ridge, and below us a mountain torrent leaps and roars in its rocky bed. Up a little higher between the white birches and under the gloomy cedars, where your wheel rides over the carpet of pine needles as noiselessly as a shadow.

Here comes an old man driving some cows.

"Are we near the top?" I ask.

"Well, you be," comes the answer in true Vermont twang.

"They do say," continued he, "that I be about the highest liver in this section, "and I guess I be," and he laughed as he pointed to the farm-house, where on the porch lie pumpkins in golden piles.

"How is the road from here down?' I inquired.

"'Tis good, a'mighty steep in places, for it be down hill for nigh three miles."

We thank him, and sure enough here through the clearing we see the road leading down. Away across the valley stretches the railway like a thread and so distant that we cannot hear the noise comes a train, leaving a line of smoke behind like the tail of a comet.

Now for a coast! Down, down we go; what long breaths of the pure air we take. Ah! this is the pay for our climbing. Whiz we go, right down to what seems the end of the road—no, a sharp turn, and here we are on a long stretch. They see us from the train; see the heads out the windows; how they wave their hats at us. Now another curve and we are among the trees that fairly fly past us; here a big rock marks a bend in the road. Round we rush, cross the bridge that spans the brook and again we are in full sight of the train.

How eagerly they watch for us to come in sight. Now for a while we are side and side only higher up above their heads. On we go, faster and faster, for we near the end. Now under the maples and elms that arch the road, and we put on the brake beside the little station just behind the train.

The passengers crowd about us for a moment, give a cheer for Detroit, the conductor cries all aboard and the short race is over, but there is another link in the chain that binds the wheel and its memories to "Griff."

"SENATOR" MORGAN ON RACING MATTERS AND MEN.

I ventured a prediction last spring in Bicycling World that if "Willie" met "Artie" the West would have cause to remember the meeting and the result of their meeting is now known, proving that fast as he is Lumsden is not up to Windle's form as yet. Lumsden, though, is a wonderfully improved man, and from what I can learn from reports a very speedy one, but an extremely poor judge of pace and generalship in a race; some of his finishes and races call to my mind the same trait in the racing career of the late W. M. Woodside, with whom I travelled for several years. Speed Woodside had in plenty, but the way he would allow himself to be "boxed up" in a race, and the lack of judgment he displayed in fooling in the rear of a procession in a long race would sometimes drive me frantic, as he generally commenced to put in his best licks when the race was over, "bar shouting" as they say in England. Windle of course having "resources" to pay for trainer and the necessaries to produce speed has had a wonderful advantage over Lumsden, as the East this year seems to have had as a general thing over the Western (Chicago) riders, as from accounts the Eastern cracks all have "rich uncles" this year, so much allowance must be made for Chicago and her flyers who have done wonderful work to my mind with their limited training and facilities. That young Zimmerman is no misfit in the racing business to a certainty, and I wondered when reading the reports of his victories if the spirit of that wonderful lad George Weber had returned to this earth in Zimmerman, the other "New Jersey wonder," on what "Sandy" Sellers termed "the blooming coffee mill, yer know." Zimmerman, unlike Arthur Lumsden, seems not only to have a wonderful turn of speed, but is possessed of judgment of a high order, as his finishes with Windle shows, and the defeat of the latter to a great measure I think is due to making his effort too soon—for my experience has been that no man can make a half-mile sprint at a winning gait—as he is bound to die out more or less at the finish. I always prefer (no matter how fast a man is) to see him make his effort 200 to 300 yards from home, and on this plan Zimmerman seems to have won his races from the Millbury boy and he will continue to win them if both hold to their previous plans of finishing. What a beautiful crop of semi-professionals the New York amateur clubs seem to be creating—why, the teams of yore ain't in it with the school of the present day, and if they are not producing such wonders as the old teams did they are certainly creating racing enthusiasm of no mean type—but no men of the calibre of Sellers, Hendee, Rowe, Furnival, Burnham, et al. have as yet appeared with the exception of Windle, and as judges of pace and finishes the modern school seems to be inferior. I see Lacy Hillier still sticks to "waiting tactics" in races, and in not only myself, but in many others who are out to win, veteran George Lacy will have firm believers, time-limits notwithstanding. I would like to see the officials of any meeting who would insist on a limit if I had men in a race—they should ride behind until a certain distance from home or not ride at all. There seems to me to be one way of doing away with the "evil" as it is termed, and to the general public who do not understand the "evil" of making a man lose his chances by pacing. I think if a special prize is offered to say two of the slower division to race for in all important scratch races they would act as pacers for the cracks who race for the prize generally at the last quarter.

One of the surprises to me in racing in the West this year is the splendid form of Norton H. Van Sicklen, who many thought was on the shelf, and here this bespeckled father of a large and interesting family, editor, publisher and printer comes out in his old-time form and bowls over the young division in short order. Truly he is a wonder and deserves great praise, as "Van's" training is most limited and I know also to be of a pannicky order. "Senator."

SMALL STEERING WHEELS.

AN ANSWER TO MR. ELLIOTT.

Editor Bicycling World: I always read Brother Elliott's views, whether he is looking forward or backward, and when he wrote about the power used in driving having a tendency to lift the front wheel of a satety I smiled at the statement and thought it one of his jokes, but now he furnishes us experimental data that calls for some attention, and it only requires a slight investigation to show that I fail to fully understand the explanation given or that he has made some serious error either in making his test or giving the results and forming his conclusions.

Taking his statement that the forward or horizontal component was 5 1-2 pounds, and his conclusion that the line of application of power was on a line rising at an angle of 14 degrees as correct, the vertical component or tendency to lift the front wheel would only be one pound 6 ounces. Again taking the angle and vertical component. 2 1-2 pounds, as correct, the horizontal component would be 10 3-100 pounds.

For the machine with both wheels alike, if we take the horizontal component as 5 4-10 pounds, the equivalent of 5 1-2 pounds at 14 degrees and the angle as 17 7 8 degrees, the vertical component would be 1 pound 12 ounces, or 6 ounces more than the same force given with the smaller front wheel.

Supposing the measured vertical force 2 1-2 pounds and the angle of direction 14 degrees to be correct, the total energy developed is 10 pounds 5 ounces, with an applied force of 25 pounds, a loss of 58 1-2 per cent, while if we take the horizontal component of 5 1-2 pounds as correct there is a loss of 77 1-3 per cent. The ratio of radius of sprocket wheel to crank must be known to determine what this should be, but the latter seems more nearly correct.

Won't Mr. Elliott please make another experiment stopping the forward movement of wheel by a brace on scale platform, not a stationary wall, and apply his power by an actual weight suspended from pedal with cranks horizontal, making weight as great as may be, 100 pounds if practicable, and using care to attach this weight to machine in same vertical line as pedal when taking weights with no power applied. Then measure the actual horizontal movement, with pedal loaded, by any means that will readily suggest itself to one familiar with practical mechanics and give us the result with full description of all methods employed. Fraternally,

WIDE TIRES.

Editor Bicycling World: The stand the World has taken re Roads Improvement is to be commended, and the L. A. W. in keeping up enthusiasm and making road work a special feature, are establishing a position of importance not reached by associations devoting all their energies to sport.

I speak from the standpoint of a spectator, and living as I do away back here in Canada, no one will accuse me of praising my own work. [I swear I am not a member of the L. A. W.]

We have good roads in and round about Waterloo; especially are those roads in good order over which there is much heavy teaming done. This would be surprising but for two main reasons, namely: first, a good variety of coarse gravel is used in large quantity to make a good bed; second, the wheels of nearly all heavy wagons are fitted with wide tires, three, three and a half or four inches wide. This latter point is the one of most importance and my main object in writing this communication.

Several years ago our local member for the Provincial Parliament, Mr E. W. B. Snider, introduced a bill on Roads Improvement; this bill had for its object the regulation of the width of wagon tires, Mr. Snider fixing three and a half and four inches as the standard. This rule was to apply to all wagons used by farmers, teamsters, draymen, etc., and was to affect heavy wagons only; light spring wagons would of course remain same as before.

A certain length of time was to be allowed in which to make the change in all wagons. I think the bill was to come in force two years after being passed. Unfortunately, however, the bill was defeated, and Mr. Snider has not since brought it up.

Nevertheless, to show how far the feeling has taken hold of this community, I might mention that for several years farmers and others have voluntarily adopted wide tires. Farmers have found them better adapted for fieldwork, as they do not allow the wagon to sink so deeply, and consequently the work of the horses is easier. For the same reason, during a rainy season a heavy wagon fitted with wide wheels, instead of cutting ruts in a road, acts like a steam roller and packs and hardens it.

Wide tires have come here to stay and are considered a very necessary adjunct to Roads Improvement.

Thank you, Sirs, for your valuable space, and I hope this tired article by an enthusiastic and interested Canuck will not make your readers also tired, I am, Yours respectfully,

Clayton M. Wells,

"SOCIAL" OF CINCINNATI TO "STAR."

Editor Bicycling World: In the October 10th number of the Bicycling World your correspondent, "Star," although doubtless meaning well, casts an apparent slur on the recently formed "Social Cycling Club" of this city. That "esprit du corps" is praiseworthy few will deny, but it is scarcely becoming in "Star" to object to the select nature of the above club simply because the members declined his personal invitation to join his pet club. The suspicion of sarcasm might have been avoided had not "Star" twice, in two different publications, made use of the same expression, viz: "The club is to be very select"; if sarcasm is not intended then "Star" can only be pitied for the depressing sameness of his phraseology.

A word of explanation may not be amiss regarding the "selectness" of the "Socials." The club has been formed with a view of encouraging lady riders and to raise the social status of cycling; and while its members do not, as the Pharisee, "Thank God that they are not as other men," they do most emphatically, even as a League club, repudiate the necessity of being hail-fellow well met with every rider of a wheel, many of whom would be as fully attired in a coat of feathers as in the absurd and objectionable costumes adopted by some local wheelmen. "Social."

INFORMATION WANTED ABOUT MARTIN RUDY.

It is to be hoped that all those who have had dealings with Martin Rudy of Lancaster, Penn., will communicate at once with Frank R Taylor, Esq., No. 316 South Fourth avenue, Mount Vernon, New York.

STOLEN BICYCLES.

Columbia Light Roadster safety, No. 5828 stolen from J. J. Freeman of Toledo, O.

Lovell Diamond safety stolen from Dawson & Co. of Pawtucket, R. I.; number of machine not taken; it was let to a boy, who gave the name of Read, Sept. 29. The boy was about 14 years old; wore knee breeches and bicycle cap. No mud guard over chain and rear mud guard was set on bent. Dawson & Co. will pay $5 reward for information.

Saturday evening, Oct. 18, a man calling himself John Dony and giving as his address No. 23 Rauber street, rented an Apollo Singer safety bicycle, No. 63,507, of C. J. Conolly, No 3 South Water street, Rochester, N. Y. He has not yet returned and Mr. Conolly fears that some serious accident has befallen him or that his moral nature is hopelessly warped. The latter suspicion is strengthened by the fact that the name and address given have turned out to be fictitious.

JUNIATA WHEELMEN'S MEET.

The Juniata Wheelmen's 3d annual race meet was held in Altoona, Pa., October 22d. Dame Nature dealt kindly with the Wheelmen, being the only day for a week or more having a clear sky. The early trains brought in many visiting wheelmen from all points throughout the Juniata Valley. Headquarters were established at the Logan House. About 100 wheelmen, including a number of ladies, assembled in the east parlor, where the Reception Committee registered and badged them. At 9 30 A. M. the Rev. A. W. Spooner of the Second Presbyterian Church, who is an enthusiastic wheelman himself, delivered an address of welcome in which he enumerated the many moral and physical advantages in the use of cycles. He was responded to by Mr. Hugh Lindsay, President of the Juniata Wheelmen Association, who pointed out the many ways in which the L. A. W. was advancing in the good work of Roads Improvements.

D. S. Drake, Secretary, read a letter from Chief Consul Sam'l A. Boyle, regretting his inability to be present, but urging the wheelmen to join the National organization for the many benefits derived therefrom.

A brief business meeting followed, in which a number of new members were secured for the L. A. W., after which the members visited the Pennsylvania Railroad machine shops, the largest in the United States.

At 1.30 P. M. the cyclers assembled in the Hotel Park, and were photographed by F. H. Foltz of Bedford, Pa., the first man to purchase a bicycle in the Juniata Valley. At 2 P. M. the street parade was formed, which was ably marshalled by W. Byrd Page. Over 150 cyclers participated in the parade of the ten miles of new asphalt streets. In the line were a number of ladies, and they handled their cycles as well as any of the sterner sex, many of them going the entire distance to the race track.

There was a good attendance at the races, and the events warmly contested, there being considerable anxiety as to the championship of the Juniata Wheelmen, which consists of all wheelmen in six counties of the Juniata Valley.

The racing events of last year being closely contested, it was looked forward to from that time to this for a final test. The scores were as follows:

Half-mile novice—W. B. Simpson, Huntingdon, time, 1.54 1-2; E. M. Newell, Huntingdon, 2.05, second best.

Half-mile for boys under 16 years—Howard Kessler, Altoona, 2.27; David Lackey, Altoona, 2.27 1-2.

Half-mile ordinary handicap—J. A. Johnson, 15 seconds, time 2.12; J. E. Patterson, scratch, time, 2.25.

Two mile championship Juniata Valley was contested in two events, first with safeties then with ordinaries. Best time in the safety, W. B. Simpson, Huntingdon, 8.57. Best time ordinaries, L. B. Baldwin, Huntingdon, 8 39, J. E. Patterson, who has held the honors for past years, following close behind. The championship was awarded to L. B. Baldwin of Huntingdon.

During the afternoon W. Byrd Page of Altoona, the champion high jumper of the world gave an exhibition, clearing five feet and eleven inches.

In the evening the Altoona Cyclers banquetted their visitors at the Opera House restaurant.

Everything passed off in an admirable manner, and the Altoona Wheelmen are to be congratulated on the success of the meet.

ROUTES AND RIDING DISTRICTS.

A MR. CLYMER WHITE, writing from Baltimore, Md., says: "In their article on planning a tour (page 65 L. A. W. Handbook), Messrs Elwell & Shepard strike a keynote in suggesting the compilation of a series of handbooks of the various riding districts.

In planning a tour of the Berkshire Hills I have been much helped by the kindness and civility of Mr. Booth, the Consul at Great Barrington, in sending me a book descriptive of that lovely country. But what I wanted was a concise statement of:

First—Character of roads.

Second—Hotel, whether clean, character of food, price, baths, &c.

Third—Most interesting objects, told in the shape of daily runs, with distances, and where to get luncheon, &c.

I have taken some notes of the Shenandoah Valley, which I will gladly write out, for the benefit of others, should you think it worth while

Will some one undertake to do the same in regard to Berkshire, the Orange district and Philadelphia?

May I take this opportunity of calling attention to the want of facilities for getting a bicycle across New York City, from Desbrosses street to Grand Central Station? Cannot the Transportation Committee make some arrangement with the baggage express people to do this, giving us some degree of certainty that the bike will be safely handled, and pedals not stolen?

[Mr. White's suggestion in regard to exchanging experience over different routes is a good one, and we beg leave to say that the columns of the WORLD are open to such who can give details as called for by our correspondent.—ED.]

THE Ellwell Bermuda party is filling up, and those who contemplate going should at once address Mr. F. A. Elwell, 152 Pearl street, Portland, Me.

THE TWENTY-FIVE MILE WILMINGTON ROAD RACE

THE weather on Saturday afternoon, for the Wilmington road race, repeated itself, being almost an exactly similar day to last year, raw, cold and dismal. Unfortunately the roads were in much worse condition than when the first race was run, an unusually heavy nor'easter having been blowing for two days, with the result that in some places along the course it was necessary to carry the machines, while in others nearly a foot of water had to be ridden through. Safeties were at a discount, the high wheels having a great advantage. Under the circumstances the time made was most excellent, Van Wagoner and Seeds proving themselves made of no common mould.

Out of twenty-nine entries twenty-five started, and of these three turned back.

The seventeen men who took prizes, with the order of their finishes and times, was as follows: Seeds and Van Wagoner riding together on the track for the last two miles, Van Wagoner beating Seeds by three feet. Hall, K. C. W., had a break down, delaying him several minutes:

Position.		Time, Actual. H. M. S.	Handicap.
1.	W. Van Wagoner	1 44 20	0
2.	W. C. Seeds	1 45 50 1-2	1 1-2
3.	J. R. Pearson	1 53 32	S
4.	F. B. Elliott	1 56 00	7
5.	F. M. Dampman	1 54 00 1-4	5
6.	F. Chew	1 56 03	9
7.	C. A. Elliott	2 00 55	S
8	J. S. Lodge	2 00 03	9
9.	E. O. Roe	2 09 15	7
10.	J. R. Hazleton	2 02 45	3
11.	W. M. Haradon	2 04 07	5
12.	B. F. McDaniel	2 10 30	S
13.	J. W. Robertson	2 07 49	6
14.	J. H. Draper	2 09 16	6
15.	G. M. Gregg	2 11 47	S 1-2
16.	C. A. Dimon	2 16 09	10
17	T. J. Hall, Jr	2 11 45	5

Officials as follows: Referee, H. Crowther, Pa. Bi. Club; Judges, H. S. Wiegand, K. C. W.; H. G. Priest, England; W. F. Kurtz, W. A. C.; Starter, J. A. Green, Century; Clerk of course, H. L. Pyle, W. W. C.; Scorer, P. S. Collins, C. W.; Timers, C. W. Baird, M. F. Davis, W. W. R.; Williamson, W. W. C.

The time between the leaving and returning of the road racers to the fair grounds was filled in with eight track bicycle races, which were of considerable interest and were well received by the spectators. The results follow:

One mile safety—Robert McCardell, first; J. E. Ainsworth, second; Elwood Layfield, third. Time, 4.26 1-2.

Half-mile safety, for boys under 16 years—H. L. Bissell, first; Frank J. Pyle, second; Harry Sedgewick, third. Time, 2.15.

Half-mile ordinary, 1.45 class—J. L. Hanley, first; H. J. Bowden, second; Leon B. Tantum, third. Time, 1.47.

One mile safety, 4 minute class—C. S. Merrill, first; Elwood Layfield, second. Time, 4.07 4-5.

100 yards slow race, ordinary—S. D. Wilson, first; Z. H. Lofland, second; H. J. Bowden, third. Time, 2.26.

One mile safety, 3.30 class—G. S. Merrill, first; H. L. Pyle, second; I. H. Pyle, third. Time, 3.54.

One mile novice, ordinary—H. J. Bowden, first; Harry Donalson, second. Time, 3.40.

Half-mile ride and run, ordinary—Z. H. Lofland, first; H. J. Bowden, second. Time, 3.27.

One mile handicap, club race, safety—H. L. Pyle, 425 yards, first; Harry Donalson, 50 yards, second; Z. H. Lofland, scratch, third. Time, 4.04 1-5.

RACING AND MEET NEWS AND GOSSIP,

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES AND CORRESPONDENTS—We have before requested that in reporting handicap races that handicaps be given. We constantly receive reports in which this most important feature is omitted. Please give the handicaps.

AT BRIDGEPORT, CT.—The 15-mile handicap road race of the Bridgeport (Ct.) Wheel Club took place Monday P. M., October 27. So muddy were some of the hills along the route, in fact, that it was necessary for each and every contestant to get off and walk. The finish was made on the race course at Seaside Park in the presence of 2000 people, and the difference of only 13 3-4 seconds between the time Soules and the winner caused the greatest excitement imaginable. Another pretty finish was that of Fryer and Tomlinson, fourth and fifth men in the race, Fryer defeating his man by less than one minute. Those who finished with their time and handicap appended are as follows:

Name.	Handicap.	Time. H. M. S.	Actual time. H. M. S.
S. N. Lockwood	3 min.	1 12 36	1 15 36
F. E. Soule	scratch	1 15 50 3-4	1 15 50 3-4
C. W. Ellison	5 min.	1 18 47	1 23 47
Geo. R. Fryer	5 min.	1 10 47	1 24 47
T. H. Tomlinson	5 min.	1 20 02 1-2	1 21 02 1-2
H. J. Lehing	scratch	1 22 05 1-2	1 22 05 1-2
W. H. Horr	5 min.	1 37 30	1 42 30

By his victory Lockwood not only secures the handsome diamond, L. A. W. offered as first prize, but also the handsome gold time medal for best time made. The second, third and fourth men each receive handsome solid silver medals, and the fifth contents himself with a box of 100 cigars. "NOSTAW."

ON EAGLE ROCK.—A. P. Benson of Dorchester has been doing some splendid work on Eagle Rock, Orange, N. J. Last week Thursday he arrived in New York in a driving rain storm. His object, however, was to see and perhaps try Eagle Rock, and so purchasing a rubber overcoat, and taking his wheel on the train, he started for Orange. He then rode to the hill, and notwithstanding the fact of the rain and that he was clad in a rubber coat, he just rode up the hill "for a flier."

Better weather came and on the morning of Oct. 26, accompanied, timed and checked by W. E. Wilson and J. M. Halloway of the Hudson County Wheelmen, assisted by other members of the same club, and Mr. Keen, captain of the Manhattan Bicycle Club, Mr. Benson on his safety, geared to 57 inches, began to climb against time. He accomplished it in 8.43, which is 47s. better than previous record. Then coasting down he rode the incline again in 8m. 50s., beating the record for the second time of 10m. 30s. by 1m. 40s. The surface of the incline, excepting the last pitch, was soft and heavy.

AT NORFOLK, VA., Oct. 20.—The first day's racing at the Division meet races at Norfolk, Va., was attended by a large crowd, among which were a goodly number of the fair sex. Results as follows:

One mile novice—T. A. Williams, Jr., first; J. W. Boggs, second; E. L. Dashiel, third. Time, 3.40.

One mile safety—A. A. O'Niel, first; C. W. O'Niel, second. Time, 3.31.

One mile championship, Norfolk Cycle Club—J. W. Boggs, first; W. B. Burrass, second; W. S. O'Neil, third. Time, 3.31.

One mile safety handicap—A. A. O'Neil, scratch, first; G. W. Lawrence, 20 sec., second; J. H. Downing, scratch third. Time, 3.12 1-2.

One mile, 3.20 class—C. W. O'Neil, first; G. R. Paul, second; L. Mayo, third. Time, 3.18.

Half-mile, boy's safety—A. Etheridge, first; B. Burwell, second; M. Peters, third. Time, 2.05.

Half-mile safety—C. W. O'Neil by a few inches, first; A. A. O'Niel, second. Time, 1.30.

Half-mile, youths—E. L. Dashiel, first; T. A. Williams, Jr., second; W. C. Moore, third. Time, 1.38 1-2.

Three mile, State championship—A. A. O'Neil, first; J. H. Downing, second; C. W. O'Neil, third. Time, 11.10 1-4.

The second day's racing brought out a fair crowd, but not so big as on the opening day. The results were:

One mile novice, safety—B. G. Simmons, first; J. S. Moore, second. Time, 3.21.

One mile open—A. A. O'Neil, first; C. W. O'Neil, second. Time, 3.16.

One mile Norfolk Club safety championship—W. B. Burrass, first; G. W. Lawrence, second. Time, 3.33 1-4.

One mile, handicap—A. A. O'Neil, 0 sec., first; J. W. Boggs, 11 sec., second. Time, 3.22.

One mile, club championship, ordinary—J. B. Pearson, Vineland, first; C. W. Pearson, second. Time, 3.37.

One mile, 3.30 class, safety—R. G. Simmons, first; C. W. Lawrence, second. Time, 3.27.

One mile, safety State championship—A. A. O'Neil, first; C. W. O'Neil, second. Time, 3.41.

Half-mile, open—L. Mayo, first; J. H. Downing, second. Time, 1.37.

One mile, State championship, ordinary—A. A. O'Niel by a few inches, first; C. W. O'Niel, second; J. H. Downing, third. Time, 3.35 1-2.

AT VINELAND, N. J.—A large crowd of wheelmen clothed in ulsters and warmer garments braved the cold weather on Monday last and visited Vineland, N. J., to witness the races of the Vineland Wheelmen. The contests were close and exciting, which aroused the enthusiasm of the Vineland people, who are admirers of bicycle racing, to a high pitch. A summary of the races is as follows:

One-mile ordinary novice—Won by H. S. Painter, T. C. C.; W. C. Hendee, V. W., second. Time, 3.33 1-5.

One-mile safety novice—Won by B. Gillette, V. W.; J. H. Hurst, V. W., second. Time, 3.43.

One-mile (open) safety—Won by W. C. Seeds, W. W. C.; I. Van Deusen, P. A. W., second. Time, 3.18.

One-mile club team race—Won by Park Avenue Wheelmen from the New York Athletic Club. Time, 3.15 1-5.

Three-mile handicap—Won by W. C. Seeds, W. W. C.; C. W. Pearson, V. W., second. Time, 9.45 3-5.

Half-mile (open)—Won by W. Van Wagoner, N. Y. A. C.; W. F. Murphy, N. Y. A. C., second. Time, 1.28.

One-mile handicap—Won by H. S. Painter, T. C. C., 150 yards; F. S. Chew, V. W., 140 yards, second. Time, 3m.

Half-mile safety (open)—Won by J. C. Donnolly, O. W.; W. C. Seeds, second. Time, 1.33.

Five-mile handicap—Won by J. B. Pearson, V. W., 350 yards; F. S. Chew, V. W., second, 475 yards. Time, 16 24.

Three-mile tandem safety handicap—Won by V. J. Kelley and J. H. Draper, P. A. W., 200 yards; W. Van Wagoner and W. C. Seeds, W. W. C., 100 yards, second. Time, 9.54. "TREE."

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 19.—The 100-mile road race on above date, held under the auspices of the Louisiana Cycling Club, was a success, and promptly at 7:30 the following gentlemen started: R. G. Betts, B. W. Cason, Jr., E. D. Frederic, C. H. Fenner and E. Newman. Newman did not last long, as his stomach went back on him. At the 25th mile Betts led, with Cason close up, and Frederic and Fenner trailing. Betts did the distance in 1.39.36. Record for the Southern States. At 50 miles Betts led Cason by 2m., doing the distance also in Southern record time of 3.20 35; Frederic and Fenner not in it. The race was won by Betts in 7.08.37 2-5; Southern record, with Cason 34m. behind. Fenner and Frederic one hour behind the winner.

THE corners of the Berkeley Oval, New York, are being banked in anticipation of Windle's promised attacks on the records, which will take place next month.

THE Atalanta Wheelmen of Newark, N. J., will give an athletic meeting on Friday, Nov. 21, at 8 P. M., at the Belleville Avenue Rink. Among the events will be a 1-mile safety bicycle handicap and a 1 1-2 miles' novice safety.

THE Harvard University Cycling Association will hold a race meeting on Holme's Field, Cambridge, November 8, open to colleges, schools, and the Boston A. A.

Events: Half-mile safety, scratch—novice, open to Harvard only; one mile ordinary, handicap—open; half mile safety, handicap—open; quarter-mile ordinary, handicap—open; one mile safety, scratch—interscholastic, open to all preparatory schools; two mile ordinary, scratch—intercollegiate; one mile safety, handicap—intercollegiate.

Two medals, struck from dies owned by the Association, will be given in each event.

In the interscholastic race, a silver cup has been presented, to be competed for by the Interscholastic Cycling Association, under rules similar to those which govern the Mott Haven games. L. A. W. rules to govern.

Entrance fee, 50 cents for each event, and must accompany entry. Entries close Saturday, November 1st, at 12 P. M., F. L. Olmstead, Jr., 13 Wadsworth House, Cambridge, Mass.

A large and convenient dressing room will be provided. It has shower baths attached, and opens on a balcony overlooking the track, and directly opposite the tape.

SEND for a copy of "Cycling for Health and Pleasure," the finest book of information and practical points on cycling ever published.

THE OVERMAN CUSHION TIRE.

THE following description and cuts will make plain the cushion tire patented by Mr. A. H. Overman: Fig. 1 shows the section of the proposed hollow rim to be used. Fig. 2 shows a section of the tire—A. is a section of the outer shell or envelope of rubber. B.B. are two nested inner arch-shaped shells located and fitting closely on the inner side of A., and by using more or less of these inner shells the tire may be graded in stiffness or softness to suit the weight and taste of the rider. By his means it is claimed that different density and elasticity can be at once produced and with little or no delay or trouble.

C is a thin, flat, reinforcing strip attached to the under edge of A. in any suitable way and the strip may be composed of metal, hard rubber, rubber cloth or any suitable substance. It will be noticed that the outer and under edge of A. are shaped to follow the curve of the steel felloe and to extend over same. Fig. 3 shows the method of fastening the tire to the rim.

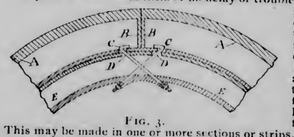

FIG. 3.

This may be made in one or more sections or strips, the ends of each section having a wall or web as at B.B. The device shown here for coupling and holding the tire is done by two wire hooks, C.C., the hooked ends passing through slots in rim and tire, D.D; the lower ends of these wire hooks being threaded and furnished with adjusting nuts by means of which the abutting surfaces of tire and rim and the ends, B.B., may be drawn tightly together.

DOWN THE CAPITOL STEPS

DAN CANARY rode a Victor Safety down the steps of the Capitol at Washington, D. C., October 23d. This is the first time that a rear driving safety has ever been ridden down those famous steps, and will therefore stand as record for that class of machine.

WORK is progressing rapidly on the new buildings of the Overman Wheel Co., at Chicopee Falls, Mass., and by the middle of next month the buildings will be covered.

HOLLAND & HAVENER of Worcester, Mass., will open a bicycle riding school at the rink during the winter months. The floor is 140x70. A large stock of safety machines will be kept on hand to rent, and a competent instructor will be in attendance. No charge will be made for spectators. Ladies will receive particular attention and special accommodations.

WITH the new and elegant quarters selected by the enterprising firm of Messrs. Howard A. Smith & Co. at 518 Broad street, Newark, N. J., filled from cellar to roof with new goods and the many accessories of the cyclist, they feel confident that the demands of their many patrons will be fully and promptly met. Their advertisement on page 22 is worthy of attention, and their new catalogue will be sent free on application.

THE Union Cycle Mfg. Co., will run their factory to its fullest capacity all through the winter months. Treasurer Measure is well satisfied with the business done by his company the past season, and looks confidently to a healthy increase in 1891.

THE work done by the Eagle last week was rather of the rushing sort. At the great Wilmington road race there were 24 starters, and out of that 24 the Eagle flew in, furnishing first, second, third, fourth and fifth. At Vineland, N. J., last Saturday, Eagles started in five events and took five firsts!! Then to go down South to Birmingham, Ala. We find that on October 23, the riders of Eagles took three firsts and three seconds in four races. Why shouldn't the Eagle scream?

PRESIDENT MCCUNE of the Union Cycle Mfg. Co. is highly elated with the result of the severe tests given their No. 12 and No. 13 machines, specifications of which are promised within a few days now.

MR. A. P. BENSON has made a new record at Eagle Rock Hill. The ascent was made in 8.43, which is 47 seconds better than previous record. The timers were W. E. Wilson and J. M. Holloway of the Hudson Co. Wheelmen—other members of the Hudson County Wheelmen were present—also Mr. Keen, Captain of the Manhattan Bicycle Club. We note that Mr. Benson is making his records on a geared-up safety bicycle, while previous records, if we are correctly informed, have been made on low geared wheels, or specially constructed, lever motion wheels.

SPECIAL reference is made to the excellent bargains offered by Wm. Read & Sons in some shopworn and second hand wheels. These bargains will not long go a-begging if our readers are as astute as we believe them to be.

Wheels Free on 'Frisco.

I enclose copy of Circular No. 454, issued by the St. L. and S. F. R. R. relative to the carriage of bicycles, and I would be glad if you would print the same in full, so as to undo as far as possible the information recently published in the BULLETIN, touching the policy of this road with respect to the transportation of wheels. It is only of comparatively recent date that the Frisco Line placed the embargo on wheels and their prompt action in rescinding the order, when the matter was properly brought to their attention, indicates a disposition on their part to treat wheelmen fairly. Yours very truly, WM. M. BREWSTER, Chairman Trans. Committee.

Missouri Division.

To Consuls and Members:

Our Division now numbers 430 members, and the growth is confined principally to one or two cities in the State. When this fact is taken into consideration that every town in this State which contains 1000 inhabitants boasts at least two or three wheelmen, the growth of the Division is not what it should be.

Individual workers are badly needed, and members are therefore urgently requested to lend the Division officers their aid in this important matter. Hundreds of new riders have taken to the wheel this season who should all be gotten to join, and in this way give our organization much needed strength in this State.

It should be remembered that the last half of the League year commences with this issue of the BULLETIN, and the persons who join us now remain with us till July 1, 1891, upon payment of $.50. This should be employed as an argument in getting riders to join now. If each Local Consul will obtain us only one new member this month we will have reached the 500 mark. This can be done easily, and it remains to be seen what officers will carry out the suggestion.

On account of members failing to renew we are at this writing unrepresented at Booneville, Edina, Lexington, Macon City, Chillicothe, Warrensburg and several other large towns. Members residing in the vicinity of the places named are requested to make every effort to obtain us the initial member so that a Local Consul can be appointed, who will look after our interests. Don't wait until the last moment before asking your cycling friends to join. You can just as easily decide the matter now as later.

Fraternally yours, ROBT. HOLM,
St. Louis, Oct 24, 1890. Chief Consul.

Kansas.

H. E. Scott is consul for Cuba, Kansas, instead of H. L. Hamilton, as published in my notice in the BULLETIN of October 17. F. B. Miner has been appointed consul for Ness City, Kas., to fill unexpired term of E. F. Sheldon, resigned.

Yours fraternally, CHAS. S. DAVIS,
Chief Consul.

Meeting of Missouri Division.

The annual meeting of the Missouri Division Board of Officers L. A. W., was held in the rooms of the Missouri Bicycle Club at St. Louis on Tuesday evening, Oct. 21st, the following officers being present: Chief Consul Holm, H. G. Wolzendorf, Representatives Laing and Garner, and proxies from Vice Consul Jaccard, Secretary-Treasurer Kelly. G. M. Wilder and Representative Seibel. Chief Consul Holm presided, and as the Secretary-Treasurer was not present R. W. Garner was elected Secretary pro tem. The following order of business was taken up:

The Division by its present membership being entitled to two Representatives to the National Assembly Mr. W. P. Laing was chosen as the additional delegate. Chief Consul Holm then submitted the following report, which was read and adopted:

REPORT OF CHIEF CONSUL HOLM.

Gentlemen of the Board:

The National Constitution requires that a meeting of the Board of Officers of each Division be held during September for the election of officers to the National Convention. In connection with this election I have decided it to be advisable to make a short report of my official acts since the State meet at Columbia Our membership has been on the boom, and at this writing we should have 425 members, as I find 10 names not included in Secretary Bassett's lists, and await his decision in the premises. Good work has been done by the majority of our officers, and never were the feelings more harmonious. In Southwest Missouri we have made notable gains in point of membership, and never before was the outlook so bright for reaching and passing the 500 mark as just now. No contrary legislative acts restricting the rights of wheelmen have come to my notice. During the past year an entirely new Road and Hand Book was carefully compiled by Chairman H. G. Wolzendorf of the Road Book Committee and distributed among our members, and is being furnished to each new member. Members joining us after the 1st prox. only contribute 50 cents to the Division treasury, and I would like to have your opinion relative to furnishing them the book free The total edition was 500 copies, and with our rapid increase in membership, this will soon be exhausted. The book has been praised on all sides for its neat appearance, and I think it is but just to present Chairman Wolzendorf with a vote of thanks for his labor in behalf of the Division. The annual meet and races at Columbia last July were an immense success, and in point of attendance and enthusiasm displayed this meet excelled all others held heretofore under the auspices of this Division. These annual gatherings do much towards developing the brotherly feeling which should exist among our members, and for this reason should be attended by every member who desires a royal good time as well as to take a hand in nominating officers for the ensuing year. To date no applications have been received for next year's meet, and if there are any representatives from any cities desiring the meet, present, I should be pleased to hear from them. As the meets are growing in popularity, greater preparations are necessary to make them as successful as they can be made, and for this reason the location should be decided upon as soon as possible.

Our Rights and Privileges Committee, which was created at Columbia this year have had a number of cases to contend with against road hogs. One of these in which Edw. Cardell figured as defendant, was lost in the Police Court to the great disappointment of us all, as we thought a term in the work house or a heavy fine, was justified by the outrageous assault. A case is now awaiting trial in the Circuit Court, and is the suit of H. C. Canfield against P. W. and B. Donnely, liverymen, whose driver maliciously ran down the defendant via Lucas Place, this city in May last. While this suit for damages does not rightfully come under the province of the League, as the question of the right of the use of roads was not involved, our members decided at the Columbia meeting to push this case to the bitter end, and I trust it will result favorably. The papers in the case have been submitted to the gentlemen composing the committee, and at their unanimous decision the suit was brought by M. Canfield.

The State is being districted, and a certain number of counties are being assigned to each Representative for his personal supervision, and as soon as the work is completed, due notice will be given through the columns of the BULLETIN.

Prof. H. C. Penn, having resigned the chairmanship of the Highway Improvement Committee, I have appointed Mr. W. Rothwell of Moberly to fill the vacancy and have requested him to memorialize Gov. Francis to include the necessity of legislation to improve, and to do away with the old fogy methods in building and reconstructing the peoples highways, our public roads. It was intended to introduce legislation on this subject at the coming session of the Legislature, but after carefully reconsidering the situation, it was deemed advisable to let this matter rest at present. Missouri has abundant laws on her Statute books, which only need to be enforced to make a big improvement possible, and by working quietly in agitating this subject, and in calling attention to the non enforcement of road laws, as well as the great expense of the present system, with no good results, which can be attained by following proper methods, the committee hopes to gradually bring about a change. Respectfully submitted.

ROBT. HOLM, Chief Consul.

It was unanimously decided to furnish the Road Book free to all new members, issuing a new edition if found necessary. Motion made and seconded that a "Display Sheet" be framed and sent to the different agencies to attractively display the advantages of the League. Motion carried.

The resignation of H. D. McCorkle, as chairman of the Rights and Privileges Committee was presented and laid over for further consideration.

Representative Garner then presented an application from Carthage for the sixth annual meet to be held next year July 3rd and 4th, and after some discussion it was unanimously decided to hold the meet there on the dates named.

The report of the Secretary-Treasurer was now received, and was accepted. Following is the list of towns, and number of members in each town as furnished by the Secretary.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

GALE'S * SAFETY

The GALE SAFETY is designed with a view of meeting the demand for an all ball bearing Safety at a moderate price. The frame is of weldless steel tubing and steel forging throughout. The rear wheel is 30 inches, with 7-8 inch tire, geared to 54 inches; 30 inch steering wheel, with 3-4 inch tire. Best quality moulded rubber tires, firmly cemented into the rims. The spokes are direct, of No. 12 special drawn steel wire. Straight front fork; corrugated rubber coasters. The handle bar is one piece steel tube 30 inches long, bent back, and is detachable and adjustable.

Both wheels, crank-axle and pedals are fitted with ball bearings. The pedal rubbers are soft and tough, and so made as to prevent the rider's foot from slipping. The saddle rests on an L seat rod, and is adjustable to height, also forward and back. The saddle is the famous Fish patent Hammock, model 1890, is adjustable in all directions. The brake is of the Plunger style, and very powerful. Neat Lamp Bracket, Mudguards over both wheels. Finely enamelled, with usual bright parts nickeled on copper. Each machine is supplied with tool bag, wrench and oiler.

PRICE, - - $75.00.

"BRONCHO,"

Noiseless, Chainless Safety Bicycle.

Although some of our competitors present views anent testimonial letters, diametrically antagonistic to our own, we will take the liberty of inserting IN OUR OWN SPACE, ONE SINGLE, SOLITARY "CORKER," and request any interested parties to send for our Large Book of testimonial letters, now ready for distribution.

M. V. Livingston Cycle Mfg. Co, Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—I received the "BRONCHO" Chainless Lt. Roadster Safety on Sept 20th, and desiring to give the wheel a thorough trial as a good all around wheel, started Sept. 28th for a ten days' trip through New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware and Northern Maryland.

The "BRONCHO" surpassed any wheel I ever rode. On sandy roads there was none of the side sliding and slipping common to all chain safeties. Steep hills were mounted with comparative ease, and riders of chain safeties can never know what a relief it is in hill climbing to be without the necessity of pulling and straining on the handlebars.

During the ten days I covered over 500 miles, and considerable of it was over hard, stony roads. During that time not a spoke or nut loosened, and the wheel to-day is as perfect as when it left the factory. In riding through mud, as I did not have to stop every few miles to clean a chain, I found no trouble. In short, I found that for all round riding "BRONCHO" is by far the most practical machine that I have ever ridden, and I have, during eight years, ridden nearly all. Yours truly,

(Signed) Geo. S. Macdonald.

WHAT DID THE FOX SAY?

QUIDPROQUO. XXXII.

My Columbia Calendar slip for 22nd inst. reminded me that four years ago that day "George B. Thayer, of the Hartford (Conn.) Post, returned from his trip across the Continent and back again on a Columbia Bicycle, 1886." Items like that scattered along through the printed pages of the last dozen years or so, are the "testimonials" which afford testimony not only that Pope Mfg. Co., Boston, Hartford, New York, Chicago, have bicycles to sell, but that they have sold them and the buyers made no mistake in trusting them. Said one rider: "I have a Columbia and am therewith content."

A "ROGERS' GROUP."

An item in the fine print "trade-notes" of this paper last week (which I was able to read very comfortably with the aid of a good hand reading-glass) referred to the pair of Columbia cycles then in a window at 77 Franklin St., Boston, owned by the brothers Rogers, who were back from their 4200 mile journey. The wheels should have made the Pope Mfg. Co. proud, they stood the trip so well. The owners were proud of them, too, and took them off for further use. They said, "May the Columbia prosper as in the past." They left Plymouth Rock 27 April, 1890, and continued their trip to Portland, Oregon,---20 weeks lacking a day. Those two brothers will have something to remember together for a lifetime.

WORE OUT HIS CYCLOMETER.

When in Hartford, a fortnight or so ago, I saw another Columbia, (an 1890 L. R. Safety,) which had been ridden through England, France and Switzerland, and cornering which I was allowed to publish here part of a letter from the rider, on the 22August (Qo. No. XXII.) I give now a few words from another letter of his, dated at Liverpool, 22 Sept., 1890: "The bicycle has come through without a mishap or a moment's trouble. With the exception of oiling and tightening the chain I have given it no attention at all, and the operations of oiling and tightening have not occupied more than a couple of hours for my entire trip.

"Knowing what a box I would have been in had any part broken, and having seen many disabled foreign wheels, you can be sure that I feel very thankful I was mounted on a Columbia during my tour. I will be very happy to return all the spare parts I took along, in the original unbroken package. I cannot give the same report for the cyclometer as for the wheel, as the measuring machine failed me shortly after returning to England." A curious thing about this machine was the amount of wear on the foot rests and brake, from the long Swiss coasts.

"THEY SELL ON SIGHT."

Thus in this and the two preceding numbers I have been giving my Readers some specimen sentences from private letters,---not "testimonials" nor answers to cornering questions. I might say, "Ask Columbia Riders!" according to a formula on which I kept quiet, as long as it seemed to be the especial amen of one concern; but now that it is used by more, let me---not use it as they do, but parody it: Ask any rider what he will buy next. Ask any maker which is the best machine besides his own. Ask any travelling talksman, when he's off duty.---But you don't have to ask Columbia riders; they tell without asking. The way it goes is shown in a little note from a Syracuse young lady to a friend of mine, in which she says: "I have a Columbia, and enjoy it very much. A gentleman after once seeing mine went right down and bought his daughter one. They sell on sight."

"For bleak, unadulterated misery," as Rudyard Kipling phrases it, the small-tired, rigid-framed machines, and the near-sighted, old-fashioned advertisers, are the worst. For illustration: I went to the window just now,---the offices of three express companies are on the opposite corner,---and I see several boys wheeling, on these small iron-wheeled barrows, packages of different sizes from up Arch street to the block across Franklin. Everyone as he comes to a curb or a gutter turns about and draws the barrow over instead of pushing it over. You always do that, and see it done, when the point of push is higher than the axle of the wheel, and you never do it or see it done when the point of push is lower than the axle of the wheel. The point of push in a bicycle is at the axle of the driving wheel,---where that axle holds up and pushes the frame and through it the front wheel,---isn't it? just as in a wheelbarrow the point of push is at the handles. But somehow every time I refer to this everyday illustration of one reason why the Columbia Safety is a superior machine, some advertiser of a puny front wheel in this or other trade papers goes into a full page apology about it. Now I rather make people happy, even the perverse,---and didn't mean to say wheelbarrows again.

"WRITHES IN PAIN."

HICKORY NUT CRACKED.

Yes, in the Arabian tale, all the honest merchant had to say was "Open, sesame," and the door of the robber-cave swung wide; and all that I have to say is, turn wheelbarrow, and ------ Well, what is it writhes in pain? Why just as Bryant sang it:

"Error, wounded, writhes in pain,"

And then you hear a soughing of winds among the Hickory boughs and other antiquities of the primæval wilderness. You even saw a letter to Quidproquo recently on the subject by Mr. Sterling Elliott, that ingenious user of both edged and pointed tools. Then came an illustrated piece of puzzle work by him under "Trade Notes." It all reminds me of a tail,---not an Arabian tale, but one of Æsop's narratives. But isn't the point of push in a bicycle at the axle of the rear wheel, my dear sir, just as in a wheelbarrow it is at the handles? How absurd it would be to say that "the power to push forward a" wheelbarrow "comes upward from a point where" the toe "touches the ground so that the driving power tends to lift the front wheel!" Then if the front wheel of a safety were enough smaller you would have to carry weights to keep it down, wouldn't you?---even without that puzzling pull of the cords.

A PAT TAIL-PIECE.

When you see that "the power to push forward a front wheel is applied to" the frame where it holds the driving axle and does not "come upward from the point where driving wheel touches the ground," then you easily see the fallacy with which the puzzle trick of the drawing is operated by Mr. Elliott. But, of course, like the man of the world in the old chorus of Sophocles' "Antigone,"

"He has gotten him speech, and fancy breeze-betost," and he amuses us. It is this "fancy breeze-betost" which has beguiled me into a breach of my rule not to "talk back" to others on this page. I don't stop to argue now with my friend, Young Hickory. I point out a fact or two. The best answer is actual trials of the machines and in the leadership of Columbias, with their larger front wheels, year in and out, in every kind of use. To all those who, finding themselves with abbreviated front wheels, try to dissuade others from the Columbias either in this or other trade papers, I merely cite Æsop's fable of the Fox without a Tail: "Resolving to make the best of a bad matter, he * * * proposed that all should follow his example. 'You have no notion, said he, 'of the ease and comfort with which I now move about: * * * I propose, therefore, my worthy brethren, that you all profit by the experience that I am most willing to afford you, and that all Foxes from this day forward cut off their tails? Upon this one of the oldest stepped forward and said: 'I rather think, my friend, that you would not have advised us to part with our tails if there were any chance of recovering your own?'"

Ale that is unsurpassed.

In order to meet the growing demand for our Bottled India Pale Ale and Brown Stout, we have greatly increased the capacity of our bottling establishment, and can now fill all orders promptly.

Arrangements have been made with druggists and other dealers in bottled ales, whereby hotels, clubs and private families can be supplied with ale and stout bottled by us.

These goods are unsurpassed by the finest imported, and are noted for their fine mellow flavor, clearness and creamy head. They gratify the taste and prompt the appetite. They are a splendid tonic and are especially recommended to athletes. Endorsed by prominent physicians and connoisseurs.

For over a century our brewings have been recognized as the standard. Protect American industries by using American ale. If your dealer does not keep it, send to us direct.

All goods bottled by us have our Trade Mark and Signature on the label.

Gentle Rider—Did you ever ride in an Ice Wagon? Did you ever ride in a Modern Buggy? Did you ever notice any difference between them as regards Springiness? Which would you prefer to ride around in?

When a man is the centre of attraction at a funeral, we take it that he is not particular as to the conveyance used, but the cry which goes up from the living who are ever seeking a revivifying recreation is, Give us Anti-Vibration in our Bicycles.

Until recently this vague term represented an unknown quantity; to riders of Unions No. 12 and No. 13 it will no longer be unknown, but an ever present fact; these bicycles are built of the highest grade of material throughout, by first-class machinists, finished in the best possible manner; have ball bearing socket steering heads, Union Spring Frame, are perfectly interchangeable and we warrant every wheel leaving the factory.

Agents, Attention!! In your own interest handle Union Bicycles. In the interest of the public, who inevitably seek the best, not because the best is sometimes cheapest, but because it is Best,--Handle them.

And now let us pray for the man who sells a poor article, that he may be forgiven hereafter.

We are surely promised electros of No. 12 and No. 13 for display in time for next isssue.

THE Spirit of the Times rather pitches into the custom of giving valuable and serviceable prizes at bicycle races held under League rules. Citing the case of a well-known Philadelphia wheelman and naming the prizes he won at a late meeting, the Spirit says:

"* * * Thus we see that the Philadelphia gentleman amateur sallies forth to the races at high noon, and returns to his wigwam at eventide with a bugle slung over his shoulder, a silver cup under his arm, a silver watch in his fob, a receipted bill for an evening suit in one pocket and an order for a year's washing in the other. A suit of clothes is an odd prize, and must be tolerably near the line which divides amateur from professional trophies. But a wash bill is worse. A gentleman's laundry bill would hardly be less than a dollar per week, and the difference between this prize and $52 in cash is too small to be seen without a microscope. * * *"

While in general the criticism may be a fair one, yet Mr. Curtis in singling out unfairly this particular wheelman shows a little personal spite, which takes off the edge of what otherwise is a condition of things to cause us to ponder.

BUFFALONIANS seem to have been very much worked up over the question as to whether or not it was necessary for League members to become Amateur Athletic Union members before they would be allowed to compete in A. A. U. events. So much discussion has been raised, and so much has been done by those opposed to the L. A. W. in Buffalo to inculcate the idea that L. A. W. members could not compete in the open events of the A. A. U., that Mr. Walter S. Jenkins has taken the matter in hand and written a long letter to the Courier of Buffalo, correcting the wrong impression made by the disseminators of the false reports. He makes the following statements, which is the whole matter in a nut shell.

"* * * Now I desire to make the statement, and I desire to make it positively so that there can be no mistake about it, there is nothing in the Constitution or By-Laws of the Amateur Athletic Union requiring a would-be competitor at any event governed by A. A. U. rules to be a member of an A. A. U. club, unless it be an event which is expressly limited to such members. Such an event is called a "closed" event and of course can be limited in any manner which the promoters of the games see fit to do. In championship events, also, under A. A. U. rules, a competitor need not belong to an A. A. U. club, but he can compete if he be a member of a club. So that there is no necessity whatever for a bicycle club to leave the L. A. W., or even to belong to the A. A. U., to entitle its members to compete in any open event governed by A. A. U. rules, and they can only be shut out of such events as the promoters of those games choose to make 'closed events.' * * *."

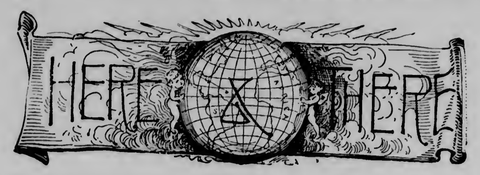
AGAIN do we hear rumblings of discontent and anger from certain sections of New York because wheelmen have been applied to for support of candidates who are supposed to have rendered wheelmen services in the halls of the Legislature.

Two circulars of this nature have been issued, one signed by a gentleman in no way officially connected with the L. A. W., and one anonymous circular appealing to Gothamites to support and oppose thus and so.

Possibly the editor of this paper is tainted with a strain of mugwumpian blood and could easily bring himself to support the man who supported him, irrespective of his political "Hall Mark." The personal notions of the editor, however, have nothing to do with the matter, as the question to be answered is: "Is it best for the interests of the League to dabble in politics?" This question will become more and more prominent and it is in order for the members to discuss the matter through the columns of the WORLD. There is vast room for argument here, who will start the ball a-rolling?

THE ELLWELL TOURS.

THE programmes for both the Bermuda and European tours of Messrs. Elwell and Higgins are now ready and all who wish a delightful winter or summer outing awheel will do well to send for them at once. Nothing more delightful can be imagined than a trip to the summer isles of Bermuda, where snow and frost never come, where palm trees wave and the loquot bends under its burden of fruit over roads of ideal hardness which wind through scenes of tropical lovliness. This tour is specially designed for ladies as well as gentlemen, as there is no changing of hotels, no baggage to be carried and runs may be of any length desired. This is the third party Mr. Ellwell has conducted to Bermuda. Quite a number of ladies and gentlemen are already booked for the tour, and as the number is limited it would be advisable to give the matter early consideration.



The European tours have become annual fixtures, and that they furnish the acme of enjoyment to be derived from the wheel is a matter of record. This year their route will be across France, taking in the great cathedral towns of Orleans, Bourges, Nevers and Autun, Mt. Blanc and Chamonix, then the entire length of Switzerland, through the Black Forest, down the Rhine, through Holland with its dykes and ditches, and so to London. The circular is a very attractive one and should be carefully read by all having a European trip in view.

CHIEF CONSUL BULL'S RACING CIRCUIT SCHEME.

Editor Bicycling World: Chief Consul Bull's proposed New York State circuit of bicycle race meetings, described in your issue of Oct. 24th, should, in my opinion, command the interest of every member of the Division.

It would seem as if nothing could be suggested that would give cycling such an impetus throughout the State, as this plan. There are so many good features in the scheme that it would take much space to point them out. However, Mr. Bull presents it as open to discussion and amendments, and it is to be hoped that before long the result of our active Chief Consul's work may be accomplished in the organization of a well balanced racing circuit that will be a credit to the Division, as well as a success financially and otherwise.

Fraternally yours, C. EDWARD WOOD.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"ARIEL."

CAPTAIN DALSEN of the Century Wheelmen recently conceived the idea of holding a century run from Harrisburg to this city, and the idea materialized yesterday into a very tangible and successful inter-club trip. On Saturday afternoon members of the Century, Park Avenue, Quaker City, Columbia Cyclers and other clubs trained it to Harrisburg, and starting from that point at an early hour, the first detachment reached Reading between nine and ten o'clock, taking dinner at Pottstown, getting to Philadelphia about eight o'clock in the evening. The second detachment did not get in until ten o'clock, having maintained an easier gait. Thirty-nine started and eighteen finished. The tourists were exceedingly fortunate to have struck a lovely October day.

DEAR "Linneus," I have been waiting patiently for your friends to come along, as I felt that since you had recommended them to "'Ariel's' tender mercies," I could do no less than to sustain my reputation; but so far they have not materialized.

THE Spirit of the Times takes occasion last week to vigorously score L. A. W. amateurs in general, and W. W. Taxis of the Athletic Club Schuykill Navy, of this city, in particular, Mr. Curtis kindly (?) sending a copy of his article to Chairman Davol, by whom it was referred to Mr. George D. Gideon. Perhaps I cannot do better than to quote from Mr. Gideon's vigorous reply to Mr. Davol: "It is an infernal outrage that a fellow of the stamp of this Curtis, whom I know of old, should be allowed to deliberately and intentionally lie about wheelmen in this way. In the first place, Taxis is to-day the nearest racing crack in county to my idea of pure amateurism. It is true that his expenses are sometimes paid by the A. C. S. N., of which he is a member, but he frequently pays his own expenses. He is in the University of Pennsylvania and declined to go to Washington principally because going would compel him to miss his lectures there. The prizes were not only nothing of the kind mentioned by the Spirit, but were, I believe, medals, the entire lot being purchased for one hundred dollars. Curtis has, as usual, mixed the matter up, and I firmly believe, with the intention of doing all the harm possible to cycling. He has never forgiven us for making the sport so much more interesting than his favorite exhibitions of brute strength—hammer and weight throwing. The Park Avenue and Quaker City Wheelmen's meet was held a week after the A. A. U. championship, and it was there that Taxis won the laundry and dress suit, which were all offered in open competition, and were competed for by the New Yorkers a well, and which, moreover, were prizes donated to the clubs to help along the meeting by men who are members of the clubs named. They were queer prizes to be sure, but I could not see anything in the rules that would warrant me in objecting to them. As a matter of fact I believe that all prizes of this sort tend to degenerate the sport; I think we should limit prizes to cups, medals and jewelry, with a value limit of fifty dollars. I think, too, that the wheelmen should be allowed to have their bare travelling expenses only paid, and that only by cycling clubs on permission." All of which goes to make very pretty reading, more especially for Mr. Curtis, who, as one of the Board of Managers of the A. A. U., voted to continue the little "expenses" of their amateurs, very few of whom can show as clean a record as W. W. Taxis.

WE are rapidly getting into the social swing of the winter season. The Park Avenue's dance last week was a great success, and this week the Pennsylvanias have a progressive euchre party.

No less a personage than ex-Captain W. D. Supplee of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club, is down for matrimony, the ceremony taking place at St. Asaph's Church, Bala, on November 12th.

THE usual crop of new clubs is announced. If I am not mistaken, Philadelphia now numbers somewhere in the neighborhood of twenty-five or thirty cycling organizations. That these could be very successfully condensed into say one dozen powerful clubs, no one would be more thoroughly convinced than the small fry, did they only "try the experiment."

NOTES BY "HAWKSHAW."

WHAT a great amount of benefit is to be secured through membership in a wheel club outside good fellowship and storage of your wheel? Take as an example only one issue of the BICYCLING WORLD, the last one, and see there what the various clubs offer as inducements to recruits. If you are a member of the Illinois Cycling Club of Chicago your billiards, pool or bowling cost you nothing, while membership in the Porkopolis Wheelmen of Cincinnati entitles yon to free vaccination at the hands of Dr. Green. Could there be a wider range than this?

PERHAPS no form of wheel construction has made greater strides towards perfection in the last few years than the manufacture of the cheaper grades of wheels intended for the use of children. To-day sees the youngster mounted upon a machine so modern and so well built that it would have seemed a marvel to any of us ten years ago. The manufacturers are far-seeing enough to know that the children of to-day are the riders of the future, and being believers in training up a child in the way he should go they thus early in life inculcate a love for cycling in young hearts, and when the child has become a man he departs not from the correct teachings of his youth. I am sure that cycling has not a more unselfish or enthusiastic lover than the small boy who rushes past one on a sidewalk at a speed that often causes the sedate pedestrian to wish he was not quite so enthusiastic or that he would work off his enthusiasm in some more secluded spot and manner. The joys of childhood are many, but thanks to the manufacturer, the least of them is not cycling.

"I JUST saw a rider giving one of those pneumatics a regular 'blowing up,'" said the Solid Tire to the Cyclometer. "Well, I am glad of it," replied the Cyclometer, "it is about time something was being done, the 'tire'-any of this new wind-bag has become very 'tire'-some to me of late," and the meeting adjourned. [Shades of Bassett!!—ED.]

WHEELING, the brightest of all of the English wheel papers, quotes freely from this column, which fact more than anything else proves to me that its editor, Mr. McCandlish, knows a good thing when he sees it, and having found it don't let it get away from him.

I WENT through the riding academy of George Bidwell recently, and when I saw that the walls were padded, so that even the most awkward of beginners could not injure themselves, I looked back to the day when I had to learn to ride by taking an old bone-shaker out upon the road and there going through a catch-as-catch-can performance with it, all by my lonesomes. Nowadays the beginner has none of this, and when he concludes to take a fall he finds beneath him a nice clean cushion, which really makes unceremonious dismounts a pleasant variation of the monotony of learning. No longer is it possible for the modern mother to paraphrase the Spartan matron, and when her son sallies forth to take his bicycle lesson, tell him to return home upon his wheel or under it. No indeed the Spartan days of cycling are gone.

I UNDERSTAND that it is proposed to give a series of "music rides" this winter, similar to the ones so popular at the riding academies for equestrians. Theoretically the idea is a good one, but I am afraid that practically it won't be a great success, as the bicycle has a very unfortunate trick of always doing the wrong thing at the right time, with any other than the most expert rider. I am almost certain that the most popular spectator at an affair of this kind would be one of those very careful individuals who always carries with him one of those cunning little books of court-plaster, and offers it as a cure for anything from a tooth-ache to a bunion. It would not be a bad idea for the invitations to such an affair to have in the corner of them the letters P. B. Y. O. C. P.—please bring your own court plaster.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

"HEXAMETER."

THE Union Relief Corps have been holding a fair during the past week in Armory Hall. Beside the usual features of booths and lunch and voting schemes, there has been an entertainment of some description, differing each night. On Saturday night the wheelmen gave an exhibition. Owing to the small amount of floor space unoccupied and its slipperyness, the exhibition was not such "a blooming success" as it should have been. "Twelve good men and true," led by P. L. Able, grand master of ceremonies, did the grand entrance act. The polo game which followed was the chief attraction of the evening. Chalfant and Herwig against Percival and Shrode, the latter scoring 2 points against the former's one. But the floor was so slippery that collisions and falls were so numerous that the boys quit in disgust. Yet there were several very fine plays made. Chalfant sprung a rim in the first bout and had to change wheels. The polo game was followed with fancy riding by Ned Chalfant and Jake Korn. This in turn succeeded by Stuart, the Chinaman, and Herwig, from Ireland, in a combination act with safeties. Stuart's make-up, jabber and actions are inimitable, and so true to nature (and we have a few Chinese in California) that only when he doffed "John's" habiliments on the floor was it possible to convince many that it was "an act." A race was then run between them, Herwig and Stuart, resulting in Stuart's gaining one lap in 10. Chalfant and Ledru Kinney, "the midget," did the brother act, followed by Kinney. "The midget's" riding is phenomenal, being perfect master of the wheel. So ended the wheelmen's first tournament of the season.

A GRAND smoker is on the tapis, and if all the schemes talked of materialize they will blaze for themselves a path to glory during the coming winter.

THE Daily Times, our opened and avowed enemy (with whom we have had several bouts), in its characteristic manner disposed of the tournament last night in two lines. The Tribune, with its usual courtesy, favored us with nearly three fourths of the space devoted to the fair.

NEXT week begins the annual Chrysanthemum Fair. Pardon the pun, but you see we have a pretty fair country that can stand four fairs in three weeks, and the season only just begun. If I had not written so much of climate in previous letters, this might be an opportunity, but I forbear.

D. L. BURKE is out of the city for a month on business. Phil. Percival is again at the old stand.

WILL NOBLE, who has always been an earnest upholder of the "G. O O.," took a header a few days since, resulting in a sprained knee and bruised spots, so many that he hadn't hands enough to go round. He says he hit the ground all over at once, and his face, hands and extremities don't belie his statement.

CHAS. E. GALE goes away to the mountains for a few months, starting Tuesday. He stays long enough to vote, but as he will be only from 20 to 50 miles from the city, the "boys" will see him occasionally.

DETROIT.

"JUDGE."

HERE is an extract from one of the many interesting letters I have received from Griff; it was written from Montpelier, Vt.: "This up and down town, built all along the mountain side, one street overlooking the house tops of the one below it, above them all at the highest point the beautiful cemetery with its nicely kept walks and drives, green grass and autumn leaves. Away down in the valley flows the river, winding round the base of the opposite mountain, whose side and top is wreathed with the low hanging clouds of this wet October day. It is only after a long climb that I find myself here, and it is that I may look upon the last resting place of one now unknown, but who in his day was the centre of all eyes (how soon we are forgotten); a little while we strut life's stage, a flash and all is over, and the ever changing throng, who, to-day, wait for his smile and cringe at his frown, to-morrow, forget to do him homage. Poor Jim Fisk, the wonder of New York, one on whom the fickle goddess fortune smiled so grandly, where now are your railways, your steamboats, your Grand Opera Houses, where now your magnificent Seventh Regiment of which you were so proud? A poor boy he went from these hills; everything he touched seemed to turn to gold, until he stood alone, commanding the money kings of Wall street, but with all his grand qualities, his human nature had a weak spot, and he fell entangled in the net that is always about the feet of those who wear their hearts upon their sleeves. One day in midwinter came the end, a tragedy that startled New York and the country; over the wires went flashing the news, "James Fisk shot in the Grand Hotel corridor;" everybody remembered some kind deed he had done; the news came echoing with gloom back to his old home, this little town, and after many days, when the parade and pomp of the city was over, they bore all that was mortal back again, back to the hills of his childhood where possibly the happiest years of his life were spent, and up this same long, hilly street that I came, loving hands brought him, and to-day, in the rain, I read on the magnificent marble tomb, erected by friends, 'Col. James Fisk, Jr., born 1835, died 1872.'"

A STAG party is the starter the Detroit Wheelmen give us. The club orchestra of eighteen pieces will furnish the music; it will occur shortly.

PARTITIONS torn out, floors and wood work painted and walls neatly papered have worked a marvelous change in the upper floor of our club house. We now have one large billiard room containing one billiard table and one pool table and two cosy little card rooms besides.

THIS is another wet fall in this region, and in consequence no riding. Finn's record will doubtless stand till next year.

REMEMBER

L. A. W. National Meet in '91 will be in Detroit.

BUFFALO NOTES.

"SETAGEC."

THE League question is again brought up in connection with the Ramblers. Many of the "Hustlers" are athletes, good ones, too, and they cannot compete in local events unless members of the A. A. U., so some contend that the club drop the League and take up the A. A. U., while others say that the club should be a member of both associations.

THE last cross-country run of the three contests for the championship of the city and the News trophy was run last Thursday and was won of course by the "Indians," the Iroquois Athletic Club, but the Ramblers' team, though not sprinters, did splendidly and surprised all; one of the Buffalo A. C. who did finely was Frank Schwinn, the popular captain of the Ramblers.

BUFFALO is well taken care of this winter, as all the wheel papers and all leading sporting papers have regular correspondence from here, while last season and winter only one wheel and one sporting paper were represented.

THE Press Cycling Club will probably become a member of the A. A. U. and add an athletic adjunct.

THE Ramblers had the annual theatre party at the Court Street last Tuesday evening; they will have several others during the winter.

ON Wednesday night the Ramblers reopened their gymnasium by an interesting programme consisting of exhibitions in boxing, wrestling, tumbling, etc. A large crowd was present.

THE Buffalos are not making much noise, but they have as pleasant times in their cosey ideal club house as any wheel club on the continent.

WHEELS are still much used here, though the union of rain and poor pavements in other cities has nearly stopped cycling.

MISSOURI.

"LINNEUS."

CYCLE riders who have strolled through the country recently could not help noticing the large proportion of sand and dirt in the gravel heaps which are soon to be spread on the roads. It is surprising that the gravel is not sifted, as it is well known that sand is the worst obstruction to vehicle wheels.

EVERYTHING is in readiness to make the first entertainment of the Missouris a big success. It takes place Thursday, Nov. 6, and will be a lantern slide illustrating a trip through the Mediterranean region. A hop will wind up the affair. A numerously signed petition is now circulating among the members urging Treasurer Hildebrand to lead the gymnasium class on Thursday nights. On Monday evening Chas. Gibson will have charge and he is also preparing a hand-ball court for the members use.

INASMUCH as the stock of cloth which the official L. A. W. contractors have on hand must have disappeared by this time, I think it is high time to advise the members through the columns of the WORLD just what will be done in this direction, and unless they know beforehand what the color, quality and price of the new cloth is to be many orders for the same will be lost. Won't the Uniform Committee enlighten us on the subject?

AS fine a stretch of scientific road building as I have seen in many a day is the present six-mile stretch of the Manchester road to Benton. A steam roller has been at work on it for over two months and the results achieved have been wonderful. What was formerly a mass of ruts, mud puddles and "congealed perdition" generally is now a smooth road over which the cycle glides with that gentle yielding that is foreign to asphaltum.

TOURS of discovery are very popular at this season of the year in which the clubs vie with each other in their endeavor to visit places hitherto unvisited by wheelmen. A ride of this nature was the Missouris run to Butler Lake on Oct. 19, and it was a big success.

BOTH clubs are making preparations to be well represented at Ballwin on Thanksgiving Day, when the grand complimentary dinner tendered to the cyclists of St. Louis by Landlord Busch of the Ballwin Hotel comes off.

IN my notes in WORLD of Oct. 24, I gave Hugh A. Blakeney as my informant's name regarding cycling in Texas. This is a mistake. The gentleman's name is Geo. C. Arbuckle, who now resides here.

THE Pike County tour has come and gone. A large delegation went from St. Louis and was joined by others from different sections of the State, making a total of 56, who turned up at 8 30 Sunday morning for the run to Bowling Green. On arriving at the latter place the party were shown over the splendid McCormick stock farm. After enjoying a tour over the farm and a trial of the quarter-mile track by the scorchers the party started back to Louisiana. The roads were poor and the wind blew a gale in the faces of the riders, making it very hard going. After dinner the party split up, 25 starting for Dover, but most all returned after a few miles' ride, as the roads were found to be covered with loose gravel. Most of the party enjoyed themselves riding round town and trying the grades of the Binnacle. The evening was spent in smoking, singing and an impromptu dance. An innocent (?) member of the party almost caused bloodshed because he insisted on calling out "Hello, 40," the occupant being a lady, the husband of whom on hearing of the fresh actions of the occupant of No. 39, proceeded to wipe the floor with the carcass of the offending cyclist. Cooler counsels prevailed however. The St. Louis party returned home on the night express. Notwithstanding the poor roads and high wind a good time was enjoyed and will be repeated next spring.

"STAR."

THE corner stone of the Young Men's Christian Association's new building, on 7th and Walnut streets, was laid on last Wednesday, Oct. 29. In seeking information as to the uses to which the new building is to be put, I was told by the young man who presides over the desk in the office, that the building would be completed within a year. That among other appointments there would be a well appointed gymnasium, and a wheel room with a rack for fifty wheels, and that it was intended to organize a bicycle club. To my inquiry as to whether the members of the club would be permitted to use the rooms on the first day of the week commonly called Sunday, he emphatically replied, "No sir-ee,!!! and if I had my way there would be a law passed prohibiting bicycle riding for recreation on the Sabbath!" On pressing him for his reasons for opposition to Sunday cycling, I learned that it was all owing to some wheelmen riding up and down Race street and using swear words and indulging in language that it wouldn't do to print. From the way he looked at me I am certain that he thought I was tarred with the same stick, so I slunk out of the office mentally declaring that I would never again go out riding on Sunday—unless it quits raining on that day.

ONCE more it is said that the out door grounds of the Young Men's Gymnastic Association are an assured fact, and that a quarter-mile track will be one of the features. It is said that grounds have been secured on the river bank east of the Water Works; how far east is not stated, but they are probably this side of Pittsburg. Grounds in this locality will have one draw-back for wheelmen, and that is the the several miles of slippery and treacherous granite over which they will be obliged to ride in order to reach them.

THE Hanauer mileage contest closed last Friday night, and the medal has found a resting place on the manly "buzzum" of our famous Teddy. During October he rode 2671.7 miles, a daily average of 86.2 miles! His total for the six months was 9808.7 miles, the daily average being 53.3 miles. Petty, who was in the lead during September, moved to Cleveland, and on account of press of business, was obliged to drop out of the contest. His record was 7500 miles for the six months.

THE Ladies' Club of which I spoke was organized yesterday afternoon (Saturday, November 1) under the name of the Queen Cycle Club. It is composed exclusively of lady riders. They are to join the L. A. W., and the club will, in all probability, be made a League club. They have elected a full complement officers. Their meetings are held on Saturday afternoons at the residences of the members. The new club has a large field, and can do a great deal to make the lady's cycle popular. The lady's cycle would have been much more in use ere this had it not been for the conduct of a lot of actresses who rode tricycles about the city some three years ago, and by their actions, disgusted a great many and created a prejudice against the wheel that it has been difficult to overcome. The social standing of the members of the Queen Cycle Club is a sufficient guarantee that their influence will be for good.

ON Sunday, November 2, the Porkopolis Wheelmen took their final run of the season to Miamitown. The rain in the morning frightened off several of the timid ones, and only eight started from the club rooms. This number, however, was augumented by the late comers, and by the Cumminsville delegation to 16. The roads were not at all dusty, and the low temperature made the ride a delightful one." It is on just such occasions as this that one really enjoys riding, and those who are seized with a panic when they see a few clouds, lose the very best riding of the season. The camera was there, and the usual pictures were taken as souvenirs. Although this is the last official run of 1890, the club will continue to ride whenever the conditions are favorable.

INDIANAPOLIS.

"SAFETY."

THE annual "smoker" given by Mr. H. T. Hearsey "came off" according to an unusually neat programme from the electric pen of Mr. Zimmerlink. I refer to the printed programme and inclose one which I have no doubt the editors of the WORLD will frame and "hang in some conspicuous place." Mr. Hearsey's back parlor was filled with a hundred or two wheelmen and friends, and no one complained that there were not cigars enough, or tobacco enough, or cob pipes enough (though the corn crop was short), or smoke enough. Judging from the serene joy which animated every countenance there was just enough of everything, and who wants more? The music was enjoyed by every one, and several dialect and character impersonations filled out the evening's pleasure together with the smoke I need not mention the details of the performances of the boys since they are a part of all well regulated "smokers."

FRANK DEVORE's trick riding (safety) and his slack-wire walking were the chief events of the evening—next to the smoke—for many smoked who never smoked before; and smokers, well, they did but smoke the more. When the boys couldn't see one another they went home smoking, and I think some of them are smoking yet.

THE aged father of United States Commissioner Van Buren was run down last night on the Penn. street asphalt by a bicycle rider, "a high-wheeler" at a high speed. The gentleman was severely hurt, it is reported, and we have another occasion to regret the extreme foolishness of the smart jays who want to show everywhere that they can "go" a little, except on the track where "going" is expected and encouraged. There they are not in it. I must say, however, that these remarks are in general, since I do not know the particulars of this affair. I am told that the rider waited to see the extent of injuries inflicted and did what he could, which was creditable. The injured man was taken home in an ambulance.

AS a rule our riders are very careful. We have the use of the sidewalks and there is no good reason why we cannot maintain the privilege, taking into consideration the large numbers who ride for business, the long distances to factories, offices and suburban homes, our scarred and bedeviled streaks of the earth's surface called streets and roads, and that no one is hit or greatly troubled by the practice. It has grown with the growth of wheeling here, and rightly used in outer districts away from the asphalt helps the army of wheelmen to no one's discomfort or injury.

CHICAGO NOTES.

"WAYNE SCOTT."

THIS last week has been not all quiet. On Friday evening the Illinois Cycling Club formally opened their elegant club house on Washington boulevard. The larger part of the members were present with ladies and a number from out of town, among whom were W. M. Brewster and wife of Quincy, Ill. After a thorough inspection of the club house the ball-room doors were opened and the rest of the evening was spent as only wheelmen and their wives and ladies know how. The party broke up at a late hour.

ON the same evening the Æolus club made merry at Central Turner Hall on the northwest side of the city. Charlie Wittenberg, the winner of the club's time medal, and Miss Gussie Gross led the grand march and were followed by fully 200 couples. Dahlbach's Orchestra played good music and the carriages were called at 1 30. They do say Vice-President Roth forgot the way home. This was the first of a series of five to be given this winter. The club realized nearly $200 as their profit.

THE Douglas Cycling Club gave a ladies' night on Friday evening. The Lincoln indoor team played ball or tried to Tuesday eve, taking a defeat from the Harvards. Capt. Stamm, official scorer of the team, was so overcome when some of the spectators cheered rather lustily that he tendered his resignation to Frank McDonald and thus he wrote: "I must positively refuse to identify myself with a management which allows such rowdyism as was witnessed at the Lincoln-Marquette game of Monday eve." The gentleman's resignation goes.

VERNON WILSON, formerly captain of the Austin Cycling Club, is now in Sydney, New South Wales.

THE Chicago Cycling Club indoor base ball team won five straight games, defeating some of the crack clubs of the Social Club (mid-winter) league.

They're not built for racing, so have not cut very much of a figure at the big tournaments, but in the every-day races, race meets and road races, where it's a case of road wheel meet road wheel, they have been "getting there" quite as regularly as any of them--and "they," of course, stands for the AMERICAN CYCLES. R. G. BETTS, while visiting in New Orleans, made good use of his time. Betts is a member of the Lincoln Cycling Club, who now hold four of the long-distance records.

AT the last monthly meeting of the Chicagos Burley B. Ayers read a paper in which he proposed that the Lincolns of the North side, Chicagos of the South side, and Washingtons of the West side of our city form a three party agreement by which a membership ticket in either of the three would entitle the holder to all the privileges of the others except voting. This aroused a hue and cry from a prominent cycling paper that discrimination was meant against the Illinois Cycling Club, and it would raise a third annual quarrel, and injure the cause of the Cycling Association. The Board of the Washingtons has officially declared that the agreement proposed by them was not for the purpose of injuring any other club, and rather than have it so understood, withdraw it altogether.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

THE Royal Psycho Cycling Club of Coventry, England, gave Mr. H. S. Owen of Washington, D. C., a complimentary dinner at the King's Head Hotel, Coventry, on Saturday evening, Oct. 18. Mr. J. M. Starley occupied the chair and Mr. W. Starley officiated as vice-chairman; after dinner three toasts were proposed and responded to "Our Guest," "The Firm" and "The Club." Mr. Owen responded to the first toast and proposed the second. At 8.30 a smoking concert was given and a most excellent programme was presented by the members of the club.

MR. H. G. PRIEST of the Quadrant Bicycle Co. has gone West to Topeka, Kansas, in the interests of his firm.

A PROTEST has been received from New York because certain parties have seen fit to issue circulars to wheelmen, urging their support for certain candidates to office who have shown a friendly spirit towards wheelmen.

THE Framingham, Mass., Tribune runs a column weekly of cycle news and notes. Two of its reporters, its bookkeeper, and three of its printers are constant bicycle riders.

THE Washington Cycle Club of Washington, D. C., inaugurated their amusement season, Saturday evening the 25th inst., by an oyster roast, smoker, musical and general good time. Mr. Dan Canary contributed largely to the success of the event by giving an exhibition of fancy and trick riding on both the vertical and safety. Messrs. Howser, Babcock and Kubel rendered selections on the piano, violin, cornet and occarina. Several of the members made short and witty speeches during the evening. The event altogher was one of the best the club has ever had, and no doubt the club will "repeat the same dose" before the lapse of many days. Among those present were, President Seebold, Treasurer DeMeritt, Secretary Babcock, Captain Burbridge, First Lieutenant Coburn, Second Lieutenant Gettinger, and the following members: Messrs. Pelouze, Ide, Muehleisen, Curry, Knox, Miller, Olcott, Albert, Long, Libby, Overman, Howser, Yates, Croxall and Seilbert, and among the guests were: Messrs. Klakering, Howell, Kubel, Canary, Harvey, Harkness, Wilson, Manning, Graham, Mix, Fiske and Billingsley.

THE Rev. Dr. Dowling, of Albany, N. Y., has just returned from a bicycle trip through England and France, and he speaks in the highest praise of the bicycle as a means of seeing a country. The spot that most impressed him in England was Oxford. He intends to preach a series of seven sermons suggested by his tour.

ONE hundred and three members of the Maryland Division, headed by Chief Consul Mott, participated in the first general run of the Division to Sparrows Point. An inspection of the steel works at that place was enjoyed, and a good dinner was eaten by the ever hungry cyclists. The run over the shell road on the return was made at a clipping pace, but in regular parade line.

By the way, have you sent Mr. Isaac B. Potter any photographs representing phases incident to good or bad roads? Don't forget his request, and remember that it is for the good of the cause.

THE sale of "Cycling for Health and Pleasure" continue brisk, but now as the snow and frost producing season approaches the sales will no doubt double, as when cyclists are not riding the next best thing is to read cycling literature.

OUT of pure philanthropy we supprsss the name of the paper the following item was cut from: "A bicyclist, whose identity concerns no one, was riding his wheel through a portion of France when up came a storm of rain. The storm struck him just as he started to coast down a nicely graded hill some five miles long. He proceeded on his journey and all the way down that hill it rained in torrents on his hind wheel while his front ran along in the dry dust."

ROBERT J. BURDETTE, the humorist, is in receipt of a letter from his son, Robert J. Burdette, Jr., aged thirteen, to this effect: "Dear papa: I dreamed last night that I had a safety bicycle. Do you believe that dreams come true?' "I greatly fear," said Mr. Burdette, after reading the letter, "that this young man is going to be a humorist."

THE Syracuse Cycle Club last week Tuesday wound up the riding season by a run and supper at Cicero. About 60 men, 20 on wheels and the rest in Cronin's tally-ho, started in a blaze of red light and a blare of bugles. A fine banquet was served at the Parker House, and songs and stories made merry the evening. The event was called the "McChesney Memorial," or "The Annual Roast," in honor of President McChesney.

MR. JOHN DERR of Philadelphia, aged sixty years, was knocked down last week Thursday by a bicycle ridden by George Crow of the same city. Mr. Derr died on the following Saturday from the injuries received. It is painful to have to record such accidents as these, but the recording of the same is necessary as a warning to all that the utmost care is called for and necessary at the hands of all who ride a wheel. LATER—Subsequent investigations before the coroner's jury absolve Mr. Crow from any criminal carelessness, and he was released. We are glad to be able to record the fact.

THE "good old" Hartford Wheel Club will hold its fifth annual dinner at Habenstein's restaurant Wednesday evening, Nov. 12.

MR. E. J. WILLIS, of the Ormonde Cycle Co., will return to England on Saturday, Nov. 8th, or on Wednesday, Nov. 12th.

THE Meriden (Ct.) Wheel Club gave a lantern parade Tuesday night There was a good attendance, and each member carried a Chinese lantern.

THE Minneapolis Tribune notes the fact that the bicycle has emerged from its embryotic state as "a toy for boys," and has become a practical vehicle, used by all men in every walk and profession in life. The Tribune reads the signs of the times aright, and when the Post Office Department places a contract for wheels (as it has done) for the use of the carriers in places where the streets admit of cycle riding, it is further evidence that the cycle is recognized as a vehicle of utility. The Warwick Cycle Co. is to be congratulated on the acceptance of their bid by the department.

ALMOST every one of the big tournaments this season proved a financial success for the promoters. The Rochester clubs divided a good fat surplus out of their net proceeds of the August meet. We believe that the only meeting which did not prove a financial success was that held at Buffalo immediately after the Niagara meet.

BICYCLE race meets seem to pay in Australia even better than in the United States. The spring meeting lately held netted the club the nice little sum of $2000.

WHEELMEN in Connecticut are getting fidgetty over the fact that the Norwich Assessors have concluded that bicycles are subject to taxation. It is estimated that if all other Connecticut towns follow the example of Norwich, the cyclists of Connecticut will have to pay about $10,000 a year tax on their wheels.

CONNECTICUT takes fourth place in point of membership this week. It has been a very lively race between Illinois and Connecticut for more than a year.

ONE hundred members and guests of the Trojan Wheelmen of Troy, N. Y., assembled at the club rooms, corner of Fourth and Grand streets, last week Thursday evening, and spent several hours of solid enjoyment. Prof. M. Moran presided at the piano, and Charles B. Alexander exhibited the phonograph to the pleasure of all. A collation, elaborate in every particular, was discussed and heartily enjoyed. The merry party dispersed at a seasonable hour.

MR. W. C. OVERMAN, of the Overman Wheel Co., has taken up his residence permanently in Boston as the representative of that company for Eastern Massachusetts. Mr. Overman's old friends welcome him back to Boston.

MR. J. R. HAZLETON of Philadelphia is charged with having received money for the payment of racing and other expenses in excess of those allowed by the L. A. W. The case is before the Racing Board, and the charge has been denied by Mr. Hazleton, and Messrs. Strong and Green, the parties named as paying same.

THE Ramblers of Bridgeport, Ct., are mourning over the loss of a handsome silver cup that is used as the principal trophy in the yearly road races. Suspicion rests in certain quarters, and sensational developments are expected.

THE next run of the Maryland Division will be on Thanksgiving Day, and from Philadelphia to Baltimore via the Lancaster pike. The party will train it to Philadelphia and return via wheel.

THE racing interest in Denver, Col., is at fever heat, and with characteristic Western enterprise the Denver men have branched out and built a fine race track (not talked about it.) This is what the Denver Times says about the track: "* * * The track at Sportsman's Park has cost a good fat sum, and the members have opened their purses liberally to pay for the same. The union holds its head aloft, for it has no obligation it cannot meet and its future is bright. It is composed of young Denver men who can be depended on to fulfill every promise they make."

THE Utica (N. Y.) Cycling Club will attend a theatre party on Thanksgiving evening, the play selected being "Faust" by Louis Morrison. The Utica Cycling Club was organized last April and now has a membership of nearly 80. Through the kindness of the Y. M. C. A., the club has had the use of the association building for meetings, etc. The club will probably have quarters of its own soon. An entertainment committee has been appointed.

MR. ELLIOTT'S "EXPERIMENT" ON DIAMETER OF WHEELS.

Editor Bicycling World: In your issue of Oct. 17 you published an article headed "Concerning Diameter of Wheels," by Sterling Elliott. This article contains two serious errors, and as a person having no interest in the question discussed except as a rider desirous of seeing all matters connected with the noble "steed" thoroughly understood, especially by the manufacturers, I wish to call his attention to these errors.

I do not claim authority to speak on this matter as an experimenter or a practical machinist, but as one who has taken a full university course in mechanics and has always made a close study of its principles.

First—Mr. Elliott starts with the statement (on which he bases his whole argument) that "the power to push forward a front wheel * * * comes upward from the point where driving wheel touches the ground." This is an error. This point (which he calls C. in his diagram) is merely the fulcrum, as it is called in mechanics, but not the point at which the power is applied. The power is applied to the bicycle by the driving wheel at the centre of the axle, and that is the point that Mr. Elliott should use in his calculations and not the point C. I think that if Mr. Elliott will give this a moment's thought he will see that I am right. The point C. is the stationary, fixed point (the fulcrum), while the point at which power is applied must always be a yielding, movable point, which B. is. At each instant of time B. moves forward, while C. stands still. If Mr. Elliott's statement is correct the power applied to every part of the bicycle (as well as to the front wheel) from the point C., and consequently is applied to the back of the bicycle directly upwards. Therefore, it tends to lift it right off the ground, and all a rider has to do is to apply sufficient force to the pedals and he will rise with his mount like a bird and go sailing off into space. A 150-pound man riding a 50-pound wheel could by pushing down with 200 pounds of force (a very easy matter) lift himself and wheel from the ground. Either the problem of aerial navigation is solved or else this is the reductio ad absurdum.

The fact that Mr. Elliott found a lifting force of 2 1-4 pounds when the front wheel was 25 inches, and only 2 ounces more (2 pounds 6 ounces) when it was 31 inches, shows that his theory is wrong. If the power is applied as he says, and if the lifting force in case of a 25 inch wheel is 2 1-4 pounds, in case of a wheel 31 inches high it should be 2 pounds 9 ounces instead of 2 pounds 6 ounces. Any person understanding the problem of the "resolution of forces" can work this out for himself, and I therefore do not occupy your space by giving the figures.

Second—Mr. Elliott's experiment which he describes is worthless, for the reason that he overlooked one very material point. By exerting 25 pounds of force at the crank he pressed the front wheel against a wall with 5 1-2 pounds of pressure, and then found that the scales showed 2 1-4 pounds less of weight. He forgot, however, that when the wheel was pressed against the wall the latter was supporting part of the weight, and that is why the scales showed 2 1-4 pounds less. It is will easily be understood by any one who will take an object, say a book, weighing a pound, and place it on a scale so that at the same time it will rest against the wall. By then pressing the book against the wall with the hand it will be found that the greater the pressure the less the scale will indicate as the weight of the book. When the pressure becomes great enough to support the book, the scale will mark nothing as the weight. If Mr. Elliott wishes to perform this experiment properly he must have the wall against which the front wheel presses a part of the platform of the scale and attached to it and rising and falling with it. Then any weight supported by the wall will also be supported by the scale and indicated by it. In his experiment the portion of the weight supported by the wall was not shown at all, and might have equalled or even exceeded the 2 1-4 pounds supposed to be saved.

In conclusion I wish to say that as the power is applied from the axle of the hind wheel to the axle of the front wheel, it seems to me that when the two wheels are the same size and the axles consequently on a horizontal line, the power pushes the front wheel directly ahead, and there is no upward or downward pressure. When the front wheel is larger than the hind one, there is a lifting tendency on the former; and when the front wheel is smaller than the hind, there is a downward pressure on the former, as in a wheelbarrow when pushed ahead.

If I am right in this, it follows that front wheels should be larger than hind one, if it is advisable to take the weight off of the former. I am not, however, sure that this would be an advantage, as any weight taken off the front wheel must necessarily be thrown upon the driving wheel.

I hope Mr. Elliott will try his experiment over again, arranging his "wall" as I have suggested, and using three front wheels, one equal in size to the hind one, one larger and one smaller, and give us the results. Very truly yours, A. D. D'ANCONA.

RACING AND RECORDS AT PHILADELPHIA.

ON Monday afternoon, November 3, W. W. Taxis broke the record for the University of Pennsylvania track, by doing a mile from scratch in 2.52. This time is remarkable, the track being a four lap cinder, without any banking, and in addition, there was a high wind blowing. Young Cootes really is responsible for the time, as he lit out from the 175 yard mark at a terrific gait, obliging Taxis to ride all out. So fast did Cootes ride that Taxis did not draw up until the home stretch was reached, and he led Cootes across the tape by but two feet. Summary: First, W. W. Taxis, '94, scratch; second, G. M. Cootes, '94, 175 yards; third, E. S. Kellner, '93, 100 yards. Time, 2.52.

Wilhelm, October 2, broke Van Wagoner's recent record of one hour seven minutes, made in the 21 mile road race from Myerstown to Reading on September 20th, which figures were record for the distance. All the conditions were favorable for the attempt, the road being at its best, while a strong west wind blew down the pike. Wilhelm covered the distance in one hour three minutes and thirty seconds, creating a new record. Wilhelm was greatly distressed, fainting at the finish, and he was carried through by sheer pluck.

The first annual fall sports of the Columbia Cyclers were given on Saturday afternoon at Brotherhood Park before an audience of a couple of hundred spectators, the raw, blustery weather preventing a larger attendance. The track was unusually soft, and the balloon tires had a tremendous advantage. Following are the cycling events in the order in which they were decided:

Novice, one mile, safety—Harry P. Birchall, C. C., won easily in 3m. 48s.; Bert Galbraith, C. C., was second.

One mile safety bicycle race, handicap—F. H. Garrigues, C. W., 110 yards, won easily; J. H. Draper, A. C. S. N., 70 yards, second, and B. F. McDaniel, W. W. C. 140 yards, third. Time, 3m. 8 3-4s.

One mile bicycle race, ordinary, handicap—V. J. Kelly, P. A. W., 80 yards, won; W. C. Seeds, W. A. C., 45 yards, second, and J. W. Taxis, A. C. S. N., scratch, third. Time, 3m. 13s.

One mile safety, Columbia Cyclers' championship—J. E. Fitzgerald won, with H. Bilyeu, second. Time, 4m. 4 1 5s.

One mile safety race, for boys under 16 years—W. W. Owens won. Time, 4m. 1-5s. No second.

Half-mile bicycle race, safety, handicap—F. H. Garrigues, C. W., 40 yards, won. J. Van Deusen, P. A. W., 40 yards, second, and W. C. Seeds, 20 yards, third. Time, 1m. 26 4-5s.

Five mile bicycle race, safety—W. W. Taxis, A. C. S. N., won by 2 yards. W. C. Seeds, W. A. C., second. Time, 18.36 1-5. Seeds rode a pneumatic, while Taxis was on a narrow-tired racing safety, and the latter letting Seeds do the pacing until two hundred yards from home, rushed to the front and won by two lengths, never headed. "ARIEL."

RACING AND MEET NEWS AND GOSSIP.

AT YORK, PA.—On Thursday, Oct. 30th, the York Cycle Club held a 21 mile road race for the club championship. The course selected was from York to Wrightsville and return. This is over the Philadelphia and Gettysburg Pike. Eight miles of this course, that lying between Hellam and Wrightsville, is a succession of hills of a good grade and made rough by recent macadamizing. Ordinarily these hills are easy to ride, but unfortunately are not in the best of condition at present. A hard wind faced the riders on the return. There were five entries, who made the following times: York to Wrightsville, H. C. Drenning, (1), 35 mins.; L. D. Levingood, (2), 36 mins.; H. L. Wilt, (3), 37 mins.; Chas. Beck, (4), 37 mins. 30 sec.; W. P. Swartz, (5), 38 mins. 15 sec.

The round trip was made by H. C. Drenning. (1), 1.22.30; L. D. Levington, (2), 1.24; H. L. Wilt, (3), 1.31; Chas. Beck, (4), 1.32; W. P. Swartz, (5), 1.41.30.

AT ORANGE, N. J.—The challenge team road race between the Orange Wheelmen and East Orange Cyclers came off last Saturday, on the East Orange course. The Orange team consisted of J. D. Racey, Paul Grosch, George H. Coffin and C. T. Coggeshall. The East Orange team was Frank Brock, Fred Spring, H. C. Wheeler and C. W. Heydecker. The course was a five mile one from Grove street, through Central avenue, Harrison street to Centre to Highland avenue to Lincoln avenue to Central avenue and down to the starting line. The men finished in the following order and time: Grosch, 17m. 29s.; Coggeshall, 17m. 32s.; Wheeler, 17m. 37s.; Coffin, 17m. 42s.; Spring, 17m. 44s.; Heydecker, 17m. 50s.; Racey, 18m. 20s., and Brock, 20m. 10s. Orange won by 22 points to East Orange's 14.—Sun.

AT NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The races between members of the Harlem, Riverside, Gotham Wheelmen and Manhattan bicycle clubs took place over the Kingsbridge course Election Day. The results were as follows: Manhattan Club—

Ten-mile club championship—E. J Keane, first; F. H. Howland, second; J. D. Connor, third. Time, 40m. 34s.

Five-mile handicap—J. D. Connor (2m. 15s.), first; W. J. Monahan (same mark), second; Harry Howland (1m. 45s.), third. Time, 21m. 50s.

The Harlem Wheelmen's races resulted as follows:

Two mile novice—T. M. Macy, first; G. W. Burt, second; M. A. Smith, third. Time, 8m. 39 3-5s.

Ten-mile handicap—Macy (4m.), first; C. W. Osborn (4m.), second; R. B. Morrison (scratch), third. Time, 45m. 10s.

The races of the Riverside Wheelmen were five in number, as follows:

One-mile novice—W. Cook, first; H. V. Warner, second; F. M. Benner, third. Time, 3 minutes 50 seconds.

One-mile open—A. E. Stilger, first; J. W. Judge, second; E. A. Powers, third. Time, 3 minutes 35 seconds.

Two-mile handicap—J. W. Judge, scratch, first; A. E. Stilger, scratch, second. Time, 7 minutes 21 seconds.

Five-mile club championship—A. E. Stilger, first; J. W. Judge, second; E. A. Powers, third. Time, 19 minutes, 38 seconds; 19 minutes, 39 seconds.

One-mile consolation—Won by J. O. Miller.

The Gotham Wheelmen postponed their five-mile race owing to the bad condition of the road and the lateness of the hour.

One-mile novice race—Won by George C. Smith; Oscar Tschirky, second; Dan Levy, third. Time, 3 minutes 30 seconds.

Two-mile open—George C. Smith, first; Oscar Tschirky, second; Dan Levy, third. Time, 8 minutes, 10 seconds.

AT RAHWAY, N. J., Nov. 4—The fall meeting of the Union County Roadsters' games was a success. They passed off very pleasantly before an audience of 1000 people. The results of cycle events follow:

One-mile novice, ordinary, club members—William Ball, first, in 3.45, with R. F. Calhoun a good second.

One-mile novice, safety, club members only—George Chumar, first, in 3.45, with W. C. Artz second

One-mile open, ordinary—C. L. Lersner, first, 3.43 3-4; W. C. Heydecker, second.

One-mile safety, open—H. C. Wheeler, first, 3 28; C. L. Lersner, second.

Two-mile Union county championship, ordinary—S. B. Bowman, first, 7m. 10s.; A. F. Calkins, second, 7m. 15 1-4s.; H. J. Bauer, third, 7m. 21 1-4s.

AT ELIZABETH, N. J. The Kings County Wheelmen held their 25-mile handicap road race over the Elizabeth-Springfield course on Election Day. The day was cold and blustering and very poor for fast riding. It was an hour and a half after scheduled time for starting that the men were sent away.

T. J. Hall, Jr., and W. F. Murphy entered to try for the 25 mile record of 1.26.40, but the wind proved too much for them, and after five miles hard riding they gave it up. In fact Murphy at 15 miles cried quits and dropped out of the race. The real work of the race did not commence until after the twentieth mile had been traversed, when with Wells in the lead and Hall second, the latter being closely pushed by McLaran, a pretty race ensued, the latter passing his men at the twenty-third mile, and romping home an easy winner. The men finished as follows:

Twenty-five mile handicap—Won by D. McLaran, five minutes handicap; time, 1.37.33 1-4. W. H. Wells, second, two minutes handicap; time, 1.36.01 1-2. T. J. Hall, third, forty-five seconds handicap; time, 1.35.08 1-2. N. H. Phillipps, fourth, five minutes handicap; time, 1.40.13 1-4. R. S. Jones, fifth, four minutes and thirty seconds handicaps; time, 1.40 42. J. Bensinger, sixth, thirty seconds handicap; time, 1.42 50 F. G. McDonald, seventh, 4 minutes handicap; time, 1.51.17. The winner, McLaren, rode a splendid race.

The Brooklyn Ramblers ran off their ten-mile handicap club race on the Springfield course the same day. R. Miller, 2 minutes handicap, first; time, 39 minutes 55 seconds; S. R. Peddler, second, handicap 4 minutes; time, 40 minutes 50 seconds.

AT HARRISBURGH, Pa., Nov. 1.—The 5-mile road race under the auspices of the Harrisburg Wheel Club took place last Saturday. There were eight entries and the contestants finished in the following order: M. P. Poffenberger, Ed. L. Fry, A. L. Nelson, A. J. Trippstein, T. A. Nelson, H. B. Olewine, J. S. Leyder and Ed Dubbs. It was a race against a strong headwind, which prevented better time, but wheelmen generally regard Poffenberger's 21m. 18s., as exceedingly creditable under the prevailing conditions.

MESSRS. FINDLY and Nesbitt of the New York Bicycle Club started out Election Day on a tandem, and with H. Bird as pacemaker, broke the road record from Tarrytown to Fifty-ninth street. The time made was 1 hour 59 minutes 54 seconds. The previous record was held by Clemens and Sheehan of the Manhattan Bicycle Club. The New York men, under more favorable circumstances, will attempt to bring the time down still lower.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY.

I bought one of Griffith's machines for plating with gold, silver or nickel, and it works to perfection. No sooner did people hear of it than I had more spoons, knives, forks and jewelry than I could plate in a month. The first week I cleared $31.30, the first month $167.85, and I think by July first I will have $1,000 cash, and give my farm considerable attention, too. My daughter made $27.40 in four days. Any person can get one of these machines by sending $3 to W. H. Griffith & Co., Zanesville, Ohio, or can obtain circulars by addressing them. You can learn to use the machine in one hour. As this is my first lucky streak, I give my experience, hoping others may be benefited as much as I have been.

Yours truly, M. O. MOREHEAD.

BRETZ AND CURTIS MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

WE take pleasure in announcing that arrangements have been consummated by which our business has been incorporated under the name of "Bretz & Curtis Mfg. Co." Our business will, in the future, be conducted in the same manner as in the past by the new Company under the direct control of ourselves. It is still our object to import the Referee Cycles which have met with so much success this past season, as well as to manufacture them in connection with the original makers, G. L. Morris, Wilson & Co., of London, whom we shall continue to represent. All future correspondence of any kind you will please direct to the new Company at the same address. Thanking our friends and agents for their cordial support during the past year, and soliciting their esteemed patronage for the future, we are,

Very truly yours, J. SYLVESTER BRETZ, GEO. E. CURTIS, Late trading as Bretz, Curtis & Co.

The officers of the new company are J. Sylvester Bretz, President; Geo. E. Curtis, Vice President and Treasurer; H. C. Cooley, Secretary.

THE Warwick Cycle Co. of Springfield, Mass., are to be congratulated, as the following letter recived from them will show: "It is with some degree of satisfaction that we inform you that the United States Post Office has placed a contract with us for the supply of wheels demanded by the requirements of the Service. We feel that this action on the part of the Post Master General marks an epoch in the speedy adoption of the Cycle as an adjunct to commerce, and will doubtless extend the range of the Cycling trade, opening, as it will, the eyes of many to the practical uses of the wheel. Whilst feeling some degree of pride at the selection of our wheel, we think the trade generally, is to be congratulated upon this evidence of official recognition." We take the following from the Springfield Republican on the same subject. "* * * An order of 25 was shipped to Washington yesterday. The department has decided to use the wheels whenever the streets will warrant it. Washington has fine asphalt pavements which are just suited to wheelmen. Buffalo streets are similarly equipped, and it is likely that bicycles will be used by the carriers there next. Meantime two of the Springfield carriers save walking by the use of bicycles, and find them very convenient."

THE Rochester (N. Y.) Cycle Mfg. Co. has been incorporated with a capital of $20,000. The purpose of the company is to manufacture bicycles, parts, supplies and accessories. The plant will be located in the newly built Wagner building on South St. Paul street, Rochester, N. Y. The directors of the company have elected officers as follows: Wm. W. Kenfield, President; Henry K. White, Secretary; Frank F. Wells, Treasurer.

THE ECLIPSE SAFETY BICYCLE.

THE above represents the Eclipse Safety Bicycle, the output of the Steel Pulley and Machine Werks of Indianapolis, Ind. There are several novelties claimed for this machine, and in order to present the same to our readers' notice we take the statements from the catalogue of the company. In the place of drop steel forgings this company uses "aluminum bronze," and they say in regard to this metal: "* * The grade of aluminum bronze used in our bicycles has been tested by the United States Government in one of its testing machines, and stood a strain of over 90,000 lbs. to the square inch. * *"

In construction several novelties will be noticed. One is the spring fork, which is made without any joint, and in combination with the adjustable coasters can be changed to any degree of stiffness or looseness to suit the weight and taste of the rider. It also has a new adjustable saddle, the tension of which can be readily changed. Both wheels are 30 inches, with tangent spokes. Tires solid 7/8 inch best Para rubber.

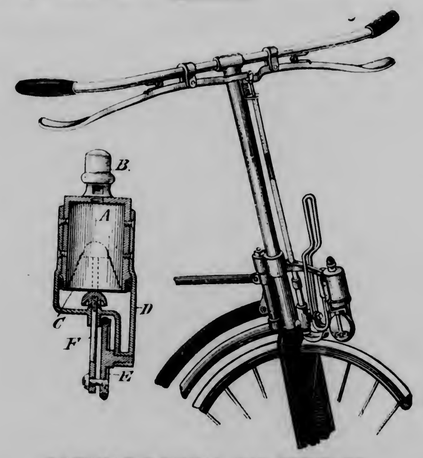
Ball bearing head and also ball bearings to driving crank, wheels and pedals. Handles vulcanite. Material used best steel tubing and aluminum bronze. The gear is 54-inch. Finish enamel and nickel.

WHO does not like to have nice stationery? It is not often that any one can get the best goods marked with a steel engraved die at a reasonable price, and were it not for the high standing and reputation of Mr. M. R. Warren, whose advertisement appears on page 47, we should almost doubt the validity of such an offer as made in said advertisement. "Warren's" is synonomous, in Boston and vicinity, of excellence and high character of work, hence, to get stationery from "Warrens" means that you are getting the highest quality of work in this case at a nominal price. By all means send in your order and mention this paper. Having your paper and envelopes, you cannot do better than to send to the same place also your order for a $4.00 fountain pen, which, by referring to advertisement on page 48, you will see he sells for $2.00, and mention this paper.

ON the inside page of front cover will be found the advertisement of C. H. Evans & Sons of Hudson, N. Y. Of the products of this firm we can speak after actual test, in the highest terms as containing all the excellent qualities claimed for them. This bottled pale ale and stout are unsurpassed by any of the finest imported ales. As the claim is made, so it is that the 'fine mellow flavor, clearness, and creamy head," cannot be surpassed. To those of our readers who use ales or stout, we most heartily commend the goods made by Messrs. C. H Evans & Son of Hudson, N. Y., where the brewery and bottling works are. Their New York City Depot is at 127 Hudson street.

THE Coventry Machinists' Company are justly proud of the record of their Swift Model A light safety. It has no superior among the light roadsters for standing rough usage and rough roads, and as to its running qualities its reputation in that line is the most gratifying.

THROUGH the kindness of Mr. Ross, the manager of Singer's American Branch, we were in possession for a few days of a pneumatic Tired Safety. We were surprised how quickly the public noticed the difference in the construction of the wheel. Many and varied were the comments which greeted us. Only one little chit of a child was impressed with the beauty of the Pneumatic, she gave utterance to an emphatic, "Oh, what lovely wheels." Most people, we fear, are not favorably impressed with the appearance of a wheel fitted with the balloons, but one only needs a few miles of riding to appreciate how they minimize the inequalities of the road. The effect of the tires is especially noticeable on hard "hubbly" surfaces and they ride over soft places instead of ploughing into them. It is as much superior to the Cushion as the latter is to the ordinary small solid tire. On a wavy or billowy surface the grear spring or elarticity of the tire is not so advantageous and the machine jumps about a bit. In riding home from the Reservoir we encountered several places in the road on which new metal had been laid, and to test the tire we rode straight through it, and were much pleased at the way the tire carried us over the loose stones in a way that the solid narrow tire could not have done. The great question is, will they last? will they endure the wear and tear of constant use? On this we are not able to express an opinion, except that we believe all the alleged weaknesses will be overcome in time. In a recent issue of Wheeling mention is made of a Pneumatic Tired Safety being ridden a whole season, about 2000 miles, with no accidents. We regard both the Cushion and the Pneumatic Tires very favorably and hope for their success as adding very materially to the comfort and value of safeties. We await with interest the development of the tire problem, which now occupies the mind of almost every maker. We may add that Singer & Co. are furnishing wheels with both styles tires at advanced prices of $37.50 extra per Safety for the Pneumatic Tire and $18.75 extra per Safety for Cushion Tire. Messrs. Singer & Co. will use next year a special Cushion Tire of their own patent.



WE are always preaching winter riding, advocating it to be beneficial and agreeable, even in the coldest of weather, and now are pleased to learn that one of the dealers in the city has opened a winter riding school, where purchasers and others will be taught. For further particulars call at the store of the Pope Mfg. Co., 77 Franklin street.

THE many friends of J. R. Whitehouse of St. Louis, who was for many years connected with the St. Louis Wheel Co., will be glad to hear that the old man has fallen heir to quite a fortune, and he has now established his own agency, the novelty of which is a regular fixed schedule of prices so that every rider will know beforehand just what his repairs will cost him.

"HEXAMETER" of Los Angeles, Cal., writes us: "H. B. Varney of San Francisco was with us Tuesday. His house carries the Victor, Warwick and Rambler up north. His mission here was to secure a local agent for the Warwick, one of the few wheels which has had no rider or representative here. I had the pleasure of trying it."

IT may be interesting to know, as showing the great care taken by the manufacturer, that at one of the largest bicycle factories no less than three thorough inspections are made in addition to other minor ones, with a view to embodying only the very best materials and workmanship in the finished machine and bringing it as near as possible to perfection. The first inspection is made of the material brought into the factory. Anything found here that is faulty or defective in the least, or that is not rigidly up to the standard set purposely high, is thrown aside not to be used in any way. The second inspection is carefully made by a skilled inspector and a number of assistants, when each part, large or small, that goes into the finished machine is carefully overlooked to see that it conforms in every respect to the standard before it is allowed to be used. The slightest defect in workmanship or finish insures its being thrown out. The last inspection is made of the finished machine. Every part must be properly placed and adjusted and every bit of nickel or enamel must be right. The manufacturer this item refers to is the Pope Mfg. Co. and the product the famous "Columbias."

THE Chicago Post reports the organization of the C. H. Dunham Mascotte Cycle Company, to manufacture, sell and deal in bicycles and other machines and appurtenances; capital stock, $1,000,000; incorporators, Charles H. Dunham, Charles Faxwell and George R. Bidwell.

PNEUMATIC SIGNAL FOR BICYCLES

THE device is illustrated by the above drawings; wherein A represents an air chamber, or cylinder. B a whistle or other wind instrument. C an elastic diaphragm. D a dependent bracket. E a friction wheel and F a plunger rod reciprocated by an eccentric pin on said wheel.

The signal is automatic in its operation, and may be attached to the bicycle. Preference however, is given to the means of attaching shown, consisting of a lamp-bracket having upturned ends upon which the device is adapted to slide vertically under influence of a lever on the handle-bar, and a connecting sleeve or tube that encases the brake rod. In this construction a slight movement of said lever will throw the friction wheel in contact with the front wheel of the bicycle, when it will immediately revolve—more or less rapidly according to its size—reciprocating the plunger-rod and vibrating the diaphragm (as shown in dotted lines) thus expelling air in a rapid succession of blasts through the only source of outlet, which is a whistle or other wind instrument, rendering a prompt and vigorous signal thereon, and at the same time rather pleasing to the ear than otherwise.

The elastic diaphragm may be readily and cheaply replaced in event of breakage, which, however, it is claimed, is not likely to occur, owing to the thickness of the stock used.

This is a brief description of the invention, which is secured by letters patent in the United States and abroad; the former under date of Oct. 28th, 1890, embodying claims that would be very desirable for any manufacturer to control.

Correspondence with all persons interested in the subject will receive attention by Mr. Wm. C. Dyre, patentee, corner 7th and G streets, N. W., Washington, D. C

WHO would be without a fountain pen after having tried one? To such unfortunates as have not known the delights of being able to write for hours without dipping a pen in the ink bottle every 30 seconds, we commend the attention of our readers to the advertisement of the Dunlap Pen Co., which appears on page 46. They are makers of established reputation, and their goods are of the finest quality.

CRAWFORD & Co. of Hagerstown, Md. (formerly of Washington, D. C.), have a fine brick factory at the former place finely equipped with bicycle machinery of the finest and most approved kind. The company is getting in good shape to furnish the market with the growing demand for their Gazelle safeties.

ONE of the most interesting exhibits at the Mechanics' Fair is Sterling Elliott's exhibit. Mounted on a "Hickory" is one of the most beautifully articulated skeletons we have ever seen. Mr. Skeleton is riding along and turning the cranks at about an eight mile an hour clip. The ankle motion is perfect, and riders will do well to study the scientic manner in which the man of bone manipulates his feet. It is a study and a sight well worth a trip to Mechanics' Fair alone to see. A good many excellent jokes have been perpetrated on this skeleton cycler, which we will unload on the confiding public in an early issue. By all means go and see Elliott's skeleton.

To the League clubs of the New York State Division:

Gentlemen—As outlined in my letter to the Division, see BICYCLING WORLD AND L. A. W. BULLETIN, Oct. 24, 1890, it is proposed to organize a circuit of bicycle race meetings in New York State to begin in May, 1891, and continue through the season, such meetings to be under the direction of the State Division Racing Board and to be conducted by a League club or an association of League clubs, in such places and at such dates as the Racing Board may determine. That all League clubs contemplating holding race meetings next season may be assigned a place on the schedule to be prepared by the Division Racing Board, I submit the plan to you thus early that appropriate action may be taken, of which action you will please notify the chairman of the Racing Board, Mr. W. H. De Graff, 47 West 14th street, New York, N. Y. To render this plan a success the Racing Board should know at an early day the clubs desiring to enter the circuit. Dates will be arranged afterwards. Clubs desiring particular dates are requested to notify the chairman. The schedule will be submitted to the State Division Board of Officers at the semi-annual meeting next February. In this connection Mr. Abbot Bassett, Secretary L. A. W., informs me that many of the League clubs of this Division have not filed at his office the certificates of election of their club representatives. These should be signed by the President and Secretary of the club and filed at once. Each League club that had twenty members on its roll July 1, 1890, is entitled to a Representative to the Division Board and one additional Representative for every fifty additional members then on its roll. It is suggested that your club take proper action in order to be fully representated at the next meeting of the Board. It is the opinion of many that the League has not taken as much interest in racing as it should, hence the proposal of this plan, which is designed to develop more and better racing. It is thought that by this action both clubs and the League will be gainers. Yours fraternally, W. S. BULL, Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 1, 1890. Chief Consul.

New York.

The amendments to League Constitution, adopted at Niagara, having necessitated a change in the detail of elections in the New York State Division, the Rules and Regulations Committee of the Division, at the next Board of Officers meeting, will move to amend the Division By-laws as follows:

In Article II, section 1, change "September" to "December" and "February" to "June." Same Article, section 3, make first clause read, "There shall be an annual meeting of the Division at such time and place as may be selected by the Executive Committee."

Article V, in section 2, change "July" to "October;" in section 3, "June" to "August;" in section 4, "first day of June" to "first day of August, "tenth day of June" to "first day of September;" in section 5, "July" to "October," and also in section 6; in section 7, "30th day of June" to "1st day of September," and at end of first sentence, "July" to "October;" in section 8, "August" to "November" in both places where used.

For violating Racing Rule 19, at Birmingham, Alabama, Messrs. Wm. T and T. E. Robertson of Washington, D. C., and Frank M. Bell of Columbus, Ga., are suspended from all race tracks until Dec. 1st, 1890.

For violating Racing Rule 13, at Birmingham, Alabama, Messrs. Loui Hart and J. R. Berger of Birmingham, are suspended from all race traks until December 1st, 1890. Amateurs are warned not to compete with either during suspension. CHAS. S DAVOL, Chairman L. A. W. National Racing Board.

Louisiana.

At the meeting of this Division held on the 9th inst., the following proceedings were unanimously adopted: The election of Mr. H. H. Hodgson as Vice Consul, and Mr. C. B. Guillotte as Representative. Chief Consul Born nominated Mr. L. Jeff Frederic as local consul for New Orleans, and Mr. J. B. Walters for Shreveport. Before adjournment the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the Louisiana Division L. A. W. most heartily endorse the action of the recent Constitutional Convention held at Niagara Falls, and we hereby pledge ourselves to amend our By-Laws and Constitution to conform with the same.

That we also endorse the administration of President J. R. Dunn, and promise him our hearty co-operation in all affairs pertaining to the League of American Wheelmen. Fraternally yours,

CHAS. P. CHAPMAN, Sec.-Treas. La. Div.

Smithland—Central House C. W. Edgar proprietor, rates $1.50 per day.

The rates given above are for members of the League of American Wheelmen only, and are from 25 to 30 per cent. lower than the regular rates. To secure these rates wheelmen must show their League membership tickets. The houses are all first-class and as good as there are in the respective cities, and I would earnestly recommend League men to patronize them whenever stopping in these cities. ACKLEY HUBBARD, Spencer, Ia., Oct. 25, 1890. Chief Consul for Iowa.

Pennsylvania.

The following instructions have been issued by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company:

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1, 1890.

Notice to Baggage Agents and Baggag Masters.

Circular instructions of May 31, 1889, are hereby amended as follows:

One bicycle for each ticket presented will be carried free of charge, and checked, when desired, to any point on the above-named lines, provided the passenger has no baggage for which checks are issued. In the event of the passenger having bicycle and baggage, which he desires checked, whether a trunk or valise, bicycles will be estimated at 100 pounds weight each, and regular charges collected, the same as for 100 pounds of extra baggage.

Checks must not be given for points on foreign lines, except upon special instructions to that effect.

The above rule will also apply to tandem bicycles and tricycles. In accepting free transportation as ordered, wheelmen will be required to assume all responsibility for loss or damage, and you will, therefore, be particular to inform them of this condition and obtain assent thereto.

Instructions of circular of Oct. 2, 1889, with regard to bicycles, when a part of theatrical paraphernalia, will remain in force.

Baggage agents at junction and terminal points will post this notice, and call the attention of baggage masters to it.

By order of the general passenger agent.

GEO. W. BOYD, F. J. MCWADE,
Ass't Gen'l Pass. Agent. General Baggage Agent.
SAMUEL A. BOYLE, Chairman Com. on R and P.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

"BOLTE" SPRING FORK.

MENASHA, WIS., Oct. 15, 1890.
The Bolte Springs have added 50 per cent. to the value of my Light Rambler in the increased comfort obtained. Every time I ride I am more willing to think this not too high an estimate.
H. J. EVANS, Principal Schools.

This is the only Spring Fork having the proper amount of vertical spring which still in no way interferes with the steadiness of steering.

NOTICE.—In answer to several inquiries on this subject, will say that in accordance with our contract with Lozier & Yost Bicycle Mfg. Co., we are not allowed to license any one else to place the "Bolte" Fork on machines for their own use. All that work will necessarily have to be done in my shop here in Milwaukee.

GALE'S * SAFETY

The GALE SAFETY is designed with a view of meeting the demand for an all ball bearing Safety at a moderate price. The frame is of weldless steel tubing and steel forging throughout. The rear wheel is 30 inches, with 7-8 inch tire, geared to 54 inches; 30 inch steering wheel, with 3-4 inch tire. Best quality moulded rubber tires, firmly cemented into the rims. The spokes are direct, of No. 12 special drawn steel wire. Straight front fork; corrugated rubber coasters. The handle bar is one piece steel tube 30 inches long, bent back, and is detachable and adjustable.

Both wheels, crank-axle and pedals are fitted with ball bearings. The pedal rubbers are soft and tough, and so made as to prevent the rider's foot from slipping. The saddle rests on an L seat rod, and is adjustable to height, also forward and back. The saddle is the famous Fish patent Hammock, model 1890, is adjustable in all directions. The brake is of the Plunger style, and very powerful. Neat Lamp Bracket, Mudguards over both wheels. Finely enamelled, with usual bright parts nickeled on copper. Each machine is supplied with tool bag, wrench and oiler.

"400 MILES AND NOT A LOOSE SPOKE."

The above startling line was found in a testimonial sent by an enthusiastic rider to a prominent maker from whom he had purchased his safety. This is certainly evidence of a remarkably well made machine and ought to be considered as a great inducement to prospective buyers. The writer of such a letter and the maker who printed it should "get together" and organize a mutual admiration society.

If that sort of testimony should become chronic, we may look for its adoption in other lines, as for instance:

MR. KERSO KID.

Dear Sir.—The shoes I purchased from you yesterday have given me the most perfect satisfaction. I walked nearly all the way home from your store and not a sole came off, not even a seam ripped. I believe the —— shoe to be far and away the best shoe on the market.

A GREEN HORNE.

If you get a Hickory Bicycle and it don't run four hundred or even four thousand miles, without loose spoke, you had better send it to the factory and let us see what is the matter with it. It is very rare that one of our wheels breaks "while going right along on a smooth road," and whenever such a thing is said to happen, it is apt to turn out that some one was mistaken. We would add, however, that wheels of whatever kind may break while the rider is not conscious of causing other than an ordinary strain. In such cases it is frequently found that the actual damage had been done by some previously occuring accident, and the broken part had not quite "let go" at the time, though requiring but a small additional pull to separate it.

To illustrate: A well-known dealer tells the following: "A man recently came to us with a broken front fork which had given out, he said, while he 'was riding slowly along a smooth road.' In fact, he added, 'I was riding as one of the mourners in a funeral procession.' On inquiry we learned that it was the funeral of a young lady who had been in the habit of coasting on the same machine with both feet on one foot-rest." There is a moral in the above, two of 'em in fact.

P. S. Good morals and Hickory Wheels are promoters of each other.

DOES THE TARIFF EFFECT US?

Certainly it does. So do many other things, rainy and muddy weather especially, but we're not going to sit down and wait till something else comes along which might change the tariff or make the sun shine. We are going to keep right on importing that little English Referee just the same, tariff or no tariff, because we know we've got the best and the public are willing to acknowledge it and pay for what they know is best. "BRONCHO,"

Noiseless, Chainless Safety Bicycle.

Although some of our competitors present views anent testimonial letters, diametrically antagonistic to our own, we will take the liberty of inserting IN OUR OWN SPACE, ONE SINGLE, SOLITARY "CORKER," and request any interested parties to send for our Large Book of testimonial letters, now ready for distribution.

M. V. LIVINGSTON CYCLE MFG. CO., Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—I received the "BRONCHO" Chainless Lt. Roadster Safety on Sept. 20th, and desiring to give the wheel a thorough trial as a good all around wheel, started Sept. 28th for a ten days' trip through New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware and Northern Maryland.

The "BRONCHO" surpassed any wheel I ever rode. On sandy roads there was none of the side sliding and slipping common to all chain safeties. Steep hills were mounted with comparative ease, and riders of chain safeties can never know what a relief it is in hill climbing to be without the necessity of pulling and straining on the handlebars.

During the ten days I covered over 500 miles, and considerable of it was over hard, stony roads. During that time not a spoke or nut loosened, and the wheel to-day is as perfect as when it left the factory. In riding through mud, as I did not have to stop every few miles to clean a chain, I found no trouble. In short, I found that for all round riding "BRONCHO" is by far the most practical machine that I have ever ridden, and I have, during eight years, ridden nearly all. Yours truly,

(Signed) GEO. S. MACDONALD.

XXXIII.

ACCORDING to the New York newspaper correspondents, Mr. Edwin Checkley is one of the three best known "trainers" in physical exercises in that city. In an opinion which he has given on the various athletic sports, he is reported to have said: "As to bicycling, I think that if people who are physically weak, be they male or female, wish to take up some form of muscular exercise that is mild, one in which the amount of muscular force expended compared to the work accomplished is very small, I do not know anything that can be used to better advantage than the bicycle." His trip from New York to Chicago this season on a Columbia safety cycle purchased at 12 Warren St., New York City, qualified him to speak from experience as well as with reason.

NOTE ON THE TARIFF.

BY invitation of counsel for the New York Free Trade Club, Col. Albert A. Pope, President of the Pope Manufacturing Company, appeared before the Tariff Commission, then holding sessions at Long Branch, in August, 1882, and made a "Plea for Fair Trade," which, not only before that commission, but through the press of the country, made quite an impression. That was before the Republican party had adopted its present high-tariff policy, and before the Democratic party had adopted its present tariff-reform policy. It was a period of discussion and opinion forming, and Col. Pope and his company had an opinion,---and have an unbroken record in the same position. It was expected by many that, being in a young manufacture, they would favor a higher tariff on bicycles. The Nation, commenting afterwards, said: "If there is any infant industry in the United States, it must be the bicycle industry. If there is any which needs protection it must be that. Yet it appears that the only thing it asks of the Government is to be let alone and permitted to make its own way, being neither helped nor hindered by the tariff." Col. Pope recommended to the Commission that the tariff be reduced on bicycles and tricycles, as well as the materials of which they are made. This has an interest now, in view of the fact that the general upward movement in duties has resulted in putting up the tariff practically from 35 per cent. to 45 per cent. The Pope Mfg. Co. said eight years ago that it would take care of the home market anyhow, but it wanted fair trade so that it might send its products to foreign countries on a less unequal footing with the English.

A TRIO OF SUCCESSES.

"ONE swallow does not make a summer," and one success does not make a great manufacturer. To go no farther back than 1882, the EXPERT Columbia then began to be a success and has continued ever since to be the easiest riding, most reliable and enduring bicycle for road use. The recently referred to transcontinental trip of the Rogers Brothers shows it. That was followed by the VOLUNTEER Columbia, a little lighter, a little simpler, and a machine that has come to redairs least, for the number in use, of any machine ever made. You never heard of any need of "cushion" tires, or "pneumatics," on these bicycles.

THE MATTER WITH TIRES.

SOME people always go to extremes. That's the way with the English makers. They used to make, twelve years ago, full inch tires, even an inch and an eighth; and for Irish trade they made 1 1-4 and even 1 1-2 inch tires. Then they kept cutting down and down for "looks" or "lightness" until they had simply rubber wires. And Americans followed the lead, because 'twas English, you know. A prominent American maker, even this season and on safety wheels, put out three-quarter inch tires on the driving wheels, and five-eighths front tires. In England, last year, you could hardly find anything larger. Now they find you must have larger tires or else larger wheels. The Pope Mfg. Co. stuck to inch tires until every one else had abandoned them, and the riders wanted some reduction for sake of saving weight in tire and felloe; but they did not go below seven-eighths inch on the main wheels at any time. ———— But the Company wants some of its advertising space this time, and I must defer this discussion. The boy who buys an Expert or Volunteer will have the best mount and the least vibration.

Where do they go, all these thousands of Victors? Why they go into hard, active service, over all sorts of roads and under all sorts of riders, all over this broad land, from the rock-bound coasts of Maine to the sunny slopes of California, from the tropic sands of Florida to the limpid, sparkiing waters of Puget Sound. (We've just taken out a poetic license, hence the effusion just effused.)

Notice in your own locality the class of riders who use Victors. Ask the next Victor rider you see how his machine serves his purpose and see what he says. SINGER CYCLES.

15 Years in America.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 30, 1890.

MESSRS. SINGER & Co., Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—It gives me much pleasure to add our testimony to the superiority of the "Singer." It has given better satisfaction to our customers than any other machine we ever sold. They are all enthusiastic in its praise. Our sales are gradually increasing, because almost every purchaser brings us another. We have never yet sold a "Singer" safety that has failed to give perfect satisfaction. We are especially pleased at the promptness with which parts are furnished, never having to wait more than two or three days after ordering, whereas we are seldom able to procure parts of an American made machine in less than a week, and generally have to wait at least two. We consider the "Singer" safety superior to all others in ease of running and the durability of its tires, and equal to any other in strength, lightness and beauty of finish. Very respectfully,

F. S. CAHILL & Co.

SINGER & CO., 6 & 8 Berkeley St., Boston, Mass.

"THEY DON'T DIE IN THE HOUSE."

I mean the fellows who disagree as to the direction in which a front wheel is pushed. This cut is not intended to represent my opponents as they will appear when that question is settled, but it is a picture of an object lesson which we have erected in the Boston Mechanics' Fair, to illustrate various points, particularly ankle motion.

This frame formerly belonged to a supposed suicide whose body was found floating in the Seine. Numerous and ghastly have been the jokes perpetrated. One man asks, "is that what he came to by riding a Hickory Bicycle?" and another, "well, that machine must go easy when a dead man can run it." Slangy, but pointed is this: "The Hickory Bicycle is a good one and there is one fellow 'dead onto it.'" A more elaborate punster says, "first he was insane or he wouldn't have jumped in Seine, and now he is certainly insane or he wouldn't ride a Hickory Bicycle." They address him as "Bony part," and ask if it is a bonyfied skeleton, etc. They say "he looks grave." Is "over trained," and ask where he boarded. If he took anti-fat. And one fiend even went so far as to ask if it was "Rider Haggard." Meanwhile this evidence of things not seen, sits calmly astride his "antique oak" safety, steadily working his ankles (which the average cyclist doesn't) gazing toward the old lady's home in the gallery, with a sad, far away expression where his eyes used to be. The wind whistles through his vacuum with a low despairing wail, as it softly waves the "Hickory Club" badge which is pinned to his wish bone. Day and night he sits and works, all unmindful of the jibes and puns of the thoughtless throng. An occasional drop of Oleum (50 cents a pint) in his goutless joints is all he asks. Four miles an hour is his gait. Seventeen hundred miles he has already traveled, and yet has not advanced an inch. Oh what a moral there is in this for the makers of wire wheels.

The superstitious night watchmen in the Fair building often have unearthly thoughts as they emerge into the grand hall and get an unexpected glimpse of "his bones," sitting with haughty uprightness there in the still twilight. But when the dazzling glare of the "electrics" is turned on and "the light is separated from the darkness," one unconsciously looks expecting to see that he has scampered away with the shadows, though he hasn't and isn't likely to until the Fair is over, and then a prominent Boston clothier wants us to loan him to be erected in a Washington street window.

STERLING ELLIOTT, Newton, Mass

P. S. By mentioning my name at the ticket office, you can get into the Fair for 25 cents.

Another P. S. We got crowded off the second page last week, but it's all right, as Mr. Evans is agent for the Hickory, though we don't happen to have an interest in the Brewery.

EDITORS:

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 14 NOVEMBER, 1890.

WE have started the ball a-rolling as to whether it is proper for the League to show itself in politics. As a starter, we present this week the letter of Chief Consul Mott of Maryland, who expresses himself in his usual lucid, logical manner as to what he thinks of the matter.

Our correspondent "Ariel" of Philadelphia also puts in a word on the subject, and is in line with the views expressed by Mr. Mott.

WHEN an English cyclist returns to England after a visit to "the States" he usually is interviewed by one of our worthy trans-Atlantic contemporaries, and his "impressions" are given to a waiting world. Mr. Laurie has not escaped the general fate, and he proceeds to tell what he knows about American racing methods, men and record timing. He classes Windle as being away and ahead of all American ordinary riders, and he ranks Berlo as being the best safety rider, and next to him he fancies Murphy.

American tracks he puts down as being rough and heavy, and not to be compared with the best English tracks.

While he places Windle second, and perhaps first, among the ordinary riders of the world (Osmond first), he seems to think that our safety riders are not in it on solid tired machines with Jones, Leitch or Parsons. In speaking of the record breaking, and in answer to the question: "What about the timing? Are the arrangements good?" Mr. Laurie answered: "No, they don't seem to to have any official timers, and as a rule three watches (which may be the manufacturers, trainers and anothers) are good enough to claim record on. * * *."

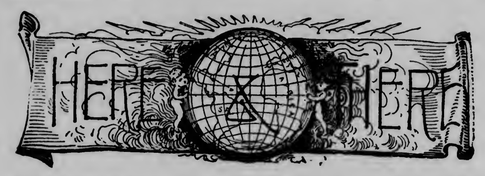
While Mr. Laurie was on safe ground as long as he theorized and expressed an opinion on the relative speed of men and excellence of tracks, he makes a bad balk when he makes the above statement in regard to the methods of record timing, as the following facts will show: At Hartford when Mr. Laurie and others made records against time, he was timed by three expert timers: C. T. Stuart, J. H. Parker and H. S. Goff. Which of these men, we would ask Mr. Laurie, was a "trainer" or a "manufacturer?"

Now to turn to the records made at Peoria, we find that the timers on those occasions were S. A. Miles, F. P. Prial, J. H. Gift and S. B. Hayward, all of whom are capable and expert. Again we ask Mr. Laurie to point out the "manufacturers" and the "trainers?"

We are sorry that Mr. Laurie should have seen fit to belittle himself by making a statement such as is quoted above, and which he knows will not stand the cold test of facts.

"Official timers" in the eyes of our English friends seem to be necessary to establish records. Well the timers used at all the large American race meets are "official;" they are selected by the management under L. A. W. rules as being specially fitted for their duties, and with all due respect to our English cousins we doubt if they can produce a more skillful and reliable set of timers than those who officiated at Hartford and Peoria on the occasion of the late record breaking events, and there was not a "manufacturer" or a "trainer" among them, Mr. Laurie to the contrary notwithstanding.

THE Providence, R. I., Journal does not approve of in-door base ball as played and enjoyed by the Chicago cyclists:



"* * * The enthusiasts of this sport predict for it a rapid growth in popular favor. It is to be hoped, however, that their predictions will prove incorrect. Any sport that will keep a man in a close, warm room when he might be enjoying exercise on his wheel, and inhaling draughts of pure frost nipped air, should be deprecated. Besides, equally as much pleasure and physical exercise can be obtained from a game of bean bags, at much less cost."

We do not quite agree with the Journal. In-door exercise is better than none at all, and as to comparing the active game of base ball with the game (?) of "bean bags," it won't wash. Even in Chicago, where everything is perfect, the climate of winter does not admit of wheeling all the time, hence this in-door compromise should be gladly hailed as a means of keeping up the physical condition of cyclists during the non-riding season, and not belittled by comparing it with a game of "bean bags."

CHIEF CONSUL BULL'S scheme to establish a Division racing circuit seems to find favor in the eyes of many. We cannot imagine any reason why there should be any negative voices, but if any one has, or thinks he has, good reasons for opposing the scheme, now is the time for him to speak his piece. Our columns are freely open to the discussion. In the meantime, we hope to see Mr. Bull succeed in his most laudable plan.

"PENDRAGON" of the Buffalo News still insists that membership in the A. A. U. is necessary to qualify for entrance to competition in the Union events. "* * * The situation in the Athletic world of Buffalo is somewhat peculiar in this respect. It is a strong Union city and, as I said last week, most of the sports given here are events open only to Union clubs. Having this, and if nothing but this, in view the Ramblers unquestionably did right in joining with the Union. So has the Press Cycling Club. * * *." "Good old Pendragon," he cannot see any good to be derived from L. A. W. membership other than the right to wear a specially designed button, and get an occasional reduction at League hotels. Well, it would be a monotonous old world if we all saw through the same spectacles.

"CYCLING FOR HEALTH AND PLEASURE" is a book that every rider should have. Send 50c. to the Wheelman Co., 12 Pearl St., Boston, and procure one.

NOTES BY "HAWKSHAW."

SHAKESPEARE, it is claimed, wrote for all time and not for just the age in which he lived, and to anyone who reads his works this fact is at once patent. Take for example where he puts the following words in the mouth of The Fool in "King Lear.' "Let go thy hold when a great wheel runs down a hill, lest it break thy neck." Now old Shakes evidently foresaw that in the days to come there was to be an age of wheels, represented by cycling, and he wanted to go on record concerning it, so notice his cleverness; he takes a character and labels it "the fool" and then causes him to advise letting go of a wheel when it is running down a hill. Wise, indeed, was William Shakespeare, that hundreds of years ago he could foresee that nobody but a fool would ever let go of his wheel under such circumstances.

"No, indeed, there is no danger of women ever becoming prominent as racers," said a man to me recently who had had considerable experience in training and managing female riders. I need not say that such an assurance, coming from the source it did, was extremely gratifying to me, as no one who admires cycling and the ladies who have adopted it can view with anything but disgust the attempt of women to become professional racers and the consequent lowering of the sport to a dime museum or side show attraction. Questioning my informant yet more closely as to the cause of his positiveness in the above assertion, he soon convinced me that he was in earnest in the matter and had looked deeper into the subject than I was at first prepared to give him credit for doing, he based his belief not only upon an actual experience in the matter, but upon the following ideas. No one can ever become a racer of even minor note who is not prepared, for a time at least, to make racing the paramount object of their ambition and who cannot in the parlance of the prize ring "stand punishment." Women are from either of these points of view out of the running altogether. From her early life and her associations woman is taught to avoid anything calling upon her for intense exertion through fear of being known as a "tom-boy." When injured or punished she is encouraged in crying and submitting to defeat, so when later on she is induced to enter the arena as a professional these qualities are too much a part of herself for her to overcome them entirely and she is doomed to failure before she has even started. With a boy the reverse is the case, rivalry and boyish love for supremacy over his comrades ever urges him on, defeat to him means disgrace, tears win him only the disgust of his fellows, and as he grows these qualities are ever increased, until when he calls upon them in a race he finds that their support yield him a needed stimulus and make him what his admireres call "dead game." Looking at the subject from these points of view it can easily be seen that any extensive crop of female racers need not be expected, a fact that every true lover of cycling is I am sure extremely thankful for.

IT don't do for politicians to blackguard bicyclers if they ever expect to run for any office where they may have need for every vote they can command. We have just had an example of this fact here in New York. Some years ago, when the fate of the Liberty Bill depended upon it obtaining the signature of Governor Hill, there appeared before the Governor, in oppo ition to it, a gentleman who was at that time the Corporation Counsel of this city. No fault would have been found with him had he spoken against the bill from any other than a personal point of view, but this would not do for him, he must make a wholesale onslaught upon the wheelmen personally, calling them "a lot of butterfly dudes, who only wanted permission to go through the Park so as to captivate the nurse maids, etc." Now, I am sure that this gentleman is sorry that he ever said or did anything against these "butterfly dudes," because when he tried to become Mayor here, they just got right out and worked for all they were worth to defeat him, and for fear that he might not learn of the fact, kindly sent him a copy of their resolutions containing extracts from his celebrated tirade against them. It won't take many lessons like this to convince politicians that it is a wise thing to leave wheelmen alone, and a wiser one still to aid them in their legislative acts aiming at better roads. Wheelmen have a faculty of never forgetting their political friends or enemies, that makes them a thorn in the side of the politician who tries to "carry water on both shoulders," and politicians are so awfully tender hearted in regards to anything which might take a few votes away from them, that I think the good effect of this lesson will linger with them for some time to come.

BOSTON NOTES. "TONEY."

LAST week Friday evening was fraught with importance to the members of the Somerville Cycle Club, for on that evening they locked the doors of their old club rooms for the last time, and hastened away to take possession of their new quarters in the Gilman Block, opposite the Winter Hill railroad station. The question of securing larger quarters had been agitated some time before the committee stumbled across this building, which was then in course of construction, and, being somewhat anxious to capture new quarters, immediately made arrangements with the owner of the building whereby the club should have possession of the entire second floor. The floor was divided off into three rooms, one large enough to contain billiard and pool tables, another of medium size, which now it is fitted up in excellent style and taste, makes one of the cosiest parlors imaginable, and the third was built just large enough to make a first-class dressing-room. In addition to this, the club has a small wheel-room on the first floor, opening on the street. The entire suite of rooms is well adapted to the housing of a bicycle club, and the members are perfectly delighted with what they term their prize and pride. Now that they are at last comfortably housed the members propose to be heard from a little more than they have been of late, and are already diligently at work laying plans for the enjoyment of themselves and friends. In fact the winter season promises to be one of unusual activity for the club members, who have perfected plans for the production of a minstrel show in December, a series of three assemblies and a grand ball, to be given at convenient intervals during November, December and January, in addition to the usual number of ladies' nights, checkers, cribbage, whist, billiard and pool tournaments and card parties, and the formal opening of their new club rooms by a grand reception.

THE news of Francis Wilson's appearance in the Merry Monarch at the Globe Theatre in Boston during Thanksgiving week, had no sooner reached the ears of the Charlestown Rovers than Capt. Robinson set to work forming a theatre party. He met with such great success that he now finds it incumbent upon him to engage about thirty seats for the performance of Thanksgiving eve, when the Rovers will turn out in full force and show Wilson that he occupies a warm place in the heart of Boston wheelmen.

THE Somerville Cycle Club has issued a neat invitation to the wheelmen of Boston and vicinity to be present at the dedication of its new quarters in the Citizens Building in Somerville on Thursday evening, November 13. There is no doubt but what those who accept the invitation will have a right royal good time.

THE members of the Wakefield Bicycle Club are to inaugurate a new feature in connection with their minstrel show on the evening of December 5, which, by the way, is something never yet done by a bicycle organization. It is nothing more or less than the holding of a dancing party at the conclusion of the minstrel entertainment.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA. "X-BONES."

AT a recent meeting of the Arlington Wheelmen of Washington, D. C., a resolution was passed establishing a correspondent to the WORLD from this neighborhood. Hence these tear drops, beg pardon, ink blots. So far as I know the editors of the WORLD have not been consulted in the matter, but then neither has the correspondent. If he and the readers of the WORLD can stand it I guess the editors can. It becomes the correspondent's duty to make the first break and here it is. It is easy for him for he is always broke—more's the pity. Your correspondent was instructed to trim his lamp by those of "Hawkshaw," "Toney" and other luminaries of the first magnitude, gleaming so brightly in the galaxy of the WORLD, but he fears the effulgence of his farthing dip—in the printer's ink—will never equal that of those illustrious stars; while it rests entirely with the omnipotent authority of the editors to leave him, like the scriptural Moses upon the extinguishment of his traditional rush-light—"in the dark."

BUT, eschewing the vagrant fancies, with his fragile bark—"the noise made by a dog" (see Webster's unabridged)—pushed out on the broad sea of literature by the stalwart members of L. A. W. who constitute the Arlington Wheelmen, "X-Bones" "feathers—I mean fingers—his skull" and waves a salute to his brothers of the League and a cordial greeting from the "Arlingtons."

WHO are the Arlingtons? They are a wheel club of 25 L. A. W. members organized in February, 1890, originally under the name of the "Ramblers." This name was changed because it was the sentiment of the club that the associations suggested by their location at the national capital ought not to be lost sight of in selecting a name. Although so young a club, the Arlingtons already have a record to be proud of. When hardly six months born, and immediately after a series of road races given by the Columbia Cycle Club—several years senior to the Arlingtons—they challenged that club to a 20-mile club team race over the same course, and entered in their team three men out of four who had never ridden a race of any sort and who had had no regular or systematic training. The trophy, a handsome silver cup given by Colonel T. P. Marshall of this city, was won by the Columbias in a close contest with a score of 19 points against 16 made by the Arlingtons, who, however, had the honor of claiming as a member the first rider in. A banquet was held in the evening, where the Columbia boys manfully acknowledged that they had had to work for their prize. Last month the Arlingtons challenged the Columbias to a similar race, but the challenge was not accepted on the score that other matters and expenses demanded the attention and loose cash of the club. As the previous race was without cost to either club, and Col. Marshall volunteered to repeat his munificence on the next occasion, the Arlingtons infer that considerations other than those named influenced the Columbias. For since the road race was had the Arlingtons visited Frederick, Md., and with seven riders entered in every race to which they were eligible, captured 13 out of 14 prizes contested for, as against a far larger field gathered from three other clubs, principally from Baltimore. In fact, at Frederick, the boys took several more places than there were prizes offered, coming in first, second, third, fourth and fifth in some races. In fact in every race the bunch of riders wearing red and black jockey caps, embodying the Arlington colors, swept in leading the field, which in one case numbered over 20 riders, and in every event but one out-numbered the Arlingtons entered. As if these laurels were not sufficient two of the Arlingtons attended bicycle races given at Birmingham, and in three days' races captured 26 prizes out of 31 competed for, and this without rest after two nights' and a day's travel on the cars.

THE feature upon which the Arlingtons pride themselves is, however, not the prizes they have won, but their enthusiam for the sport and the truly fraternal spirit existing among the members, their perfect confidence in each other and the pervading faith in and devotion to their club. If thought desirable, I may in future notes give personal sketches—dramatic, in burlesque or otherwise, of the individual members of the Arlington Wheelmen. Woe unto that day for some!

BUT the serious attention of the Arlingtons is now being directed to a considerable matter. Nothing less, in short, than the building of a bicycle track and general athletic resort within the city and conveniently accessible to all. This with a special view to shortly inviting the L. A. W. to hold its meeting there in the near future.

IN order to enlist popular sympathy in the movement it is not proposed to do this by club action alone, but all athletic associations and business men and citizens in general are to be invited to assist. While they fully realize the magnitude of their undertaking, the Arlingtons being thoroughly in earnest feel confident of success.

PENNSYLVANIA. "ARIEL."

NOT satisfied with the last hundred-and-odd-mile inter-club run from Harrisburg to this city last week the Park Avenue Wheelmen have called another over the same route for this coming Sunday, 15th inst. It is to be a Park Avenue Club run, with President Bunnell in charge, and the party will take the Pennsylvania Railroad to Harrisburg on Saturday afternoon, retiring early, as the start is called for 1 o'clock. The first 25 miles are scheduled to be run in four hours, but just imagine a club run at 1 o'clock in the morning of a cold winter's night! And yet there are some 20 names booked for the trip. Eight o'clock in the morning will see the party at Reading, where a substantial breakfast is proposed (Lord help the hotel-keper!), and continuing down the Philadelphia Pike the tourists will be met at Norristown by another delegation from the club, headed by Captain Lancaster, who will ride up in the morning from the city, dining at Norristown and awaiting their friehds at that place.

VAN WAGONER has been spending several days in Wilmington and this city, returning to Newport to-day He expects to be back again and will capture the record from Myerstown to Reading, broken by Wilhem last week. He says he can put it under the hour with ease, and his friends here feel confident that he could give Wilhelm from 4 to 6 minutes and beat him. By the way, I notice that in my account of Wilhelm's record you have me saying "a strong west wind blew down the pike." Such was my first information, but, as I was afterwards advised differently, you will recollect that I notified you to expunge that sentence. Kindly acknowledge the corn and set me straight with my Reading friends. [Right you are—ED.]

VAN tells me he has a bet with Windle to cover a mile on a safety, hands off, in 2.40 or better before the close of the season. I told him I thought he had a large contract on his hands, but he was willing to back up his confidence of winning by another bet that owing to the present condition of the exchequer I took water. (What Van and McDaniel took I will not undertake to say.)

AN indoor race meet is being projected by the Park Avenue Wheelmen (it takes young blood to hustle) for some time during the Christmas holidays. It ought to be a go.

YOUR question, "Is it best for the interests of the League to dabble in politics?" in last issue came quite apropos. President Bunnell of the Park Avenues, one of the Division representatives, proposed only last week that city wheelmen, irrespective of party, should unite for action at the coming municipal elections—which come off in February, I believe—in order to throw their solid influence for or against the local candidates for councils, according to the latter's views and attitude on the street improvements question. Now here is a chance for wheelmen to make themselves felt. The general class of citizens are heartily in favor of some definite action being adopted that will give Philadelphia decent streets in place of the present wallows that have made our so-called highways a by-word and reproach among our neighbors, and with something like eight to ten thousand wheelmen to crystalize the movement it would seem as though all we need is concerted action. The League has been the leader so far on the highway question; shall it continue to be in the front or through timidity or lack of interest drop to the rear and see some one else reap the benefit? The conservatism that would stand aside and counsel a waiting policy should be rebuked in no uncertain tones. We have a golden opportunity. Will we improve it?

NIAGARA FALLS. "KISMET."

IF the various reports concerning the Niagara Falls Bicycle Club are true they have become enormously rich off the proceeds of the League meet lately held at Niagara, and that they intend using this supposed large amount of money for the purpose of erecting a large and commodious club house in the very near future. 'Tis true we made a slight gain in our undertaking, but not enough to even furnish our present quarters, to say nothing at all of rebuilding. We thank you one and all for thinking so, but we made no such money.

MESSRS. Geo. G. Shepard and B. F. Vandenberg, who were prominently identified with the management of the meet in August, being the chairmen of the parade and reception committees respectively, have each during the past month succumbed to the club's bitterest enemy, Capt. Cupid, but inasmuch as he has conquered on this occasion, as he has many times before, we happily extend our congratulations and wish them much joy. They were each tendered a reception by the club and presented each with a splendid sideboard of the latest design. Speculation is rife as to who will be next to receive a like present. Indications strongly point to Bedford as the coming man

THE much talked of 50-mile road race between Gassler and a certain other "racing man" (who by the way is more than a match for Mr. G. on the road) has failed to materialize owing to the former gentleman declining to ride, giving as his reason that "the prize was not suitable." A poor excuse is better than none, and in consequence thereof the race has fell through and our German champion is getting the laugh from all his club mates.

THE Forty-second Separate Company, N. G. S. N. Y., will give their fourth annual series of dancing parties the coming season at their armory. The captain very wisely selected a committee almost entirely of prominent bicyclists and members of our clubs. Our boys are well known as good managers, and whatever they undertake is sure to meet with excellent success. These parties draw largely from the surrounding cities and especially from Buffalo, where the majority are mostly cyclists. The boys hope to see a good representation from there and will do all in their power to entertain them in royal style.

OUR club is as are all others at this time of the year in the midst of a great social season. We have such awfully poor roads about here that it is an utter impossibility for anyone to make an attempt at riding, and it is but natural under the circumstances everybody takes to the club house. A series of entertainments have been arranged consisting of the usual smokers, tournaments, etc. We are conducting a very successful whist tournament, which will continue until April 1. The attendance is always very large. Moore, Shepard, Davis and Taylor are in the lead and are all likely to stay here.

As the next regular meeting will be the annual election of officers great interest is already manifested in the outcoming result. It is understood that President King will not be a candidate for re-election, notwithstanding the persistency of the members for him to do so. This leaves the field practically to Capt. George Shepard and Secretary Hector McBean. They are both good men and would fill the office creditably.

DETROIT.

"JUDGE."

The stag concert at the rooms of the Detroit Wheelmen Thursday evening was largely attended and a very enjoyable affair. The following programme was rendered: March, in E flat, orchestra; recitation, Prof. Andrews; violin solo, Albert Kern; Flower song, orchestra; cornet duet, Messrs. Warner and Carlisle; guitar solo, Edw. Merritt; piano solo, S. Gorton; recitation, Prof. Andrews; selection from "Il Trovatore," orchestra.

The asphalt pavement on Jefferson avenue is now completed. The contract was divided in two parts; the Warren Scharf Co. doing about one mile and Robinson & Co. (a local firm) the balance, a little over a mile The Warren Scharf Co.'s work is excellent and everybody is much pleased with it, but Robinson has made an awful botch of his job. It is full of holes and honeycombed and will not last the winter out. The council ordered the first instalment due him paid and the mayor promptly vetoed it on account of the condition of the pavement and recommended all other contracts with this firm declared void. Robinson is being backed by Claflin of Cleveland, who is a stone-paver and is known everywhere as the arch enemy of asphalt.

In last week's Wheel some fresh young man from Grand Rapids hauls the Detroit correspondent over the coals for eulogizing certain Detroit wheelmen. Sour grapes, Eddie, sour grapes; don't you wish you had a "Griff" and a "Metz" in your one-horse town. Be careful how you speak of this city, little country boy, and don't forget to come to Detroit in 1891 to the L. A. W. national meet.

CHICAGO NOTES.

"WAYNE SCOTT."

The Washington Cycling Club are nothing if not original, their latest move is the issuing of visitors' cards good for one month that a man may have one month's trial of life with the club and if he does not feel pleased may withdraw without cost. This looks strangely like a Burley Ayer's scheme, and is not so bad as it might be after all.

The Chicago Cycling Club gave an exceedingly swell party at Rosalie Hall, Wednesday evening, Nov. 5. A new scheme was adopted here also, only members of the club being admitted, no guest tickets being issued, so that those on the outside might see the error of their ways and become members. There are a great many men with whom I have conversed who say, "Why should I join a cycling club, I stand in and am always invited to any of the parties." Such smallness should be sat on, and I for one always take the bull by the horns and generally succeed in doing it full justice.

The Oak Park Cycling Club are booming their membership, 20 going in last meeting. They are actively engaged with a large-sized club house scheme, and have been offered by Mr. Ingalls the "League Hotel" at a very small rental for such an institution, 44 rooms, bowling alley, dining rooms, reception rooms and large parlors. All rooms are elegantly furnished and the ceilings are splendidly frescoed and decorated. Bachelor apartments could be rented and the rent cleared this way. The club should not hesitate, but snap up this chance. Such plums cannot be plucked at all times.

To the members of the Lincoln and Lake View cycling clubs and all North Side wheelmen the Lincoln Park Congregational Church sent neat little invitation cards to a reception tendered to the wheelmen and ladies, Tuesday evening, Nov. 11. This church is one of the largest on the North Side and takes quite an interest in the athletic welfare of its congregation, the Young Men's Alliance of the church owning a fine gymnasum.

The Lake View Cycling Club at their last meeting elected officers or the next year.

Cycling circles here in Chicago seem if anything more lively in the winter season than in the summer.

Indoor base ball booms, as it should. It attracts fashionable audiences and makes a pleasant evening. The Lincolns won their first game Thursday evening, Nov. 6, from the Ravenswoods by a score of 6 to 5.

The Lincoln Cycling Club will probably amend its charter so that a member having paid for 20 years' consecutively shall become a life member exempt from further dues, or, a member of two years' good standing on payment of $200 shall become a life member exempt from from dues, or on payment of $250 and proper election a non-member can become a life member exempt from further dues, etc.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

"EYESEE."

The boys flock to the club rooms these cool nights, and the stories told would raise even Joe Mulhattan's envy. Here is one of Woody's: At a certain meet in a city noted for its large brewing interests a hundred or more accepted an invitation to go through one of the largest breweries. The cool atmosphere of the cellars allowed the boys to quaff liberally of the amber liquid without harm, but on return to the outside sweltering heat the effect was magical, and as the story runs, they became very gay, and I leave it to the imagination of the reader, as pen cannot describe a hundred cyclers trying to mount their wheels after a visit to a brewery.

The L. C. C. have set one night each week for "Ladies' night." It is quite a drawing card and attracts a good many where other attractions might fail.

It is rumored that Tommy Lane is devoting himself to fancy trick riding.

A certain wheelman of Louisville not long since undertook a night ride to a party sixteen miles from Louisville. The darkness prevented him from seeing the pole at the toll gate, and he smashed into it. The shock loosened the rope holding it down, and as the heavy weight raised the pole the cyclist grabbed, and up he went clinging to the pole. Everything was lovely, and the goose hung high, although it seemed as though his goose was "Cook"-ed. He was released from his predicament, and went on, you may be sure, in no pleasant state of mind.

Now gentlemen adapt your pneumatic tire for road riding, and give us an electric motor practicable on wheels and we will be fixed.

The ten mile road race between Jefferis and Bauer takes place Thanksgiving Day.

DAYTON, O.

"EAGLE."

I notice in your October 31st issue in Porkopolis Notes by "Star" that the Dayton Bicycle Club intended giving a road race, in which there were to be a cash prize of $100 offered, and if such were given, the probabilities are that all who entered would be expelled from the League, etc."

If "Star" had kindly communicated with us before using the clipping, said to be taken from the Commercial Gazette, and learned the true facts of the case, we would only too gladly have put him on the right path.

Now kindly let me inform him, also the readers of your paper, the true state of affairs, and correct the great injustice thrown upon our club. A few months ago it was thought that a road race would be just the thing to establish our popularity among the racing men of the country, and create that great feeling of esprit du corps that cyclists always feel proud of. Well, after some talk about the prizes for such a race, Messrs. A. W. Gump & Co. kindly aided the cause by donating two or three high grade wheels and an elegant time medal. So the race was advertised to be run the latter part of October.

As the weeks rolled around and the weather continued so miserable, the question arose whether it would be proper to have it in October, or wait till next spring. After a great deal of controversy, it was suggested that the club hold a meeting and decide what to do. Such was done, the race being put off until next spring.

Now some blundering correspondent, learning there was to be a race of some kind, and anxious to see his writing in print, I suppose, got the prizes mixed with a little affair, in which one of the members of our club was chancing off a wheel, the winner either to take the bicycle or $100 in cash, and in place of stating there were to be two or three wheels and a time medal as prizes, he wrongly got the prize for the road race as $100 in cash.

Let me kindly remind "Star" that we are quite fully posted in regard to League rules on racing, and never intended having a race in

ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

THE EAGLE

is the wheel for Touring as well as for Racing.

WHAT MR. F. E. WEAVER SAYS OF THE WHEEL THAT CARRIED HIM FROM SEA TO SEA.

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 17, 1890.

The Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co., Stamford, Conn.:

Sirs—Having lately finished my transcontinental tour, New Haven to San Francisco, I write, in justice to the wheel, and also to give you some idea as to what my 48 inch Eagle has been through and how well it stood the tremendous strain. My total mileage on the trip was 3995. New Haven to San Francisco, and the wheel's season's mileage will aggregate to 5500. This was made over probably the roughest roads ever traversed by a wheel in this country. The rough mountain roads of the Alleghanies, Rockies and Sierre being crossed in succession. As a wheel for hilly and mountainous work, I believe the Eagle has no equal; while on any road it is the equal, if not the superior, of any.

Its safety, combined with perfect simplicity and strength, make it the only wheel for long distance touring.

The position of a good rider is, contrary to some wheelmens' opinions, comfortable and easy, and then, being directly over the pedals, one can exert great power and the wheel will not slip in climbing wet or sandy grades.

Its strength was a source of constant surprise to me, it making the exceedingly rough trip without the loss of a spoke. One slight break, easily repaired at a neighboring blacksmith shop, was the sum total of repairs.

The mount by the pedal I found to be the simplest and best, scarcely any room at all required in which to accomplish it.

One thing which speaks for itself is, that after this test my future mount will be an Eagle, and should advise this and no other wheel for a like tour.

Yours respectfully,

F. E. Weaver, New Haven B. C.

AN AMERICAN—RAMBLER RECORD.

A Record is frequently as much, if not more, a case of a man than wheel, but, say, if a man, without previous training, borrows a safety, and with but two days' practice on that type of wheel, goes out and, under unfavorable conditions, establishes an American safety record for 50 miles of 3hrs. 12m. 46 1-5 seconds, is it not, in these days of erratic and sensitive steering safeties, more than reasonable that the wheel of necessity played no second part in the attaining of the result? And yet in New Orleans, La., on Oct. 26th, that is exactly what was done by R. G. Betts mounted on an AMERICAN LIGHT RAMBLER. Surprising! Possibly—and yet not so when one considers that RAMBLERS are not only the most comfortable and easy riding of safeties, by virtue of a practical and thoroughly tested spring frame, but by a due regard in their design and construction for the mechanical and scientific principles involved, they are likewise unequalled as easy runners and steady steerers, a fact attested not only by this performance, but by hundreds of beginners and more than one riding school instructor.

which there was to be a prize of $100 in cold cash as he states. It is very evident that he would not do for an Associated Press correspondent, or the probabilities are that he would give circulation to such wild rumors it would bring on a very serious panic in this country.

However, I do not care to go into any further details, as time is too valuable, only I hope that before he again jumps on to a new and enterprising club, he recall one of those little maxims, namely, "Look before you leap."

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

"TREB."

The plan for the Schwalbach Cycle Co. building has been completed. It will be five story and basement with a front of brick, iron and Portage stone. The first floor will be used as a show room, the second as a storage room, the third for ladies' and gentlemen's lockers and bath, the fourth as a riding room, and the fifth for repairing machines.

The special match games between the Brooklyn Bicycle Club and Kings County Wheelmen's bowling teams have been arranged; the first match will be played at the Kings County Wheelmen's house on December 3, the second on the B. B. C. alleys, and the third on some neutral alley, if a third game is necessary.

The Long Island Wheelmen are holding a series of most enjoyable entertainments; a progressive euchre tournament is under way, while Saturday nights are of especial interest, some slight programme is provided and light refreshments served.

The Brooklyns held a most successful picture run on Sunday last, forty-five men turning out; the pictures were taken at the new entrance at the boulevard end, the proofs have been submitted and give universal satisfaction.

A. H Miles will captain the Kings County's bowling team this season.

I. B. Potter, the Brooklyn's President, has just returned from a shooting trip, and secured a number of fine partridges.

President Luscomb has been using his endeavors to again make his club a League member, but it is doubtful if he will succeed.

The Long Islands will hold banquet the 22d of November, at the Clarendon Hotel. The club, which has been unusually quiet, have mapped a series of events which cannot fail to provide amusement for their members.

BUFFALO NOTES.

"SETAGEC."

There was considerable said last year about the League's being too exclusive, and yet one well-known sporting authority not a thousand miles from Buffalo, who was of that opinion then, now holds that no amateur should be allowed to compete in local events without being a member of the A. A. U. Consistency, thou art a jewel.

The Buffalo Press Cycling Club is the first bicycle club in the country to join the A. A. U.

The Ramblers and the Zigzags have come out for the A. A. U. also.

The Buffalos have had some needed repairs made on their club house, which will make it more cosy than ever.

The Press Cycling Club are to have that athletic branch, and the club will probably take the name of the Press Cycling and Athletic Club, the first of the kind in the world.

Leading editorials in the daily press here have been asking the bicycle clubs to join the A. A. U., so as to make this the strongest A. A. U. town in the country.

The Press Cycling Club have fitted out rooms at 1 1-2 Brown Building, on Main street.

All the city's voting booths have been stored on the East side ball grounds. Why didn't the city rent them out to the wheelmen for sheds for their bicycles during the winter? They are just big enough to hold a Safety bicycle.

The Express says: "The Buffalo Bicycle Club is likely to resign from the L. A. W. at the annual meeting in April."

The Zigzags have placed pool and billiard tables in their cosy rooms, and think of putting in a piano next. They are arranging a series of club entertainments for the winter.

The Ramblers had their first Smoker last Friday night. Over a hundred attended. Tobac, music and "sassiges" were prime.

The Women's Wheel and Athletic Club had their annual meeting last Monday night, and elected officers.

The Ramblers will hold a public ball at Concert Hall, December 4.

Several of the bicycle clubs will be represented at the boxing tournament at the Buffalo Athletic Club, November 25th.

There is little probability of the Buffalo Club joining the A. A. U., though considerable influence is being brought to bear on them for that purpose.

By the way, "Mr. Potter of New York" writes me that the Highway Committee are reaching three million readers through the co-operative papers and plate matter. He also says those "mud pictures" don't come in very fast. It don't need a detective camera to photograph muddy roads. You can do it with a gas pipe and an eyeglass if you haven't got a three-legged camera or a kodak.

William Penseyres, who has so far been an unattached wheelman, has joined the Press Cycling Club. Billy was the "dark horse" of the season, and is the fastest rider in the city. The Ramblers tried hard to have him join them. Some of the other clubs were after him also. I venture to say that next season he will be found to be one of the fastest riders in America.

There will be 5-mile and 10-mile bicycle races at the athletic meeting of the 65th Regt. Athletic Association and the Oroquois Atletic Club. Several Ramblers will contest.

The Buffalos, Ramblers, Press Cyclers, Zig Zigs, and several other cycling clubs have arranged their winter entertainments, including pool, billiard and card tournaments, balls, smokers and hare and hound chases.

There will be a close contest between Joe Kane and Art. Georges for the captaincy of the Ramblers. Both are good riders, though Kane is fastest, but Georges makes up in his ability to command. Both deserve the office.

Local cycling politics have commenced, as most of the clubs elect officers in December.

PORKOPOLIS NOTES.

"STAR."

I was very much surprised on reading the World of Oct. 31 to learn that I had offended the dignity of my friend "Social." My information as to his club was derived from a letter in which he said that the initiation fee would be $10 (double that of any other local club) and that one black ball would be sufficient to reject an applicant. I supposed from that that it was intended to make the club very select and so stated. As I seem to have been mistaken I will make all possible amends by declaring that the club is not at all select.

I have frequently heard visiting wheelmen speak of the excellency of Cincinnati beer, but I have never heard any of them refer to our Art School, with its 500 students, our College of Music, with its 600 pupils, or our Art Museum that is so crowded with works of art that it must soon be enlarged. And yet it is said that cycling is such an elevated and refined sport!

It is said that one reason that the election returns from some counties in Ohio come in so slowly was owing to the impassable condition of the roads. Another argument in favor of the improvement of highways.

The Porkopolis Wheelmen now have a piano in their rooms and propose during the coming winter to ascertain whether music hath charms to soothe a savage, rend a rock or split a cabbage.

The Socialists have succeeded in getting one lady to accompany them on their runs.

Rumor says that Arnot is to turn the Kenton Club into a theatrical troupe and that the first piece they will put on the boards will be a blood-curdling border drama.

The coat of feathers that "Social" says that some of the wheelmen wear may account for their fondness of chicken.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

We have before us two sample route cards as issued by Mr. Geo. M. Nisbett, 146 West End avenue, giving routes of the New York city riding district. In form of detail, as to distance, points, material, grade, condition, etc., they are similar to the usual form used in the ordinary Division road books. They are printed on extra tough cardboard so that folding does not crack them. In size they are 7x4 1-2, so that by folding they can be readily and easily carried in the pocket. The cards can be procured of Mr. Nisbett at ten cents per copy.

A postal card from Mr. E. C. Rowe of New Haven, dated Wichita, Kan., Nov. 7, says: "I am now touring awheel (alone) through Indian Territory. Good roads and fine weather. Started from Newton, Kan.; left California on Nov. 3; will spend two weeks in the Territory."

Mr. H. A. Lozier and Mr. J. L. Yost sailed from England for home last Saturday.

The Mechanics' Fair now being held in Boston is by far and away the best exhibition of the kind ever held in Boston. Its attractions if given in detail would more than fill the pages of one issue of this paper, hence we can but urge all those in Boston and vicinity who have not been to go and judge for themselves. Every department is replete with interest. To cyclists the much-talked of skeleton (which for a time was not allowed to be exhibited by the management) will be a source of much wonder and real instruction. The ankle motion of that man of bone is one to be imitated and studied. The art gallery is filled with a most excellent collection of modern American artists' work. Every inch of space on both floors and basement is occupied and a visit will only excite a desire to repeat it. The management is to be commended for producing the best exhibition of the kind ever shown in Boston.

"Cycling for Health and Pleasure" is a book that every rider should have. Send 50c. to the Wheelman Co., 12 Pearl St., Boston, and procure one at once.

Mr. William Iliffe, the founder of the great English cycling literature publication company of Iliffe & Son, lately died at the ripe age of 78 years.

We are receiving complaints from our New England readers that the paper fails to come to them on time. We have been requested to get names and addresses for use in our complaint to the post-office department here. Will our readers please drop in a postal if they have cause for complaint?

We take an extract from a sermon delivered by the Rev. James Coot, pastor of the Grove M. E. Church of New Haven, Ct :

"There is an excellent organization to which several of us belong called 'The League of American Wheelmen.' In Connecticut and other States of the Union this organization has published a 'Road-book' containing carefully prepared maps on which the best roads are traced in red lines and numbered according to their quality for the guidance of travellers. And every one who has much to do with that very uncertain quantity, the American road, would do well to provide himself with one of those books.

Now, the Bible is the only correct and infallible road-book in God's spiritual domain. The roads are all carefully marked here—the pleasant paths and the rough, rocky places; the miry sloughs, the sandy deserts, 'the green pastures' and 'the still waters;' the frowning mountains and the peaceful valleys; the bleak moorlands and the shady groves. Here you can trace the straight, rough road up the mountain of duty, on whose summit you find the scenery so enchanting, the air so exhilarating, and with such glorious 'coasting' down the other side towards the river of light shimmering in the glowing sunset. This book, too, shows you the tempting by-paths which look so pleasant in the beginning, but soon loom up with frightful crags and boulders and treacherous pitfalls. All these are carefully indicated so that 'he who runs may read;' 'the way-faring men, though fools, shall not err therein.' And through all runs the broad red line marking the King's highway of holiness, the way of duty bravely and faithfully done—the good old way of self-denying toil for the betterment of others, in which God's pilgrims have safely and joyously travelled, all through the ages, to the glorious city of light."

"Cycling for Hevlth and Pleasure" is a book that every rider should have. Send 50c. to the Wheelman Co., 12 Pearl St., Boston, and procure one at once.

A certain grave and reverend clergyman of Springfield, O., having been presented with a fine safety essayed to ride same with very poor results. He was practicing the other day in the presence of an interested crowd of small boys. After many vain efforts to stay on the jigger, one of the small youngsters quietly, confidentially remarked :

"Say, mister! I kin tell you why you don't ride that wheel!"

The good man stopped, and turning around, said :

"Well, sonny, why can't I ride the wheel?"

"'Cause you don't stay on it!" replied the young Solon, and though the clergymen said nothing, as he walked home, it may be supposed he thought a heap.

Dr. L. K. Garfield of Algona, Ia., is 70 years of age and yet he has just learned to ride a bicycle. Here is still another proof of the good old saying that "it is never to late to mend."

We want all the best mileage records for 1890 up to date. Will the mileage-rolling enthusiasts please send in their figures and proofs for publication?

The Ladies' Bicycle Club of Hartford, Ct., gave a reception at the Hartford Wheel Club rooms last week. Over 100 lady bicyclists were present. The programme consisted of music, recitations and dancing.

Joseph Goodman, "Good old Joe," editor of that best of all monthly cycling journals, the Cyclist, celebrated his 28th birthday on the 2d of November.

The coons were not out: "The Sedalia (Mo.) Bicycle Club went coon hunting on their wheels. They got many headers, but no coons."—Exchange.

The cycling polo players of Connecticut are making arrangements for the forming of a League to play games during the winter months. Last year there was more or less acrimony shown between members of the polo teams of Connecticut. Now, gentlemen, can't you run the games this winter without fighting them over again in the public press?

The Onondaga Cycling Club of Syracuse, N. Y., was organized October 9th, and they now have a charter membership of 27. They have secured temporary rooms for the winter in the new Grand Opera House block and propose to furnish them handsomely, adding among other accessories, a pool and billiard and card tables. Next season they will have a large club house of their own fitted up with all modern improvements. Commencing in a few weeks they will hold a handicap continuous pool tournament for club members, only first prize will be a gold medal, second prize, silver medal; third prize, smaller silver medal, all suitably engraved. The Onondagas are organized for business and professional men more particularly. This city is amply large enough to support two clubs, and there will be a sort of friendly rivalry between them, which, with the increased interest in cycling which the State meet held in this city has created, and with the new asphalt roads which are now being laid here, has put a new impetus into cycling, and it is predicted that there will be hundreds of new riders here next season. The Onondagas are striving hard to increase their membership to 100 before next season opens, and with the large number of unattached wheelmen in this city, it is safe to predict that their hopes will be realized. They extend a cordial invitation to all wheelmen to inspect their rooms when on a visit to Syracuse.

The Bergen County (N. J.) Wheelmen of Fairview gave a musical and dramatic entertainment on Wednesday evening, Nov. 12.

"Hello 40" The above remark, made in the presence of a certain St. Louis wheelman, always causes him to immediately ask the youth making the remark, "What will you take?" Those two words will cost the originator many drinks and cigars before they receive a decent burial and are relegated to oblivion.

The Harlem (N. Y.) Wheelmen held a stag reception at the clubhouse last Saturday evening. The programme was as follows: Sleight of hand performance, Prof. Gunsburg; bugle selections, Sergt. Wilcox, N. G. S. N. Y.; humorous selections, Mr. Wm. J. Daly; banjo selections, Suburban Banjo Club; dramatic selections, Mr. Burt Andrews; performance in juggling, Prof. Osthoff; sleight of hand, Prof. G nsburg.

Our erstwhile friend, H. E. Laurie, discourses eloquently, if not wisely, in the columns of Wheeling on his impressions of America and American racing matters. The Scottish Cyclist informs us that Mr. Laurie had to protect his machine from harm by the use of a display of revolvers and bowie knives, otherwise the wild, untamed, revolver armed American would have done vital damage to his pneumatic! Mr. Laurie is amusing at least, if he does romance a bit you know.

The first reception of the Troy, N. Y., Bicycle Club was held at Bicycle Hall last evening. About 50 couples were present. Seventeen dances were on the programme, which occupied the time from 8 until 12 o'clock.

The Ansonia, Ct., wheelmen waltzed, schottisched and quadrilled themselves into the social season last week Wednesday evening. The floor was comfortably filled, and the dancing which commenced at nine P. M. lasted until midnight.

BICYCLES STOLEN AND LOST.

No. 10 Union safety with Garford saddles stolen from Johnson & Hutchinson, Sioux City, Iowa. No. of wheel is 727. They will give $10 for information and detention of this machine.

Stolen from in front of G. H. Fuller's jewelry shop, Pawtucket, R. I., October 29, a Swift Safety, Model A, No. 94,244, owned by E. A. Phinney. A suitable reward will be paid for return of bicycle or any valuable information at Dawson & Co., Pawtucket, R. I.

Lost 1889 Victor safety, No. 3990, Garford saddle and small bell on handle bar, $15 reward. A. G. Smith, Brockton, Mass.

IN FAVOR OF CHIEF CONSUL BULL'S RACING SCHEME.

Editor Bicycling World: I have read with no small amount of interest the proposition of Chief Consul W. S. Bull to organize a "State Racing Circuit" and think the idea a splendid one.

I have given the article some attention, and suggest that with a few additions it would result in bringing out more men, produce faster and better racing, and the excitement thus created would act as an incentive to increase the number of both riders and racing men and induce all riders to join the "L. A. W."

Leaving the matter of distributing the "district championships" as it now stands comes the "prize" question.

Instead of placing a time limit on races (when if the time limit is not reached the riders lose prizes and race) I would suggest the time limit to be placed, but that each and every rider who rides inside of the specified time receive a special time medal. Having seen this tried and knowing its advantages, I do not hesitate in suggesting it to Mr. Bull.

I have seen the above tried in a 5-mile race, with 20 men to start, time being (I believe) 14.40. Shortly after starting it commenced raining, but not a man dropped out, and even after at least a dozen of them were actually out of the race (as far as first, second or third prize was concerned) they did not stop, and as a result the race was fought from start to finish by all the men and no less than 10 finished inside of the time limit and secured prizes.

Should the "circuit" be formed I would suggest the employing of a good and competent track-maker or inspector for the season and having the charge for his services paid by the club whose track he put in proper condition during the week or weeks previous to the races. In this way every club would have the advantage or knowledge of a man who could fix up the track in the least time and in the best possible condition at a moderate cost, for who does not know that over half the work done on tracks is without system and if so to what end?

In the matter of advertising the entire "circuit" could be advertised at once and when once started each one would advertise the following tournaments. Trusting you will find room in your columns for this, believe me, yours very truly, A. C. Banker.

"DABBLING" IN POLITICS.

Editor Bicycling World: "Is it best for the interests of the League to dabble in politics?" Now, do see here. Please don't put it in that hard, severe, uncompromising, angular way. The first thing you know you will frighten the eyelids off the timid wobbler, and, besides, that way of asking the question is already discounting the argument of those who do favor the policy of the League, not individuals, taking advantage of every proper situation in politics or anything else to advance its own interests. In the first place, if there is contamination in politics the League might just as well give up its efforts in the line of highway improvements, for all such matters are intimately connected with the true definition of politics, the science of government. Do let us be practical about the matter. The mere theorists, who can talk and write ninety-nine pounds to the square inch in pure grammar, crystal syntax and finely rounded periods, makes reading just too lovely for anything, and the sentiments are so lofty and angelic that we quite get a glimpse, between the gates ajar, of the jasper streets of Paradise. But, my dear boy, the heavenly biped with those charming sentiments is about as well adapted to guide the League in practical matters as a tombstone is for a toothpick. If in the glimpse up there you actually saw that the streets were paved with jasper, you may just as well set it down as a fact that there were politicians and appropriations and contractors connected with the job. And they had to get on the good side of the politicians to get the appropriation, and about the only way they could have the necessary influence with the politicians was to demonstrate to them that there was a whole lot of votes for their personal election involved. Now, partisanship is another thing entirely, and that is the line the League should never cross. The League of American Wheelmen should never be Democrat or Republican in politics. Do you grasp the difference between the League's interfering in politics and becoming partisan? Certainly you do. Suppose it was absolutely necessary for the health of the Bicycling World employes that an alley in the rear of the establishment should be radically cleaned, and that one candidate for municipal legislative halls should promise to vote to have it done if the Bicycling World employes, who should hold the balance of power in that ward, would vote for him. The other fellow wouldn't. Well you can just stake all your small change that the World employes would interfere with politics simply once at any rate, and they wouldn't be partisan either. If the League wants pavements, roads, emphasis of rights or any practical thing, it must go about it in a practical manner, and show the people it wants these things from candidates for office, that it can give an equivalent—votes. Of course this is only effective where the wheelmen hold a balance of power, as in a ward of a city, a small town, and occasionally a large city where parties are pretty evenly divided. Then, too, there should be no abuse of such power by the League officials if the wheelmen swung into line. Neither should every Tom, Dick or Harry of an individual wheelman attempt to wield this power by directing the wheel vote. It should all be done in accordance with some outlined policy, and by the proper League official, and in such a clear, open, comprehensive manner that all could understand, and leave no premises for impeaching motives. Perhaps the 16,000 or 17,000 in the national body could not accomplish anything in national affairs, and where failure is certain the attempt should not be made, but there are Congaessional districts where the wheel vote might be a large factor, and, besides, it has been found, in places where wheelmen have "interfered" with politics, that most of the cyclers who will not even join the League as members will join it in voting a crusade for better pavements and roads. Would New York have had its Liberty Bill if the New York division had not "interfered" in politics? No, and it will only get a road bill through the Legislature by "interfering" in politics. That is, the members of the New York Division will have to write and telegraph and urge their assemblymen and senators to vote for the bill, and the members will have to get every one else they can to urge them. The assemblymen and senators will have to be made to feel that they are meeting the wishes of their constituents in voting for the road bill. Now, you know that as well as every sensible League member does. Then, what in azure blazes is the use of asking if the League should "dabble" in politics? Well, now, if it don't, when the pie goes around it will get the crust every time. If you call it hard names, like "dabble," and "interference," and "politics," it does not seem altogether lovely to the unthinking and unobservant member, but if you give it the practical nomenclature of "pavements" and "roads" and "rights," you strike him right where he is not cushioned tired

You said a nom de plume could be used, but, oh, well, what's the use, they would all know anyway that it was Albert Mott.

STILL ANOTHER REASON WHY PNEUMATICS ARE FASTER.

Editor Bicycling World: I notice reasons and reasons in your recent issues as to the speed of the pneumatic tire, and most of them good ones, especially those which lay stress on the tire keeping to the ground in spite of the inequalities of the track, and the steady steering resulting from the absence of vibration. But one great reason has been overlooked, the increased friction between tire and track, and consequent diminution of slippage; this tire has more friction, not only on account of greater diameter, but on account of its elasticity, which gives it a bearing surface on the track several times that of a solid tired racer. We have seen numerous statements as to the why and wherefore of the speed of the pneumatic, but nothing conclusive, and your readers would all like to read a full page editorial on the subject.

WASHINGTON (D. C.) FOR THE 1891 MEET.

Editor Bicycling World: Since the Niagara meet is a thing of the past the question agitating the minds of wheelmen is, "Where will we meet in '91?" Detroit apparently will extend a very cordial invitation to the League, and no doubt Detroit wheelmen are fully capable of making it pleasant for all.

I have had interviews with several wheelmen on the subject, and all seem to think that Washington, D. C., would be the city for the 1891 meet, and I am sure it would be one of the most successful meets ever held. What wheelman does not desire to see the national capital? Where is there more delightful riding than over the 100 miles of asphalt pavements, up and down hills, on streets finely shaded, with a background of fine brownstone buildings and handsome dwellings and well kept lawns? As for hotel facilities they are ample to accommodate all.

The B. and O. R.R., which has connections to all points, North, East, South and West, carries bicycles free of charge, and reduced rates can be secured without trouble. As to races—there are several tracks which can be secured within a short distance of the city, and car lines extend in every direction.

As to the parade it could be made a success rain or shine, as our streets seem to be built for such affairs. No one will have cause to complain of being lonely on account of lack of entertainment. We have six active clubs and most of them have well furnished club houses. Then there are the magnificent government buildings, the White House, the monument, beautiful parks and four theatres.

The greatest point to be considered in holding the meet in Washington is the amount of new members that will be added to the list. Wheelmen just think of it, there are between 11,000 and 12,000 riders in this city and only a paltry 217 who are members of the League (the life and sustenance of the sport). There is no Division in the League which requires enthusiasm as bad as the District of Columbia. In closing this very mild appeal it will be sincerely hoped by all well wishers of the League, that the honored officials of the L. A. W. when deciding on the point of the meet for 1891 will give us a little due consideration. L. A. W., No. 4394

THE "GOOD OLD ORDINARY."

Editor Bicycling World: I should like to say a few words in reply to the gentleman (?) who so brazenly calls ordinary riders both "chumps" and "d—— f—s" in the Referee a week or two ago. Of course when we read any such thing we appreciate the shallowness of mind of the one who writes it and that he is simply applying to others the names that so aptly fit himself.

Riding either machine is simply a matter of choice, and may we humbly beg to know who this high mogul, this great unknown is, who would appoint himself a judge, a criterion of what we ought or ought not to ride.

It seems to me he is a person who does not know his mind and hence his writing is not worth noticing. For he contradicts himself in the same breath. He says, "At last they persuaded me," then below, "Although only partially persuaded," etc.

I should judge from his writing that he was some callow youth seeking newspaper notoriety. My idea is that he did not have the requisite nerve to ride the "good old ordinary" fearing to break his worthless neck.

I am not saying a word against the safety, as it is just as good in its place (and that place is for those who like it best) as the ordinary is for those who like it best.

In his closing remarks I think it is very appropriate for him to "pray God to preserve him from the d—— f—s," as he seems to be very near if not entirely in that class

I have only six words to say in closing: The ordinary riders "consider the source" Yours truly, ORDINARY.

"BABY SEATS 'ONTO' BICYCLES"

Editor Bicycling World: Invariably, on stripping the wrapper from the WORLD, I turn to the divertisement in the middle of the inside page of the cover. In your issue of Oct. 10 I found the following paragraph, in front of the usual signature of "Old Hickory":

"* * * There is another man who ought to be argued with, and that is the inventor of various attachments for fastening baby seats onto bicycles. We protest in behalf of the little ones. There is no rider so expert that he may not find it necessary to dismount suddenly, and while he may in nearly every case escape injury himself, it is hardly possible that a small child, especially when seated behind the handle bar, would not be badly hurt if the machine went over. * * *"

It has transpired that I am the other man. I find myself generally in accord with the "arguments" advanced in the space above mentioned, but I quietly disagree with the little wheel in front plan, and the above extract is so far "off," and keeps recurring to me with such increasing force, that I am stirred to offer myself as a victim to be "argued with." I have rigged a child's seat "onto" my safety, and, with the assistance of my four-years-old boy, I am getting more than double the satisfaction on the wheel that I can get alone. The boy takes some, too, and for one he won't thank "Old Hickory" for his protest "in behalf of the little ones."

Neither of us have suspected that we have been in danger. I use some caution, and what judgment I have, about where and how to ride with him on. If there is a cyclist who will do that, and who cannot become sufficiently expert to dismount from a safety, suddenly or otherwise, without the remotest danger of letting the machine go over, the clumsy cuss has no business riding a bicycle. I have a daughter about four months old now, and next season I expect to strap her into my safety attachment, which, by the way, is a comfortable canvas seat with side arms, somewhat resembling, in the latter respect, the Elliott Quadricycle baby's seat. When I get her there, behind the handle bar, with my arms outstretched on either side, I shall feel fully as safe with her as I should if she were down in front on a quadricycle, within easy reach of every dog who might choose to poke his nose into her face. I used to leave my ordinary at home, and go out with the boy and a quadricycle with a canopy top. My present arrangement discounts that a hundred to one, at least. Four wheels, handicapped by having two little wheels in front, will never "go" until the society for the prevention and care of present American roads has covered the country with asphalt. Why, then, "argue" to rob the babies, their fathers or their mothers of one of the keenest pleasures of BI-cycling?

COREY HILL—BERLO'S 2.28 WILL NOT HOLD WATER—BENSON MAKES A RECORD.

Last Saturday E. C. Anthony, J. C. Kerrison, W. L. Sanborn, R. F. Claflin, P. J. Berlo and a representative of the WORLD assembled at the foot of Corey Hill to witness the attempt of Arthur P. Benson to lower his own record of 3.02 made two weeks ago. A careful comparing and setting together of five watches, Messrs. Anthony and the WORLD representative took up their station at the top of the hill. At precisely 9.46, Mr. Benson on his safety geared to 57 inches, was started from the cross walk at the foot of the hill, and when he reached the men at the top the watches showed exactly 9.49.05. Time, 3.05. Down he went again and up, and he never stopped until he had made the round trip nine times. His time for the round trips is as follows:

	Start.	Finish at top.	Elapsed time each ascent.
First trip	9 46 00	9 49.05	3.05
Second trip	*	9.55.30	——
Third trip	9 58.10	10.02.30	4.20
Fourth trip	10.04.20	10.09.00	4 40
Fifth trip	10.14 50	10.15.35	3 45
Sixth trip	† 10.18.37	10.21.40	(?) 3 03
Seventh trip	10.24.12	10.29.01	4.49
Eighth trip	10 31.13	10 35 50	4.37
Ninth trip	10.38.20	10.42.10	3.50

* Time not taken. † This is trip Berlo rode.

The finish at bottom was made at 10.45.04. Total elapsed time, 58m. 05s.

Berlo's time: start, 10.18.37; finish, 10.21.05; elapsed time, 2.28.

On starting up for the fifth ascent P. J. Berlo, on a safety geared to 57 inches, started with him. The time of start was given 10.18 37, Berlo rushing to the front, and at Prospect street had a good lead, and by the time Benson had reached the second gutter bridge beyond Prospect street, Berlo had gained the crest of the steep grade, and was sprinting for the line on a comparative level grade at a racing gait. The watches at the top showed 10.21.05, elapsed time 2.28! (?) About 20 seconds after Berlo had finished, Benson's form was seen rising over the crest of the hill, and at exactly 10.21 40, he crossed the line. The elapsed time for Benson being 3.03 (?) within one second of his record time.

Though Benson did not better his own single ascent record, he made a record for a crank safety wheel geared to 57 inches, making nine round trips without a dismount.

We, however, cannot allow Berlo's claim to record for the following reason: That we do not believe that the elapsed time (3.02) is correct, as shown between the time he reached the top on the fifth ascent (10.15.35) and the time he reached the bottom on the sixth trip (10.18.37). We think a mistake was made in taking the time of the commencement of the sixth ascent, and instead of being 10.18.37 it should have been 10.17.37. We hope, however, that Mr. Berlo will be able to come near enough to the 2.28 claim to prove that our position is wrong. In the meantime Mr. Benson's record of 3.02 stands for one ascent.

NINE times up Corey without a dismount: thus the record again goes to the Singer, Benson "up" as being the best ever made on a chain crank safety geared to 57 inches. In our reporting Mr. Benson's former wonderful climbs of Corey Hill and Eagle Rock, we fear we did not emphasize the claim made by Mr. Benson and the Singer people that it was record for a crank chain safety geared to 57 inches. This we do now.

THE much talked of team race between the New York Bicycle Club and the Riverside Wheelmen came off last Saturday on the Ranway course, which is a two and a half mile stretch from Elizabeth and return. A large number of wheelmen were in attendance. The race started at 4.20, Messrs. Judge and Stilger, R. W., leading, Heydecker and Findley, N. Y. B. C., starting with them. The race was one for blood from the start, but the New Yorks were no match for their opponents, as the Riversides won easily with 32 points. W. C. Heydecker was fouled by F. M. Cossitt, which caused him a bad fall, smashing his wheel, but with Cossitt out they won easily by 27 to 23 points. The trophy was a handsome silk banner and will adorn the walls of the Riverside's cosy home. The detailed result follows: Stilger, R. W., first, time 17m. 15s.; Horton, N. Y. B. C., second, 17.16; Judge, R. W., third, 17.24; Bird, N. Y. B. C., fourth, 18.16 Powers, R. W., fifth, 18.43; Cossitt, R. W., sixth, 18.43; Nisbett, N. Y. B. C., seventh, 19.07; Ward, R. W., eighth, 19.10; Findley, N. Y. B. C., ninth, 19.11; Heydecker, N. Y. B. C., tenth and last. The officials were: Referee, Waldo E. Fuller, B. B. C.; timers, F. Fiegee, E. O. C., W. McFadden, N. Y. B. C., and F. Cleveland, N. Y. B. C.; judges, E. J. Shriver, N. Y. B. C., and W. J. Masterson.

Iven crossed the line first in 1h. 3m. 30s., the distance being 14 miles. The others up to the sixth finished as follows: W. Connolly, 4m., second; W. C. Le Messererer, 5m., third; F. Smith, 4m., fourth; F. A. Mabbett, 2m., fifth; J. Graham, 3m., sixth.

AT COLUMBIA, PA., Nov. 4.—The Columbia Wheelmen held a handicap road race on Election Day resulting as follows: Wm. Witmer, 2m., first; Jno. Lintner, 2m., second; H. Witmer, 2m., third. D. Fornwalt from scratch won the prize for the best time made, which was 27 34.—S. [Our correspondent fails to include the very important information as to the distance run.—ED.]

A NEW CUSHION TIRE.

MESSRS. BANKER & CAMPBELL CO (Limited) of No. 1786 Broadway, New York city, have applied for a patent on a "Webb" or "Cushion" tire, cuts and descriptions of which appear below:

Figure No. 1 represents a cross-section of the tire showing the webbing or spokes of rubber which support the outer walls of the tire, and as the holes formed by the webbing are not inflated with air it will be a matter of no consequence whatever how often or how deep the tire becomes cut.

Figure No. 2 represents a transverse section of the tire, showing the webbing and holes as they run through the tire. The tires will be made endless and in two sizes, 1 1-4 and 1 1-2 inches in diameter and will weigh about the same as 7-8 and 1 inch tires respectively and add but a very few pounds to the weight of the machine.

Ever since the "McKinley Bill" was first proposed the above firm have been busily engaged in perfecting arrangements for building a Light Roadster Safety, weighing 36 lbs., and now promise American riders American Light Safeties. They have leased a large commodious factory at Rockaway, N. J., and are now finishing up parts of machines for next season's trade, using nothing but the best weldless steel tubing and drop steel forgings throughout the entire machine and to use their words "will present the first really 'Light Roadster Safety Bicycles' built in America, which will be American in all respects and interchangeable throughout."

THE GENDRON IRON WHEEL CO.

WHILE strolling through the Mechanics Fair building at Boston, we came across an exhibit of bicycles which were entirely new to us. We refer to the exhibit of the Gendron Iron Wheel Co. of Toledo, Ohio. The exhibit embraces a line of wheels from the $40 cone bearing safety wheel up to $140 nineteen pound racing safety. They also show an excellent racing ordinary, nineteen pounds in weight, and an automatic steering ball bearing high grade wheel at $130. They also show a good ladies ball bearing wheel at $75 and $100, according to finish. The exhibit is an excellent one, and especially interesting, as we had no idea that the Gendron Co. made cycles of the grade and quality shown. We almost forgot to mention a very strong, likely looking high grade tandem that was also on exhibition. They were a mighty good looking lot of wheels, and will well repay a visit to inspect by those attending the fair.

MESSRS. H. A. LOZIER & CO. write us: "We are making extensive alterations in our Cleveland office. We have one of the largest stores in the City Hall Block. It has now been turned entirely into offices, besides we have built on a large bookkeeping and stenographic office in the rear. We have also secured adjoining basements where we will assemble sewing machines, ship bicycles and store them both. We expect both Mr. Lozier and Mr. Yost sailed on the Britannic from Liverpool yesterday. Business looks bright."

OUR old friend, A. Kennedy Child worked like a beaver to secure for the Warwick Co. the government contract for bicycles for use by the P. O. Department, and to him much credit can be given for the active part he took in the transaction.

WE call attention this week to the announcement of the St. Georges' Engineering Co. on page 75, in which they announce a large consignment of cushion tired New Rapids to Messrs. Clark Cycle Co. of Baltimore. In regard to these tires and the use of them on the New Rapid machines, the Clark Cycle Co. writes: "For any additional information you may desire, write to us. We have the machines in stock, and can fill orders promptly. We fixed the above price before the McKinley Bill was passed, and shall maintain it for the balance of this season at any rate, although there will probably be a general advance in the prices of all high grade, cushion tired machines next season."

500—Missouri—500.

To Consuls and Members:

Our membership, thanks to the efforts of our wide-awake officers, is booming, and never before were the applications from Missouri during the bleak month of November so numerous as now. By way of comparison let us look at our membership last November. It then stood at 278; to-day it is over 430, or a gain of 55 per cent. over last years' figures. This is good work, but we can do even better if the present ratio of growth continues, and the figures 500 should be reached by January 1st, 1891. Fraternally yours,

ROBT. HOLM, C. C.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

H. A. LOZIER & CO., - Cleveland, Ohio.

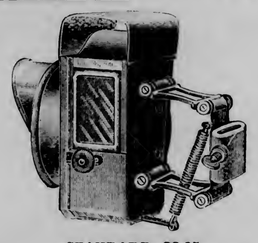
At last we present on page 55 cuts of the new No. 12 and 13 Union Spring Frame Safeties. The principle of the construction will be readily grasped by an examination of cuts. The demand for these new spring frame safeties is already being felt by the company, and large orders for the '91 season have already been booked. Take a look at page 55, and see for yourself as to how No. 12 and 13 appear.



Messrs. Howard A. Smith & Co. of Newark, N. J., the foremost cycle and supply dealers in New Jersey, are now very pleasantly settled in their new building at 518 Broad street. Their large and commodious repair shop annexed has been newly fitted with the latest and most improved machinery for brazing and fitting, thus enabling them to do all classes of repairing in a most satisfactory manner. Their salesroom is a perfect gem of systematic beauty, and brings delight to the eye of every cycler. Their catalogue of supplies is among the best published, which is sent free on application, and contains the many sundries that Messrs. Howard A. Smith & Co. are fully prepared to furnish at short notice.

A correspondent from Highlandville, Mass., sends us the following items: "We have a curiosity in this district in the shape of a real live Celestial bicyclist who, contrary to the usual Chinese custom, pedals just like a white man. They all catch the infection from the boys at the Union Factory who, with scarce an exception, appreciate the wheel as a means of locomotion. There is to be a terrible massacre of steel and weldless tubing at the Union Works this winter, and the merry plunk of the drop hammers, the whiz of polishing wheels and steady hum of the machine room are certain forerunners of the large and high class business which the Co. are bent on doing in '91."

TELEGRAM:

Dated, ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 31.

To M. V. LIVINGSTON CYCLE MFG. CO.,
Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass.:

"BRONCHO" first prize over all competitors, Piedmont Exposition to-day. Medal. CHAS. H. FREYER.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 25, 1890.

M. V. LIVINGSTON CYCLE MFG. CO., Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—The "BRONCHO" ridden by my brother, T. E. Robertson, took second place in two track races here to-day. Would have done better, but he has never ridden the "BRONCHO" before he started in these races. The machine he rode was the one brought here by Chas. Alex. Persons. He will also ride the same machine in the races here to-morrow and next day.

Yours truly, WM. T. ROBERTSON, Washington, D. C.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 24, 1890.

QUIDPROQUO.

XXXIV.

One of the brightest young wheelmen who visited the rooms of Outing, when Quidproquo was on the staff, was Frank Dempster Sherman, the author, since become famous, of many a graceful poem. In his latest dainty volume, "Lyrics for a Lute," who that reads "Contentment," beginning "A girl to love, a pipe to smoke,"---will not wish he had inserted one stanza more, to this effect, but so much better:

A wheel to ride, a road that leads
Where field and farm are fair,
Beyond the city's loaded steeds,
Beyond all carking care;
I'll ride by woods where squirrels sit,
By ponds with pebbly chimb,—
No matter then how Time may flit,
I take no heed of Time.

One wheelman expressed the substance of the matter more tersely, however, when he wrote, "I have a Columbia and am therewith content." Every Colnmbia rider may be contented in two ways,—in one way because he can therewith experience all the reliefs and delights of cycling. and in another way because he has therewith the best combination of the best improvements in cycle construction up to date.

CUSHIONS AND TIRES.

Every rubber tire is a cushion; and in a certain way the term "cushion tires," lately used so much, is a misnomer. There is no charm in the name, except to catch the ear of the unthinking. But the thing, a round rubber tire with a concentric hole through it, or a rubber tire of any other shape, partly hollow for freer compressibility or less weight, is no novelty. except in the sense of a fad or a fashion. One season hat rims are broader, and another season they are narrower; and the dude wears the latest extreme, while the commonsense man wears a moderate mean. The Pope Mfg. Co. began to handle "cushion' tires at its factory in 1878. One of its patents on cushion tire was taken out in 1883, another in 1888,---on special forms; but generically they are much older. They are indeed nearly as old as the practical using of India rubber. The questions of their use are complex; of what outer and inner diameters, of what kind and proportion of gum, on what kind and shape of rim, how to be held to the rim, how best to average and compensate one thing with another to conserve the effectiveness of the machine as an instrument of locomotion. In the matter of hats, when fashion says narrow rims, or wide rims, it's a matter of money and taste; but there's something more than money and taste involved in a change in cycle rims and tires.

HOLD FAST THE GOOD.

Older riders will remember how the makers used to make display ads. about "Best Siam Buffalo Horn Handles." What real difference did it make whether they were "Siam" or not, or "Buffalo" or not? At another time they advertised "Pure Para Rubber Tires." Well, that read well in some one's ad. and the rest followed; but a "Pure" rubber tire wasn't made and couldn't be used, "Para" or not. The Columbia tires had, and have still, the greatest proportion of pure rubber and the best rubber of any tires in the market. I have a piece of a rubber tire sold in the market for other and cheaper grades of machines that has so little rubber in it that it breaks when bent and scratched. The Columbia tires have been the best in quality and the best in method of construction and attachment, for all the uses of cycles, that there were in the market; and it is safe to infer that their makers will be in the front of the procession, whether it moves in a straight line or not, whether it be with solid tires, or "cushion" tires, or "pneumatic" tires. There has been more studying, experimenting, improving and constructing per square acre on and about their premises, particularly since last March, than there has been anywhere else in this country.

WHY NOT? BECAUSE—OH!

The other day a man said to us: "Why don't you reduce the price of your machines in the fall and winter when there is but little inducement to buy?" Well, the principal reason is that we don't have to.

Owing to the character of the goods we make, and the appreciation of them which has been manifested by the "dear public," we have been able to dispose of our product promptly without resorting to "mark-down sales."

Perhaps you have noticed that the goods on which "sweeping reductions" are made, and on which prices are reduced "within the reach of all," are the goods that, for one reason or another, are not promptly "appreciated" by buyers and so need a little "sweetening" in some such way as that indicated. Goods of the highest character, in whatever line, are not handled in that way. If your product is "dead right" you can find market for it at proper prices. So with VICTORS.

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 21 NOVEMBER, 1890.

THINGS are getting warmer and warmer in Buffalo, "Pendragon" wielding the pen on behalf of the A. A. U. and Mr. W. S. Jenkins on the other hand waging warfare on behalf of the L. A. W. "Pendragon" states that the open events in the A. A. U. will "end after November 20," and that while the A. A. U. will have a few open events for outsiders, "the plums will be open to Union clubs" only.

Mr. Jenkins being anxious to find out to what extent the statement of "Pendragon" was true, and by whom the "open events' were to be ended, investigated, and states that he found out from "Pendragon" himself that the city League of the A. A. U. was simply an organization in embryo, and that the authority for the statement that "open events" in the A. A. U. would be ended after November 20 emanated from "Pendragon's" own fertile brain, and all it amounted to was that after the organization of the city League of the A. A. U. was perfected, he ("Pendragon") intended to use all his influence to have it so! and yet the same "Pendragon" in answering the editorial of the Referee uses these words in reference to the closing of the open events: "There is not the slightest doubt of that." "Pendragon" is an oracle, a Cæsar in his way, and yet we modestly venture to prophesy that the Buffalo City League of the A. A. U. when formed will not take the action he asserts so positively they will. "Pendragon" is really a good fellow, a little bit off, a trifle rabid on the League question. He means well, even if he does call us pet names. He and Hillier can be put in the same glass case in the Dime Museum of the future as being examples of morbid and rabid antagonism to certain imaginary cycling ills and shortcomings. Taking an extreme view; suppose that "Pendragon's" wildest dreams are realized, and Buffalo L. A. W. members turn their backs on the League. Will the L. A. W. vanish into the air in consequence? We wot not!

WHAT arrant nonsense one does come across in the non-cycling press. Here is an example taken from an exchange, and which has been extensively copied:

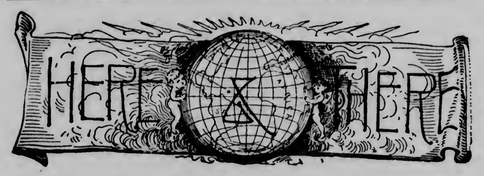
"A well known Michigan man has invented a bicycle to run upon a railroad track, and claims to have a record of three miles in two minutes on a slight down grade. The bicycle is an ordinary one, except as regards the metal rim of the wheel. This, instead of being concave, is square, so that the wheels run upon the track exactly similar to the way in which a sliding door runs upon a raised metal track. Inside this square rim is placed a heavy tire of rubber to lessen concussion. The machine is lifted on the track upon which both wheels fit, with flanges overhanging either side; and, starting it in the usual way, the rider springs into place and away he goes over a road that may be said to be well nigh perfect. The wheels cannot well leave the track if ordinary care be taken by the rider, and the only danger lies in meeting a switch or frog. These are calculated to change the railroad bicycle into a flying machine."

Imagine any sane man writing such excruciating trash. "Three miles in two minutes!" but qualified by the fact that it was a bit "down grade!!"

Then what wheelman or what boy with any common sense or the slightest knowledge of the laws governing the motion of a bicycle, can be found who does not know that to run a bicycle on a single track as suggested in the article, is simply a mechanical impossibility.

We constantly run across the most amusingly outrageous and improbable statements, but for ridiculous absurdity we think this item "takes the cake," and as a curiosity we reproduce it.

THE adoption of the safety cycle by the postoffice authorities at Washington is likely to be followed by other city postoffices in sections where surfaces will admit of it. Of course in Washington, where the streets are all asphaltum, the use of the safeties is only limited by other considerations. The Washington Star gives as the experience at the Washington postoffice that two men on cycles can easily do the work of three men and do it much quicker. We expect and hope to see the examples of the Washington authorities extensively followed in other sections where surfaces and conditions are favorable.



THE Racing Board is on the war path after certain suspected parties whose future tenure to amateurism depends largely on what the Board discover in its investigations. Whether these investigations will reveal merely mares' nests time will determine.

In the meantime our amateur friends will trim their sails and set their houses in order preparatory to the impending overhauling. For our part we hope every one of the "suspects" will be able to show a clean bill of health so that summary action of the Racing Board will not be necessary. On the other hand we do not wish any guilty man to escape.

THE Chicago Herald in speaking of the activity of the League in roads improvement matters:

"* * The wheelmen undoubtedly wish that every country road was a smooth and level boulevard, but their yearnings will have but little effect on the practical, horny-handed farmer. The latter never rides even a safety, he is not interested in the advancement of bicycling and would rather get stuck in the mud once in a while than have his team run away when scared at a bicycle."

Alas, we fear that the Herald has "averaged up" the majority of grangers about right. That is about as far as the average farmer looks. It is enough for him that a man who rides a cycle is active in the roads improvement question; he cannot see the vast advantage to accrue to him and to the value of his land by building and maintaining roads. He spurns the scheme because of its despised and disliked authors and supporters. Circumstances naturally narrow the mind and perceptions of our agricultural friends, but it is our mission to educate them up to a sense of the past and purblind policy and through the medium of the rural press that very thing is being done.

BOSTON NOTES.

"TONEY."

PICTURE in your mind's eye if you can one of the cosiest parlors imaginable, filled to overflowing with brawny, muscular, and youthful wheelmen of Boston and vicinity, together with a large billiard room in which the clashing of the ivories is heard ever and anon, and you can form a fair idea of the scene presented in the new quarters of the ever popular Somerville Cycle Club on the occasion of its housewarming last Thursday evening. Not only did the interior of the new and commodious building present a most bewildering scene with its fittings and decorations, but the exterior was also decorated in a manner befitting the occasion. The invitations sent out to the different clubs in the State were in most cases eagerly accepted, and the guests were entertained in that characteristic hospitable manner of this, one of the most prominent cycling organizations in Massachusetts, and in fact in New England. From the sitting room the wheelmen entered the billiard room wherin a pool and billiard tables were reserved for their uninterrupted pleasure, and a bountiful and appetizing display of edibles. In the concourse that moved from room to room were seen Capt. Keltie, Secretary Fecitt and several members of the Roxbury Club; Capt. Kehew, Mr. Spring and others of the Cambridgeport Club, who could not resist the temptation of smoking the "pipe of peace" with their opponents for the first place in Massachusetts cycledom; Capt. H. W. Robinson and Mr. Norris of the Rovers Cycle Club of Charlestown, having in tow Capt. and Prof. Carle Cubberly whom they captured at their dancing school, and many other cyclists of more or less prominence. The Roxbury men were accompanied by their mascot "George," who for being original, funny, and a musical wonder equals, if not surpasses, many humorists in some ways.

VICE CONSUL Arthur W. Robinson has secured the Republican nomination for Councilman in his ward, and although Charlestown is known to be a Democratic stronghold, his friends and supporters think they can place him in the council chamber.

THE last State election was probably a most disastrous one to wheelmen, as it resulted in the defeat of Senator Cook, known throughout the Commonwealth as the champion of the wheelman's road improvement bill.

CAPT. ROBINSON will marshal his "merry Rovers" into a dining hall in Young's Hotel on the evening of December 16 and bid them "eat, drink and be merry." As usual I am left out in the cold.

ON Thanksgiving Day the Cambridgeport Cycle Club will revive the old, yet none the less enjoyable, hare and hound chase on bicycles, which, if my memory serves me well, was introduced to Bostonians by Capt. A. D. Peck, Jr., in the earlier days of cycling. Mr. Shedd on an ordinary and Mr. Crocker on a safety will act as hares. They have been instructed to leave the club house at nine o'clock Thanksgiving Day morning and ride two hours before dropping the final scent and starting for home. They will have six minutes start on the hounds and if overtaken before throwing the final scent, will head straight for home.

THE first of the series of assemblies under the auspices of the Cambridgeport Club was held yesterday evening (Thursday) in Armory Hall, and the weekly dancing school of the Medford Club will be held in Medford this Friday evening.

NOTES BY

"HAWKSHAW."

BUFFALO, under the harping criticisms of its daily press, seems to have completely lost its head and gone A. A. U. crazy. The leaders of this stampede seem to be a few "pen pushers" on the papers there, who are seeking some extra dollars by the few more columns of rot they are thus enabled to write up, and who expect by the tempest in a tea-pot that they are engineering to be cast up to a higher public position than they could ever otherwise expect to reach. Let us look at the matter in a dispassionate manner and see what is being done there with the wheeling clubs. These advocates of the A. A. U. idea claim that the wheelmen will gain more chances for local racing, a statement difficult to understand when one reads the papers and sees that wheel clubs and their associations promote fifty races for wheelmen to every one given by the athletic associations comprising the A. A. U. Even if this was not true, what does it profit a wheel club to join the A. A. U. when any wheelmen who is an amateur can enter any event given under A. A. U. rules? Again, what is the A. A. U. going to do for wheelmen that the L. A. W. has not, what has it done for them in the past and what can it do for them in the future? Nothing, that's all. Even the A. A. U. admits that in its own constitution and by-laws when it agrees to accept all of the rulings of the L. A. W. in regard to wheelmen and to inforce them among its own members. Because a dozen members of a wheel club want to indulge in some A. A. U. cross country runs is that any reason why all of their club members must join that confederation of athletic clubs? Certainly not. I am astonished to see what I had always considered to be an intelligent lot of men led astray by a penny-a-liner on a daily paper. Who has made wheeling what it is and wheelmen the power that they are themselves, the A.A U. or the L.A.W.? Surely this can't be a difficult question to an wer. It was the L. A. W. It has defended their rights, protected their interest, gained them their concessions and made the roads and racing paths of the land open to them. It has made them respected by the public, feared by the ignorant and caused cycling to be the first and foremost sport in the land, and how do these Buffalo wheelmen propose to pay it for all of these benefits? Why by deserting it like cowards, by profiting by its labors and expenses and yet declining to share in either of them by joining another confederation of athletic clubs because it is cheaper, because it gives cross country runs and jumping matches, because some 10 cent writer in a newspaper has told them to. Stop, gentlemen of Buffalo, before it is too late. Do you want to make yourself the laughing stock of both the cycling and the athletic world, do you want to be looked upon as hybrids and renegades? If so, then go on in the way you are going, follow your new Moses into the promised land of the A. A. U. and you will most surely accomplish these ends in a very satisfactory manner, but until you have actually done so I shall not believe that there exists in any place in this country so benighted and so misled a lot of wheelmen as you would have to be to do this. My language may be deemed a trifle strong in the foregoing, if so I am glad of it, but unfortunately for the cause I am trying to champion I am unable to find any that is sufficiently strong enough to express my disgust at wh elmen such as these, and yet I really don't know but what the L. A. W. would be benefited, rather than injured, by the absence of the entire lot of them from its membership rolls.

NOT long since a gentleman, accompanied by his son, entered the New York city agency of a certain make of wheels and asked to be shown a safety for the young man's use. After looking over several, he purchased one of the latest pattern and turned to the agent to give him his name and address so that the wheel might be sent to him. Imagine his surprise when the agent said, before he had a chance to give him the information, "Shall I send it up to your address, Mr. Crimmins?" The gentleman looked somewhat surprised at finding his name and address so familliar to a stranger and asked how the knowledge had been gained and the agent replied, "How do I know you? Oh, I am not likely to forget a man I paid my share of $10 000 to become acquainted with. You were formerly a park commissioner, and as such was the strongest opponent of wheelmen being admitted there to ride, and the sum I mentioned is just about the figure we spent trying to convince you we were not so bad as you thought we were." Mr. Crimmins smiled, blushed a little and replied, "Well, young man, I guess you succeeded in convincing me, as you see by the purchase I am making now for my son. To convince me, you say, cost the wheelmen $10,000; well, you are now having your revenge, as it will cost me about $200 for this wheel and furnishings through being convinced, so we will call it quits." When you come to think it all over it was rather a strange thing that the bitterest enemy wheelmen ever had in their fight for entry into Central Park should afterwards turn out as an active encourager of cycling himself.

A FRIEND of mine relates as a fact the following story: Several years ago he was learning to ride an ordinary and was practicing on a country road. In some way or another the wheel passed out of his control and ran plump into a horse attached to a farm wagon driven by an old countryman. The frightened wheelmen went clear over the horse and landed in the road. The driver of the horse eyed him for some seconds, then with supreme contempt said, "Well, is that all you can do?" and drove on.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

"EYESEE."

THE number of wheels sold in Louisville this season exceeds by three times the number sold in any one season before. A certain dealer will shortly place on the market wheels on the instalment plan. This will no doubt increase the number of cyclers here very materially, and the clubs ought to boom.

THE Independents have five applications on file for membership to be balloted for at the next meeting. This will bring their number up to nearly forty. It is a fine body of wheelmen, and they are an honor to Louisville.

THE Louisville Cycle Club is to be congratulated on their choice of Ed Hergot for Captain. Not only a good rider (holding as he does the Championship of Louisville), he is also a clever gentlemen and very popular, and he will make the runs of the L. C. C. as successful as ever.

A CYCLERS UNION is proposed here. It will be made up irrespective of clubs, to push wheel meets, and the interest of cycling generally.

NINE of the Independents have placed on file their applications to the L. A. W. An effort is being made to send in the club as an L. A. W. club.

THE ten mile race is looked forward to with a great deal of interest. Bauer and Jefferis had a brush on last run to Middletown, and Bauer stock has advanced several points.

DETROIT.

"JUDGE."

AT last we have a ladies' bicycle club in Detroit. The ladies organized last week with Mrs. Will Hadger as President. They number eight at present. They have my best wishes for their future growth and prosperity. Much will depend on appearance. It is very painful to the eyes of a lover of the sport to see the majority of women on a wheel. She should not ride with long cranks, her knees rise till you think they will touch her chin, draw the skirt often over the shoe top, then old Mother Grundy raises her hands in holy horror and cries, "Oh! the immodest creature." All this can be alleviated by using short cranks. Dress modestly, yet attractively. Don't reach out for the handle bar like a man behind a race horse at a 2.20 clip (this applies to a good many men safety riders also). An expert like Mrs. Hadger, whose riding and appearance is graceful and pleasing, should see that the ladies in the club of which she is the head, ride well, look well, and the club will grow and prosper. The advice given above is gratis and believe me, ladies of the wheel club, your friend, "Judge."

WE are having the most perfect weather that could be desired, and under the warm rays of this beautiful Indian Summer, the roads are fast drying up. Sunday will see many of us on the road, we have been cooped up for weeks and weeks, and will now have a chance to work off a little superfluous steam.

CAPTAIN ZACHELMYER of the Bay City Club was in town Monday night. He wore the same jolly face, a fac-simile of which you can see in the Belle Isle group on the mantel in the club rooms.

In '91 there will be a meet;
Oh where, Oh where shall it be?
It will be in a city that none can beat;
Detroit I say unto thee.

SYRACUSE.

"SALINA."

THE WORLD is the popular paper of the Syracuse Cycling Club house and the members have wondered at the long absence of notes from here. These questions have been asked, who is the correspondent? why don't he send something? etc. These I will not try to answer, but only hope that these few notes will appear in the WORLD and satisfy the club.

LOTS of fun down for Thanksgiving Day. We all know who the best riders are, but who are the best runners? The hare and hound game will tell. The captain and his committee have a novel idea to spring on the boys in this event. Dinner in the club house, foot ball in the afternoon and theatre party in the evening.

THE Syracuse correspondent for the Wheel said: "We would like to see our captain on the safety next year." Also said something about the ordinary riders being "d—— f——s." Now there are more than two safeties to one ordinary in our club. But who are the ordinary riders, why the best riders of course, the old riders, the ones who always lead in the long road rides and scorches, the men who ride the most miles, the men who turn out on most club runs.

I RIDE the ordinary myself and I do not in any way run down the safety, but to hear a member of our club say that our captain ought to ride a safety makes me shiver. Captain Judd at the present time rides a 58-inch ordinary, and I for one would have much more confidence in a captain on such a wheel than on a safety, and besides imagine a captain riding a safety leading all the ordinaries! Why I would feel like running over him.

LET me make a suggestion. If next election a captain is elected who rides a safety let him also ride an ordinary when he leads the club.

CHICAGO.

"TWINKLE."

IN this Western city of Chicago there is an unmistakable disposition among the inhabitants to be "on the make." Chicagoans have a reputation for rising early and in a hurry, bolting a steak and potato, hurrying to business, hurrying through the day and hurrying back home again. They seem to do more and do it faster than in many older and wiser cities. They walk faster, talk faster, make money faster and drop it faster than in some other towns. Boys grow faster, ride bicycles ——ah me, I was going to say, faster, but the memory of the season just passed comes upon me like a pang. But, to the point; this spirit of "getting on in the world" invades every precinct until occasionally we hear of a swell club giving a bright red reception where dress suits and railroad passes were necessary in order to be passed up the steps under the canopy.

BRILLIANT equipages with rattling silver chains dash up to the steps of a marble front, and lovely girls arrayed in silk, tulle and dainty laces glide noiselessly up the carpeted stairs—of course the men are there too, but they don't count; they are only to pay bills and arrange details. Besides, they don't glide up the stairs; they only walk.

THE grand march is led by Mr. G. Pedes Proudfoot and the airy fairy Lilian. Then comes the waltz, the mazy, bewildering, intoxicating waltz, all the more bewildering if your partner can't waltz; then the Prairie Queen, the lanciers, the militaire, the polkas and other evolutions and revolutions until everybody's brain and body is in a whirl; hour's gallop wildly with the minutes, and ere they know it 'twas yesterday when they came; then the orchestra sweeps suddenly into the tune that Patti sings, and in a few moments the gay scene is left behind.

A LOUD voice calls out the numbers, carriage doors are slammed shut with a bang, awakening the drowsy and ill natured neighbors, and the dancers are whirled to their homes. Gracious, but it was gay, and the morning papers gave it space and deserving comment, but alas, for this closing statement, "The affair was a brilliant success and the Auroraborealis Cycling Club are richer to the extent of $200." Dear reader, do you smell a fault? It seems to me like dropping a sausage on a page of poems.

MAX LOESCHER of the Lincolns will spend six months of the coming year wheeling it through England and the Continent. Max is very handsome and will crush his way through the hearts of the Dutch maidens.

LOUIS DE "BIRDIE" MUNGER, official announcer of race meets, professional cyclist; the same "Birdie" who has been alternately abused and praised, the "Birdie" whose overwhelmingly familiar face greets you when you turn the first leaf of President Dunn's official hand book; yea, the "Birdie" with heart of ever kind compassion and nerve of adamantine rock, is now an indoor base ball umpire.

IT was during the visit of Laurie and others at Chicago that the news came of Jones' wonderful safety record. Laurie was telling Garden about it:

"2.20 4-5 by Jawns, quoth Laurie."
"Who?"
"Jawns!"
"Who?"
"Jawns!!"
"Spell it."
"J-o-n-e-s."

SINCE Thursday, November 13th, the family of F. E. Spooner consists of three persons. The new member is a boy, and the mother and 'appy, 'appy father are both doing well.

COLUMBUS, O.

"COLUMBUS."

THE Columbus Safety Cycling Club is preparing for a winter campaign, a committee having been appointed to devise plans for winter entertainments. Now we may be prepared for papers on cycling and cycles, and a great amount of wisdom (?) will be unloaded upon the heads of the poor devils who are having their first experience with cycling and cycling clubs.

FRANK LIND, the club photographer, will be called upon to reproduce, by magic lantern, some of the striking features of last season's runs. Heavens! what a cavity will appear in that pumpkin pie Nunnemacher foraged from farmer Brown's kitchen, and what a spectacle Goldstein will make as, with feet in air, he does the somersault act into that mud hole? Many other attractions are promised, and some right good fun is expected.

THE C. S. C. C. is prospecting for a racing track, and the suggestions from the Louisville Club in the BICYCLING WORLD met with much favor at the last meeting of the club, when the subject was discussed. A committee has the matter in charge, and is looking for an enterprising real estate man who will donate the land, rent free. Any suggestions on track building will be gladly received.

A MEETING of the resident members of the L. A. W. was held at the rooms of the C. S. C. C. last Tuesday evening for the purpose of organizing for the State meet, which will be held here next year. Lack of numbers was made up in enthusiasm, and the boys are determined to make it a "go." A guarantee fund sufficient to meet all expenses was raised, and the following officers and committees elected: President, F. B. Everett; Secretary, G. B. Topping. Chairmen of committees: Executive, F. B. Everett; Finance, K. D. Wood; Programme, C. O. Probst; Race, Geo. W. Smith; Entertainment, Wilbur T. Eldrich; Reception, T. S. Casner. This will constitute the Executive Committee, and each chairman will select committee-men to serve with him. A special committee was appointed to solicit members for the L. A. W., among the wheelmen of the city.

MISSOURI.

"LINNEUS."

THE good works that men do live after them is a trite but true saying. How about the bad? Take for instance our municipal sprinkling. The agitation on this subject was started by my good friend Hicks, and he is mainly responsible for the present condition of things, which has nearly ruined cycling in St. Louis. At no time are the streets dry enough to permit riding over them without constant danger of a fall, and as a natural consequence riders have altogether ceased in using the cycle in riding to and from their places of business. The asphaltum streets are kept so wet and slippery from the excess of water and accumulation of filth that they are almost entirely deserted by cyclists. A meeting of the club and Division officers is suggested, at which a committee shall be appointed to call on the sprinkling superintendent with a request for the abatement of the nuisance. An effort will be made to interest horsemen in the cause. This has been an off year for cycling here, and the excessive sprinkling has been the main cause of it all.

ON Thursday, Nov. 6, the lantern slide entertainment came off at the Missouri's club house, and it was a success in every way. Some really magnificent views of Gibraltar, Nice, Naples and other Mediterranean cities were shown, while Dr. Keith read a descriptive article on each, thus making the entertainment all the more enjoyable. Dancing followed, and was kept up until an early hour.

A SMOKER was given by the Cycling Club on November 8, at which the club's talented members succeeded admirably in entertaining those present with music and athletics. I am told that the membership of this club has outgrown its present quarters, and a committee will soon be appointed to look for a more commodious house.

IT was a joyous crowd of wheelmen that gathered at the Missouri's club house last Monday night to take part in the initial gymnasium class of the season. The new instructor, Chas. Gibson, put the boys through a course of calisthenics in great shape. Treasurer Hildebrand leads the class on Thursday night, and they will be continued throughout the season.

THE case of H. A. Canfield vs. P. S. & B. Donnelly comes up for trial at the December term of the Circuit Court, and Horton Pope, the newly appointed attorney of the Division, will look after his interests; $500 damages are asked for, and the outcome of the case will be watched with interest.

THE claim of O. L. Rule that he made the Manchester-to-the-Pump record in 59m. 18s. is doubted by A. M. Lewis, the former holder of the record, and Lewis stands ready, so 'tis said, to wager any reasonable amount that Rule cannot cover the time claimed (59.18). It remains to be seen what comes of Mr. Lewis' "defi"

SOME years ago a light headed cyclist, or a number of them, attempted to do some fancy riding on the big bridge that spans the river. This frightened a span of horses, and a serious accident was only averted by the prompt action of a guard. Since then a prohibitive tariff has been put on wheelmen, and as a consequence all riders who wish to run to Belleville must ride down the steep levee to the ferry. A request to reduce the tariff to the old figure was met with a stern refusal.

E. C. KLIPSTEIN, good old "Klip," is again able to be about, and was warmly greeted by his many friends during the past week.

A POOL tournament is being arranged to take place at the Missouri's club house the latter part of November. Suitable handicaps will be framed and the prizes will be costly and useful.

THE new track seems to be a certainty. It will be built in Brotherhood Park, and will be three laps to the mile. A long lease has been secured by the St. Louis Athletic Club, which will turn the property over to the St. Louis Driving Club. Chief Consul Holm has been requested to call on Manager Spink for the purpose of securing the co-operation of wheelmen in the new venture A fine grand stand is on the grounds, and it begins to look very much like a big tournament will be held next year.

A NUMBER of inquiries have reached me the past week regarding the League uniform question, and the prevailing opinion seems to be that this matter should be settled at an early date. Regarding the price of the new garments an old rider stated that he saw no reason why the uniform consisting of coat and breeches could not be laid nown anywhere in the United States for $10 or $11. G. A. R. uniforms, consisting of trousers, coat and vest, with two sets of buttons, are sold for this price, and it must be admitted that the cost to manufacture is more than it would cost to make the League garments. All members are largely in favor of advertising for bids to furnish the uniforms and to give the contract to the lowest bidder.

CHICAGO.

"WAYNE SCOTT."

THE Chicago Cycling and Lincoln Cycling Clubs of the Chcago Indoor League played the best game of indoor ball last Tuesday night that has been played in this city this season. The Chicagos won by a lucky stroke of Becker's and some very rank umpiring on the part of Announcer Munger. A triple play by Crouse, Healy and Robinson of the Lincolns and several very pretty double plays kept the crowd in a constant uproar.

SHORB of the Lincolns made a record as shortstop which would style him a champion in that position. Seven putouts, four assists and a total of seven bases to his credit. The Lincolns have as good a nine as any and will be the champions yet, the Chicagos to the contrary. A very fashionable audience witnessed the game.

TWO members of the Chicago Cycling Club indoor team have gotten themselves into a pretty mess with the midwinter league. Tobey and Anderson umpired the Farragut-Marquette game, and either because they were prejudiced or because they wanted to see just how rank umpiring could be done they stood like a pair of wooden men and declared anything and everything in favor of the Kenwoods. Several of the Farragut boys would surely have shed blood had the aforesaid wooden men stood their ground after the game instead of "fading away" as they did.

THE Oak Park Cycling Club are up and doing. Last week Friday, Nov. 7, the members gave a dance, and on Saturday evening the club gave a stag party at which fully 60 smoked at the expense of the club. Amateur and professional talent helped to entertain the boys and a supper ended a well spent evening. This club has organized a stock company of $20 000 capital and $6000 of this was subscribed at the stag party. The club has a membership of 100 and 40 lady auxiliary members.

THE Lincolns have established their life membership and preparations to build an elegant club house are moving rapidly forward.

THE grounds of the Chicago Cricket and Athletic Club at Parkside will be flooded for skating this winter, and when I think of those moonlight skating parties I wish that I had joined the club.

THE Illinois Cycling Club have provided a way for their mem-

is the wheel for Touring as well as for Racing.

WHAT MR. F. E. WEAVER SAYS OF THE WHEEL THAT CARRIED HIM FROM SEA TO SEA.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS., Oct. 17, 1890.

THE EAGLE BICYCLE MFG. Co., Stamford, Conn.:

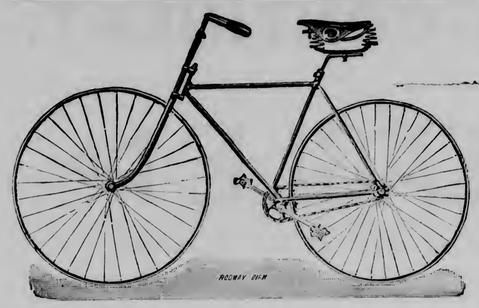
Sirs—Having lately finished my transcontinental tour, New Haven to San Francisco, I write, in justice to the wheel, and also to give you some idea as to what my 48 inch Eagle has been through and how well it stood the tremendous strain. My total mileage on the trip was 3995, New Haven to San Francisco, and the wheel's season's mileage will aggregate to 5500. This was made over probably the roughest roads ever traversed by a wheel in this country. The rough mountain roads of the Alleghanies, Rockies and Sierre being crossed in succession. As a wheel for hilly and mountainous work, I believe the Eagle has no equal; while on any road it is the equal, if not the superior, of any.

Its safety, combined with perfect simplicity and strength, make it the only wheel for long distance touring.

The position of a good rider is, contrary to some wheelmens' opinions, comfortable and easy, and then, being directly over the pedals, one can exert great power and the wheel will not slip in climbing wet or sandy grades.

Its strength was a source of constant surprise to me, it making the exceedingly rough trip without the loss of a spoke. One slight break, easily repaired at a neighboring blacksmith shop, was the sum total of repairs.

The mount by the pedal I found to be the simplest and best, scarcely any room at all required in which to accomplish it.



One thing which speaks for itself is, that after this test my future mount will be an Eagle, and should advise this and no other wheel for a like tour.

Yours respectfully,

F. E. WEAVER, New Haven B. C.

THE JOHN WILKINSON CO., Sole Importers,

269-271 State Street, - - - CHICAGO, ILL.

Sanford, Maine, Nov. 3, 1890.

GORMULLY & JEFFERY MFG. CO., Chicago:

Gentlemen—I take the liberty to address to you this unsolicited testimonial, hoping to convey, in a measure, my appreciation of the sterling features of your Standard RAMBLER. I have been a cycler for nine years, and in that time have tested many different wheels. My touring experience has been confined to New England,—eastern Maine and northern New Hampshire claiming the greater part of my attention. Two seasons in succession I have made extended tours in the White Mountains on a Standard RAMBLER, and I desire to state positively that I have yet to see the wheel that can give so complete satisfaction in that cycle-trying country. It is a steady steerer, easy runner, excellent hill-climber, splendid coaster, and the spring frame makes riding a luxury,—as much ahead of a rigid frame or a spring fork machine as a fine buggy is ahead of a lumber wagon. I never experienced solid comfort on the road until I got a RAMBLER.

Very respectfully,

CYRUS BATCHELDER,
Vice Consul Maine Division, L. A. W.

COMMENT UNNECESSARY.

bers to grow strong. Prof. C. O. Du Plessis has been engaged to give them instructions in general athletics free of charge. The members have also formed a sparring class and will take private instructions from Prof. Du Plessis.

From one of our daily papers I notice that the members of the Lincoln Cycling Club are requested to gather at Lincoln Monument Thanksgiving morning at 9.30. This has always been Spooner's pet fad to have the club (of which he was the originator) have a picture of its members, the Lincoln Cycling Club on Lincoln Monument in Lincoln park.

The Douglass Club's intentions were good, but the weather was bad and Mr. Potter will receive no "stuck in the mud" pictures from them. Last Sunday they planned a "camera run" and looked forward to securing a fine line of pictures of country roads in their present condition, but a little wet weather has delayed them. Would it not be a good idea for all clubs to set aside some Sunday when the roads are poor and have the members snap a few views of our "beautiful" Western roads while in their almost impassable condition?

The North Side wheelmen, members of the Lincoln and Lake View Cycling Clubs, have been anxiously waiting for some news of the track which some philanthropic Ravenswood people were planning in connection with athletic grounds. The facts in the case, as I have them from one who knows, are that a certain Mr. Conway, a man of fierce and pugnacious tendencies, and a member of the committee for incorporation, has for some reason got his "dander riz," and has blocked the wheels of progress by failing to attend meetings. After several futile attempts to obtain his presence at the committee meetings, the other members went ahead and signed the necessary papers for incorporation, and these papers were presented to Mr. Conway for signature, but he refused on the ground that he had not been present at the meetings. He, however, promised to attend the next meeting, and he himself set the time and place. He did not turn up however, and though several other meetings were called at times and places suggested by this prince of obstructionists, he has failed to show up. In the meantime progress is stopped, and Conway and his filthy lucre are on top.

BUFFALO NOTES.

"SETAGEC."

The joint athletic meeting of Dec. 6 at the armory will be largely attended by wheelmen and most of the events will be contested by wheelmen. Penseyres of the Press Cycling Club is counted as a sure winner of the five and ten-mile bicycle races, though Joe Kane of the Ramblers is going in for blood. Charley Griffiths of the Press Cycling Club will be referee.

The Buffalo Bicycle Club have organized two foot ball teams and will have a match game Thanksgiving Day.

Dai Lewis, who left the Buffalos last summer to join the Ramblers, is one of the candidates for captain of the latter club; with Kane, Lewis and Georger the Ramblers are sure of a good captain.

The Crescents have consolidated with the Press Cycling Club and at the next meeting over a score of applications will be acted upon. The Press Cycling Club is the only city club who are entitled to the name of "Hustlers."

The Buffalos seem to think the League good enough for them and so have not paid the $5 required to make the club an A. A. U. club. Somehow the papers may say what they will, but the Buffalo Bicycle Club is loyal still, and it looks very much as though the Buffalos, like Tennyson's brook, intends to keep on in the right way forever, unaffected by the sudden flood of a popular fad or craze.

The Wanderers and the Columbias are not making much noise, but they are just as alive as ever and have as good times as any of the clubs.

The Zig-Zags don't say much, but they are sawing wood just the same, and with the other wheelmen are putting in lots of riding this Indian summer weather and fill the evenings as full of pleasure as the Lockport scientist did the barrel with water a few days ago. Apropos. The barrel, though scheduled by science to, did not bust; neither has the Zs, although many have been so preaching ever since they proposed reorganization, which they carried out successfully with a big S.

What has become of the Physician's Bicycle Club? Have they hibernated or has some of the athletic clubs hyptonized them?

I have been following out the advice of Mr. Potter of New York and so have kept "an eye peeled" for a photo shot at a farmer's wagon stuck in the mud. It's now two months or more since I have had my cycle out for a ride, so I have had to use my winter bicycle, as I style my pony, a cross between the Scotch Highland pony and the Morgan stock. One afternoon last week I had to drive to an adjoining village—being out in the country at the time—and then return and drive to the city; the first trip was only a little over four miles and return, while the trip to the city was twice that distance, a total of sixteen miles for the whole afternoon's driving. The roads were muddy, but not as muddy as they had been; nevertheless, I substituted for my carriage a "Crackey" wagon, a vehicle variously known as a "Democrat," "Republican" "Three-spring," "Platform," "Carryall," etc., etc. The first trip was completed without anything serious besides a shortening of the spine by the continual jar and a baptism of mud, but twice the usual time was required and darkness came on before I had hardly got under way on the trip to the city. After passing the first little village I found deep mud, caused by heavy teaming, and so turned off and crossed the river a mile higher up stream, but the logging teamsters had been imbued with the same idea, and so I had an awful time over a strange road and through deep holes, including a narrow escape at the river in passing a team I met on the narrow bridge. When I reached the timber and up grade I found clay mud half way up to the hubs, and all I could see was a whitish streak ahead, being the stream of mud; here my pony could hardly get through, having to make frequent stops to rest, and here I met a party of drunken farmers driving like Jehu and yelling like Comanches. But the climax was reached with the top of the hill, where there was a chain of sink holes—a kind of mudhole said to be bottomless and containing quicksand, which gives an elasticity to the surrounding surface like that of jelly. I got over about half of the chain, when having got through the largest pair with front wheels, my rear wheels dropped into the double sink hole up to the hub and axle and then the machinery stopped. Several futile attempts were made to pull the carryall through, but every time the rear wheels dropped back in more solid. And there I was anchored, in the dark, in the rain, on a strange road far from a house, stuck in the mud. Front wheels on medium terra firma and rear wheels in la consomme. If I could only had a flash light and camera there I could have produced a picture that would have gladdened the heart of many a Mr. Potter of New York. But, alas!

"The saddest words of tongue or pen,
It might have been."

With the help of two drunken Swedes, a farmer, his wife, three small boys, a lantern and some jute rope I got started again, but the experience of the rest of the trip is too harrowing and blood-curdling to bear repetition.

Spitzmiller, champion of the Ramblers, Kane, champion of the city, Kiffel, Crooks and Clendenning, all of the Ramblers, are entered in the Armory races of Dec. 6.

Nachtrib and Vogt of the Ramblers are going West.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"ARIEL."

Mr Curtis takes up the cudgels vigorously in his own defence in the last issue of the Spirit of the Times and scores a point by his denial of my statement that he, as one of the board of managers of the A. A. U., had voted to continue the expenses of their amateurs. Mr. Curtis' denial is of course sufficient, but so far as the question of expenses goes my information was derived from newspaper reports of the meeting all of which, so far as I recollect, stated that the amateur expense question had not received the quietus it was expected and hoped it would. Mr. Gideon's reply, which follows, while not so long drawn out as Mr. Curtis' letter, goes straight to the point, which was that the original article in the Spirit of the Times certainly conveyed the impression that Taxis gave up the Washington meeting for the sake of the prizes referred to further on. I do not defend the prizes and shall have something further to say on the subject later on, but I do say that never did condemnation come with poorer grace than from one of the managers of a body whose abuse of the expense question by its amateurs has smelled to high heaven. It is as pretty an exemplification of straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel as I have ever known.

Mr Gideon's letter follows:

"Curtis' article is really very, very clever and amusing. He is a good writer and makes out the best possible case for himself, but he can not alter the fact that his article of November 1st was so written that no one could read it and get any impression from it except that Taxis staid home from the A. A. U. championship in order to "take in washing." Every paper so far commenting on it has so understood him and it is practically impossible for any one unacquainted with the facts to understand anything else; so, as in the article of November 15th, he admits that 'the dates of these two meetings were thoroughly understood at this office' the cap of deliberate and intelligent lying seems to fit with a surprising degree of accuracy. The intention of my letter to Mr. Davol was not to excuse the style of the prizes, but to object to the unjust and unfair singling out of one rider for special condemnation. C. M. Murphy was entered for the slow race in which the "laundry bill" was awarded as prize, and he carried off to his home a lamp, a gold watch and helped carry a silver mug, while his brother carried a gun. But the guileless public is left by the first Spirit of the Times' article to suppose that these gentlemen were really-and-truly amateurs at Washington while Taxis was staying home pot hunting. Taxis is no more my friend, I hope, than any other racing man in my district, but any one is entitled to a defence from such attacks. Curtis makes the mistake of supposing that I claimed the overpowering honor of a personal acquaintance with him; I meant nothing of the kind. I 'know him of old' in that for the past ten years I have from time to time read articles on cycling from his pen and I cannot now recall one in which he has not made some sneer or fling at wheelmen. As to his personal attacks I can very well, I think, afford to ignore them, and if he really means 'to turn on the light' on the expense question I shall certainly do what I can to help. A very good way to begin would be for him to obtain an itemized statement from the N. Y. A. C. of the expenses of that club's bicycling team during the circuit week of August and September last.

One thing let Mr. Curtis ask himself—if, as he says, he has no antipathy to things bicycular in general and Philadelphian in particular, why it is that all wheelmen who read his paper get that impression? Why is it that with no collusion whatever between Mr. Watson of the Press, Mr. MacOwen of the Athlete, Mr. Crowther of the Sporting Life and the BICYCLING WORLD, they should all feel and note his injustice if there were no fire where he makes so much smoke? And the only reason that he has not more opponents among the wheelmen here is that so comparatively few riders ever see or hear of his paper. (Signed) GEO. D. GIDEON."

THE century run undertaken by the Park Avenue Wheelmen last Sunday from Harrisburg to Reading was a great and glorious success so far as wind and rain could contribute toward it. The day itself was perfect—a genuine Indian summer day, but it rained heavily all Saturday night up to the time of starting, which was set at the pleasant hour of 1 A. M., putting the roads in such horrible condition that the party were three hours in coming the nine miles from Harrisburg to Hummelstown, and instead of their being at Reading at 8 o'clock it was noon when they reached that city. Seven started from Harrisburg, but at Reading two men took the train, leaving Bunnell, Silver, Van Deusen, Simmons and Silvers to continue the trip. At Conshohocken the last-named (who by the way is a member of the Quaker City Wheelmen) broke his pedal and had to take the train, leaving the other four to finish at the club house at 10.30. Total distance, 112 miles. Century runs may have their uses, but I doubt it.

ON Saturday night the games of the First Regiment at the armory, Broad and Callowhill streets, were largely attended. There were two bicycle events, the first a mile safety handicap being won by J. C. Donnelly, C. W., 36 yards, in 3 35 2-5; F. H. Garrigues, C. W., 30 yards, second. Garrigues would in all probability have beaten Donnelly (although they both rode fine races), but he was run wide on the last lap. The two-mile ordinary handicap was won by F. Sternberg Pastime Athletic Club, who has evidently been living on a rink floor. He had 10 yards and passed all his men in 6.51 2-5; V. J. Kelly, A. C. S. N., 30 yards, being second. Seeds took a tumble, but fortunately without injury.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

"TREB."

THE social whirl has started in and we hear nothing but that one club or another is holding a reception. How times have changed, the social side is now of an equal importance with the wheeling; in fact one could not live without the other in club life so close have they become allied. On Wednesday evening the Brooklyns held their opening stag entertainment and it was the occasion of the throwing open the newly decorated parlors, which elicited much praise from the visitors. The house was packed and a right good programme was provided, but why say more; the Brooklyns' hospitality is well known and an enjoyable time at their club house is always assured. At the Kings County's Club house the following night, Thursday, the fair sex held sway and keeping time to the lively music danced the hours away; the first portion of the evening however, was given up to a display of home talent who pleasantly entertained for some time. The neighboring trees and hot houses had been robbed of flowers and foliage to appropriately decorate the parlors. The committee beamed complacently upon all who came their way in a most satisfied manner.

THE Saturday night open-house entertainments of the Long Islands are attracting many visitors, and they will be continued throughout the winter months.

COMPANY D, of the Twenty-third Regiment, will give a set of games on Nov. 29, including a safety bicycle race. Several of our board floor men will compete. The Murphy brothers, who are entered, will make a strong bid for first and second place.

SUNDAY was a perfect day for riding and the park and boulevard was alive with the wheelmen. Several of the cushion-tired wheels have made their appearance.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

CHARLES H. SPENCER stole a Singer safety from Elmer Busbee of Taunton, Mass. He rode the machine to Boston and offered it for sale at the store of Singer & Co. in that city. He was arrested and now will have a chance to ponder over the little escapade in the Masssachusetts reformatory for a few months.

THE Belmont Wheelmen of Taunton, Mass., have lately refitted and enlarged their quarters by adding a large room for use as a pool and smoking room. The club is flourishing and visiting wheelmen are cordially invited to call and make headquarters at the Belmont Wheelmen's club rooms.

THE New Bedford (Mass.) Cycle Club will probably move into larger quarters in the Odd Fellows' building soon, provided they can secure suitable rooms for storing wheels.

WE enjoyed a short but pleasant call from Chief Consul Arthur Allen Dean of Connecticut last week.

THE members of the Wakefield (Mass.) Bicycle Club are making great preparations for their minstrel entertainment to be given at the Town Hall Friday evening, Dec. 5. Mr. H. J. Ballou of the Longwoods will assist and it is promised that the Wakefields will give the best show of the kind ever seen in that pretty suburb.

"CYCLING FOR HEALTH AND PLEASURE" is a book that every rider should have. Send 50c. to the Wheelman Co., 12 Pearl St., Boston, and procure one at once.

To our New England subscribers: The WORLD was mailed for all New England readers by Friday. The papers should have reached you on Saturday sure. Did it?

BOYS don't scorch with President McCune or you will get left every time. For a hill-climber or a coaster for that matter Mr. McCune bears the palm, but his greatest pull is on the home stretch. To see him trying to get ahead of a storm on his way home from the Reservoir is a sight.

THE following wild statement appears in the Columbus (Ga.) Sun: "F. M. Bell of Montgomery, Ala., is the only rider in the South, East or West who ever broke a world's record. * * " To which we would say bosh! Really when these penny-a-liners do lay themselves out to write about something they know nothing about they out-Herod Herod" with a vengeance.

"How to Get Strong" will be the subject of a lecture on Monday evening, Nov. 24, by William Blaikie, Esq., of New York, before the Boston Y. M. C. A., corner Berkeley and Boylston streets. Mr. Blaikie is one of the best authorities on the subject and is author of the well-known book entitled "How to Get Strong and How to Stay So." On this occasion Mr. Robert J. Roberts, author of the "Roberts System," will give a short address.

THE Bay State Bicycle Club of Worcester, Mass., gave an informal reception at its new headquarters on Pearl street in that city last week Wednesday. From 8 P. M. until midnight the rooms were thronged with guests. Refreshments were served. W. Windle was present and made his mark as an expert player of the harmonica. The club was the recipient of several handsome pictures, 'On the Beach" and "A Peacemaker," from the Columbia Cycle Club. Chief Consul Emery presented the club with a fine photo of the meet at a Niagara.

WE are pleased to say Charlie Measure of Highlandville, Mass., who met with an accident a short time ago, is progressing favorably.

DANIEL SHATTUCK seems to be a confirmed cycle thief. Last August he stole a cycle from Connolly of Rochester, N. Y., pawned it and skipped the town. He then went to Buffalo, appropriated a machine there and sold it to a man in Batavia, N. Y. In a rash moment he decided to visit Rochester and the police being informed of his presence pounced on him and now Shattuck is safe in the cold unsympathizing clutches of the law, and he will be provided with a nice comfortable place to board at the State's expense.

THE Albany (N. Y.) Wheelmen held high carnival at their headquarters on Lark street and Hudson avenue last week Wednesday. First the club held a business meeting and arrangements were made to form a tug of-war team and compete in the tournament of the Tibbets Corps at Troy next month. The club indorse the racing circuit scheme of Chief Consul Bull and are "in for it." Theatre parties are a feature of the social club life and card and pool tournaments help to keep up the interest in the club. After the business meeting last "the talent" turned to and furnished an excellent musical programme.

CHARLES MOSSER, son of the Rev. Henry Mosser of Reading, Pa., met with a painful accident the other day. While passing a team on his cycle his wheeel struck a rolling stone, throwing him down right under the wheels of a dray loaded with a ton and a half of bran. The wheels of the dray passed over the leg of young Mosser, smashing it most horribly.

THE Philadelphia papers are all raising a voice of warning to the hoodlum element of that city and state that they must be made to appreciate that wheelmen cannot be molested and injured by "frolicsome" (?) boys who take a delight in putting sticks in the spokes of passing wheels just to see the "dudes" take a tumble. The Philadelphia police are after those chaps sharp.

A. W. BARR of Westboro, Mass., states that illness compelled him to train it from Ogden, Utah, to San Francisco.

THE Kingston City (N. Y.) Wheelmen propose to produce a comic opera some time during the coming January. Most of the talent will be local and amateurs, while a few of the principals will be secured from the professional ranks. The proceeds of the entertainment will go towards strengthening the finances of the club.

A MR. THOS. J. WHITE of Vicksburg, Miss., writes us: "What's the matter with our L. A. W. boys that the much talked of "Mississippi Division" hasn't materialized yet. I am sure if the League members would just try a "little bit" we could muster up the necessary 25 members to form same. Here in my town we will organize a bicycle club very soon and no doubt it will be a "League one." Let every member devote some of his spare time in talking this up to the non-Leaguers and by spring we should be able to have our Division in good working order. Boys, let us hear from you."

THE Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) Bicycle Club is reputed to have as fine club quarters as can be found in the State. The club recently put in a new suit of magnificent furniture "fit for a palace of a king."

THE Elizabeth (N. J.) Wheelmen last Tuesday gave the first of their winter's entertainments. Waring, the magician, and Appel's Orchestra were the features of the first social. After the magic dancing was indulged in. The club has got a good tug-of-war team and it has been practicing hard to get in trim for the games to be given to day by the Atalanta Wheelmen of Newark.

THE Providence Journal thinks we are not "accurate in our facts" regarding the winter climate of Chicago being such as to prohibit out-door cycling with comfort. The writer evidently is not varied in his personal experience, or he would know that the winter climate of the great Western metropolis is quite severe enough to put a stop to cycling. The latitude of Boston and Chicago are almost indentical.

WE are told that the asphaltum deposits of Utah are coming up famously and samples of the pavement have now been laid at Denver and Kansas City which have given complete satisfaction. It is only a question of time when the pavement will be generally adopted in the West on account of its cheapness and durability. Its price is about 25 cents per square less than the imported article, and it is claimed that it stands the wear better.

AS a mark of appreciation the Union Cycle Mfg. Co.'s employes presented their genial Superintendent, George A. Burwell, with an elegant plush rocker, a beauty. Needless to say a happy time was had at the presentation.

MR. GEORGE R. BIDWELL and W. L. Savage issue invitations to be present at the opening of their new cycling and athletic building, 308 and 310 West 59th street, Thursday evening, Nov. 20, at 8.30. Would that we could have been there.

MACHINES STOLEN.

TWENTY-FIVE dollars reward will be paid and no questions asked for the return to A. G. Spalding & Bro., 108 Madison street, Chicago, or Jefferis Bros., 310 W. Main street, Louisville, Ky., of one Victor safety, No. 1,000, with Butcher cyclometer and Butler lock attached. Stolen from Union depot, Chicago, Nov. 9, 8 A. M. When lost the clip that holds hind mudguard to frame was broken and wrapped with wire.

New Rapid safety, No. 2693, Quadrant saddle spring, Brook cyclometer on front wheel, front mud guard off, "Edward S. Walton, Chicago," on a plate on backbone, brake spoon badly worn. Taken from Chalmers place Nov. 11, between 7.30 and 8 P. M. A reward will be given for information leading to the arrest of thief or recovery of wheel. Edward S. Walton, 12 Chalmer place (N. Side), Chicago, or 410 Opera House.

Lost or stolen a No. 1 Swift, No. 15,459, from H. W. Higham, bicycle dealer, 476 Pennsylvania avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C.

THE HARTFORD WHEEL CLUB'S ANNUAL.

THE annual dinner of the Hartford Wheel Club is one of the important events of the cycling year, and the dinner held last week Wednesday was a fitting one in the sequence. Truly could the diners say when cigars were reached:

"Serenely full the epicure would say,
Fate cannot harm me, I have dined to-day."

When the cigars were reached and the speeches made the frame of mind of every one of the diners was such as to enjoy what was said by Major C. L. Burcett in answer to the toast of the Connecticut Division," "Wheelmen as Men," by Rev. J. H. Watson, "The Ladies," feelingly and eloquently responded to by ex-Chief Consul Post; "Racing," by L. A. Tracy. Mr. L. F. Middlebrook gave his usual excellent contribution towards the enjoyment of the club, this time entitled "Club Melodies." The tables were set for seventy five, and the menu was fully up to the reputation of "Holenstiens."

IN CALIFORNIA.

IT is a peculiarity of cycling that the wheelman hurries over his ideal road as if it were something to be spurned with contempt, while he loiters along the sandy or rutty highway like one in the enjoyment of pleasant company and seems loath to part from its wrinkled surface.

The roads of California, as a rule, are not suited to rapid riding, but usually the beauty or grandeur of the scenery atones for the poor condition of the highway.

There are estimated to be from 600 to 800 bicyclers in San Francisco. Probably half of these never ride a wheel outside of the Golden Gate park and Presidio military reservation.

The park, with its 400 acres of rare shubbery, trees and beautiful flowers, its winding, gently undulating roads, with their smooth, hard surface of red rock, is a delightful place for a wheelman who loves to take his airing amid the crowd of pleasure seekers who perpetually throng such places. And wheelmen there are, in unlimited numbers, there being no restrictions upon bicycles, except on Saturdays and Sundays, when there are band concerts, from which bicyclers are excused.

The conservatory, the life-saving station on the beach, the seal rocks, Adolph Sutro's residence and grounds, and the ocean are the attractions in and near Golden Gate park, which wheelmen never tire of visiting, while the dozen miles of road are such as are often dreamed about but seldom realized.

The Presidio (containing about 2000 acres) presents attractions rivalling those of the park. The roads are hard and smooth, although the grades are very steep. The scenery is magnificient; the bay of San Francisco presenting an ever changing scene, and from the top of old Fort Point at the extreme end of the peninsula one gets a strikingly beautiful view of the Golden Gate, not obtainable elsewhere.

If the cycler should chance to be riding along the broad, smooth avenue surmounting the ridge lying between the garrison and the sea, at about half past nine, upon a quiet sunshiny Sunday morning, the notes of the band as it plays at guard mounting, floating softly to his ear, the panoramic view at his feet of the garrison, the sparkling water of the bay beyond, the islands, the farther shore rising in hill and peak and lost in the dim haze far away, will arouse strange fancies in his mind, and if he be a dreamer with poetry in his soul, his morning's experience will form one of the pleasant memories of life.

But the true lover of cycling, the ambitious wheelman who desires to know something of the environment of his city, is not content to view the same scenes upon every ride. There are two ways for such a wheelman to get out of San Francisco. One leads southerly through San Mateo County, a locality which abounds in interesting rides. The other is by ferry across the bay. Either route requires a ride of one or two miles over basalt pavement.

Taking one of the most frequented ferry lines, a half hour by boat and rail brings one to Oakland, a city of 50,000 inhabitants, with broad streets of smooth Macadam lined with eucalyptus, pepper or locust trees and leading past many beautiful homes with smoothly shaven green lawns dotted, perhaps, with palm or orange trees, tropical plants and bright flowers. (To be continued.)

FROM MR. HOPKINS OF DENVER, COL.

Editor Bicycling World: The chairman of the L. A. W Racing Board has an explanation of my conduct as to why I raced as a professional on Oct. 12. and as the case has no parallel in League history, I am informed that it will be brought before the National Assembly.

On October 12 I raced as a professional. On October 13 I received notification that I had been reinstated. On October 19 I raced as an amateur, and a few days later received notice that I had lost my amateur standing by competing in professional race on October 12, as my reinstatement occurred October 8.

I do not want the impression to prevail that I have been careless in this matter, as many of your readers might imagine by simply reading the official announcements

I raced on October 12 because I was entered in the races and had promised my friends that I would participate. I did not see fit to break my word. I did not make application for reinstatement because I thought my days of usefulness were over. While I was never a racing professional, for four years, at odd times, I gave fancy exhibitions, having resigned from the L. A. W. on December 25, 1885, as records will show. I fail to see how a professional can become an amateur until he is notified of the fact. If the board sees it in another light, let it be so.

I have done nothing that I am ashamed of, and am willing that "kind friends" should ventilate my record thoroughly. I have been a willing worker for the furtherance of cycling in this section, and expect to continue as such. Yours truly, C. C. HOPKINS.

Denver, Col., November 10, 1890.

FRATERNITY AMONG WHEELMEN.

Editor Bicycling World: It is a happy omen and certainly indicative of the highest and best results, view it as we will, when wheelmen of all grades, those who are highest and those who are lowest, meet together in social companionship and in fraternal good will. Such was the spirit manifested, and in a large degree, at the dedication of the new rooms of the Bay State Bicycle Club of Worcester last Wednesday evening, November 12. A cordial invitation was extended to the Millbury Bicycle Club, and a goodly number was present. We shall not soon forget the royal manner in which the Bay States entertained us, nor the feeling of good fellowship that was manifest. It seems to me that these "red letter" occasions are of the highest and best in our club life. Does it not produce an influence akin to "Peace on earth, good will, etc." Now that the riding season is drawing to a close, and the winter evenings are nigh at hand, brother cyclers let us all make our influence in our clubs and out of it felt for good in the communities where we dwell. We can, if we will let the people know that bicycle riders play an important part in the affairs of men. Let us dignify our noble sport and bring to it our best energies and our highest motives. WM. B. STOCKWELL,

L. A. W. 5069. Millbury, Mass.

USING THE LEAGUE FOR PERSONAL POLITICAL PURPOSES.

Editor Bicycling World: Again the L. A. W. has been made the medium of a particular political party, and this time in a most cowardly way. That it is the work of the same person who sent the last political circular to each L. A. W. member residing in this State, or one in sympathy with him, goes without saying, for their public letter was unsigned, and this above all shows that they feared worse results for their underhand action, than the mere censure they received not long ago. No person having the spirit of a man would send an anonymous circular, and I am loth to believe that such a person should be within the ranks of the L. A. W. That such a person is, however, is shown by the manner in which they endeavor to avoid punishment, and also by the fact that they must have secured the list of League members, which list must have been secured for a purpose different than that for which it was used. Of this latter assertion, I will say I speak advisedly and therefore the man or men who secured the mailing list must have secured it under false pretences, and their action was as knavish as their anonymous communication was contemptible I have been informed by the best authority that the mailing list of League members was never given for the purpose for which it was used. [We would like to know by whom?—ED]. Every League member, whether Democrat or Republican, must confess that the circular was not sent in the interest of our organization, but to advance private and personal ends. Statements were made which every old member knows were false, and you are therefore compelled to denounce the senders of that which tends to hurt us, as men (?) who interest themselves in the League for what they can make out of it. Now the question arises: "Is the L. A. W. to be made the tool for politicians? I for one joined it for its benefits and for the encouragement of wheeling, and not to be annoyed by any politician or political organization. This matter of political interference has gone far enough, and it behooves those who are in authority to at once ascertain who the guilty ones are and to take steps for their expulsion from the League; for just so sure as this affront is allowed to pass unnoticed, and those guilty not summarily dealt with, just so sure will members individually resent it. This last act is adding injury to insult, and I am but one of the many who will refuse to remain in the League if it continues to allow politicians to ply their trade and remain within its ranks.

Very respectfully, JAMES E. TAYLOR.

L. A. W. 3815.

"CYCLING FOR HEALTH AND PLEASURE" is a book that every rider should have. Send 50c. to the Wheelman Co., 12 Pearl St., Boston, and procure one.

AT HOLYOKE, MASS.—The Holyoke Bicycle Club's road race was held Friday, Nov. 14. The course was laid on the Springfield road, five miles from the South Holyoke Ferry, and return, being a handicap time race of ten miles; W. F. Kennedy time keeper and W. J Thayer referee; Dr. Taylor at the half distance. Outterson, Sackett, Marks, Gordon and Blakely were the starters. Blakely was given 2 minutes, Gordon and Marks 5 minutes, but Marks refused the handicap, and started with the scratch men. Outterson first, time 40m. 22s ; Blakely second, 42m. 29s.; Sackett third, 40m. 32s.; Mark fourth, 40m. 33s., which is considered excellent time for the latter, who never rode a wheel until this season. First prize $50 time medal, to be contested for each year, and a silver cup; second prize silk umbrella; third, bicycle pants.

LAST week Friday P. J. Berlo attempted to lower Benson's record on Corey Hill of 3 02 but he did not come nearer than 3.12. It should, however, be said that the hill was in very poor condition and a strong head wind was blowing.

A GIRL WORTH HAVING.

A FEW weeks ago I read in your paper Mr. Morehead's experience in the Plating Business, in which he cleared $167.85 in a month; but I beat that if I am a girl. I sent as he directed and got a Plater, and cleared $208 17 in one month. Can any of your readers beat this? You can get spoons, forks or jewelry to plate at every house. Send $3 to W. H. Griffith & Co., Zanesville, Ohio, and they will send you a Plater, and you can make money enough in three hours to pay for it, or address them for circulars. There is plenty of work to do in both city and country; then why should any person be poor or out of employment with such an opportunity at hand. I hope my experience will help others as much as Mr. Morehead's did me. LAURA B ——

TRADE NOTES.

H H BROWN'S Cycle grip and handles are patented affairs, and judging from the samples in whole and in section which we have before us, they are a most excellent article.

These handles are made of the purest Para rubber vulcanized over a wooden core, having either a smooth or raised ornamented surface, and both these points are covered by patents. By using the wooden cores Mr Brown is able to produce as strong a handle as if made of solid rubber, and yet much cheaper. The object of the raised surface is to prevent the hands from blistering, and afford the rider a firmer grip. We would refer our readers to page 99.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE UNION NO. 12 SAFETY.

EVERY dealer and manufacturer contemplating the publication of a catalogue for the coming season, should at once address P. H. Bernays of Little Rock, Ark., for an electrotype cut of the Cycle Brush Tool for use in their books This little article, since the popularity of the Safety type machine has become so great, has met with a very extensive sale, and no line of sundries is complete without it.

ANY one looking for a high grade wheel less than list price will do well to write the Coventry Machinists' Co. for their new list of shopworn and second-hand wheels. They have some "snap shots." The Coventry Machinists' Co. sell a bicycle trainer that is useful this time of the year, and will suit any safety. Write them.

THE McDaniel, Merrihew & Van Wagoner Cycle Co. is the name of a new concern which Philadelphia is to be honored with. Van is closing up his Newport business now, and they open in two or three weeks, handling Eagles, Swifts and Hickories.

THE Velocity Manufacturing Company, Chicago, has been organized to manufacture and deal in bicycles, tricycles and other motive and mechanical devices; capital stock $25,000; incorporators, Harry C. Goodrich, Charles R. Webster and Timothy F. Mullen.

THE White Cycle Company of Westboro, Mass., has just shipped a specially made full nickeled Broncho Safety to N. E. Kaufman of London, Eng., the famous trick rider. He will hereafter perform his tricks on this machine.

ONCE again we call attention of our readers to Messrs. Evans' advertisement on the inside page of front cover of this issue. The ales and porters brewed by Evans of Hudson, N. Y., are synonymous of purity and excellence. Send for their price list, or better still send for a sample case. The goods are unexcelled.

"To lick or not to lick," that is the question, as our friend Shakespeare would have said had he lived during the present age, and been shown one of "Pratts Capillery Moustener." And William would have promptly decided that he would not "lick." For further particulars see page 98. We use one in this office and find it a most excellent little device.

WE are pleased to note that the Scotch judges of the machine section at the Edinburgh International Exhibition awarded the "Diploma of Honor"—the highest award at their disposal—to the "Swift" safety of the Coventry Machinists' Co., who are generally somewhere near the front in affairs of this kind.

THE Capital Outing a short time ago published some severe criticisms on the clumsiness in awarding the contract for the safeties to use by the Post Office Department without advertising for bids. The Star publishes the following on this matter: "* * * In speaking of this to day Superintendent Bell said to a Star reporter: That is a mistake. The law does not require that bids shall be called for. However, we acted on the recommendation of Col. Bates, superintendent of the free delivery division in the Post Office Department, and I sent to the local agencies of all the leading wheel firms calling for bids. The lowest bid was not the one accepted, because it was on a machine that was not of the best quality and was decidedly unreliable. There were four bids that I remember, and possibly more, and the lowest bid on a high grade machine was the one accepted. The machine itself and the methods adopted in selecting it were approved by Assistant Postmaster General Whitfield."

EVERY one likes to be "toney," and there is nothing that indicates a man's or a woman's refinement more than the kind of stationery they use for correspondence. Then why use common, cheap writing paper and envelopes when you can get the "latest thing" in that line for a mere song? It's sheer nonsense!! Then please refer to page 99, and note for what a small sum "Warren" will send you the finest kind of paper stamped with a steel die. It is said that "a thing of beauty is a joy forever." True, but a pen that will write well is more joyous. Hence, a word to the wise, and also refer to another of "Warren's" advertisement on page 100. A word to the wise, etc.

THE Knight Cycle Co. of St. Louis advise us that their business this year has been very satisfactory, and that wheelmen who are looking for bargains either in new or second hand wheels can get accommodated by applying to them at 207 W. 10th street, St. Louis, Mo.

SINGER CYCLES.

15 Years in America.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 30, 1890.

MESSRS. SINGER & Co., Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—It gives us much pleasure to add our testimony to the superiority of the "Singer." It has given better satisfaction to our customers than any other machine we ever sold. They are all enthusiastic in its praise. Our sales are gradually increasing, because almost every purchaser brings us another. We have never yet sold a "Singer" safety that has failed to give perfect satisfaction. We are especially pleased at the promptness with which parts are furnished, never having to wait more than two or three days after ordering, whereas we are seldom able to procure parts of an American made machine in less than a week, and generally have to wait at least two. We consider the "Singer" safety superior to all others in ease of running and the durability of its tires, and equal to any other in strength, lightness and beauty of finish. Very respectfully,

F. S. CAHILL & Co.

November 13, 1890.

Pennsylvania.

To the Members of the Pennsylvania Division L. A. W.:

At a meeting of the Keystone Bicycle Club of Pittsburg, it was decided to send to you a circular placing the club on record as seeking the defeat of one of its oldest members, C. F. Siedell, for the office of State Representative. We, the undersigned members of the Keystone Bicycle Club, believing that this action was a breach of fraternal honor, do emphatically repudiate it and sign this for publication in the L. A. W. BULLETIN.

To the Members Pennsylvania Division L. A. W.:

The resolution as given above, we believe to be a simple act of justice to Mr. Siedell, who is an old and valued member of the club. The Protest, as published against him, was the result of misrepresentations; notably the statement that he was at the time of its promulgation a State Representative, whereas he never held that office until the election of this year, and as a member of the Nominating Committee, suggested one of the gentlemen who was an opponent in the last election, Mr. F. F. Sneathen.

No notice was given Mr. Siedell of any dissatisfaction. He was nominated without his knowledge and consent, and would cheerfully have withdrawn from the contest, had he received any intimation to the effect that it was so desired by the club, and he is even now, unable to understand the animus of the members who attempted such an uncalled for criticism.

Pittsburgh, Pa., November 1st, 1890.

Ohio Division.

Although the membership of the Ohio Division has increased from 891 on Nov. 8, 1889, to 1142 on Nov. 7, 1890, yet we have been passed by both Connecticut and Illinois.

Shall we of Ohio, whose citizens have taken front rank among the statesmen, warriors, scientists and scholars of America, be content to stand idly by and see our Division sink from fourth to sixth place in the ranks of the League of American Wheelmen? By no means.

Our State has thousands of wheelmen who are not League members. There are numerous localities with a dozen or more wheelmen and only one solitary League member, and many other places abounding in wheelmen but minus League members.

The officers, the Representatives and the Local Consuls are doing all in their power to increase the membership, for the larger our membership the more we can benefit our members, but there are many wheelmen whom they cannot influence or cannot reach. There are thousands of such who could be influenced by individual members of the rank and file if they would only do their part.

Let no one, however humble, think for a moment that he can do nothing. There are certainly some he can influence if he will but try. League members are continually travelling through the State and coming in contact with wheelmen. Let them keep this subject ever uppmost in their minds and urge non-League members to join now! and not put it off till to-morrow. Call their attention to the fact that if they join now it will only cost them $1.50. Show them the BICYCLING WORLD, and tell them that this is sent free to every member of the League.

The Secretary-Treasurer is always ready to furnish on demand a supply of tracts and application blanks, or will mail them to the address of any one not a member of the League.

If each and every member would only do whatever he can, whenever he can and wherever he can to increase the membership of the Division there is no reason why it should not exceed 2000.

Hoping soon to see a decided increase in the membership of the Ohio Division, I remain, Fraternally, M. A. HIGH, Chief Consul.

500—Missouri—500.

To Consuls and Members:

I believe I advised you last week of the fact that the Missouri Division L. A. W. with its present membership of 444, is anxious to reach the 500 mark before January 1st, 1891. I repeat the statement so that you may not forget it. And the way to do it is to call on your cycling friends, show them the many advantages of membership including the free Road Book. Do you doubt what the result would be if each of you followed such a course? If you do, try it and be convinced. This week ten more applications are published, most of whom reside in St. Louis. Now let us hear from other portions of the State.

Fraternally yours, ROBT. HOLM, C. C.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

LINCOLN'S HICKORY CHAIR.

While wandering recently in the West, I was told that when the late Abraham Lincoln received the news of his first nomination by the Chicago convention, he was seated in a Hickory arm chair, and notwithstanding the fact that h s "bosom swelled with pride" when the despatch was handed him, the chair stood it "without a loose spoke" and is still intact (except the leather seat which is tacked in.) I was told where this could be seen, though I don't propose to repeat it here, lest it might afford the place some advertising and that would be "unprofessional." I paid fifty cents to go in, ten cents for a catalogue and twenty-five to have the gas lighted so I could read it. I discovered here a large and varied assortment of second-hand furniture, books, etc., which formerly comprised the housekeeping plant of Mr. Lincoln. I thought as I stood amid this mouldy collection of every day plunder, what a great thing it is to be dead, especially to die by the hand of an assassin and an educated assassin at that. And I wondered if the household effects, on which I have vainly tried to borrow twenty-five dollars, would ever in their last stages of infirmity be held sacred, and be put where it would cost money to see them. All because of anything I might do for the world. Suppose I succeed in emancipating the people from their slavery to wire wheels. Suppose I were to issue a proclamation warning the buyers of cushion tires (there! there is a rhyme that got away before I could stop it. Do you know I am so full of poetry that Bassett is getting just as jealous as he can be.) Suppose it should turn out that Hickory Bicycles are the best, do you think this old chair that I am sitting in will ever be put in a museum? No! I'll bet four dollars it wouldn't even get into an auction store. But don't lose sight of the main point, which is, that this man Lincoln, who, according to his own story, couldn't even make a good axhelve, was yet a man of rare attainments and he knew what kind of timber to have his helve made of, also his beetle. But I noticed that the rings on his beetle were iron. This also showed that he was posted, for what better thing could he have used, since it was momentum he wanted. (The coasting qualities of metal are immense, and the heavier a sled is to pull up hill the farther it will coast.) But in the matter of chairs Mr. L. was a connoisseur. He knew that his good name was at stake in Chicago, and that he might at any moment be notified as above, so he placed his all in a Hickory chair and waited. The record says "he was calm," but it was unnecessary to mention that. Any one may well be calm when supported by a structure of Hickory.

P. S. I am calm.

"BRONCHO,"

NOISELESS, CHAINLESS, LIGHT ROADSTER, SAFETY BICYCLE

LONG DISTANCES ON WHEELS.

From Washington Post, November 11, 1890.

Sunday five members of the Columbia and one of the Capitol Bicycle Clubs rode to Leesburg, Va., all old riders, namely, Messrs. McDaniels, Newman, Brown, Howstine, Blunt and Mount.

The road is the worst in this section, and on arriving at Leesburg all but Mount decided to come home by train, but he GAMELY MOUNTED his "BRONCHO" and returned home by the pike, COVERING THE ABOVE DISTANCE EASILY.

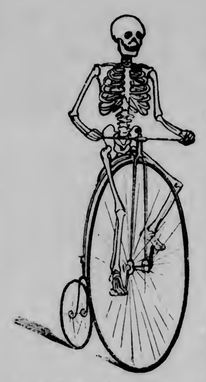
QUIDPROQUO.

XXXV.

THE lies used in advertising afford an interesting study to one philosophical enough to avoid irritation and patient enough to extract the truths they hold in solution, so to speak. I will not enter upon a discussion of this subject in full, this week, but merely remark the obviously easy division of advertising lies into two general classes, benign lies and malignant lies. Usually advertising is played with lies of these two kinds, somewhat as whist is played with cards,---coat-cards and spot-cards, or trumps and plain suits. It appears to have been quite widely supposed necessary to use lies in advertising, and the notion still prevails even in some of the cycling papers. But Quidproquo has long believed and, to the satisfaction of many, has shown that good wholesome and invigorating advertising may be done entirely without lies, and with truth alone. The Pope Manufacturing Company, too, has gone on this theory for some fourteen years now, and has not lacked for business, or for public attention.



BENIGN LIES.

CONCERNING malignant lies much might be said and many illustrations be drawn from the pages of the cycling press, ---not all from the "advertising" pages, so called, either. Of benign lies, which are in some sense gracious, amusing, and tend to divert and not to deceive beyond the normal human comprehension, Young Hickory affords fine illustration ready to hand. I knew it would get into the papers,---that ingenious revival of a skeleton man upon a skeleton wheel at the Fair. Resurrection of two lost causes by an ingenious artificer in wood and steel, words and wit! How ghastly would have been the effect had Mr. Elliott given his skeleton the English racing position!---But that advertisement, scarcely saying any truth, holds in solution not only a smile but one or two truths; and not being intended to deceive, is benign. If, however, Mr. Elliott had stated in bold type that he made the first skeleton and created the demand for skeletons; or that he had been in the skeleton business ten years; or that he had manufactured skeletons exclusively and hadn't had any part of them made; or that he was the largest, etc., etc. ---then he would have passed beyond the benign to the malignant.

IT may not be true that there is a skeleton in every closet; but the one in the BI. WORLD of last week reminds Quidproquo that there has been one for more than eight years in the Columbia closet. About nine years ago Quidproquo wrote and partially illustrated a four page article entitled "A modern Idea of the Bicycle," which appeared in the Century for February, 1882, in which appeared two pictures which are now reproduced on this page. In the article occurred some suggestive passages from which he quotes---begging his readers indulgence for quoting from himself---without further comment, viz:

"The mounted bicycle is the modern Sphinx. * * * * In the course of some scientific study of the bicycle, an idea has occurred to the writer, which has already been suggested to the reader by the first illustration. The fascination of the bicycle which draws the rider more and more to its use, and the allied attraction which holds spectators with even more wonder than that which impels old and young to gaze at the steam locomotive until it passes out of sight, are complex; and each contains an element which has never yet been defined or explained. There is something almost intuitive in the recognition of animal qualities in the bicycle by rider and non-rider. The former calls it his silent steed; the latter refers to it as the strange horse. The former pets it and grows fond of it by acquaintance; the latter is shy of its unfamiliar ways. It has occurred to the writer that the peculiar element of fascination in this rubber-hoofed prancer of the highways may have a basis in its physical structure. In a certain sense we study all things scientifically by their skeletons. The proper study of the bicycle, therefore, begins with the skeleton. That there is a striking resemblance between the skeleton of a bicycle and the skeleton of a man, is obvious on comparison, as in the illustration at the beginning of this article. Other vehicles would, in skeleton, be found to compare pretty well with the skeletons of draught animals; the wagon, for instance, having four supporting limbs, and a nearly horizontal back.

"But the bicycle, noblest vehicle of all, has two supporting limbs, which in action are one before the other, and a nearly vertical back. Its handlebars correspond in close respects with the human arms; the flanges of the fore wheel with the hip bones; the fore wheel tire with the sole of the forward foot; the rear wheel hub with the heel, and the tire with the toes of the walker's rear foot, serving to steady the body and to control the direction of its progress. Is it not possible that in this structural analogy between the human frame and that of the bicycle, and in this parallelism of noble distinction between the frame of the bicycle and those of other vehicles, may be found a physical basis for the peculiar charm of the bicycle to which I have briefly adverted? * * * * And here it may be observed, as a matter for congratulation, that the finest illustration of this true bicycle is a thorough American product. For at least six years, from 1870, the English makers led the world in their persistent, careful and ingenious efforts to perfect the machine. Four years ago, however, an American manufacturing company took up this subject, which had been so precipitately dropped here in 1870, and has contributed since that time largely of capital and of mechanical ingenuity and resources to its construction and further improvement. One American company now leads the world in the cost and completeness of its plant, in the number of machines annually made, and in the facilities and organized interests for its introduction into more extended use. The new "Expert Columbia" bicycle of the Pope Manufacturing Company is taken here as the highest embodiment of the true type of bicycle, because it shows the latest and best improvements, and is the finest result of scientific effort and mechanical skill!"---That was written over eight years ago, and time and use have proved it true. The "old reliable" Company hasn't gone backward nor stood still since.

THE POETRY OF IT.

THAT article, besides some other illustrations and description of the bicycle in general and the Expert in particular, and some discriminating observations on the questions of elasticity, rigidity, reach, rake, tread, etc., contained one passage that has been often quoted by others since, and which, after eight years more of experience and observation, Quidproquo would still repeat as expressing his present sentiments. He said then and he says now: "The bicycle is the prince of velocipedes. The practicability and the charm of its use take an ever-widening hold on popular acceptance. It leads to the clear open air and the sweet sunshine, in pleasant byways and beautiful scenery. It combines the mathematical allurement of billiards, the free motion of the canoe, the delicate and rapid balancing of skating, and the long hoped for charm of flying, which never, since the melted wings of Icarus, has faded from human expectation. It teaches the gospel of health and of manly independence. With this instrument brought now to such perfection, and to such easy attainment, the only room for wonder is that so many refrain from yielding to its fascinations or claiming a share in its benefits. With the many men in all ranks and professions who now use it, and who owe so much of their health, success and enjoyment to that fact, the wonder increases to astonishment that there is any intelligent man not decrepit or indigent who does not own and ride a bicycle."

A TRAP FOR THE UNWARY.

Look out for the man who sets a trap and baits it with "just as good," and professes to be able to save you half a hundred dollars or so when you want to buy a high grade bicycle.

His promises are very alluring, but their fabric is not possessed of the requisite substance to successfully withstand the wear and tear of the laundry. Are you prepared to believe that the thousands of VICTOR BICYCLES made every year could be sold at $135.00 if there was a possibility that machines "just as good" could be had at 60 per cent. or 80 per cent. of the amount? Don't think it. You get a first class article only by paying a first-class price, which is manifestly fair.

Victors will continue to be sold at first-class prices.

SINGER CYCLES.

15 Years in America.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 30, 1890.

MESSRS. SINGER & Co., Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—It gives us much pleasure to add our testimony to the superiority of the "Singer." It has given better satisfaction to our customers than any other machine we ever sold. They are all enthusiastic in its praise. Our sales are gradually increasing, because almost every purchaser brings us another. We have never yet sold a "Singer" safety that has failed to give perfect satisfaction. We are especially pleased at the promptness with which parts are furnished, never having to wait more than two or three days after ordering, whereas we are seldom able to procure parts of an American made machine in less than a week, and generally have to wait at least two. We consider the "Singer" safety superior to all others in ease of running and the durability of its tires, and equal to any other in strength, lightness and beauty of finish. Very respectfully,

F. S. CAHILL & Co

SINGER & CO., 6 & 8 Berkeley St., Boston, Mass.

MANKIND IS DIVIDED

Into three classes, viz.: First, those who believe that Hickory Wheels are best; Second, those who don't, and third, those who care not whether they are or not. Of these three classes I am glad to know that the first contains the least number of people, and you may be surprised to learn that I do not consider them necessarily more intelligent than those of the second and third classes. They have simply had better advantages, that is all. No man should be blamed for not believing that which he doesn't understand or has had no opportunity to investigate. "A mule will kick at what he knows he can't hit," but a mule isn't rated among the "nobler animals."

The second class are——but why bother with the second class; many have already purchased Hickorys and are now traveling first class, and the balance expect to in the Spring.

The Chaises of the third class have Hickory Wheels, so that when they reason at all they are apt to "have their windows open toward Jerusalem," and the advantages of Hickory are apparent to all who are qualified, by actual experience, to have any opinion on the subject. "Put that in your pipe and smoke it."

You may plate and enamel a wheel as you will,
But the rust (if it's metal)
Will cling round it still.
While rattle and jar act no small part
In that "perversion of the wheelmaker's art."

You may do wrong and then repent,
And have forgiveness from Heaven sent,

But when you fool with physical laws,
You'll find an effect that will fit the cause.
If a wheel is made too stiff with wire,
You can help it out with a cushion tire.

But why should you two wrongs commit?
When a Hickory Wheel you can easily get,
Which doesn't contain the "original sin"
And needs no tire stuffed with wind.

That last rhyme may not be strictly up to the mark from a poetical standpoint, but it contains enough truth to offset any deficiency of so trifling a nature.

STERLING ELLIOTT, Newton, Mass.

P. S. I can stand it to have my grammar, orthography or rhetoric criticised, but I would like to find the man who sent a type-written letter here last week addressed to "Sterling Elliott, Newton ass." Some one (a cycling Post Office clerk possibly), added an M in pencil and it got here all right, but I wish it hadn't. At first it looked like an oversight, but as no name was signed to the enclosed letter I think it was simply an expression of opinion. It was a letter which did not, on the face of it, require an answer, though it will be cheerfully replied to if the author will call here. I will either lick him or apologize for what I have said, according to how he strikes me.

"Talk is her business, and her chief delight to tell of prodigies."—Ode to Fame, Virgil.

BOSTON, 28 NOVEMBER, 1890.

A NUMBER of our usual correspondents evidently did not realize that our paper would go to press one day earlier in consequence of Thanksgiving, hence their usual contributions in some cases did not reach us "on time."

WE have during the past few weeks been collecting data on which to write an article on cushion tires, and by next week we think we shall be in posesssion of facts which will enable us to give our readers a comprehensive article on this most important of questions. The discussion lately held under the auspices of the Stanley Cycle Club in England has been printed in full, and there is much in the discussion that will prove of value to our readers. We shall therefore embody in our article such of these points as we think of interest and real worth, and thus enable our friends to get at the real meat of the argument with as few words as possible.

AN "ex-member of the Board of Managers of the A. A. U." writes to a gentleman in Buffalo, N. Y., and gives his opinion as to the proposed action of the Buffalo league in making the A. A. U. events in that city closed to non-members:

"If the Union clubs in Buffalo choose to form a league and give athletic events open to members of A. A. U. clubs only, no power under heaven can stop them. But it would be the only instance of the kind I ever heard of. * * * And when I say I never heard of such a thing, I mean I am sure such an arrangement was never made.

Everywhere, but at Buffalo, apparently, A. A. U. clubs giving games are only too glad to have any outsider come in and see what he can do—if he is an amateur. That is the only point as to his entering.

If I were a member of any Buffalo A. A. U. or L. A. W. club I should fight to the bitter end any such unfair and unsportsmanlike plan as a union of A. A. U. clubs whose members alone should be eligible to compete in their games. * * *."

Then referring to the statement made in the News that after November 20 "the open business (in the A. A. U.) is going to end," the gentleman continues:

"If the Buffalo Athletic Club and the Buffalo Bicycle Club want to give joint games they can do so on the Buffalo Bicycle Club's becoming registered and paying a nominal fee. And this will be so after November 20, the News to the contrary notwithstanding. My own impression is that the Buffalo A. A. U. clubs will make a mistake if their zeal for the A. A. U. and friendships for any individual or individuals permit them to unnecessarily antagonize so important a body and one so friendly to the A. A. U. as the L. A. W. And I say this while yielding nothing to anyone in fealty or service to the A. A. U. * * *."

The following telegram received by the same gentleman from Mr. J. E. Sullivan, the Secretary A. A. U., gives force and point to "ex-member's" remarks:

"The Union has never passed or contemplated such a rule (prohibiting any but A. A. U. competitors in A. A. U. games), and is disposed to be friendly with the League of American Wheelmen. Games open to all amateurs are universally encouraged."

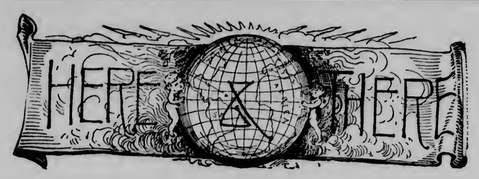
Whatever comes out of this pow-wow, it is very evident that if action is taken by the Buffalo league of the A. A. U. excluding non-members from the ordinary open events it will do a deal of harm to the Union, although we are pleased to note that the action would not be in sympathy with the liberal ideas of the powers that be and have been. We, however, have every faith in the good sense of the rank and file of the proposed Buffalo league, and that they will not allow the personal prejudices of one man to swing them over to doing the leading amateur associations such a flagrant wrong.

DR. EMERY AS A CANDIDATE.

AS CERTAIN statements have been flying round in the press to the effect that Dr. W. H. Emery was to be put forward by his friends as a candidate in opposition to James R. Dunn for the L. A. W. presidency, we interviewed the doctor, and asked him:

"What truth is there in the statements which have been going the rounds of the press to the effect that your friends are pushing you as an opposing candidate to Mr. Dunn for the L. A. W. presidency?"

Dr. Emery replied:



"I was not aware that I was a candidate for the presidency of the League in opposition to Mr. Dunn, though certain cycling scribes have tried to make it so. Neither have my friends urged it, to my knowledge, and I do not believe they would do so without consulting me."

THE LONG ISLAND WHEELMEN.

PRESIDENT LUSCOMB and fifty-one members of the Long Island Wheelmen sat down to enjoy their eighth annual dinner at the Clarendon Hotel, Brooklyn, last Saturday evening. After the food had been disposed of (and by the way the menu was most excellent) President Luscomb gave the toast "Our Club." Always felicitous, Mr. Luscomb was never happier or more entertaining than on this occasion. He spoke of the time when, in 1882, Cosmos persuaded Chaos to evolve the L. I. W. Down the path of the club's history the president pleasantly, seriously and again humorously led his auditors as he traced the steps from the small beginnings of the embryotic state to the splendid proportions of the present strong organization, with its sumptuous club house and large membership.

"The Streets" were taken care of by Commissioner Jno. P. Adams, and that sterling and ever-popular member, ex-President Share, treated feelingly the toast of the "Old Members." Captain Dillon launched out into poetry to express himself in answer to the toast of the "League Meet." The poetry had a touch of the Walt Whitman ruggedness and it "got there all the same."

A dinner without a toast to "The Ladies," "God bless 'em," would be Hamlet without the melancholy Dane, and so Mr. John L. Shepard was selected as being the most susceptible of the members to answer to the toast, which he did right loyally and royally too.

NOTES BY "HAWKSHAW."

In view of the present complete reign of the safety in the world of wheels it may not prove uninteresting to many to learn that the first appearance of this form of wheel was at as early a date as '81. Under the heading of "Peculiar Bicycles" in the Bicyclists' Handbook for that year, Henry Sturmey thus alludes to it: "For a perfect safety machine nothing can touch this, which in general outline resembles a 'modernized boneshaker.'" The two wheels were 40-inch and 24-inch respectively (Mem.—Point for the advocates of large steering wheels.—H.) driven by chain and pin wheels as in the present type of safety, though for some reason the inventor could not see his way clear to have the steering done in the present and most natural manner, but arranged it in the following rather complicated way: "Immediately behind, and some 12 inches from the head, a dummy head was fixed upright upon the backbone, and upon this the handles for steering were affixed, that operation being performed by means of a short rod placed in connection with one side of the actual fork." Despite the high indorsement of the wheel by Mr. Sturmey, and the fact that its "inventor, Mr. Lawson, the inventor of the original 'safety' bicycle," habitually rode it in preference to his ordinary wheel, especially for night work and rough riding; it seems strange, when one looks at the magnitude of the present safety mania, that the gold mine Mr. Lawson possessed so long ago as '81 should remain unworked and undeveloped until the last few years.

At one of the large city theatres on a recent Sunday evening an audience which completely filled the building listened to a lecture by Judge Wheeler on a tour through Ireland on a bicycle. In the many illustrations, thrown by a magic lantern upon a screen to illustrate the lecturer's remarks, the wheel was always prominent. Aside from the lecture being an exceedingly entertaining one in itself, the fact that the speaker had travelled upon a bicycle over all the distance he lectured upon seemed to afford the audience quite a bit of surprise, it being composed of that class of pleasure seekers, who, depending mainly upon theatres and such forms of amusements for recreation and entertainment, rarely have the faintest knowledge of the practicability and extensive use of the modern bicycle. Such advocacy of the wheel is of the utmost benefit to cycling, as it reaches a class of people almost beyond the limit of any of the ordinary forms of attracting attention from.

When one comes to think of it is not bicycle an awkward and unpleasant word? It neither runs easily from the tongue nor from the pen and its derivatives are no better than itself. England calls the rider a "bicyclist," which we in America regard as the most objectionable form of the word; but at its best it is clumsy, so that it is perforce shortened into cycler and cycling. It is rather an unmeaning term, being far fetched and pedantic; it does not sound very well, is not usable as a verb and is generally unsatisfactory all round, but then as the parrot remarked to the monkey after their celebrated battle, "What are you going to do about it?"

In a letter written by John Keats, some time in the year 1818, appears the following: "The notion of the day is a machine called the velocipede. It is a wheel carriage to ride cock-horse upon, sitting astride and pushing it along with the toes, a rudder wheel in the hand. They will go seven miles an hour. A handsome gelding will come to eight guineas; however, they will soon be cheaper unless the army take to them." Wonder what the writer of the foregoing would have thought if some one had told him that men then born would live to see this same "velocipede" so improved as to do twenty-one miles an hour instead of seven?

Br'er Miles is making it exceedingly pleasant for the new Madhi of the A. A. U. in Buffalo. He has made clear the misrepresentations ot this new apostle of desertion in a way that is very pleasant reading for all hands except the apostle himself. Mr. Miles merits the thanks of all lovers of cycling and its best interests for the stand he has taken in this matter, and for the very able editorial labors he has used in showing the falsity and absurdity of the claims made by the Buffalo A. A. U. Moses. The whole of this Buffalo stampede reminds me very much of the state of affairs now happening among the Indians in the Northwest. Some of them started the report that the Messiah had come, and that henceforth buffalo, rum and tobacco were to be found upon the ridge pole of every tepee, without the labor of having to buy or steal them as poor Lo has heretofore had to do. The Indians at once became frantic, and indulging in "ghost dances," which consist in circling round and round until they fall to the ground exhausted. It is just the same with the Buffalo wheelmen, they also have thought that a new Messiah had come unto them and promised that they should have races and pot hunts galore if they would but forsake the error of their L. A. W. ways and travel the straight and narrow path of the A. A. U. Forthwith, like their Indian counterparts, the Buffalo riders throw wisdom to the winds and go in for A. A. U. "ghost dances;" like the deluded red man they also will keep on until they fall exhausted by the wayside, and when reason will return once more to them, they will find that a number six hat will easily fit the head of their new prophet where a number fourteen is now much to small for him.

COLUMBUS, O. "COLUMBUS."

The lady riders of our city have organized a bicycle club and are doing good work in popularizing the wheel. For a time they were objects of considerable curiosity, and it was amusing to note the numbers who would stop on the streets to gaze at the fair riders as they wheeled by. But this has worn off, and our lady riders now attract but little more attention than when walking along the street on a windy day. I hear of quite a number of ladies who will purchase wheels early next spring, and now that popular prejudice regarding ladies awheel has been so nearly overcome we may expect a great increase in their numbers.

Why is the handle bar of the safety machine made so long. Considerable difficulty is often experienced in getting the wheel through a narrow doorway and riders would look less awkward with elbows nearer the body. Another thing: One maker writes me that he fears there would be a "kick" if he added a needed extra ounce to the mud guard of his rear wheel on account of the extra weight this would entail. Several ounces could be saved (if this is an object) by narrowing the handle bars a couple of inches, and as far as I have been able to try, would not interfere at all with the steering.

CHICAGO NOTES. "WAYNE SCOTT."

The Association of Cycling Clubs is going to be one grand success if enthusiasm and good men can carry it through. Thursday evening the delegates from the Chicago, Illinois, Lincoln, Washington, Englewood, Æolus, Douglas, Oak Park, Lake View and Vikings Cycling Clubs met in the parlors of the Grand Pacific Hotel. Three representatives were appointed from each club and out of the thirty twenty-five were present. A finer body of wheelmen than these are seldom seen. T. L. Sloan was elected president and S. A. Miles was elected secretary. A committee was appointed to draw up a constitution and by-laws to be submitted at a meeting to be called for Dec. 4. Wheelmen generally are very much interested in this association, as its power will be great in the interests of the wheelmen.

The Lincoln Cycling Club indoor team were defeated by the Harvards by a score of 9 to 8. This game has been the subject of no little feeling on both sides and one of our leading evening papers has devoted no little space to the airing of both sides' views. It is to be hoped that this will stop right here, as such discussion and disputes do not do either club any good.

Thanksgiving Day promises to be a great day with the local cyclists. The Chicagos the night before will dispose to lucky ones a dozen turkeys. Music and lunch will add to the evening's enjoyment, and on Thanksgiving Day this club will play foot ball with the Illinois Club of the Indoor League.

The Æolus Club have a turkey dinner at the club house and a hare and hounds chase earlier in the day.

The Lincolns will have a picture taken. The Lake Views will have a hare and hounds chase on foot; the Douglas will also have one and the Washingtons are preparing an elaborate programme.

Elections will be the one theme of conversation for the next six or seven weeks and new captains are to be elected in several of our clubs. The Referee says Tuttle will be the next captain of the Illinois, while Tuttle says Roberts is the man. Newman and Erwin are rivals for a like position in the Lincolns and Winship for the Chicagos.

The Lincolns' parlors are comfortably filled every other Thursday night. A programme of from 12 to 15 numbers takes up the evening. Thanksgiving night the club will give a full dress party in the club parlors.

The Oak Parks are busy preparing to present a burlesque called "Dreams." A strong company has been formed of local and other talent and the rehearsals would promise a great success for this enterprising club.

Wabash avenue of this city promises to be the wheeling centre. Cards are at the windows of two stores already announcing their future occupany as cycling stores, and a number of others would like to gain a foothold on this lively street.

A meeting will be called about the last of the month of the Ravenswood Athletic Association. This association has a number of influential men backing it and the chances are good for the North Side flyers having a track for next season. Give some of the Lincoln men like Pollak, Crouse, McVoy, McDonald and McMahon a track to train on and they are sure to do well.

NEW ORLEANS. "LA. DODGE."

The cyclists of New Orleans have not forgotten the interesting race held on Thanksgiving Day two or three years ago, when Messrs. Hill and Guillotte contested every inch of ground between Claiborne street and West End, first one in the lead and then the other, each striving hard to gain the finish before the other, and followed the entire distance by a train of six cars filled with an excited and howling crowd of wheelmen and their friends who viewed the contest and urged their favorites onward from the windows of the train.

Those who wish will have just such another chance to enjoy this spectacle again on the coming Thanksgiving Day, when another handicap race will be run over the same course, a distance of about six miles, and which will be followed by a grand stand consisting of one of the West End trains which passes alongside of the road, thus giving all a chance to view the race from start to finish. The race promises to be a success as there are now seven prizes and about twenty-five entries, with the prospect of a much larger list by the time the entries close. Mr. Anderson of England will probably visit New Orleans again about that time, and will be induced to try his speed with the local flyers.

The New Orleans Club are contemplating the construction of a club house to cost probably about $5000. It is to be hoped that they will realize their expectations, but they will have to move mountains to accomplish this at present, but they have some workers among them and we will watch and wait.

The contemplated consolidation of the Arlingtons and the N. O. B. C. seems to have taken a disastrous header somewhere. The bans were announced, but there seems to have been some hitch—or want of hitch—in the proceedings, and the engagement has been declared broken.

The Louisiana Cycling Club are anxious to reach their limit by 1 January next, and if the present eighty-five will get to work, the necessary fifteen can be easily secured.

Who wants to go on a hare and hound chase with the L. C. C.? Whoever wants to go please hold up their hands and immediately prepare to ride through the woods, pull their wheels through barb wire fences, across muddy ditches and over roads upon which walking is preferable even in the best of weather. Ask the hares and you will see them grin, ask the hounds and you will hear them yelp.

What sad thoughts are suggested to one who gazes on the ruins of the Audubon Driving Park track, that familiar place where four of the most successful race meets have been held. the wreck of the immense grand stand upon which thousands of the fairest daughters and interested mothers have gathered to witness their brothers and sons contesting for glory and fame on their winged wheels, at the meets of the Louisiana Division. All is gone, even the track itself can hardly be seen through the grass that covers it, and the wheelmen of New Orleans will have to look for other fields of contest, but the memory of this place, and the many pleasant occurrences therein will be fresh in the minds of the boys, and old men also for many years to come.

In the matter of politics and the League I for one am not inclined to favor the idea, that because some candidate has helped the cause of cycling that he should be entitled to the suffrages of the wheelmen regardless of party or other reasons; in some cases such as municipal elections this plan might prove desirable, but to consider that one who adheres to the principles of Protection should vote for a Free Trader because he has advocated the construction of good roads or helped cycling in other ways, or to vote for a Protectionist when one believes in Free Trade, only because of the fact that this protectionist is a friend of cycling, is, to my mind, a very narrow and illiberal way of thinking. The cause of good roads and cycling should be advanced and advocated by every wheelman, but when it comes to selecting our representatives or servants it will be found that there are principles and questions that are vastly more important than good roads or cycling. A wheelman should remember the interests of wheelmen, but he should also remember that he is a citizen and should look as much to the good of the people as to his personal pleasure.

INDIANAPOLIS. "SAFETY"

The latest bicycle club of consequence in town is the "Zig-zag," formed by a lusty lot of young fellows who will be heard from in the future in wheeling and club matters. They will in due time make it a League club and be ready for whatever honors there may be lying around loose and unclaimed by any one else. They have a suite of rooms on Washington street opposite the court house, and articles of furniture, pictures, etc., are coming to them by purchase and otherwise at a rate that makes them proud. A ball-bearing billiard table is their latest acquisition by purchase. Things that come "otherwise" are more in the nature of bric-a-brac.

The only weakness they have betrayed so far is in the matter of their choice of a name for the club. "Zig-zag" is too plainly a borrowed name and their use of it does not show much fertility of source and little dignity. However, it is not important.

The first demonstration proposed by the club is a Thanksgiving run or race and the prizes will be apropos to the time to say the least. The run will be from the club rooms to Westfield, the first five "in" to get a turkey apiece. The distance is 22 1-2 miles by cyclometer, with two main routes and a dozen ways to get out of town. One road may be said to be fair and uniform the entire distance. The other is from fair to bad for 12 to 14 miles with a sand-papered road to finish on at least in season. It is, of course, hard to say which route will be the best until a trial is made on the day of the race. The boys propose to run it weather or no weather—or whether or no—as you please. Dinner at Westfield and return to Indianapolis to see a foot ball game in the afternoon will fill out the day.

A base ball team from the Zig-zags will play an indoor game on Friday evening at the Virginia Avenue Rink against the News Club. The News Club won the city league pennant this year and are a pretty lively set of ball players. The Zig zags have some good material in that line and the two clubs ought to be able to show us how the Chicago invention works. This will be our first opportunity to see how the game goes transplanted and the occasion will be of much interest.

A ladies' club is on the tapis and when it is consummated I promise it will be one to be patterned after in any respect you want to name. When it comes to our lady riders I want it to be understood that we are in it for beauty, grace and downright good riding, up hill and down. I will even include the matter of suitable and becoming dress, and this we all know is dangerous ground.

DETROIT. "JUDGE."

What have we done that Grand Rapids should persistently, maliciously and falsely represent us. The latest is a report originating in above town and published over the nom de plume of the hare-brained "Miza" to the effect that the Detroit Wheelmen are about to break up. Common sense (which "Miza" evidently lacks) ought to teach him better. A club on the verge of disruption or disaster would not be likely to spend between $400 and $500 for improvments, yet the above club did spend that amount lately for electric light wiring and fixtures and billiard tables. Our membership is steadily increasing and perfect harmony in our ranks, and "Griff" on his way home, why should we break up, Mr. Mud Slinger Miza?

Schimmel wants a medal, Schimmel, the pool shark. He has started the ball arolling towards a billiard and pool tournament. "Schimmie" is a sure winner.

A stupid error on my part made my notes read Montpelier instead of Brattleboro in the extract of "Griffs" letter published recently.

I received a "Smith Tourist" photo the other day. How that run comes back to me. I only went as far as Essex Centre. The line at the Custom House being checked through by "Griff" up the hill to the British American, over to the Windsor Postoffice for the picture, back for dinner. Then promptly on time we started. Clarence always does things on time. The long line swung round on to the pike and the Smith tour was fairly started; Essex Centre too soon; a short halt to say good-bye. "Griff" mounted the veranda of the little hotel and made one of his characteristic speeches, and then the long line passed on, leaving a little knot of wheelmen, each with a feeling of loneliness and disappointment and wishing with all his might that he too was to go with that merry party and jolly Clarence Smith.

And here in this fair "City of the Straits" we hope to greet you all in '91.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

"X-BONES."

GREAT was the surprise of the Arlington Wheelmen on receiving the number of the BICYCLING WORLD for November 14th, not only to find a communication from their newly-appointed correspondent, but also to find a vivid portrayal of the personnel of that gentleman on the second page under the introduction of old Hickory. As to the aforesaid correspondent, however, he doesn't know how to feel—whether to regard this introduction of him to the public naked as the original man, in fact more so, as a journalistic invasion of his private individuality, or whether to accept it as a delicate compliment from brother Elliott. He is rather inclined to view it in the latter light. Perhaps, after all, it is a case of mistaken identity, and the anatomical portrait pictured in the WORLD is that of a twin brother and not that of "X-Bones" himself. To settle the matter, "X-Bones" may some time send his veritable picture to be published for the purpose of comparison. In the meantime, he will consider the advisability of suing old Hickory for violation of a copyright held by "X-Bones" in such picture.

AT the last meeting of the Arlingtons, a committee was appointed with full authority to conduct their enterprise of making a bicycle track and athletic park, and such committee has since met and appointed sub-committees and assigned the necessary duties to the respective members.

WITHOUT meaning to blame anybody, it occurs to "X-Bones" that the officers of the District of Columbia and of the Virginia Divisions of the L. A. W. might make some effort towards obtaining facilities for conveyance of wheels over railroads running South from Washington, in regard to which wheelmen have had so much trouble in the past.

IT was kindly suggested to "X-Bones" in social conversation with a gentleman in the office of the Piedmont Air-Line that an interview with the manager of that line might be advantageous to the wheelmen, and the polite offer of an introduction to that officer was made. Should not the Transportation Committee or Consuls Atwater and White see to this?

UPON the subject of the L. A W. and politics, "X-Bones" wants to express his conviction that Mr. Mott has, with his usual acumen, exactly stated the matter in principle, and that he sees no room for further discussion—except as to the application in detail of the views so expressed.

DAYTON, O.

"EAGLE."

THE members were treated with a very select muscical entertainment the other evening by Messrs. Paul Keenan and Otto Bauman officiating on the piano, Mr. Edward with his musical stick, Carl Bauman on his 150 year old violin, E. H. Houck on his new accordion, while Walter Keenan brought in a few solemn airs with the banjo, Mr. Thomas McGee acting as Director. I do not know whether it was the music or the instruments, but from some unseen cause the other members were seen to be disappearing out of the nearest doors, quite to the disgust of the players. However, quiet again ruled, and the entertainment proceeded with a few discords. However, I am proud to say that we have an elegant orchestra.

EVERY night a crowd of members can be seen congregated around the stove in our now cosy club house, some spinning yarns, while others amuse themselves in the various games.

MR. OTTO BAUMAN, the champion rider of this city, can now be seen riding occasionally after a severe illness. We are glad to see him getting again in trim for the races next spring.

WE are just in receipt of five elegant pictures from the Cincinnati Club, taken while on a trip. They are very amusing and can be conspicuously seen in our parlor.

THE probabilities are that the Dayton Bicycle Club will give a banquet Thanksgiving evening, and it is to be hoped that it will prove a success. Our committees have been very fortunate, however, and no doubt it will be a grand success.

MR. CHAS. GEIGER, the racing man of the Dayton Ramblers has now joined us. This leaves the Ramblers in darkness. Racing men come high, but we must have them.

NEW HAVEN.

"ELM CITY."

THE social season has begun with us as in other sections. Every other Sunday afternoon the New Haven Bicycle Club has a "Sacred Concert" in its cosy clubhouse, with instrumental and vocal music. The polo season has also commenced. The Connecticut Wheelmen's Polo League is composed this season of teams from the Hartford, Meriden, Bridgeport and New Haven clubs, each of which will put up a strong team to compete for the championship. Polo furnishes us with recreation and excitement during the winter season.

SEVERAL additions and alterations have been made to the New Haven Bicycle Clubhouse. A large open fireplace in the cardroom draws a circle around its pleasant wood fire every evening, and new carpets and furniture add to the reading-room. Few clubs have cosier or pleasanter quarters than the New Haven Bicycle Club.

THE Rovers Bicycle Club have a road race Thanksgiving Day, the course being from Four Corners around the East Haven Green and back. They are a new club here, who have started out very prosperously, with a membership of 70. We bespeak for them success, and hope they may realize it.

LADY cyclists are not seen so much on the streets of this conservative city as in some others. We, however, have a few. The number will not be augmented by the sight of any such exhibition as I saw a few weeks ago, of a lady mounting a gentleman's safety and riding some distance, regardless of the exposure of person she made. Such things as these make Dame Grundy talk with reason.

NEW HAVEN will lay an asphalt pavement on Church street, between Chapel and Elm, as a sample, and, if it gives satisfaction, will be the commencement of the use of that pavement here.

MR. WEAVER, the "Across the Continent" tourist, is in Boston.

IT is with considerable pride that I notice other divisions copying Connecticut in their form of issuing road-books and the appointment of division attorneys. We lead, let others follow.

LOOK out for the spring tournament of the New Haven Club, the largest spring meet in the country.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

"TREB."

THE Long Island Wheelmen held their club banquet at the Clarenden Hotel on Saturday evening last, with fifty-one in attendance. It was to celebrate their eighth anniversary, and proved most successful in every particular. Several bright speeches were listened to. President Luscomb was extremely happy in his remarks, and the committee are to be congratulated upon the arrangements.

THE Riverside wheelmen were over to our city on Friday evening to play their match game with the Brooklyns' bowling team. The victory went to the home club, who entertained the visitors at their clubhouse afterwards.

IT has been a matter of wonderment to me, on these magnificent riding days we have been having, to notice the rapid growth of the long pants brigade. They are to be seen each Sunday morning in uncountable numbers in the Park. Here is a field for club recruits. Surely they are not all as bad as they look, and would make good club members. Every one of these riders, transformed into a neat uniform, would help the cause of cycling, while in their present state they are a detriment.

DECEMBER will be a very lively month for the Brooklyn Club. They have six bowling matches on, a stag reception for the 10th and a Christmas ladies' reception for the 23d, while the whist and pool tournaments open on the 17th.

NEW JERSEY NOTES.

"PALISADES."

THE North Jersey Wheeling Clubs are seldom heard from in the columns of the WORLD and the undersigned, while recognizing the grave responsibilities and dangers in writing up cycling facts, intends to try and keep the wheeling public posted in regard to this section.

THE Bergen County Wheelmen now number 50 members and that means with them as many active and working members. They contemplate building a club house in the spring, and if the architect's plans are followed it will surpass any cyclists' club house in the State. Their recent entertainment netted them $150 Several more will follow and all proceeds are to go toward fitting up the proposed club house.

No news from Englewood! Wake up Colgate!

A FEW OPINIONS ON

⋖ THE EAGLE ⋗

We call attention to the following testimonials which speak for themselves.

They are from men who have been there, and who know what they are talking about.

HONEY BROOK, Pa., Nov. 7th, 1890.

EAGLE BICYCLE MFG CO., Stamford, Conn.:

Gentlemen—The Eagle Bicycle, like the best man who rides it, is a "Freak." After the first trial I gave it up as a failure, but a second attempt went better, and I now am thoroughly in love with it.

My wheel stood learning to ride and about one-thousand miles of scorching over a worn out pike, without any repairs or attention, except cleaning and grease, and I am satisfied it is the fastest road wheel I ever sat on.

Very truly, FRANK M. DAMPMAN.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 17, 1890.

EAGLE BICYCLE MFG. CO., Stamford, Conn.:

Gentlemen—I received my wheel last July, and I am pleased to have this opportunity to express myself in regard to the "Eagle." Aside from its safety qualities, I recommend it as being the best wheel made for all round riders; combining speed, durability, and above all, ease of running, which makes riding a pleasure instead of labor. I have been riding the "Ordinary" some years, and used nearly all the best make of wheels, and must say that I have not ridden a better wheel than the Eagle. I advise all my friends to get one as soon as they can, then they will enjoy riding.

Wishing you the best of success, I remain, Very truly yours, THOS. J. HALL, Jr.

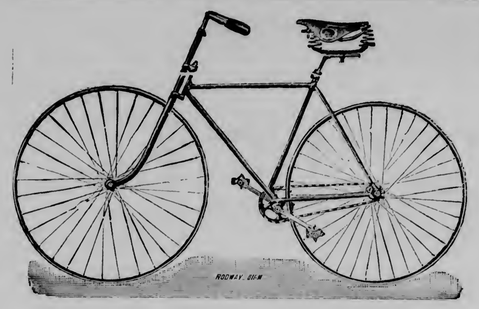
WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 1st., 1890.

EAGLE BICYCLE MFG. CO., Stamford, Conn.:

Gentlemen—After my one season's trial, I find the "Bird" to be the best all-round wheel on the market, and for long distance riding the Eagle has no equal. I have used various makes of wheels, and made records on our roads, said records being considered good at the time; but since I have had my Eagle I have broken my own and all previous local records from 1 to 100 miles, and with proper training I think the Eagle will show itself as superior on the track as it has heretofore on the road.

Wishing you a successful season of 1891, I remain, Very truly yours, W. C. SEEDS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 13th, 1890.



THE EAGLE BICYCLE MFG. CO., Stamford, Conn.:

Dear Sirs—The Eagle wheel that I have been riding for the last four months is very much nearer my idea of what a wheel should be than any I have ever ridden before, and I have ridden no less than five high grade wheels. I find it to be exceedingly satisfactory on the road and also a splendid track wheel; in fact, it has so many attractions for me that I do not think anything would tempt me to give it up, unless it would be the desire to have a lighter wheel of the same kind for the track. I am,

Very truly, EROM C. BOWEN.

P. S. "DON'T CHANGE THE FRONT WHEEL AND HEAD IN '91 RAMBLERS."

This is the postscript to a letter written us by Mr. J. B. Kaercher, our Pittsburg (Pa.) agent,—an agent who has sold dozens and dozens of RAMBLERS and who is otherwise fully competent to give advice. We have assured him, as we do every one else, that the RAMBLER will remain unchanged in those, and pretty much all other respects. We understand and appreciate too thoroughly the advantages that accrue from the small steering wheel and long bearing distances,—appreciate their relation to steadiness of steering, and ease of handling and hill climbing too well to entertain any idea of a change.

The body of Mr. Kaercher's communication is also interesting. He says: "I enclose a letter from New Castle. It comes to me in reply to the question: 'How is the Rambler?' It just comes, too, in connection with Bro. Batchelder's testimonial, he being an 'old tramp' and my letter being from a young one, but Mr. Warden's letter will show the great point in the wheel, the first and greatest, as I see it: STEERING."

The letter enclosed was as follows: "Received Rambler O. K. Got on it and rode first trial. Had a —— rider instructing me. He is all broke up on it. Rode it hands off everywhere—something he would not think of doing with his own wheel. He says: 'Any time you want reference for that wheel send them to me. It beats the ——.' Signed, HARRY E. WARDEN."

NOTICEABLE among the wheelmen at the Bergen County Wheelmen's entertainment the other evening were Pennell, Gilbert, Calkins, Bonnett and Douglass of the Elizabeth Wheelmen in full uniform. The audience thought the whole city of Elizabeth was outside judging from the lung-power exerted.

BY the way, didn't we hear something a year or two ago regarding a club house for the Hudson County Wheelmen? We think we did, but we have yet to see the building.

THE clubs in this region are agitating the question of admitting lady club members. Would some other clubs give us "points" backed by experience on the advisability of making a move in this direction?

NEWS AND COMMENT.

MR. LOUIS MASI, who did such excellent work at Peoria last September, is a Swiss, and as it became known that he was to leave Peoria the cyclers of that city determined to give him a good send off as a slight token of esteem. Consequently fifty-three gentlemen sat down to a fine repast at Frederick's Hotel, and after the banquet the Rev. D. D. Odell was called on to propose the toast of "the guest of the evening." During the speech the reverent gentleman took a handsome medal out of his pocket and presehted it to Mr. Masi. The medal was inscribed as follows: "Two miles tandem, 5m. 15 3 5 sec., Peoria." Reverse side, "World's record medal presented to Myers and Masi by their fellow wheelmen." Mr. Myers was the recipient of an exact duplicate of the medal. Mr. Masi sails from New York Saturday, 29 November.

THE Citizens' Club of New York has applied as a body for membership in the N. Y. A. C. The membership of the "Cits" is 80, and the application will be acted upon by the club of the winged foot at its next meeting, December 2.

BY AND BY we shall hear that a cyclist will be shaving himself while riding, if the following ridiculous item could by any possibility be true: "A new sketching apparatus for cyclists has recently appeared in England. The paper is placed on a small board in front of the cyclist and the work can be roughly contoured in about half the time ordinarily required."

COL. A. A. POPE has gone to California for a few months' vacation.

MR. ALECK HILL, American manager for the Coventry Machinists' Co., sailed for England last week, to be gone until about the first of January next.

J. S. DEAN on Wednesday last received the Democratic nomination for the Common Council from Ward 14, in this city.

ON Thursday evening, November 20, a dinner was given to "twenty-four un-tarif-fied Democrats by twenty-four Quay-King Republicans of the Century Wheelmen of Philadelphia, in grateful commemoration of the saving of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by Robert E. Pattison ('Our Bob'), on November 24, 1890." The menu was one that was "fit for a king." The toasts were apropos, and good humor and jollity reigned supreme.

MR. HENRY G. PRIEST who for the past three months has been in this country in the interest of the Quadrant Tricycle Co., will sail for England next Saturday. Mr. Priest has made many warm personal friends during his sojourn in the "Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave."

BICYCLES cannot be regarded as "personal effects." They are, however, ranked as "household effects" by the Treasury Department at Washington. But when entered under the claim as above for free entry it must be proven that the bicycle has been in use by the owner abroad for not less than one year.

THE New Bedford (Mass.) Cycle Club gave a dance in Acushnet Lodge Hall last week Wednesday. Gray's Orchestra furnished the music.

HERE is an item which has a depth of meaning, which to the believer in better roads is very significant: "The bicycle craze is taking a rest and our youngsters are stalking around on stilts doing some tall walking."

THE Indiana Division will issue a road book, which it is hoped will be in shape by the early part of 1891.

ELIZABETH P. DERR of Philadelphia, the widow of Jno. H. Derr, has entered suit for $10,000 damages against George Wood of the same city on the claim that the death of Jno. Derr was brought about by George Wood, who, while riding a bicycle, knocked deceased down. Particulars appeared in our issue of some three weeks ago.

THE Rev. James Mc. N. Farrar of the First Reformed Church of Brooklyn is a near relative to the famous Canon Farrar of England. The Rev. James Farrar is described a splendid specimen of muscular Christianity and he is an enthusiastic wheelman.

THE "spokeless wheel" has bobbed up again in the same old guise. The rider sits inside the rim (?) and we hear the same old chestnutty statement "that headers and falls are rendered impossible."

The Hartford Times asks the following question: "How would the women's cyclists of Hartford like to adopt the cycling suit of the Danish women, who have solved the bicycle dress problem in this way? Tight hose combination garment, over which is the baggy sixteenth shorts, a blouse serving as a frock, jersey jacket and jockey cap."

"DAVENPORT (Iowa) cyclists are building a mile track. The Iowa State meeting will probably be held in that city in a short time."—Exchange.

THE Manhattan Bicycle Club of New York presented an attractive appearance last Friday evening upon the occasion of the club's regular monthly reception. The parlors, which were tastefully decorated, were cleared of all cumbersome furniture and pretty girls in handsome gowns danced and made merry with their companions until a late hour.

SECRETARY OF WAR PROCTOR caused quite a stir in the department the other day by causing the sale of the government horse, which has been ridden by one of the department messengers and with the proceeds he purchased a bicycle to be ridden by the messenger.

THERE are very few of the old-timers but what remember "Jim" Uunderwood. Underwood's was a great stopping place for riders en route for Milton, Quincy or Canton. He moved to Rockland, Mass., some three years ago, but we are happy to say that his old friends will see "good old Jim" settled in a finely appointed drug store on Boylston street, Boston. The location is on the north side of the above street, about half-way between Washington and Tremont streets.

W. W. STALL and wife are now in England. They "sailed away" for Merrie England November 10.

A CYCLIST of Shelton, Ct., is creditee with accomplishing the foolhardy feat of riding a safety bicycle across the railroad extension trestle from Shelton to Denby, Ct. The ties were ten inches apart, and while the feat demonstrates a cool nerve, it also indicates a lack of common sense.

WE have received a copy of the pamphlet entitled "Elwell's European Tours, 1891." It is a beautifully illustrated little brochure (illustrations by A. G. Collins), which gives the full itinerary for the 1891 tour. By all means send to Mr. F. A. Elwell of Portland, Me., for one of his pamphlets.

THE New Bedford (Mass.) Cycle Club will give its third annual ball at new Odd Fellows' Hall, New Bedford, Tuesday evening, December 9th.

CHURCH WARDEN clay pipes, Turkish tobacco, a fine mixed programme, were the elements which went to make up a pleasant evening's entertainment at the clubhouse of the Hudson Co. Wheelmen on Cumminipaw avenue, in Jersey City, Saturday evening last. Negro melody, recitations, vocal solos and boxing bouts were the attractions, and, last but not least, refreshmeuts were served later on.

THE following will explain itself: "If the cycler who was riding up Bryn Mawr hill on Sunday, November 16th, when four men in a pony cart were driving in the opposite direction, will communicate with me I shall be greatly obliged to him. He will probably remember speaking to me about an incident that occurred at that time. KIRK BROWN."

IF you can ride a mile in 2 50 or better you are eligible for membership in a Chicago club which makes that the test.

THE Washington Cycle Club of Washington, D C., is having a series of very desirable runs under the leadership of Capt. Burbridge, and as a consequence the boys are getting into good riding order. On the 23d inst. a run to Marlborough, Md., was enjoyed by a jolly good party of members and guests. The runs bulletined for December are calculated to be of a most attractive and enjoyable character, and both local and visiting wheelmen were cordially invited to attend any of the same.

TWO sportsmen, members of the York (Me.) Wheelmen, went ahunting on Lake Parmachene recently and on their return home they brought a splendid deer's head mounted. They said they had shot Mr. Deer, but there are men actuated by the pettiest jealousies who intimate that ——; well, let it go at "that," some men are altogether too suspicious.

WHAT I SEE BY THE WAY.

THE air which only yesterday was so full of warmth and autumn haze—to-day is damp and raw; the sky is full of clouds and tears, through the leafless trees the winds sighs and sobs, lamenting the dying year.

But the sunshine of life comes not from without, but from within, so buttoning up my coat the tighter I board the little ferry that crosses the river and leaving behind the picturesque part of New London am soon climbing the hills of Groton.

Back of the town, overlooking the harbor, is old Fort Griswold, now falling to decay. On the way I stop beneath the granite shaft that commemorates the memory of the brave heroes that fell by the hands of the British on the 6th of September, 1781, when the traitor Benedict Arnold burnt the towns of New London and Groton and spread terror and desolation over this part of New England.

A few steps over the stone wall and here is the triangle and ditch which protected the entrance to the inner works; passing this by the moat and we stand inside the old ramparts—what a flood of memories come over us.

It is the old, old story, yet like love, ever new, the story of a nation's birth. See here we are standing beside the very spot where over a hundred years ago Col. William Ledyard stood with uncovered head to receive his captors.

I can well remember the day I stood under the gothic arches of that vast cathedral, Westminster Abbey, and a handsome young English boy (my companion) pointed out the marble tablet on which I read "To the memory of Major Andre, cruelly murdered by the Americans."

I remember how I blushed for shame, even though I knew it was a war necessity.

Well, to-day seas roll between he and I, but I longed for him to be with me again. Here standing beside this little railing, here under heaven's dome so that I might point to this tablet, that with crimson cheek he might read, "On this spot Col. William Ledyard fell, pierced by his own sword in the hands of a British officer to whom he had surrendered."

No wonder Arnold died unwept, unsung, unknown; there is no darker page on English history.

I mount the ramparts now overgrown with grass. Below me is the new fort whose guns frown down on the harbor. Away over to the left is the sea, lost in the misty horizon, in front is the spruce little city of New London, and off to the right the river Thames, bearing on its bosom great ships and steamers, along its banks the blue smoke curls in the chill November air from many a quiet farm house, up from the meadows comes the tinkle, tinkle of the cow bells, all telling of plenty and peace where once howled the dogs of war. "GRIFF."

AS TO MR. LAURIE'S VIEWS.

IN your editorial comment upon the rather remarkable effusion of Mr. Laurie in the alleged "interview" of Wheeling there are several things which you seem to have passed over.

I have not a copy of that paper before me, but if my memory serves me Mr. Laurie not only claims Osmond to be Windle's superior, but also asserts that the American safety riders are none of them up to the standard of the Englishmen.

Such remarks come in very poor taste from Mr. Laurie, although they seem to be on a par with that gentleman's conduct and utterances while here. When Mr. Laurie reached here he was received with great cordiality, cordiality more marked than ever greeted any American wheelman who had visited England; but as long as Mr. Laurie remained on this side of the water, although this cordiality remained unchanged he had nothing but ill-natured criticism and ungenerous comment to give men, riders and tracks.

As for the superiority of his fellow-countrymen, does Mr. Laurie think that any of them could beat 2.25 4-5 on a solid-tired ordinary over one of our "blooming tram-ways?"

And why did Mr. Laurie, who considers himself a representative of the first class of English safety riders, refuse to meet our best men on equal terms at Hartford?

I believe Mr. Laurie when asked the reason he failed to capture more prizes, claims to have been "all out of condition;" this claim seems rather absurd when we recall the fact that at Hartford he rode the fastest mile of his life.

And as for capturing first prizes, some of those which Mr. Laurie now displays he never rode for, the Hartford management by duplicating the prizes having hired him not to ride his pneumatic against the solid tires. Mr. Laurie while here never showed any of the characteristics of a true sportsman and by his foolish talk and excuses since his return has merely intensified the poor impression he made with American wheelmen. ROVER.

QUEEN'S COUNTY, L. I., WHEELMEN.

ALTHOUGH nothing has appeared about us for some time, we have not been asleep by any means. On August 29, 1890, our articles of incorporation were signed, and we became a legal organization under the laws of the State of New York.

Our membership has swelled to thirty, and the question of a club-house has been discussed for the past few months, for this is something we sorely need. However, at the last meeting we took decisive action on the subject. Since then we have purchased some land, splendidly situated at the junction of five roads and two railroads, and but a few feet from the main street, which is a continuation of Fulton street, Brooklyn, and which is the chief turnpike of Long Island, running its entire length.

On this we are going to put up a pretty little frame house of ample size for our needs, and which will be completely furnished. For the benefit of our building fund, we are going to give a minstrel entertainment at the Jamaica Opera House, December 22d, at 8 o'clock, and we would be pleased to see all our fellow-wheelmen present who can come. We will guarantee them a very enjoyable evening. TREBOR.

IN CALIFORNIA.

(Concluded)

ABOUT Oakland a number of short rides of six to ten miles can be had through sections of great natural beauty and past suburban villas and country residences, whose grounds are ornamented by all that wealth and favorable climate can produce in the way of luxuriant vegetation.

The road oftenest travelled by cyclers leads straight through the city, over several miles of its poorest streets, till the county road is reached. Then one has before him an exceptionally good road for seventy or eighty miles in a southeasterly direction. From Fruitvale, where the city street becomes the county road, to San Leandro, there is little of interest. The land stretches away to the bay on the west and the hills rise abruptly a half mile to the east. The houses are insignificant, and the people one meets are mostly Portuguese vegetable gardeners, except on Sundays or holidays when the road is alive with fine turnouts from San Francisco or Oakland, containing pleasure seekers enjoying one of their favorite rides.

The Portuguese gardener is an eccentric individual who carefully trains his team to take fright upon the approach of a bicycle, at which he never fails to gnash his teeth and swear. It is not uncommon to meet a cart containing two of these people, who will drive their horse to the side of the road upon sighting a wheelman, and while one grips the reins the other alights and holds the animal's head, soothing and caressing his steed until the dreaded bicycle is passed.

San Leandro is a pretty little town in the centre of the fruit and vegetable gardens which supply San Francisco. From thence to Haywards, five miles, the road approaches nearer to the hills, passing several very fine fruit farms whose highly cultivated orchards of apricot, cherry and peach trees surround modern mansions testifying to the prosperity and good taste of their owners.

Haywards is thirteen miles from Oakland and is the objective point of many club runs, the road being uniformly good throughout the year and the route possessing numerous attractions in the shape of fruit farms along the road and good hotels at the end of the run. The town itself is a pleasant place of about 1500 population, and has a bright, clean appearance which renders it very inviting.

Continuing to Niles, ten miles further, the road becomes sandy and rolling, and beyond Niles to Mission San Jose it is rather hilly, but in compensation the view of the lower part of the bay and the adjacent towns is fine, and one travels by many attractive vineyards and orchards to sample whose products he finds a refreshing and agreeable diversion.

Nothing can be more charming in the summer time than a view of one of the Mission San Jose vineyards covering the rounded hills like a green mantle, and forming a remarkable contrast to the adjoining fields, brown and dead at certain seasons.

Here the road leaves the hills, descending to Warm Springs where it joins the road running from San Leandro to Alvarado and Centerville, and thence it is a level, smooth track as can be desired for much of the year, and leads through Milgitos to San Jose, forty-two miles from Oakland.

San Jose is a town of about 18 000 inhabitants, in the famous Santa Clara valley. It contains many enthusiastic cyclers and was the scene of the League meet of 1890. From San Jose various fine roads lead to localities of great interest, the chief point of attraction being, probably, the Lick observatory on Mt. Hamilton, twenty-six miles distant, the trip to which has been described so often that I will not attempt it. Alum Rock, Saratoga, Agnews and Los Gatos are all points well worth visiting by the cycler. From San Jose the main thoroughfare South lies by the side of the railroad track through the Santa Clara valley. The fine residences prove the wealth of the farmer, and the waving fields of grain and heavily laden fruit trees demonstrate the richness of the soil. There is much to please the eye along the road, particularly the frequent groves of huge live oak and white oak trees with their mossy limbs standing guard over the horses and cattle which shelter themselves from the midday sun beneath the broad branches, opening their eyes in lazy surprise as the wheelman spins by.

The road for most of the way is a happy combination of gravel and clay that forms a surface smooth as asphalt and hard as cement. This highway continues to Gilroy, thirty miles below San Jose, and to Hollister, fifteen miles further, beyond it becomes sandy.

It is a common run for wheelmen to ride to San Jose or Gilroy, and then take the railroad back to San Francisco, the strong northwest winds which blow daily from May till November rendering it hard pedalling in a northerly direction. W. P.

SHALL THE LEAGUE "DABBLE IN POLITICS."

Editor Bicycling World: Your general invitation to have us all spout on the subject of the League dabbling in politics is too tempting a one to put away from me, particularly as it gives me a chance at last to agree with the genial Mott. With him I would be strongly inclined to say (in my own language, not his) that a little hard horse sense is sadly needed in some quarters to get rid of this silly notion that the League is too high and holy a thing to be dragged in the mire of American citizenship. Whether we can deliver the goods when we have made a bargain is another thing; for as I've suggested before, there are more important things agitating the American people by which the votes even of wheelmen are affected than those which most directly concern cycling interests. Bad roads are a great obstacle to trade and industry, but protective tariffs are greater, and there is strong reason to believe that the force bill influenced more votes at the recent election than the burning issues of sidewalk riding or lamp and bell ordinances. But the possible failure of the rank and file to follow by no means absolves the leaders from exerting such influence as they may have, and politicians would be more than human if they granted us favors when we did not even try to give them anything in return. To much of our work this consideration does not really apply, and especially to most of what can be done for highway improvement, for then the short road to success is that along which the present management of the League is quietly but most effectively working—through the educating of the people at large to want good roads and to demand them not in the interest of cycling alone, but of the whole community.

Granting, however, that the League should at times "go into politics" I again agree with Mr. Mott that it should do so through the properly designated media, and I would illustrate that of my own motion by saying that it should not be in the irresponsible fashion that has hitherto been adopted in New York. One of the mistakes that amateur politicians are apt to fall into is to bring discredit on the causes with which they become identified by practicing expedients that professional politicians are ashamed of. Under this head comes the trick of getting out a manifesto on the eve of election when it is too late to meet it with denial; a proceeding that was so moulded with popular indignation in the Morey letter affair in 1880 as to make it a very nasty weapon to handle ever since. In apparent ignorance of current political ethics on this point this is precisely what has been done in at least two instances where our suffrages have been asked for "wheelmen's friends" as against their enemies.

Moreover, while my own sympathies at the recent election were on the side of Tammany and against the ticket headed by Mr. Scott, I have no hesitation in saying that the attack made upon the latter gentleman because of what he said at the hearing on the liberty bill was wholly unfair. He appeared there as legislative counsel for the city by order of Mayor Hewitt, and like any other lawyer he used what appeared to him to be the most effective arguments to defeat the bill. What he said wasn't pleasant, but those of us who do not wear pretty ribbons on our wheels or dally with the nursemaids in the park can afford to smile at the description given of us; to resent which is so childish that if it were effective with any great number of wheelmen it would rob us of all title to public backing where we want it, as men who would subordinate important public interests to a little petty personal pride.

This whole movement against Mr. Scott, as well as that in favor of Gov. Hill because he did not veto a bill that had been almost unanimously passed by the Legislature, and the other one asking support of another candidate on the sole assurance of a prominent wheelmen that in some mysterious way the candidate had been our friend are at least open to the charge that they were got up to curry a little political interest for their promoters. To avoid such suspicion the rational way would seem to be for the official representatives of the League to formally recognize public services, not promises, rendered for or against us; not in the heat of the campaign, but at the time of performance, and when the men who have thus done us favors or injury again came up for office to recite the facts as part of our official record at a date sufficiently in advance of election to admit of refutatation if a mistake. E. J. SHRIVER.

"STAR" STILL GETS "FITS"

Editor Bicycling World: Your Cincinnati correspondent, "Star," will succeed in getting himself generally disliked if he continues his present course. Five out of his seven paragraphs in the BICYCLING WORLD, November 14th, consist merely of sneering allusions to his fellow wheelmen. Three out of these five are flings at the Social Cycling Club. What percentage of the 19 000 readers of the BICYCLING WORLD care anything about his quarrel with the Socials? It is pretty evident that, whatever may be the impressions made upon "Star" by the favorable judgment of visiting wheelmen concerning one of Cincinnati's famous products, we cannot look for him to help make the sport of cycling (or its literature) "elevated and refined." Considering his position in the League, "Star" should set a better example to the younger correspondents and try to occupy a little higher level. UNOTHAT.

THE HARTFORD MEET FOR 1891.

[By some stupendously careless oversight the following notice did not appear in our last week's issue as it should have done.—ED.].

Editor Bicycling World: At the annual meeting of the Hartford Wheel Club held November 11th, 1890, it was voted to hold their annual tournament for 1891, on September eighth and ninth.

Yours, F. E. HASTINGS, Secretary.

RACING EVENTS.

AT NEWARK, N. J.—At the games given by the Atalanta Wheelmen, Nov. 21, at Bellevue avenue skating rink, the following cycle events were contested:

Half-mile safety novice—F. Pring won first heat in 2.21 1-2 A. D. Tompkins, Riverside A. C., was second. Second heat—Won by G. M. Brinkerhoff, P. C. T. A. A.; George DeW. Brown, R. W., second, Time, 2.16. Final heat in this race was won by George M. Brinkerhoff, P. C. T. A. A.; A. D. Tompkins, Riverside A. C second, and George DeW. Brown, R. W., third. Winner's time, 2.12 4-5.

One-mile safety handicap—Competitors were started three in each heat, winner only in final heat. They were as follows: First heat, Frank Brock, Atalanta Wheelmen, time 4 3-5. Second heat, F. Pring, East Orange Cyclers; time 4.26. Third heat, H. Snyder, Brooklyn; time 4.20 Fourth heat, A. Hempstead, Brooklyn, time 4.32 4-5. [No handicaps given.—ED.

Half-mile safety club handicap—The winner was S. R. Pridham, 30 yards handicap; F. Brock, scratch, second. Time, 2.05.

AT ROCHESTER, N. Y.—The 10 miles' (or thereabouts) handicap road race was held Friday, Nov. 24. The results for first five was as follows: F. Smith, 4m. handicap, first, time 4 08.10; W. Le Mesurier, 3m., second, 4 08 30; P. Dukelow, 3m., third, 4.09.21; C. J. Appell, 5m., fourth, 4.10 06; R. Henricus, 5m., fifth, 4.10.38. Although Mr. Smith was the winner it will be seen that Le Mesurier made the best time under his handicap.

AT COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 10—Monday, November 10, was Bicycle Day at the Exposition, and the results were as follows:

One mile novice—Won by T. F. Sharpe in 3.50; Ed Munn, second.

Half mile—Won by Frank Bell. Time, 1.50 3-4. J. H. Polhill was a good second.

Three quarter mile, which was won by J. H. Polhill in 1.36. Mr. F. Bell was a splendid second, crossing the tape only a foot behind. The time in this race lowers the American record for that distance, and will stand as a record for some time to come. [This time claimed is indeed phenomenal, and will require the acceptance by the Racing Board before it can be allowed.—ED.].

State chamionship, ordinary—Was won by Mr. Polhill, Mr. Vaughn of Griffin, second. Time, 3.22.

Mile safety—was won by J. H. Polhill; Mr. F. Bell second. Time, 3.19.

Iowa League Hotels.

The following additional appointments of League Hotels in Iowa have been made, viz.:

Humbolt—Russell House, Russell Bros proprietors, Main street, rates $1.50 per day.

Ir dianola—Madison House, R. Vosburg, proprietor, rates $1.50 per day. Free 'bus to and from all trains.

Rock Rapids—Hotel Lyon, C. B. Miller, proprietor, rates $1.50 per day.

Stuart—The Arlington, Ed Churchill, proprietor, rates $2.00 per day.

The rates given above are for members of the League of American Wheelmen only, and are a reduction of about twenty five per cent from regular rates. To secure these rates wheelmen must show their League membership tickets. These houses are all first class and the best that there are in their respective cities. I would cordially recommend them to all members of the League. ACKLEY HUBBARD, Chief Consul.

Spencer, Iowa, November 19th, 1890.

Vermont.

In accordance with ar icle four, section three of the Constitution, I have this day appointed Mr. F. A. Roberts of Brattleboro, Vt., Secretary and Treasurer of the Vermont Division L. A. W.

This appointment puts our Division in bett-r working order and will enable us, with the help of every member of the Division, to wake up "Old Vermont" in '91.

Yours fraternally, F. A. HUBBARD,
Brattleboro, Vt, Nov 20th '90. Chief Consul.

New York Club Representative.

At our regular montly meeting held November 14th, 1890, the following gentlemen were elected to represent the Harlem Wheelmen in the New York State Division of the L. A. W.: Mr. T. A. Raisbeck, Mr. W. H. DeGraaf. I am, Yours fraternally,

CHAS. WENDHACK,
Secretary Harlem Wheelmen.

New York, November 20th, 1890.

Massachusetts Representative.

Cincinnati, November 20, 1890.

Ohio Division.

November 15, 1889, Ohio, 833
November 14, 1890 Ohio, 1151.

Still 849 short of the desired 2000! Do you smile? Well, so did others a year ago when the mark was put at 1200.

Now if in the past year Fremont could increase her membership from 2 to 10, Sidney from 4 to 10, Sandusky from nothing to 10, Findlay from 2 to 14, Tiffin from 6 to 15, Chillicothe from 3 to 20, Youngstown from 10 to 20, Troy from 3 to 40, Springfield from 33 to 46, Steubenville from 20 to 46, Columbus from 20 to 53, and Dayton from 6 to 75! there ought surely to be no difficulty whatever in reaching the desired 2000 if only those localities which have stood still or have decreased in membership could but catch the infection.

This is not idle talk. It is only plain talk!

If the members in some of the localities not mentioned could only shake off their lethargy and wake up to the fact that the success of the Division depends more on the efforts of individual members than it does on the officers, our membership would receive such a boom that some of the Divisions that have passed us would be left out of sight in the rear.

I have spoken. Will you try?

Fraternally, M. A. HIGH, Chief Consul.

To Members:

What is in a name? "Hustle," and it is said that an officer of this Division makes more mention of it than any word in the English language except "Join the League." In making up the list of your cycling friends whom you should by all means induce to become members of our organization, do not forget to use the words quoted above. Our membership is already nearly 450, and but 50 more members are needed to bring us within hailing distance of the 500 mark. If you need advice, application blanks or circulars write to me for them.

Fraternally yours, ROBT. HOLM, C. C.

Missouri Appointment.

Mr. F. A. Scott of Moberly is hereby appointed Chairman of the Highways Improvement Committee, vice W. A. Rothwell resigned.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication. and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

Half-mile ordinary—F. Bell, first; George W. Mooney of Birmingham, second. Time, 1.54 3 4.

One mile safety, State championship—Won by J. H. Polhill. Time, 3.51. Sharpe was a good second.

Quarter-mile, ordinary—Won by J. H. Polhill. Time, .37 1-2. Mr. F. Bell second. This was a very exciting race, and was greatly enjoyed.

Two miles, safety, was won by Mr. Bell. Time, 6.10. Polhill second.

One mile consolation—It was won by Mr. Treadaway. Time, 4 13 1-2. Cason second.

AT CAMBRIDGE, MASS., November 15th, the annual handicap road race of the H. U. C. A. took place. Davis, '91, and Taylor, '92, were the only scratch men. Hawes, '93, had 2 min.; Davis, '93, 2 min. and 20 sec.; Barrow, '91, 3 min.; Olmstead, '94, 3 1-2 min.; Hochstader, '93, 5 min.; Keller, '94, Pratt, '94, and Bates, '92, 6 1-4 min.; Simpson, '93, 7 min.; DeWolf, '93, 7 min. and 20 sec.; Tower, '94, Macallister, '94, and Detrick, '91, 8 min. The race was won by Pratt, '94, his actual time being 35 min. 56 sec., Macallister, '94, second. The two scratch men, Davis, '91, and Taylor, '92, came in fifth and seventh respectively.

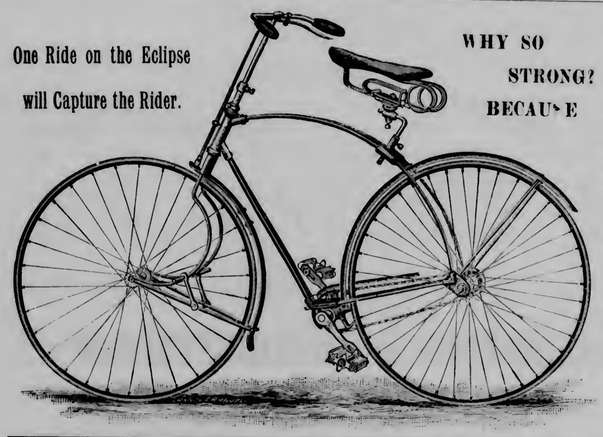
THE BOWN PATENT.

THE case of Bown vs. the Centaur Cycle Co. of England has been decided in the first instance in favor of the defendants. The case, however, has been appealed to the higher courts, and the Bown people fully expect the decision of the lower courts will be reversed.

ST. GEORGE'S ENGINEERING CO.

JUST as we go to press we received an official notification of a change in the ownership of the St. George's Engineering Co. Mr. C. A. Palmer, who has been manager of the Company for the past six years, has purchased the interest of Mrs. C. Cornforth, and thus becomes sole owner.

THE Benfield & Milne Mfg. Co. advertise on Page 123 a little device which will prove a boon to the safety rider who has not already got a device to hold the machine stiff against a wall or a post. The safeties not thus fitted will wobble and double into angles that makes it almost impossible to lean up against a wall or post without falling down. The patent support offered by Benfield & Milne Mfg. Co. is simple and effective, as is also the brake lock. See Page 123.



M. L. BRIDGMAN, one of Gormully & Jeffery's travellers, after several weeks good work on the Pacific coast is now on his way back to Chicago. He "did" Montana and the Dakotas to advantage, notwithstanding snow, short crops and the Indian scare.

GEO. BIDWELL will open a store in Chicago and his "leader" will be the Warwick Perfection. The store selected is 270-2 Wabash avenue. It has a frontage of 42 feet and 100 feet deep. Mr. Bidwell will take possession of the store and start in with the new year. In connection with the store will be a riding school in the basement, lighted with electricity and ventilated by means of an exhaust fan. With the Warwick he will handle the Kenwood, the Psycho and the St. Nicholas cycles. Mr. Art. A. Taylor will be associated with Mr. Bidwell This will make a strong team and combination surely.

A HANDSOME banner has been received by Messrs. Warman & Hazlewood, Coventry, Eng., from their chief American agents and is now on view in the window of Messrs. R. Smyth & Co., High street, Coventry. One side is of crimson silk and bears the legend, "To Warman & Hazlewood's Workmen from the Sweeting Cycle Co., Philadelphia, U. S. A.," in gold letters; the other bears the Stars and Stripes worked in colored silks and emblazoned with the mottoes, Rule Britannia" and "Hail Columbia." The whole is beautifully finished and ornamented with gold cords and tassels.

W. W. STALL will take the New England agency for the Hickory wheel and will push the sales of that wheel in his usual splendid manner.

IN addition to their cushion-tired Rambler safeties it is authoritively announced that the Gormully & Jeffery Mfg Co. will also list a cushion-tired American Light Champion Ordinary of the rational pattern.

One Ride on the Eclipse will Capture the Rider.

WHY SO STRONG? BECAUSE THE ECLIPSE.

"BRONCHO,"

NOISELESS, CHAINLESS, LIGHT ROADSTER, SAFETY BICYCLE

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 10, 1890.

M. V. Livingston Cycle Mfg. Co., 245 Columbus ave., Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—"BRONCHO" entered our races and WON ! ! I received the wheel O. K., Monday, 10th (to-day), at 9.15 A. M., and by 10 o'clock I was riding it upon the track. At 10.30 the first safety race was called.

When the two-mile safety open was called, J. H. Polhill (formerly professional, with record of 2 52) on his racer, weight 28 pounds, and F. M. Bell, on his L. R. "BRONCHO," weight 45 pounds, came to the scratch.

This was THE race of the day, and showed what the "BRONCHO" could do, even under a decided disadvantage of 17 pounds.

Polhill declared himself in splendid condition, and had been training hard for a month. I was in fine health, although I had only been upon the track THREE times before the races; had done no training and was deprived the use of my "BRONCHO" ten days before the races, as you know, and did what little training I had on an ordinary.

At the pistol flash, Polhill jumped to the lead, but gradually "BRONCHO" caught up, and cheer after cheer went up, as "BRONCHO" crossed the tape a good length in the lead on the first lap. Then with a spurt, "BRONCHO" had distanced the "———" and led by a good hundred feet till the seventh lap, when Polhill saw I was not watching and darted to the front with a grand spurt Before I could take in the situation, he was nearly fifty feet ahead, and about to finish the last lap. Quick as thought I doubled up on "BRONCHO," and it acted like magic. Within three hundred yards I had passed Polhill and was fifty feet to the front. Polhill saw he was defeated and stopped pedalling, nearly an eighth of a mile in the rear of "BRONCHO'S" hind wheel. I finished, hands down, in 6.10. This is SOUTHERN RECORD. Hurrah for "BRONCHO."

In this race it showed,

First, "BRONCHO" has speed.

Second, a L. R. "BRONCHO" is as easy running as a 28-pound racer of any other make.

Third, that the "BRONCHO" is the best safety made.

Hoping to do better work for you in the future, I am, with thanks for past favors. Your friend, (Signed) F. M. BELL.

P. S.—First mile of two-mile in 6.10 was made in 3.02 3-5; also Southern safety record.

100 $ PROTECTORS FOR COLUMBIA RIDERS.

QUIDPROQUO.

XXXVI.

INSPECTING the "Thief List" of the Pope Mfg. Co. this morning, I notice that these rewards appear to be paid mostly to those who DON'T ride Columbias; and that struck me as wrong at first,---you know how things do sometimes come up edgewise and look strange. But of course it is those who DO ride Columbias that get the protection afforded by the greater danger in stealing Columbias, (now pretty generally known,) and the returned machines when they are stolen. Look at the papers this fall, with this in mind, and you will see a surprising number of rewards offered and descriptions advertised for stolen machines of all kinds. The Columbia rider has that value in his machine as an extra, that if it be stolen there will be plenty to capture the machine and return it in good condition to him without expense or trouble. The following statement, which I quote as a specimen, shows both the usefulness of this offer and the promptness with which it is paid.

BOSTON, Mass., 31 Oct., 1890.

Gentlemen:—Mr. George Taylor, of Ipswich, Mass., now a special student at Harvard College, and myself, R. Percy Chittenden, of Cambridge, Mass., now at the Harvard Law School, both lost our wheels. Mine is an English wheel; his wheel is a Columbia. A week after my loss, I captured a man riding said wheel of mine. This party was not the thief. I took him to the station house at Cambridge, served up a warrant for the arrest of George Clark of Somerville, after learning that the said Clark had in his possession another wheel besides mine. As I knew of your offer, as well as the loss of my friend Taylor's wheel, I suspected he was the author of the theft, both of my wheel and Taylor's. My expectation was justified. He was arrested at school on my warrant, and gave information which led to the recovery of George Taylor's machine, which, as said, is a Columbia of your make. On apprehension, George Clark pleaded not guilty; a week later, this morning, he, on advice of Counsel, withdrew this plea and pleaded guilty. I was there as witness, but of course was not called upon. This was in the Third District Court of Cambridge. He being a minor, Judge Sawyer sentenced him to the Massachusetts Reformatory School. So I recovered the bicycle, returned it to its owner, detected the thief, procured his conviction this forenoon. There being no other party entitled to the reward offered, I claimed it and hereby acknowledge its receipt from your hands, a check for one hundred dollars. [Signed] R. PERCY CHITTENDEN, 140 Mt. Auburn St., Cambridge.

To the Pope Manufacturing Co.

RETURNING THE WHEEL.

IN this case the recoverer divided the reward equitably with the owner of the wheel, the wheel having been much injured. In all cases the Pope Mfg. Co. require the return of the cycle in good condition or good repair to the owner's satisfaction before they pay the reward, or, what is the equivalent, that if the wheel is injured or the owner has been to any expense, an equitable allowance be made to him out of the reward. In several instances this incentive has led to the breaking up of systematic thieveries of bicycles. Incidentally, it has resulted in the return of wheels of other makes. Still over and over again let it be impressed everywhere that a cycle-thief is a sneak, a scoundrel coward, and a horse-thief; that the public must leave bicycles unprotected sometimes as much as horses, and that the severity of punishment ought to be adjusted according to the practical necessity, as to horse-thieves

NO LONGER is the honest wheelman protected in his property by the ignorance of every one else as how to handle it. No longer is the courteous cycler protected in his personal safety by the absorbing curiosity and feeling of mystery with which others look at him until he is out of harm's way. He must now not only defend himself, but also claim his rights to protection of person and property under the laws made for the restraint of evil doers.

"TELZAH TELLS US

"THAT he still owns and during rainy weather occasionally rides a Challenge Bicycle imported by the Pope Mfg. Co. in 1878, and in continuous use on the road for a dozen years and in rinks where hundreds have taken their first lessons on 'John Bull'; that his Standard Columbia No. 61, purchased in 1879, is not yet worn out; that he can trace nearly all his Specials, Experts, Light Roadsters, Tandems, Safeties, etc., that have carried him safely more than the distance round the world—not dead but cyclometer reckoning—6,000 miles of which were ridden on a special Col. without repairs, and the wheel is to-day in as easy running order as when made a decade ago, and finally, that unsolicited he adds his testimonial of his appreciation for the good work his Columbias have ever done in keeping him in perfect health while carrying him in safety over so many thousands of miles of roadway in pursuit of business and recreation."

THE GOOD OLD TIMERS.

OLD readers of the WORLD, old L. A. W. men, and old timers generally, will have recognized the above communication from "Telzah," which surprised me one day addressed "To Quidproquo," as a happy evidence of continued vitality and good will to wheelmen in their veteran comrade, C. A. Hazlett, Esq., now cashier of the First National Bank of Portsmouth, New Hampshire. I hand it in to the printer for this page exactly as I received it, but hope that I am not offending him by adding a few words from his reply to my note of acknowledgement. After some friendly personal words, he says: "Business cares have so steadily increased that I have no time to use my pen in the interests of wheeling and cannot even use my wheels for recreation as in the 70's and 80's; but I do run many hundreds of miles to and from and about my business yearly, in fact, every day, rain and snow only preventing, [I remember the winter when nothing was allowed to prevent your record of a ride every day in the year, including Sundays, eh?---QUO.] and occasionally take a longer spin with as much pleasure as of old; and yet somehow I look back regretfully to the early days when we had so much to contend against in the way of prejudice, horse-shying, heavy cone-bearing wheels and uncomfortable uniforms, when every wheelman you met was a gentleman you felt safe in inviting to your house." Yes, my dear old Comrades, we all look back kindly and witsfully toward the days of our rosier youth in bicycling; but just look at the hosts of fellows who are having their early days now.

"LARGE AND RESPECTABLE."

CONTEMPLATION of the large and respectable body of wheelmen now in this country, which some figure to be more than a quarter of a million, and of the thieves and beats and loafers and sharpers and failures of a variety of sorts that get sprinkled in with or hang about them, reminds one of Hannibal Hamlin's caucus. It was one of those pleasant meetings of Quidproquo's remembrance, when as a boy he was introduced to Vice President Hamlin just after his election. The swarthy, hardy farmer son of Maine gave smile and a hand shake not soon forgotten. But the story came out later. It runs that, at a caucus in his town, only Mr. Hamlin and a neighbor of very large stature were presest; but Mr. Hamllin went on to read his resolutions, purporting to say that they were presented to a "large and respectable" body of citizens. "Hold on," interrupted the large man, "that ain't true, there's only two of us." Mr. Hamlin replied, "You just keep still,---it's all right; you are large and I'm respectable. That makes it, don't it?"

SINGER CYCLES.

15 Years in America.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 30, 1890.

MESSRS. SINGER & Co., Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—It gives us much pleasure to add our testimony to the superiority of the "Singer." It has given better satisfaction to our customers than any other machine we ever sold. They are all enthusiastic in its praise. Our sales are gradually increasing, because almost every purchaser brings us another. We have never yet sold a "Singer" safety that has failed to give perfect satisfaction. We are especially pleased at the promptness with which parts are furnished, never having to wait more than two or three days after ordering, whereas we are seldom able to procure parts of an American made machine in less than a week, and generally have to wait at least two. We consider the "Singer" safety superior to all others in ease of running and the durability of its tires, and equal to any other in strength, lightness and beauty of finish. Very respectfully,

F. S. CAHILL & Co.

SINGER & CO., 6 & 8 Berkeley St., Boston, Mass.

ARGUMENTUM AD HOMINEM.

What a friend we have in Pro Quo,
He whose Christian name is Quid;
How he finds our every weakness,
Even those we thought were hid.

When he says we're not malignant,
And yet we juggle with the truth,
It rather makes us feel delighted
To have him credit us with youth.

For though the truth might not be sacred
To a man the age of Quo,
There still is hope for younger liars,
Because, perhaps, they didn't know.

As a French philosopher has said:

Honi soit qui mal y pense
L'homme propose et Dieu dispose.

I recently shared the end seat in a railroad car with a very irascible old gentleman. It was a cold day. (I am used to that, but evidently he wasn't.) As the passengers passed in and out they nearly all left the door open, much to the disgust of my casual companion, who would reach out wildly with his cane and close it after each one. "It beats the devil," said he, "how little the average citizen knows when he gets away from home. They act like a passel of d—— hogs." When the train stopped at his town he arose hurriedly, said "goodday" to me and moved out, actually leaving the door open behind him. Moral: A rolling stone ought to begin at home when charity gathers so much moss. See verses six and nine of "the two eyed chapter of the one eyed John."

BROTHERLY LOVE.

One evening during the Niagara invasion, I was one of a very select (don't overlook the italics) company of wheelmen who were diligently engaged in "accepting" the "hospitality" of Col. Pope. (It is called hospitality because of the intimate manner in which it associates itself with one's nervous system.)

Charley Overman asked the Col. if he had heard of a recent sentence passed on a bicycle thief in Washington. The founder of the American Bicycle industries (fearing probably that another hundred dollars would be called for) said he hadn't, and this was the story:

Scene—A Washington court room.

Judge—"Prisoner you are charged with stealing a bicycle, are you guilty?"

Prisoner—"I am."

Judge—"What kind of a bicycle was it?"

Prisoner—"Your Honor, it was a Columbia."

Judge—"I sentence you to ride it ten miles," and, added Mr. O., "the prisoner broke down and cried like a child."

The Col.'s retort was appropriate and very much to the point, but too technical to be of general interest.

Verily, "it is well for brethren to dwell together in unity," for a living example of which see

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 5 DECEMBER, 1890.

NEVER since the cycle was invented has such interest and uncertainty been evinced as is now being shown in the all absorbing tire question. The introduction of the pneumatic tire is responsible for this upheaval, and the multiplicity of patents, and the complexity of opinion is bewildering in the extreme.

The WORLD has been purposely conservative on this question, trusting rather in the proof of time and experience than in the uncertain logic of theory. In the first place we believe that we should be conservative to protect the rider from expecting too much, and also the trade from too unreasonable demands at the hands of the riders.

The history of the pneumatic is well known to our readers, and the details of its make up have been described and illustrated in these columns. That this invention is an accelerator of speed has been practically demonstrated by the wonderful records that have been made this season on machines fitted with this tire, none will gainsay. Those who have ridden it will admit its excellence as a vibration arrestor, and those who have ridden it over soft and sandy surfaces must concede the palm to the pneumatic as compared with the smaller and solid tires. These are its conceded good points, and now let us turn to the reverse side of the picture. Their initial cost, which is comparatively high; the difficulty of repairing properly in case of an accident; the liability to bursting and puncture; the necessity of constant and intellegent care in keeping the tire properly distended; the liability to leakage and the tendency to side slipping on smooth, greasy surfaces.

While in fairness to our readers we present the principle objections to the pneumatic tire, we candidly admit that barring the liability to bursting and puncturing and difficulty of repairing, the other objections are comparatively of small moment. We have been informed within a short time, that the Pneumatic Tire Co. of Dublin, Ireland, have produced a protecting jacket of peculiarly close weave, and made of cotton and fine wire that will resist all possible chances to puncture that can by any chance be met with on the road. If this is so (and we have the word of a most responsible eye witness as to the puncture resisting qualities of the new fabric), then the pneumatic will take a step forward and stand nearer the ranks of practical inventions.

The cushion tire is the outcome of the pneumatic, and was intended as a compromise between the solid and the air tires, and the first cushions were simply large, round, rubber tires from 1 1-4 "to 1 1-2" diameter, with a hole of from 3 to 5-8 in the centre. The difficulties encountered and developed were a cutting of the tires on the edge of the rim through too much compressibility, and a breaking from the inside caused by the rubber being alternately compressed and released, thus bending the rubber on the inside into acute angles, the constant working in this way eventually cracking the rubber from the inside outward. To the average rider these two weaknesses would appear very easy of correction, but when we observe that over 125 patents for cushion tires have been issued during the past six or eight months, it will be seen that vast inventive talent has been brought to bear to overcome the known weaknesses of the first forms of cushion tires. Every conceivable shape and contour both for the outside and inside surfaces has been patented, and in looking over the drawings that have come under our notice, we doubt if compass and square are capable of producing any shapes other than what have been embodied into these one hundred odd patents. Some of these patents have undoubtedly great value and merit, some are questionable, and some absolutely worthless. Time will sift the wheat from the chaff, and maybe the rejected will become the "Corner stone."

The cushions that up to the present writing have come nearest to the requirements are those where care has been exercised in forming the rim properly so that the "nipping process" will not take place; care in the selection of the proper quality of rubber, and a reduction of the size of the hole in the center and consequent thickening of the rubber walls. We know of several makers who have carefully experimented on these lines with results which they assure us, are most satisfactory.

Believing that our readers would be interested in a knowledge as to how the American manufacturing and importing trade stood on the cushion tire question, and feeling that it was nothing but justice to the trade to let the riders know their opinion on the question, we wrote all the makers and importers asking for an expression of opinion, and 80 per cent of the replies have ranged from conservative non-committalism to absolute distrust in what some of them call a "fad." The other 20 per cent. are more hopeful, and in a few cases absolutely confident that the cushion tire as they use it is a proven success.

In order to show our readers the way the majority of the trade look at the matter it will be of interest to quote a few extracts taken from the thirty odd letters we have received from manufacturers and importers in reply to our request for an opinion. One says:

"Manufacturers are often compelled to adopt methods that do not meet with their approval; they do so to satisfy a general demand of the public. Our opinion at this writing is that the cushion tire will come under that head."

Another:

"We have had considerable call for machines fitted with cushion tires, but we do not look upon this as in any way owing to the merit of the tires, but simply to the extensive advertising and articles which have been written in its favor and the natural tendency of some riders to want every new thing which comes out."

Another:

"I have talked very freely with makers and dealers and they express frankly their dread of this popular whim. * * * I have talked with riders, hundreds of them, and I find them in a plastic state, ready to be advised."

Still another:

"The cushion tire is to our mind the nearest practical form of an anti-vibrator, although we do not think that any on the present market are perfect. * * * The manufacturers have started in with it before it has been practically tested. There is no question about it being the proper device * * * and we think that next season (1892?—Ed.) there will be little demand for a solid tire."

Another one writes:

"We are now arranging to supply cushion tires to such of our customers who may desire them, but have doubts as to the cushion tire being a success. * * * Some of our friends who are riders are quite in favor of it."

Again another says:

"Should you ask us for an opinion eight or ten months hence, we will be glad to favor you, for we intend to give them a personal, extended, practical test."

And so on through most of the list. Our readers will notice that the makers and dealers are on the horns of a dilemma; on one side is the clamor of riders for a device in which they can see undoubted merit and decided comfort, and on the other the dread or fear as to the lasting qualities of the cushion; and it is to bring the relative positions of the rider and maker clearly out that this article is written.

As to the twenty per cent. of makers and dealers who are more or less confident as to the future of the cushion, we will quote first what was said to us by the representative of one of the trade:

"We have a cushion tire that we shall put on our wheel, which has had the test of hard, continuous road work, and we are more than satisfied with the results."

Another writes:

"We cannot agree with the statement that the experiments made in England and this country have not been a success. We have been experimenting more or less and have been very well pleased with the results."

Another says:

"Now there comes a demand for a wider cushion and we have prepared a specially constructed cushion tire in which we overcome the palpable defects of the wider tire lately put upon the market. * *"

Verbally a representative of another house said:

"We have solved the difficulties of the cushion tire and proven by actual hard test that the cushion tire as we make it will last as long as a solid tire if not longer."

Little remains to be said at this time, except to add that if we have made plain the true condition of affairs as between the manufacturers and the importers and riders we have accomplished our purpose. The interests of the trade and the riders are too closely interwoven to admit of any misunderstanding or disappointment. The trade is earnestly trying to produce the perfect tire and is spending thousands of dollars to bring about the desired results. The riders by exercising a little reasonable patience will probably get what they demand—a perfect anti-vibrating tire.

We believe in the future of the cushion or air tire, but the WORLD wishes to be understood as counselling the trade against promising too much, or the riders against demanding too much in this the experimental and transitory stage of the cushion and air tire development.

THE action of the Racing Board in suspending eighteen amateurs from the racing track pending proofs of their innocence has caused a veritable earthquake in amateur circles, and the accused members and the New York Athletic Club are up and dressed prepared to fight the matter to the bitter end.

The racing rules allow that a man's expenses shall be paid to and from the place of the race meeting, and his living expenses during the meeting. The charge made against almost all the men suspended is that expenses were paid them other than allowed under the rules, and that members of athletic clubs have been in the habit of remaining at the track several days before and after the race meetings for training or record breaking purposes, and that during such time their expenses were paid.

Some of the racing men and members of the New York Athletic Club claim that it is and has been the custom to thus interpret the rule which governs the payment of travelling and necessary expenses, but the L. A. W. Racing Board have seen fit to give the rule a literal translation, hence the action.

The men are on trial, so to speak, and it would be unjust to imagine that suspension necessarily carries expulsion with it. All of the men have a chance to refute the charges, and the more there are that can prove the suspicion unfounded, the better it will suit us. The full list of suspended men appears in our Official columns.

BOSTON NOTES.

"TONEY."

"ALAS! has it come to such a pass," poetically cried the "doc" as he fondly stroked the head of his famous bull terrier "Bess," that we are all to be made professionals, and that you above all others have been sent to join the numerous ranks of the professionals. My boy you should have followed in the footsteps of that illustrious constituent of yours, Mr. Hawkshaw of New York, and joined the "profesh" before the final step was taken and the axe had chopped off your head. But then, some men don't know which way to jump, and the result is they have to be "pushed off." This was enough for even me, and as I hastened out of the office of my friend I could not help but soliloquize upon the past, and what at one time seemed to me the glorious future. Had I fully weighed the consequence of riding against men who were looked upon as the coming professionals, or had thought of what might happen by my riding the same make of machine race in and race out, or the possible evils resulting from my having two organizations pay my travelling and possibly training expenses, I should not now be a full-fledged, dyed in the wool professional. There is at least one consolation left me, and that is, I am not alone in entering the higher ranks of cycle racers, and that in the near future, unless the Racing Board rescinds its heartless order, we shall be numerous enough to travel throughout the country as a set of professionals and race against each other as professionals for the cold, hard coin of the realm. A few days ago I came across the unconscious form of one of my former amateur compatriots, and pinned to it I found the appended words:

"To be, or not to be, that is the question:
Whether 'tis nobler in the mind, to suffer
The slings and arrows of the outrageous Racing Board,
Or to take arms against a sea of cycling troubles,
And by oppression end them. To be a professional, to be an amateur no more?
And by professional to say I end
As amateur and the thousand natural suspicions
That they are heir to: 'tis a consummation
Devotedly to be wished, to die an amateur,
To sleep a professional, perchance to dream:
Ah! there's the rub!!
For in that sleep of professionalism,
What dreams may come,
When I have shuffled off this amateur coil.

For who would bear the whips and scorns of the Racing Board?
The oppressor's wrong? the proud and honest wheelman's contumely?
The pangs of disprized glory? the professional delay?
The insolence of the League? and the spurns
That patient amateurs, of the unworthy take?
When they themselves might their mark make.

I am proud, revengeful, ambitious, with more offence at my beck than I have thoughts to put them in. We are all arrant knaves, believe none of us:

Why let the strucken deer go weeping?
The hart ungalled play?
For some must watch while others sleep,
So whiles the world away.

ON the 23d of the present month the members of the Cambridgeport Cycle Club will ransack the wardrobes of their great grandfathers in search of some costume of a past generation wherein to appear at their annual fancy dress party, which will occur at Armory Hall on that evening.

WHAT was that bustle among the members of the Medford Cycle Club on Thanksgiving Day did you ask? Well, it was simply nothing more nor less than a team composed of some of the most reckless men in the club preparing for their foot ball match with a team from Tufts College. Did they get beaten? Well, just by four points; but it was through no fault of theirs, as the college boys put up a pretty stiff game, and William Haskins of the cycle club now puts up a pretty stiff finger as a result of his rashness in forsaking the residence of his sweetheart for the more exciting foot ball field.

REPRESENTATIVES of the Roxbury, Cambridgeport, Medford, Charlestown, and almost every wheeling organizations hereabouts attended the annual party of the Chelsea Ramblers in Grand Army Hall last Monday evening.

THE club riding season was brought to a close the Sunday previous to Thanksgiving Day, when most of the clubs took a short run to the Reservoir and return. The cold weather of last Sunday had the effect of making the wheelmen stay in doors huddling the blazing fire, and when I arrived at the Reservoir I found there Chief Consul Emery, Capt. Robinson and about half a dozen such other cycling cranks as myself, who would rather run the risk of being frozen on the wheel than melting around a red hot stove.

A. D. PECK, JR., has accepted a position with the Pope Mfg. Co., and will hereafter be found in the salesroom at 79 Franklin street.

NOTES BY "HAWKSHAW."

I OFTEN hear those unfavorable to cycling assert that we wheelmen claim too much for the bicycle, that the virtues we attribute to it are in many cases as far from being true as are the vices that our enemies burden it with. There is a certain grain of truth in this; we are, I fear, too apt to be carried away with cycling, in fact this carrying away process is one of the charms of the sport; once started the true lover of the wheel rolls on in a perfect torrent of praise, sweeping every argument and fact of the opposition aside as though it was naught. Perhaps on no one point is there so much variance between the friends and foes of cycling as upon the effect of wheeling upon the physical grace of its devotee. Our traducers declare that riding makes us round-shouldered, bow-legged and hollow-chested, while we who ride, and therefore know, claim that if there is any one thing that gives erect and elegant carriage to the human frame it is cycling. It may be over-credited with giving gracefulness, but it is an accepted fact by all impartial students and observers that cycling and other athletic sports as well give erectness, alertness and a certain manliness of carriage, which the narrow-chested, lazy people, who don't exercise at all, but content themselves with condemning those who do, and those shirking, deluded creatures who smoke their cigars and try to keep still and enjoy the motion of a horse while they simply hold the reins can never attain. We may claim too much for the wheel sometimes, but it is an awfully hard thing to do when one considers how much real merit the machine has and consequently how very great is the laudation it merits from those who knowing its good qualities are adverse to hiding their light beneath a measure.

IN reading over some celebrated cases that have been before the English court for decision, I find the following under the heading of "The Queen vs. W. England." It appears that in 1879, while a wheelman was riding a bicycle in Regent square that he had the misfortune to run down a gentleman who subsequently died from the results of a fractured thigh caused by the accident. Upon the trial it was shown that the wheelmen had used his bell, called out several times and endeavored to stop, but the deceased, who was over 70 years of age and deaf, not hearing the warnings, was run down through no negligence of the rider. His lordship, Mr. Justice Stephen, in giving the case to the jury thus championed the cause of the wheel, and coming from the source it did, and at that early date undoubtedly did much to establish the legal standing of a bicycle in England: "Let them consider what the prisoner was doing. He was riding a bicycle. He (the learned judge) entirely differed with some people who, being either too nervous or too old to ride bicycles themselves—which was unfortunately the case with many of them—looked upon the habit as a sort of thing that ought to be put down and that people ought not to be allowed to ride. He did not think that. It was a very healthful and a proper amusement for persons who were so fortunate as to be able to indulge in it, and it was a very convenient way of getting about by men who were not in a position to keep a horse. It made one feel how pleasant it would be to be young enough to learn the use of the bicycle. Therefore they (the jury) ought not to discourage it; they ought to look upon it as a reasonable thing for a man to do. If a man were to ride at all, he could not wait until he was proficient before he got on his bicycle, and the mere fact that he was riding at a time when he was not particularly skilful ought not to go against him." The jury rendered a verdict of acquittal, as it would be hard indeed to understand how they could do otherwise with such a common sense and logical charge to them from the judge.

THE thunder-bolt launched by the Davolian Jove has fallen, and from all appearances fallen pretty close to us here in New York. No more does the strident voice of the racing-man resound throughout this portion of the land; such of them as have not been struck have been stunned by the explosion and like br'er rabbit are laying exceedingly low. But after all what a farce this expulsion—reinstatement game is anyway; one has not to be very old to detect that the thunder in the whole affair is but the rattling of peas in tin-pan.

CHICAGO.

"WAYNE SCOTT."

"I TOLD you so" was used by wheelmen of this city many many times Sunday, Nov. 22. Why will wheelmen store away their wheels early in the winter season? Sunday last could not have been a better wheeling day had it been made to order and numbers of wheelmen were seen out walking, and by their countenances plainly longing for the wheel laid away.

THIRTY-TWO Chicago wheelmen and several ladies took dinner at Hotel Florence, Pullman, and one and all pronounced the roads splendid. All the boulevards were well sprinkled with wheelmen, a number of the more hardy lady riders being out also. The air was cool and bracing.

SHOULD the Wanderers' Athletic Club succeed in renting the Brotherhood Park at Thirty-fifth street we will have a track nearer the centre of the city than Parkside and second to none in the country. Failing in this they will rent the ground adjoining, so that Chicago wheelmen are reasonably sure of their second track. The Parkside track will undoubtedly be made three laps next season.

SINCE last letter the Ravenswood committee has held a meeting and order has been brought out of chaos. A committee is at work now and before a week has passed will have signed a 10 years' lease for a plat of well sodded and graded land. This will be large enough for a three-lap track and an excellent one will be put in. Mr. Dave Brown declares there will be no better. A prominent member of the Lincolns will be one of the committee. The stock will be probably all or nearly all owned by a number of wealthy men of that aristocratic suburb who will run it as a stock company.

THE Illinois Cycling Club is the only local club to have a cafe in their club house. With their 300 members they manage to run the receipts up to close on to $200 per month. Their cook served in the war as cook for General Hancock, and the gentlemen show the appreciation of his cooking by their eating.

THE Æolus Club accepted bids for a club house this week to cost $9000. At their pool tournament last week C. P. Doese won first place and Vice-President Roth was a close second. The night before Thanksgiving this club held a turkey raffle and entertainment. Thanksgiving morning they held a hare and hounds' chase. This was followed by an old-fashioned dinner as befitted the day at their club house.

THE Garfield Cycling Club at 497 W. Van Buren street swells the general total of our cycling clubs to 20. They have secured a good foothold with 20 charter members.

ST. LOUIS brags (?) of a club composed of colored men. If all colored riders are the same Chicago does not want any in hers.

BOB GARDNER, the genial manager of the Pope Mfg. Co.'s Chicago store, accompanied by Col. Pope, started Tuesday on a Western trip to California. Thanksgiving will be spent on Pike's Peak.

ARTHUR E. LUMSDEN would have all people know that the Chicago indoor teams wiped the floor with the Oakland Rifles. The score was 11 to 2. This club defeated the Chicagos early in the season, twice I believe.

"DREAMS" is the subject of a burlesque in which the Oak Parks are preparing to astonish the multitude. Nightly rehearsals, and a large sale of tickets already would augment a success of their dreams.

SEVERAL members of the Chicagos appeared in the club rooms last Sunday arrayed in foot ball suits immaculate. Barrett, Sage, Cameron and others decided that this should not be, if they would pose as crack players. Later on sight seers in Jackson Park were surprised to see several big, lusty fellows dragging one another by the heels over the turf, first on their backs then on their stomachs. Needless to say, those pretty white suits were sere and green, and the wearers resemble somewhat the man who was struck by a cyclone. "Next!!"

THE Lincoln Cycling Club on Lincoln monument in Lincoln Park is the subject of an excellent picture taken Thanksgiving morning. Spooner's pet scheme, after many years, has come to pass. About a hundred riders and non-riders were "in it," and those who predicted a failure and did not appear will wish themselves in it also. Four rows of wheelmen are seated on the steps, and above all towers old Abe as a guardian angel. It is a splendid picture.

THE Lake Views gave a hare and hound chase Thanksgiving Day. The runners were mostly from the foot ball team. Limits were placed, outside of which the hares were not to go.

ARNOLD WESCOTT and Robert Ward were the hares, while Rob Parsons and Edwin Ward had charge of the hounds. The hares finished a half-hour ahead of the hounds, who had lost the trail. They stuck to it, however, and were heartily applauded when they did arrive.

THE Douglas Club hares started out, and it is seriously contemplated sending a relief party to rescue the hounds. At last accounts they had not yet been heard from.

THE good old ordinary was ridden by about seventy-five per cent of the Lincoln riders who appeared in the picture on Thursday, and the man who says they are a lot of "d— t—s" will have a red hot fight on his hands. Further information can be gained at the Lincoln headquarters.

THE Chicagos were defeated in a one-sided base ball contest by the Illinois Club Thanksgiving Day.

ONE HUNDRED of the Washingtons took dinner at their club house in the evening.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

"X-BONES."

I HAVE learned indirectly that several of the Columbia boys resent the mention made in my first communication of the refusal of their club to accept the challenge of the Arlingtons, and that it has even been said that the two clubs have been thereby made enemies. Although not fully crediting the last assertion, I regret very much if I have said anything to arouse enmity from anyone. Certainly, nothing was further from my thoughts. In fact, the Columbias acted with too much fairness and magnanimity on the occasion of their success for me or any member of the Arlingtons to feel anything but good will towards them, although it was not pleasant to be twitted about "lost honors" in the letter refusing the Arlingtons an opportunity to retrieve them. The members of the Columbias referred to would also appear somewhat inconsistent in taking an action in refusing the challenge, which they object to have published, especially when the reasons assigned—whatever better ones might have existed—were so obviously insufficient. Had they frankly said that their men were not in training and could not then spare the time to train, or that any were absent, nothing further would ever have been said by the Arlingtons. If, however, any criticism which has been made seems over severe, I hope that allowance will be made for what has been really a great disappointment for the Arlingtons, and that it will be attributed not to ill-will, but to a wish to awaken the Columbias to a sense of their responsibility as the only riding bicycle club in the district—except the Arlingtons—for maintaining interest and enthusiasm in the sport of bicycling. In view of the activity in riding of the two clubs named, and the lack thereof in the other clubs in this city, it would seem a great pity for any feeling of ill-will between the clubs to interfere with cordial co-operation by them in advancing the interests of cycling and good-fellowship; and I in particular would sincerely regret it if anything I may have said should lessen the sympathy and good-will which should and which I believe does exist between the clubs named.

WHILE upon this subject mention may be made of the fact that certain members of one club are also members of the other, and of the feeling upon this point by the Arlingtons as to which club only can I speak in this matter. The best evidence of the cordial good-feeling of the Arlingtons towards the Columbias is the fact that they have encouraged rather than otherwise this double membership, both when one of their men joined the Columbias and when a Columbia man joined them, the sentiment being that a true spirit of emulation rather than one of petty jealousy was encouraged thereby; and that in case of contests or controversies between the clubs fair and moderate action by each club would be favored; while of course it was understood that where a common member of both clubs entered a contest his personal preference as governed by convenience for companionship and training or social tastes, etc., should decide which club he should represent.

THE Arlington Wheelmen called a run to Marlboro, Md., on Sunday, Nov. 23, Messrs Wm. R. Mackville, D. L. Sandoe, Guy E. Mitchell, E. C. Bowen, H. V. King, Thomas E. and Wm. T. Robertson attending. The first three gentlemen rode for the record and made the distance (16 miles), Mackville in 1h. 3m., breaking the record by 7m.; Sandoe in 1h. 9 3-4m., also inside the record, and Mitchell in 1h. 12m. Messrs. Bowen and King were the timers.

BUFFALO NOTES.

"SETAGEC."

BUFFALO has more bicycle clubs than any other city in the country. I was going to say the Queen City had more riders than any other city, but possibly New York or Washington may have more than ten thousand riders, but I doubt it.

BUFFALO, Rochester, Syracuse, Albany, New York, Brooklyn, Lockport, Binghamton, Canandaigua, Richfield Springs, Batavia, Niagara Falls, Cooperstown and Catskill would make a good New York State circuit and would fill in the time from May 30 till November, with room between for all the big tournaments outside of the banner State. Of these all but the last two I believe have had successful tournaments and are supplied with convenient tracks. Why not get together now, gentlemen; have a sort of convention and organize a State circuit racing association on the plan of Rochester Wheelmen's League, who conducted the most successful tourney of the season, though they had to use a mile track and had a big head wind to contend with? Co-operation would, as Al Banker says, cut down the cost of advertising and this would be a great help to the smaller towns, besides this would put a stop to conflicting dates, which caused the only failure in this year's circuit. Again we could then be sure of good tracks, profiting on A. C. Banker's suggestion of a practical "track-maker or inspector" to get all the tracks in shape at a minimum cost. If there was an objection raised by the smaller towns, who might fear a loss through small attendance, the profits might be pooled after the expenses of all the meetings had been settled and then divide the profits according to the attendance. A great source of profit would be the score cards, the profit of which would be divided up among the clubs in the circuit. But the reasons in favor of such a circuit as I have outlined are unlimited, while the objections are as scarce as professionals.

SPEAKING of futurity, why not have a fortnight tour like the "Big Fours" Burley B. Ayers used to organize? But the Boston to Detroit, Chicago to Detroit, Buffalo to Detroit and other Detroit-ward tours to the annual League meet will probably cover the field, though if there are any cyclers reckless enough to make the trip from the "Windy City" across northern Indiana and southern Michigan I pity them, for walking 30 miles a day through bottomless sand is bad enough, but when you add to it the effort of pushing a loaded wheel it is worse than being stuck in the mud on a dark, cold, rainy night.

I BELIEVE that the wheelmen should take a hand in politics as non-partisans when they cannot get their rights or when they need pavements, better roads, etc. So far the wheelmen here have not had to as Buffalo aldermen "stand in" with the wheelmen or we "stand in" with them, so that we get all things we ask, have always had the freedom of the park and the asphalt is increasing daily. There are too many wheels used in the Queen City for the politicians to try to get along without us. Oh! Philadelphia and Cleveland why don't you do as we do and then you need mourn no more for better pavements.

I HAVE been thinking of that Syracuse affair and more than ever do I think that bicycle clubs are like corporations in one particular—soulless. Chas. W. Woods, the Vice-Consul of the State Division, one of the four who were expelled by the Syracuse club, is one of the finest gentlemen I ever met and as I have observed one of the best workers among the riders of the Salty City. We all know what the result would have been if the tournament had turned out successful. Now the question is begged, whether Mr. Woods is to be expelled from the League because his club is a League club, and

⋖ THE EAGLE ⋗

We call attention to the following testimonials which speak for themselves.

They are from men who have been there, and who know what they are talking about.

HONEY BROOK, Pa., Nov. 7th, 1890.

EAGLE BICYCLE MFG CO., Stamford, Conn.:

Gentlemen—The Eagle Bicycle, like the best man who rides it, is a "Freak." After the first trial I gave it up as a failure, but a second attempt went better, and I now am thoroughly in love with it.

My wheel stood learning to ride and about one-thousand miles of scorching over a worn out pike, without any repairs or attention, except cleaning and grease, and I am satisfied it is the fastest road wheel I ever sat on.

Very truly, FRANK M. DAMPMAN.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 17, 1890.

EAGLE BICYCLE MFG. CO., Stamford, Conn.:

Gentlemen—I received my wheel last July, and I am pleased to have this opportunity to express myself in regard to the "Eagle." Aside from its safety qualities, I recommend it as being the best wheel made for all round riders; combining speed, durability, and above all, ease of running, which makes riding a pleasure instead of labor. I have been riding the "Ordinary" some years, and used nearly all the best make of wheels, and must say that I have not ridden a better wheel than the Eagle. I advise all my friends to get one as soon as they can, then they will enjoy riding.

Wishing you the best of success, I remain, Very truly yours, THOS. J. HALL, Jr.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 1st., 1890.

EAGLE BICYCLE MFG. CO., Stamford, Conn.:

Gentlemen—After my one season's trial, I find the "Bird" to be the best all-round wheel on the market, and for long distance riding the Eagle has no equal. I have used various makes of wheels, and made records on our roads, said records being considered good at the time; but since I have had my Eagle I have broken my own and all previous local records from 1 to 100 miles, and with proper training I think the Eagle will show itself as superior on the track as it has heretofore on the road.

Wishing you a successful season of 1891, I remain, Very truly yours, W. C. SEEDS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 13th, 1890.

THE EAGLE BICYCLE MFG. CO., Stamford, Conn.:

Dear Sirs—The Eagle wheel that I have been riding for the last four months is very much nearer my idea of what a wheel should be than any I have ever ridden before, and I have ridden no less than five high grade wheels. I find it to be exceedingly satisfactory on the road and also a splendid track wheel; in fact, it has so many attractions for me that I do not think anything would tempt me to give it up, unless it would be the desire to have a lighter wheel of the same kind for the track. I am,

Very truly, EROM C. BOWEN.

We are now in a position to talk business for next season, having just closed arrangements for one of the finest lines of light safety bicycles ever produced.

We shall handle SIX STYLES of ROVERS, which will possess every desirable detail known to the bicycle trade, including Pneumatic and Cushion tires, hollow rims, tangent spokes and ball heads.

COMPETENT AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE.

The trade will find it to their advantage to get our quotations on Bells, Lanterns, etc.

THE JOHN WILKINSON CO., Sole Importers, 269-271 State St., Chicago.

"Ask the riders of our wheels." This is the advice given by many makers. We do not say that it is bad advice, either. Frequently we have heard what riders say without the necessity of asking. It has not always been complimentary, though. We can bear witness to that.

Some folks make light of testimonials. Possibly they are right; possibly not. Yet what is a testimonial? Exactly what the riders say in writing; is it not? But almost every maker can produce testimonials! What does it argue? Simply that what will satisfy one man will dissatisfy another. Were it otherwise, this planet would be too much of an earthly Paradise to fulfill its mission. It frequently happens that otherwise is the case, however. Witness these communications, which, while they did not come as direct testimonials, are, if anything, even more telling: The first is from Mr. J. S. St. Clair, an old Rambler rider, who sold his wheel prior to his removal to Toronto, Canada. He says: "After riding an English wheel over the streets of this city since last Monday, I have decided that I want a machine with some spring about it in addition to the saddle spring! Please ship me a Light Rambler, standard finish and 54 gear. Use the lightest spring—my weight is 125 pounds—and notify me when wheel is shipped and over what line. I consider that there is as much difference between a stiff frame and spring frame, as between a road and spring wagon." The other is from a firm in a live little town in New York state. They write: "All three of our firm rode . . . . . Safeties this season, it being our first attempt at cycling. When we purchased . . . . . we didn't know anything about bicycles. We all had an opportunity to ride Ramblers last month, and the result is that we want to sell our . . . . . and buy Ramblers before the season of '91. We think two of the . . . . . are now sold, and would like particulars about taking the agency of the Rambler."

THE RAMBLER IS ITS OWN BEST TESTIMONIAL.

GORMULLY & JEFFERY MFG. CO.,

New England Branch House, 178 Columbus Avenue, Boston, Mass. Factory and Principal Office, 222-228 N. Franklin Street, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO RETAIL STORE, NO. 85 MADISON STREET.

I see a Wheel correspondent says some one else must be appointed Vice-Consul. I say "No." We do not all think as the forty-seven did; let us side with the seven.

Now that we are likely to have a State racing circuit let us also have a national circuit, each city to have a genuine bicycle track, with say ten towns in the Union, Hartford, Peoria, Buffalo, Chicago, New York or Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Detroit, New Orleans, Cincinnati, Baltimore and Washington, each to have a two-day tournament Friday and Saturday of each week, commencing in June and running till the last of August, with official timers to serve throughout the circuit. This would be a good offset to the base ball craze.

NIAGARA FALLS.

"KISMET."

THE "young blood" of Niagara has taken up the question which had been opposed by the "old boys"—that of a gymnasium. This matter has been brought up and has been repeatedly shelved by the "old boys" because "it cost too much." Now the young element have taken up and accomplished what will be one of the greatest and grandest things for the young men of our community, and that is the establishment of a perfect gymnasium. It will be situated in a very convenient and central location and will run in conjunction with the Y. M. C. A. Who were the boys that circulated the list and subscribed most liberally to this cause? Why the cyclers! Who else can accomplish anything in this town? Now let athletic sports boom, boom, boom; and Buffalo, oh, Buffalo, beware! Niagara Falls will soon show you that you are not in it.

FRED BUTLER, who is looked upon as a coming possibility on the racing path on the ordinary bicycle, distinguished himself at the Fourteenth Regiment games held at Buffalo last week by defeating Michael (heavyweight) Brunner, the celebrated shot-putter of that city, who is the instructor for the Ramblers. Freddie throws the 16-pound ball like a marble and with good training he can be expected to do much better.

J. M. NASON, who holds the championship medal from 1878 until the present time for 60 yards as a sack-racer, is very anxious to form an athletic club at this place. "Johnnie" would like to see a branch of the A. A. U. established at Niagara, as he is of the opinion we have good material for such a purpose and he is pretty near right too.

AS the election of Capt. Geo. G. Shepard to the presidency of the club seems to be an assured fact, the question of who will be our next captain seems to be of very great importance just now. What we want is a man who will get the members out oftener on runs and especially to encourage what we never have had—a good, sound road-racing movement. There are about two or three men of this stamp in the club, and it is the member's individual duty to see that one of them is elected, as the cycling interest must be maintained. Billie Shep., we want you for captain, will you take it?

THE whist tournament at the club house seems to be productive of very much good, as it certainly is developing some good card playing; it is an actual fact that at all of the parties given by our young ladies about town a member of the N. F. B. C. is sure to carry off first prize.

HAVE you heard the latest. Sourwein of the Buffalo Ramblers (better known as "Sour Beers") expects to ride a tandem next season with Hoyland Smith. My, what a pair!

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

"TREB."

THE result of the Manhattan bowling match with the Brooklyns was disappointing. Both clubs made miserable scores, and, unless some better work is shown, they will not be among the leaders in the tournament. The Brooklyns, however, won the game, and will, no doubt, receive inspiration and pull together for better things, as they really have good material in their team.

THE foot ball match on Thanksgiving day proved a potent attraction over the wheel, as parties from the different clubs were to be met with every few feet in the crowd. In the evening the day's jollity was continued, the theatres and where the college boys congregated were spots selected to round up the day's pleasures.

WELL, the Racing Board's cyclone has burst, and the long expected has come to pass. C. M. and W. F. Murphy, who are included in the long list of suspended men, are confident that they will come through the fire all right. Some degree of nervousness must be felt by them, however, as the natural inference from the careful manner with which the charges have been handled, proves that Chairman Davol was pretty nearly sure before he went ahead.

WHAT a grand thing it would be if the three large clubs of this city could be brought together and by concerted action secure the co-operation of the Park Commissioners, and have that long dreamt of path built from the boulevard entrance of the park direct to Coney Island. It would be a good thing for the horsemen as well; it would insure its use by all wheelmen, whereas the rough edges of the flag-stones now on the side-path drive many to the general road use. Annually this subject is broached, but the clubs seem to be so peculiarly constituted that nothing comes of it.

PHILADELPHIA.

"ARIEL."

THE Quaker City Wheelmen had a run out to Bryn Mawr Thanksgiving Day; a number of ladies participated, dinner being served at Buck Mansion. Fifty sat down to dinner at 6 o'clock, following which dancing filled up the evening, a number of the party returning by train, while a majority rode home by the light of the moon.

THE South End Wheelmen celebrate their anniversary on Thursday and Friday, the latter day being devoted to the entertainment of the ladies.

ON Saturday afternoon Kelly and Draper on a tandem bicycle, giving Dampman on a single safety 1 minute start, covered 5 miles on the Montgomery avenue course in 15.50, while Dampman did the distance in 17m. The tandem team feel confident of their ability to lower the 5-mile world's record recently made by Taxis and Zimmerman.

CONSIDERABLE comment has been caused by the recent action of the Racing Board in the wholesale suspensions. The only Philadelphia rider so far affected is W. F. West of the Century Wheelmen, who is accused of selling a bicycle won as a prize. Mr. West claims that he can produce the wheel which he is charged with having sold, but Mr. Gideon states that an affidavit will be required testifying that he did not sell it. As a matter of fact, the Board seem to have decidedly the best of the argument all through, and some of the men who are now suspended probably wish that they had not boasted quite so openly, as was so recently done at a race meet which took place not a hundred miles from this city, that they did and could sell prizes and accept expenses whether the L. A. W. Racing Board liked it or not.

FOUR HUNDRED additional copies of the road book have been received from the printers, and this will be welcome news to those of the newly-joined who have been making things pleasant for the Secretary-Treasurer for the last three months owing to their non-arrival.

PORKOPOLIS NOTES.

"STAR."

ONE rainy Sunday, not long since, as I was sauntering through the Art Museum I paused before a display of ancient implements of war, and as I contemplated the ponderous two handed swords, the weighty shields and the burdensome suits of armor which were borne uncomplainingly by the warriors of old, I could not help contrasting them with some of our modern knights of the wheel who are continually grumbling about the weight or the running qualities of the wheels.

THE embers of the dying track scheme have been fanned till they have begun to glow and give out considerable warmth. The scheme is being enthusiastically pushed, and it is believed that we will soon have a good track. The location in view at present is easily accessible by rail and street cars, and is within the city limits. It is confidently expected that enough can be realized from the sale of season tickets at five dollars each to pay the expense of building and keeping the track in repair. The tickets will admit the holder to the track at any and all times. Next week I may be able to give more definite information.

ON last Sunday (November 23) I took a run to Alexandria. The roads could not have been in better condition. On my arrival I found twelve of the Crescents who have preceeded me. We dined at the hotel at the Northwest corner of the intersection, and for once I ate a meal in that benighted place that did not consist of salty ham and ancient eggs. On our return I was struck with the good order the Crescents kept and the military precision with which they rode. I also noticed that wherever we went that the Famous Teddy was the centre of attraction, whether on account of his masterly performance on the bugle he carried, or to the glittering array of medals on his bosom, I am unable to state. At the top of Metcalf's Hill we turned to the right on a new road that led past Ft. Crook and down a long and tolerably smooth coast into Newport.

On last Sunday the Porkopolis Wheelmen took a run to Chester Park where they held some impromptu races which were not remarkable for speed, but as an exhibition of head work were unsurpassed. The honors were carried off by the esthetic Meiser, the Poetic Barth, the Humorous Kobmann aud the Austere Tutty. Let no one hereafter assert that the Porkopolis Wheelmen are devoid of racing talent.

When I see the Queen Cycling Club dart past like a covey of quail I do not see how any woman could resist the temptation to get a wheel and learn to ride. Their example is an object lesson which cannot fail to have beneficial results. There are thousands of women in our city who ought to be using the wheel, and who are only deterred by a foolish prejudice, and on such, the example of the Q. C. C. cannot fail in time to have its effect. This club, therefore, has the good wishes of every one who has the real interests of cycling at heart.

PROVIDENCE NOTES.

"ELNOD."

Last week, Monday evening, was ladies' night at the rooms of Rhode Island Wheelmen, and right here I might say that every third Monday evening in the month the rooms are left at the disposal of the ladies. The entertainment for the evening was in the form of a progressive Tiddlede Winks party, and was under the very able management of Mrs. J A. Kinghorn and Miss Frederica Cooke. The winners who secured the handsome prizes were as follows: Ladys' first prize, Miss Josie Taipe; gentleman's first prize, Mr. L. B. Ballou; lady's booby prize, Mrs. H. L. Perkins; gentleman's booby prize, Mr. F. H. W. Hickey. After the presentation of prizes refreshments were served in a very appetizing manner, such as only R. I. W. ladies can. Everyone seemed to enjoy the affair, and it was well into the middle of night before the R. I. W. youth bid his fair one a fond [Eh?—Ed.] good night at the door of her home.

A piano has been added to the parlor in the R. I. W. club rooms and Hutch and mate are becoming quite proficient in the duet passe, "Chop Sticks."

Mr. B. Taylor Bruce, one of the shining lights of the cycling fraternity of Providence, ex-Secretary of the R. I. W., and withal one of the most popular of wheelmen, was married last week to Miss May E. Cunningham, one of the best known lady cyclists in Providence and an honored member of the Providence Ladies' Cycling Club. Mr. and Mrs. Bruce left Providence on Sunday night for the South, where they will remain most of the winter, and should any of your readers meet them I bespeak for them a good reception.

About twenty members of the R. I. W. visited the theatre to see "Later On" on Tuesday night last week in a body, and as each one was supplied with a regular double alarm bicycle bell I will leave you to imagine how quiet they were under the circumstances.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

"RIPPLES."

The Crescent Cycle Club of Rochester, N. Y., have not consolidated with any club, as was reported, but have rented a fine brick house in the centre of the city, No. 114 Savannah street; it is handsomely furnished throughout; their latest acquisitions are a piano and pool table. The members wish to extend their thanks to the business men and city papers for the donations that they have made the club. Arrangements are being made to hold pool, card and checker tournaments during the winter. An orchestra and glee club are organizing and will be able to give some rich musical treats this winter to the members and their friends. I dare say that the Crescents are in a more flourishing condition than any six months' old club in the country, its being a League club has a good deal to do with its present condition. The house is open every night and all visiting wheelmen are welcome.

The West Ends held a benefit entertainment last week, which was a success both socially and financially; the proceeds are to be used in furnishing their new house on Madison street.

The Lake View Wheelmen, the popular north side club, have a new bowling alley where they expect to do a good deal of "rolling" this winter. A minstrel show for the benefit of members only will be given by them. They intend to hold several tournament this winter, including pool, billiard and bowling.

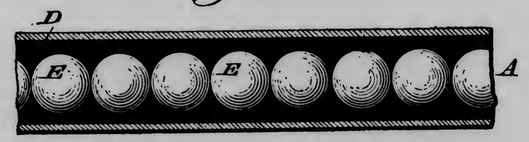
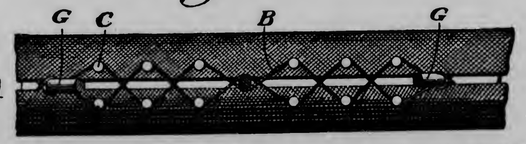
MAKING MONEY ANYWHERE.

Having read Mr. Morehead's experience plating with gold, silver and nickel, I sent for a plater and have more work than I can do. It is surprising the spoons, castors and jewelry that people want plated. The first week I cleared $37.10, and in three weeks $119 85, and my wife has made about as I have. By addressing W H. Griffith & Co , Zanesville, Ohio, you can get circulars. A Plater only costs $3. You can learn to use it in an hour. Can plate large or small articles, and can make money anywhere. A. J. Jonson.

LITIGATION.

The Times of Philadelphia states that "the Overman Wheel Company, of Hartford, Conn., filed an equity bill yesterday (Nov. 28) in the United States Circuit Court against the Sweeting Cycle Company of this city. The Overman Wheel Company claim that they have the exclusive right to manufacture bicycles which have been patented by Alfred Stanhope, of Northampton, England, and that the Sweeting Cycle Company are manufacturing the same type of bicycles, thereby infringing on their patent. They ask the court to restrain the Sweeting Company from manufacturing the bicycles."





WARWICK DIAMOND SAFETY.

The attention of wheelmen who are looking for a light, fast and comfortable mount for the season of 1891, is respectfully directed to the accompanying cut of the Warwick Diamond Safety. The Warwick Cycle Mfg. Co. have gained an enviable reputation as cycle mechanics of the highest order, and in this latest addition to their product, the results of building on honor will be readily recognized.

This machine has 28-inch driving wheel, geared to 56-inch, with 30 inch steering wheel, 32 tangent spokes to each wheel, fitted to the well known "Warwick Hollow Rim," 1 1-4 Cushion Tires of special construction, dust proof Ball Bearings, 5 1-2 to 6 1-2 inch Crank, extra long Handle Bar and Warwick Improved Saddle. The stock from which this wheel is constructed is cold drawn weldless steel tubing for all hollow parts. The solid parts are machined from drop forgings of selected steel, and in no part, however small, is cast metal used. The machine is strictly interchangeable, each process from the rough forging, is made to gauge, and guaranteed not to vary 1 1000 of an inch, when finished. The Warwick Co. give special attention to critical inspection. The total weight of this machine (the tires alone weighing 7 pounds), is 42 pounds, with usual fittings. This machine the Warwick Co. think will be the lightest high grade safety for regular road service built in America and sold with a guarantee. The machine is finished in enamel and nickel plate, fully guaranteed; it will doubtless become a favorite among road scorchers. The Warwick Co. have two other additions to their line of wheels, particulars of which will appear in the following editions of this paper.

RICHWINE BALL TIRE.

After the usual preamble Mr. W. Richwine of Philadelphia thus describes his invention:

My invention consists of a tire formed of a tube and elastic balls, which are seated in an elastic bed in said tube and thereby prevented from displacement, the combined action of the parts producing a highly elastic, easy riding and durable tire.

Provision is made for access to the interior of the tube and other features are presented, as will be hereinafter fully set forth.

Fig. 1 represents a transverse section of a tire embodying my invention.

Fig. 2 represents a partial side elevation and partial longitudinal section thereof.

Fig. 3 represents a longitudinal section at a right angle to that shown in Fig. 2.

Fig. 4 represents a view taken on the inner periphery of the tire.

Similar letters of reference indicate corresponding parts in the several figures.

A. designates a tube constituting the tube proper, the same being formed of suitable fabric, such as rubber cloth, which is bent into shape and has its ends brought together at the inner periphery of the tube, and retained in closed or approximately closed position by means of lacings (B.), which are passed around studs or pins (C.) on the tube on opposite sides of the ends of said tube.

D. designates a bed of rubber or other elastic material, which occupies a portion of the tube (A.) and is provided with pockets or depressions in which are seated the rubber balls (E.), which, as will be seen, are arranged side by side throughout the tube and are solid or hollow as desired.

F. designates a rim or plate of metal or other rigid material, which is located within the tube (A.) at the inner periphery thereof, and having secured to it the spokes (G.) of the wheel, of which the tire constitutes a part, said spokes passing from said rim to the opening formed by the ends of the tube, as will be most plainly seen in Fig. 4.

Interposed between the rim (F.) and the balls (E.) is a piece or strip (H.) of felt or other fabric or soft material, forming a cushion, and preventing contact of balls and ribs.

It will be seen that balls are held in position within the tube, owing to the pockets of the seat and thus prevented from shifting, and as said balls and the seat are elastic in their nature.

Access is had to the balls for removal of the same, or other purposes, by loosening the lacing and separating the tube, when the balls and bed may be displaced, the same being true of the spokes, rim and contiguous cushion; it being also evident that when the bed, etc., is placed within the tube, the latter may be closed around the same and secured by the lacing (B.), the parts thus being retained in position and the structure of the tube preserved.

Having thus described my invention, what I claim is new and desire to secure by letters patent is:

First—A tire consisting of a tube with a pocketed bed and balls therein, said balls resting in said bed, substantially as described.

Second—A tire having a divided tube of flexible or elastic material, with means for lacing or connecting the ends of the same, substantially as described.

Third—A tire consisting of a tube with balls and a spoke-attaching rim therein, said rim being located between the balls and inner periphery of the tube, substantially as described.

Fourth—A tire consisting of a tube with a pocketed bed, balls in said bed and a spoke-attaching rim therein, substantially as described.

Fifth—A tire consisting of a tube with balls, a spoke-attaching rim and a cushion therein, the latter being between said balls and rim, substantially as described.

Sixth—A tire consisting of a tube with a pocketed bed, balls in said bed and a spoke-attaching rim, said tube being divided and provided with means for closing the same, substantially as described.

Mr. L. M. Richardson of the John Wilkinson Co of Chicago has just returned from England, and they are now actively in the field for the 1891 business, having perfected most satisfactory arrangements with their makers, Messrs. J. K. Starley & Co. of Coventry, who will build for them six styles of their celebrated Rovers, covering all of the latest and best ideas, including pneumatic and cushion tires, hollow rims, ball heads, tangent spokes, etc. Messrs. Wilkinson and Co.'s salesroom is 40x140 feet, their riding school 40x110 feet. They will have a full line of samples of their next season's wheels January 1st, including a number of pneumatic tired racers, orders for several of which have already been placed. We have been promised cuts and particulars of the 1891 line of Rover wheels at an early date.

Messrs. Osborne and Alexander of San Francisco, and representing the Pope Mfg. Co. in California, Oregon, Nevada and Washington for the past twelve years, have lately been compelled through increase of business to move from former location on Post street to more commodious quarters on corner of Market and Fremont streets. The first floor is occupied by offices and salesroom, and the third floor is used as a riding school. The basement is occupied as a store room.

A. G. Spaulding & Bros., Philadelphia Branch, will remove on January 1st to Southeast corner Chestnut and Eleventh streets, which they are now fitting up in anticipation of the large trade which their removal to the principal retail business street of Philadelphia will undoubtedly draw. As heretofore a specialty will be made of the Victor line, although they promise several specialties in cheaper grades next season.

"LARGEST BICYCLE SALE ON RECORD."

"C. F. Smith of the Indiana Bicycle Mfg. Co. has returned from Chicago with a contract from the Chas. F. Stokes Mfg. Co. for 5000 bicycles. This is the largest deal ever made in this line in America and probably in the world. The Stokes Company is the largest jobbing firm dealing in bicycles in this country, and have been the largest buyers the Indiana Company have had since it started in business."—Indianapolis News.

The Ormonde people are out for business next season and the visit of Mr. Willis to this country has been fraught with the most satisfactory results to himself and his company. As already announced the territory of the United States has been divided up, and in our advertising columns on Page 149 will be found the announcement of Messrs. Rouse, Hazard & Co., a firm well known to our readers for their enterprise and push. That the Ormonde next season will be "well known" out West goes without saying and we congratulate Messrs. Rouse, Hazard & Co. on securing the agency for those sterling wheels, and we also congratulate the Ormonde people in securing such a lively, pushing firm for the Western territory as Messrs. Rouse, Hazard & Co. The record of these racing wheels during the 1890 season is one to cause feelings of gratification to the principals and American agents. We find that the Ormonde scored 28 firsts, 3 seconds and 3 thirds. In records the Ormonde holds the world's safety records on solid tires from one to ten miles. In American records it holds from one to three miles, a showing which for a "first season" is "not to be sneezed at."

At the annual Fair and Bazar, given by the Marion Rifles of Washington (D. C.), Mr. Lem Barber, one of Washington's old time racing men, was voted the most popular wheelman, the prize consisting of a 50-inch Light Champion, by courtesy of L. B. Graves & Co.

GEO. C. PENNELL, President.
Elizabeth, N. J., October 15, 1890.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

OUR WHEELS HAVE BEEN PURCHASED BY

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

For use in the Postal Service at Washington

Since beginning business we have maintained that riders of HIGH GRADE WHEELS are entitled to the best that money can buy, and we have from the first used nothing but Fine Steel Forgings. We understand that Next Season certain makers of High Grade Machines will follow our example and adopt Forgings instead of Malleable Iron and Steel Castings.

They have been a trifle slow in their reform, but we shall welcome them to the fold. In the meantime we feel we have not labored in vain.

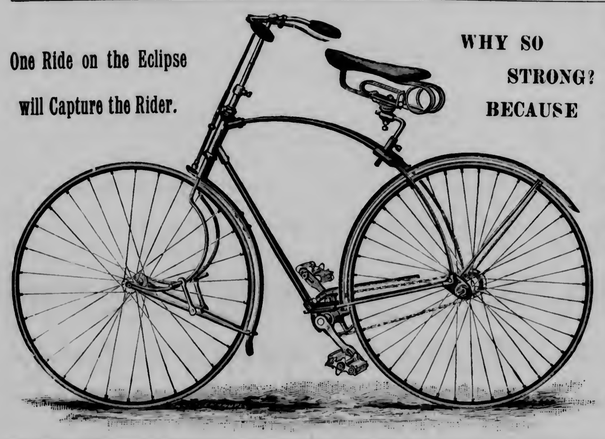
THE Warwick Cycle Mfg. Co. are to be congratulated on the very fine exhibition made by Mr. Richardson of Bridgeport, mounted on a Diamond Frame Cushion Tired Warwick Safety, in the recent hill climbing competition held in that town. This machine, which was loaned to different riders, won every contest in which it participated, results which made a great impression on the cyclers of Bridgeport. The riders who had the good fortune to use the wheel in their various competitions, romped away from all competitors with considerable ease. The appearance of the machine is decidedly taking.

F. SINGER & Co. offer some splendid bargains in second hand and shop worn cycles. See page 148.

STOLEN BICYCLES.

GEO. W. MORRISON of Plainfield, N. J., had his Warwick safety, No. 1313, with Garford saddle and extra high handle-bar extension, stolen while leaning against a fence, where it had been left for about 20 minutes on Monday evening, Nov. 24, about 7 o'clock.



Twenty-five dollars reward for recovery of Columbia light roadster safety, No. (supposed) 4949, stolen Nov. 22; slit in saddle, leather enlarged by cutting. A. K. & C. E. Schaap, Richmond, Va.

Fifty dollars reward will be paid for the return of Columbia safety, No. 8238 (this year's pattern), and for the conviction of the thief. F. B. Willard, M. D., 291 Clinton avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

AT the meeting of the Bicycle Track Association of Hartford, Ct., last week, it was voted to give up the track lease and sell the property on hand. The stockholders are to receive a dividend of twenty-five per cent., and the money advanced three years ago will be paid back. This will leave about 50 dollars in the treasury, and it was decided to turn this over to the bicycle club to help pay for their new quarters.

A MAN who gives the name of R. H. Bonner, and claimed he travelled for Cobb, Aldrich & Co., wholesale grocers of Boston, was arrested in Toledo, Ohio, last week Wednesday on the charge of stealing a bicycle from C. L. Lewis. On the stand he admitted taking the bicycle "for a run." The judge decided that it was a case for the grand jury.

THE GALES SAFETY.

THE GALES SAFETY is designed with a view of meeting the demand for an ALL BALL BEARING Safety at a moderate price. The frame is of weldless steel tubing and steel forging throughout. The rear wheel is 30 inches, with 7-8 inch tire, geared to 54 inches. 30 inch steering wheel, with 3-4 inch tire. Best quality moulded rubber tires, firmly cemented into the rims. The spokes are direct, of No. 12 special drawn steel wire. Straight front fork; corrugated rubber coasters. The handle bar is one piece steel tube 30 inches long, bent back, and is detachable and adjustable.

Both wheels, crank-axle and pedals are fitted with ball bearings. The pedal rubbers are soft and tough, and so made as to prevent the rider's foot from slipping. The saddle rests upon an L seat rod, and is adjustable to height, also forward and back. The saddle is the famous Fish patent Hammock, is adjustable in all directions. The brake is of the Plunger style and very powerful. Neat Lamp Bracket, Mud Guards over both wheels. Finely enameled, with bright parts nickeled on copper. Each machine is supplied with tool bag, wrench and oiler.

"BRONCHO,"

NOISELESS, CHAINLESS, LIGHT ROADSTER, SAFETY BICYCLE

W. H. SQUIRE & CO.,
FIRE INSURANCE AGENCY,
87 COLONY STREET,

MERIDEN, CONN., August 9, 1890.

WHITE CYCLE CO., Westboro, Mass.

Gentlemen—You asked me to write you how I liked "BRONCHO" on my trip through the mountains, and I would say that I enjoyed riding it very much. It was all new to me, and on the third day I had the pleasure of making the eight mile coast down Mt. Washington to the Glen House. I think this is rather trying to a wheel, as well as to a rider, for eight miles of friction, the brake strapped down as tight as possible to make the wheel go at about the right speed, and jumping over gutters, which occur about every 50 feet, requires some management. I had no trouble, however, in making the descent, and would advise any one who wants a little excitement to try it on a "BRONCHO."

One of my companions who rode the "Eagle" got down all right, but the Ordinary man did most of his on his feet, walking. The ride from the Glen over to Jefferson was superb, also from there to Bethlehem, and down the Franconia Notch. We rode most of the way from Portland, via the Eastern side of the White Mountains to Jefferson, Lancaster, down the Pemigewasset Valley to the Weirs on Lake Winnipiseogee, 240 miles in all. The wheel stood the trip very well. Yours truly, (Signed) W. H. SQUIRE.

QUIDPROQUO. XXXVII.

It seems that fifteen of the fine flyers on wheel, who afforded us all entertainment during the racing season, will now afford us another kind of entertainment through the debating season. In spring we expand and go out, and leave our books and rules and precedents, and get some light and air and liberty and breadth. Summer and fall are seasons of action. We like exertion for its own sake and for results. We compete, and congratulate, and find ourselves generously active in almost any movement that has or gets a start. Then comes the contracting cold of winter, and we get critical. The good time has been had, and we look it over and see who's to blame that it wasn't better. We look other folks over, and see if we can't regulate them a little more. Those who are on boards and committees, or can attend meetings and debate, have an especially good time at this sort of regulationism. Meanwhile, those who are being regulated can chew the cud of contrivance, and next winter there'll be just as much to regulate about as there is this.

THEY PLAY THE GAME

Of course, the regulation of racing matters, and the eternal conflict about amateurism, have no interest to manufacturers as manufacturers. As men, and as wheelmen, and as L. A. W. members, many of them have as keen interests as any. But as manufacturers they simply play the game; if it's whist, they play whist, or try to; if it's straight euchre, they play straight euchre, and if there's a joker in it, they play accordingly. The Amateur Athletic clubs have a very much likewiseness, I apprehend. And eke the racing men. But when you get into the game, as a good practical man of the world, you either adapt yourself to the situation as its develops, playing as the rest do, or else you get up and leave the table. ——— The game, however, at 77 and 79 Franklin street, here the afternoon before Thanksgiving, was turkey, that good old bird of American manufacture. That fraction of the best of workers on the best of bicycles for the best of concerns, who put in their appearance at the Boston building that day, presented somewhat the appearance of a troupe of busy ants at a new-found supply of provisions,---each going off with a big bundle of the game and a thankful face and step. The Colonel of the regiment wasn't in it, this time, being mid-continent on his way to the far shores that look toward the happy hunting grounds.

NAUGHTY, BUT NICE

Three score others were wishing him good enjoyment of his Thanksgiving dinner, over their savory turkeys. ——— Now what does all this have to do with the "suspension" of fifteen racing men by the L. A. W. Racing Board? Well, at least this,---one of the things that Quidproquo gave thanks for was that the Board didn't "suspend" the men till the racing season was gone and the ulster season was come. There's no fun in races with ulsters on. But there was some fun in the races before, and much more than there would have been had these fifteen naughty amateurs or non-amateurs, (who wickedly accepted training expenses, while the rules only allowed them to accept traveling expenses,) been suspended in September or October. Trained men make attractive races, and the more incentives the more fun.

SPLENDIDE MENDAX.

Most of my Readers have doubtless developed their own appropriate laugh over the inventions of that noble liar, Baron Munchausen, and all have gone on pleasant, though adventureful voyages with Captain Lemuel Gulliver, to the lands of Lilliput and Brobdignag. The writer of Gulliver's Travels was a good clergyman, advertising by the use of delightful fictions some of the social and political merchandise of his time, to whom even his best editors have fitted those epithets of the old Roman poet, "splendidly mendacious,"—or as it might be translated, "a magnificient liar." Don't prose-writers have a license to lie as well as poets? And prose-writers includes advertisement writers, don't it? Of course the words lie and liar are used here in their literary sense,—the sense in which I used them two weeks ago, and may again. The subject of the use of fictions, of every shade from benign to malignant, in advertising is a tempting one, but also a delicate one.

There will be days and evenings this winter when each reader can form his own theory by looking over back numbers of this and other wheel papers, and recalling the facts of his own experience and observation. Artless absence of fiction that can deceive and artful presence of fiction that cannot deceive,---no stone and some yeast in the bread,---will often be found on the second page and the last page of this cautious journal. For the best specimens of the opposite you may have to turn to New York, Philadelphia, and even Chicago papers.

STANDS ON ONE LEG.

In former times the free and even severe use of hickory was supposed to be a remedy for certain fictions. The Hon. G. Washington knew, even in early life, it is said, how to avoid both the fiction and the hickory. In more recent times we see this old familiar wood become a stimulant, and even an active promoter of a benign series of fictions, such as many a humorist by profession would be glad to receive several dollars a column for. Though holding some error that does not sparkle, they have the one leg, no doubt, that Poor Richard allowed tneir whole class, when he put it in his almanac,---

"A lie stands on one leg, truth on two."

Almost anything has one leg to stand on,---some good can be said of it, or it says some good nut of truth which is made more obvious for the burr of fiction about it. I call no names except in friendliness. I would not prick even a bubble for mischief. For the sake of truth I may have to punch an error or two in the eye sometime, but for the most part I mean to let the truth prevail by its own light. On the thirty-six last pages of the preceeding weeks, I have illustrated here by facts carefully verified, by deeds really done, by letters from those who know, by appeals to common experience and sound common sense, and occasionally by story or fable or other flash-light of obvious fiction, a certain body of truth about the construction, manufacture, behavior, beauties and values of modern cycles in general and of certain cycles in particular; and I believe that this body of truth, and each piece of it, stands four square and on two legs or more. Please turn back your files and see.

NAMING NO NAMES.

Perhaps, my friendly Reader, you are quite willing to rest the eye for one week on my simple page without being reminded by me what those particular cycles are, or what has been done with them on up-grade and down-grade and level grade, on path and prairie, on mud and mountain, for a dozen years. You don't even care for me to mention the maker. You either ride one of these machines, or ride some other machine, or don't ride any; and in either case advice won't do you the least good. In the matter of selecting cycles, you must use your own mind,---as you have or would about marriage. There is no one whom you can be sure is unbiased to advise. He who is wedded is prejudiced, and he who isn't, what does he know about it? Soon will fall the catalogues and circulars of the trade, in which every varying shade of fiction may be studied. Of course the primary colors, and simple white and black, seem easy enough to discern, but there are values and approaches in these; and when it comes to the mixed and composite and graduated and myrioshaded hues, you can only discriminate by comparison,---or be amused, and give your trust to the "old reliable."

Good work is being accomplished in this vicinity through the Rochester Morning Herald by publishing one column every Friday on the improvement of roads; by so doing it has the farmers stirred up to a high pitch, as the roads are in a terrible condition in this vicinity.

Here is a city with about 5000 wheelmen and wheelwomen and not a regular correspondent to the World, the best of cycle papers. Some one wake up.

LOUISVILLE, KY. "EYESEE."

The question of League politics has met with a great deal of discussion, and on closer consideration of same does not meet with general approbation. Our wheelmen say it is a dangerous tool to handle, and the past showing of the League without politics go to prove it unnecessary The association with politics would not in any way tend to elevate the League or the sport of cycling, and while rights we are entitled to may be obtained, my opinion is that the same privileges can be obtained without the League officially recognizing politics.

Without desiring to detract from the importance of cycling from our standpoint, it must be admitted that other matters which have more influence in shaping a man's opinion would cause divided support, and an element of dissension creeps into our ranks which we would do well to avoid.

The Independents at their last meeting voted their Board of Directors full power to negotiate for new quarters. A change can but prove beneficial and will stimulate its members in their efforts to make it the leading cycling club of Kentucky.

Several prominent business houses have already signified their willingness to help make the list of prizes for our L. A. W. meet very enticing.

The Track Association will call a meeting shortly to discuss the advisability of laying our track with asphalt.

The L. A. W. meet committees are at work, and while nothing important has transpired, in a week or two matters will begin to take shape.

SYRACUSE. "SALINA."

Thanksgiving day is past, but not forgotten by members of the S. C. C. This holiday found a large number of the members at the club house at 9 A. M. ready to participate in a game of hare and hound. The game was a grand success. Captain Judd, ex-Captain Chapin and "Bill" Johnson were chosen hares and given seven minutes start The hounds followed the trail of orange-colored paper without difficulty. The hares held their own and reached the starting point seven minutes ahead. It was a regular hill-climbing contest on foot.

Ex Captain Chapin is a regular whirlwind. He ran for 1 hour and 40 minutes, and came in first feeling like a fighting cock. The first three hounds in were Yehle, H. R. Peck and Donovan. The later came in on his neck. A ride of this kind brings out the good qualities of the club, the endurance and staying powers of the members. Just notice, fellow members, who the hares and hounds were: Baird. Doxsee, Hatt, Schell, Yehle, Chapin, Judd, Martin, Rounds, Johnson. They are the best riders in the club, and most of them still ride the good old ordinary.

The club took in the foot ball game at Star Park, in a body, in the afternoon. In the evening 36 members lined up on the sidewalk in front of the club house and marched to the Grand Opera House two by two, headed by the bugle quartet lead by W. A. Yale. The theatre party was a great success.

Five members of the Lake View Wheelmen, of Rochester, were entertained by the S. C. C. Thanksgiving evening.

Come on! Me and you. G. Y.

DETROIT. "JUDGE."

Detroit, a summer city, fanned by the cool breezes of Lake St Clair and shaded by thousands of beautiful maples, central for all—in that respect universally admitted to be the best convention city in the United States—hotel facilities unlimited, railroads, steamship lines from every quarter, called the most beautiful city on this continent and the home of "Griff," respectfully and cordially invites the members of the L. A. W. to meet in our city in 1891. For the next few weeks I propose to (in my poor way) give the readers of the World a few pen pictures of this fair city and tell you why we feel we ought to have this meet.

Jolly Harry Doane has a new name in consequence of a new corduroy vest he appeared in the other evening. I dedicate the following to him:

No longer shall ye know him by the name of Doane.
Poor Hal accepts it with a moan,
And from now on throughout the club
"Old Moleskin" thee I dub.

Sunday morning dawned clear and bright and wheelmen were thicker than mosquitoes in Windsor in June. On my way to church (note I say church) I passed scores of club and unattached riders and could not help noticing the difference in appearance between the neatly-dressed club men and the unattached in the almost universal cutaway coat and flapping trousers. They are out of place on a wheel; buy a pair of knickerbockers, my friend, and note the extra comfort and the satisfaction of knowing you appear well. Runs were made to Essex Centre, Can-Grosse Pointe and McSweeny's and Bell Isle Park.

Everything seemed favorable for a successful run on Thanksgiving Day, but the old lady shook up her beds the night before and in the morning the ground was covered with "the beautiful" to such an extent that the run had to be postponed.

"Schimmies'" pool and billiard tournament is a go. The entries up to date are about thirty; four nights in each week will be devoted to playing it off. Everything points to a very successful tournament.

Gus Jones has gone to Chicago to visit his old chum and racing companion, Geo. Lane.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

That charge made by Bearings that two men at Washington, D. C., were offered $75 each to sell a championship race and accepted the offer though never really consummated, is too serious a matter to allow it to pass unnoticed. Such charges cannot be lightly made, and Bearings should be compelled to prove it. If true then it will go very hard with the accused, but if Bearings cannot back up its statement, then it ought to go ten times harder with the author of the skit.

The Chicago indoor game of base ball is being adopted in many cities where a hall or rink large enough can be found.

Mr. Wm. Dillingham of Malden, Mass., entertained a large number of his cycling friends last Saturday evening Among those present were Mr. and Mrs G J McArthur, Mr. and Miss Beers, H. D. Hutchins, and the Misses Kirkwood. The Ocean Side Cycle Club of Gloucester were invited but were unable to be present. It was decided to form a social club and meet monthly at a member's house. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

A new club has been formed at Hyde Park, Mass., and it will be known as the "Norfolk County Wheelmen." The club has secured two rooms on the first floor of the Lincoln House on Gordon avenue. A handsome piano is in constant use in the parlor. Electric lights illuminate the rooms, and the greatest taste has been employed in furnishing its headquarters.

A curious toast at a bicycle club supper was "The care of children" as rendered at the supper of the Æolus Bicycle Club of Whitman, Mass., the other evening.

Great Scott!! will some "unsuspected" amateur please send in his name? We think we can get him a permanent position in a Dime Museum as a living curiosity.

The most popular song just now with racing amateurs is Toney Pastors latest: "They are after me." Last Friday while strolling up Tremont street behind one of the most prominent amateurs in the East we heard him whistling that air in a most reflective manner.

The formal opening of the newest New York Bicycle Club, the "Gotham Wheelmen," took place last week Wednesday at No. 2 E. 85th street. The decorations of the interior were unique and elaborate. Dancing commend at nine P. M., and Thanksgiving Day was several hours old before the party dispersed.

The reorganized Terre Haute (Ind.) Wheelmen's Club includes in its membership nearly all the skilled wheelmen in the city, and as an organization is in the most satisfactory condition.

The Rambler Bicycle Club of Fall River, Mass., has secured new quarters on the third floor of the Fall River bank building, and will move there as soon as the building is finished.

Since the ruling by the Treasury Department that wheels to be entered free of duty in this country must have been used abroad not less than one year, several parties bringing in wheels that had been used abroad a few weeks have had to pay full duty, much to their surprise and disgust.

THE weather on Thanksgiving Day was generally propitious, and only in one or two sections did snow interfere with the programmes laid down.

WE are just in receipt of a letter from Mr. W. S. Maltby, dated Honolulu, Sandwich Islands, November 11, in which he states he would sail for home on the 15th November. He has been in Honolulu about two months. He say: "There are hardly any cyclists on the islands, why, I don't know, for the roads about the towns are good, and though hills in the country, they are as good as in many places in the States. It's rather warm for riding of course, but not too warm excepting in the middle of the day, and even then it's not nearly as warm as it is in Australia in the summer. It never exceeds 90 and is never below 50. I have done considerable touring and find it very pleasant; the scenery is perfectly grand, and as the people are about the most hospitable I ever met, it would be a delightful place for a party of wheelmen to make a visit." Mr Maltby will remain on the Pacific Coast a few weeks before coming East. He reports his trip as being a financial success.

MR. HARVEY DUCROS the business manager of the Pneumatic Tire Co., will be in this country about the first of the coming week. He sailed from Ireland the first of this week.

MR H. G. ROUSE, of Rouse, Hazard & Co., was in town last Wednesday.

CHARLES E EISENBRANDT, one of Baltimore's most prominent wheelmen, died November 25th. His funeral was largely attended on Friday, all the Baltimore clubs being officially represented.

THE Rovers' Bicycle Club of New Haven, Ct., gave a smoker last Friday evening. The programme included vocal and instrumental music and readings. The topical song by the "Only Cleve Walker" was a medley of clever hits on the club members and was one of the features of the evening.

OUR readers should remember that every criminal is entitled to the benefit of the doubt until proven guilty. Hence the amateurs now under the ban of suspicion by the Racing Board should not be adjudged as professionals until they have had the chance of disproving the charges. Time enough when the Board renders judgment.

THE Hartford (Ct.) Cyclers' rifle tournament at Union Grove on Thanksgiving Day proved a very close and exciting affair. The Hartford club made a fine fight for first prize, but were beaten by the Colt Cycle Club by a score of 273 to 272. The Columbia club scored 252. The best individual score—34—was made by H Goodman of the Columbia club. Four targets were in use, being of the regulation standard American make with a 1-inch bull's-eye. The Colt's Arms Company kindly loaned the rifles and furnished all the ammunition necessary. The rifles used were 22-calibre and the distance was 25 yards.

MR H A. LOZIER and Mr. Edwin Oliver of H. A. Lozier & Co., Cleveland, Ohio, were in town the first part of this week. Mr. Lozier and Mr. Yost have just returned from England, where they have been putting in some good times from a business point of view.

A CRUEL, hard-hearted manager of a female bicycle racing troupe skipped out and left his fairies destitute and moneyless at East Liverpool, Ohio. The girls are now just "aching" for a sight of the "manager." If he is "wise beyond his years" he will allow the girls to "ache."

So far as heard from F. J. Allsup of Cincinnati, Ohio stands at the head of the mileage record scorchers with the very tidy figures of 9808 for six months' riding, from May 1st to Nov. 1st. His opponent (name not given) rode 7500 miles in the same time. Warren L. Welch of the Wissahickon Wheelmen has a record of 6136 miles from Jan. 1st to Nov. 18. Next, please!

We had a very pleasant but short call from "Griff" last Tuesday. We might add that "Griff" seems to favor Detroit as the next meeting of the National League.

JOHN PORCHET of Batavia, N. Y., had the misfortune to get both feet amputated by a railroad train several years ago, and since then he has been obliged to walk on cork feet. Despite these artificial pedal extremities he rides a safety with considerable skill, and can hold his own with many riders who possess all of their natural gifts.

THE New Castle (Pa.) Bicycle Club, organized in 1884, disbanded the other day, and the amount in the treasury, $222, was given to charitable institutions.

ARTHUR A. ZIMMERMANN is a law student, and is studying law in the office of his brother-in-law, Mr. Joseph McDermott of Freehold, N. J.

ON January 14, 1891, the Palisade Wheelmen of Hoboken, N. J., intend holding a reception at Kessler's Hall, one of the largest ballrooms in that section. Over 700 invitations have been ordered printed. The committee of arrangements, Messrs. J. Schlendorff, Hecht, Pichenbach and Lujen have left nothing undone in order to warrant a success, and unless the "Palisades'" hustling ingenuity deserts them it cannot be other than a grand affair. This club has already had three stag rackets and two receptions at its club rooms this season.

"DICK" HOWELL, who in September was indicted on the charge of committing an assault on a servant at the hotel in Lancaster at which he was stopping, was acquitted last week Wednesday.

"DABBLING IN POLITICS."

I WAS much pleased with the article by Albert Mott, published in a late issue on "Dabbling in Politics." There is much good sense in what he says, and evidence of some practical experience in "dabbling in politics."

The Columbus (Onio) club settled this question for themselves at the last election without questioning the legitimacy of political "wire pulling," where an improvement of highways seemed likely to be secured. We have some very bad roads in this county, and especially is the National Pike in a condition to make a wheelman forget his Sunday School training when necessity takes him over it. We had a County Commissioner to elect this fall, and the County Commissioners have entire control of this National Pike. Ergo, let us work for the candidate that will work for the improvement of our roads. Of the candidates for office, one was a livery-stable man and the owner of several farms (therefore interested in good roads) and seemed likely to be elected, although a Republican in a strong Democratic County. He was waited on by our road committee, our wants were made known, and he pledged himself, not too readily nor too strongly, to do all in his power to secure the improvement of all county roads, and especially of the National Pike.

A list of the names of the voting wheelmen in the city was secured, and each member of the club given a list of the men he was expected to see and explain the situation. Democrats and Republicans of the club alike approved of this plan, and the majority of riders readily agreed to support our candidate. Our man was elected, but we have yet to learn how much was actually accomplished by our efforts.

I can see no good reason to object to this kind of "dabbling in politics," and in close districts wheelmen might often be able to secure pledges for the support of measures in which they were interested. Even an unpledged law maker, Senator, Representative or Councilman will not fail to heed a goodly number of petitioners who ask his support of a measure, provided a greater number of his constituents are not opposed to it. A man in public life nearly always strives to remain there, and to do this he must trim his sails to the wind of popular opinion; to go beyond this is to lose his hold upon the people, and consequently Legislation, rightly or wrongly, is seldom what the people should have, but what the majority want, and the only way wheelmen can effect any large measure of good in the matter of road improvements is by leading the people into wanting and demanding better roads. It is not to be supposed that any one prefers bad roads to good, but the average man is averse to spending money for future advantages which he is not quite clear about receiving; the masses must be taught the advantages of good roads.

Political interference might well be turned towards securing changes in the laws regulating the manner of paying for road improvements. In some counties of our State these are paid for alike by all residents of the county, and this would seem no more than right in most cases, as each tax payer is directly or indirectly benefited by good roads. In others, and perhaps the majority, improved roads are paid for by assessing the abutting property and that directly benefited. Except in favored counties, where road material is right at hand, this places a very heavy burden on a comparatively small number of land owners, with the result that but few road improvements are made in such counties. Changes of legislation, leading to a more equitable distribution of road assessments, might possibly be secured, and as a result a considerable extention of good roads.

There are many ways in which, by a judicious "dabbling in politics," wheelmen might advance their interests, but to secure the greatest measure of good we must unite our interests with those of all others who should be interested in good roads, and to secure this interest we must keep constantly urging men out of the ruts in which they have jogged along for so many years.

Thanksgiving Races Crowded Out.

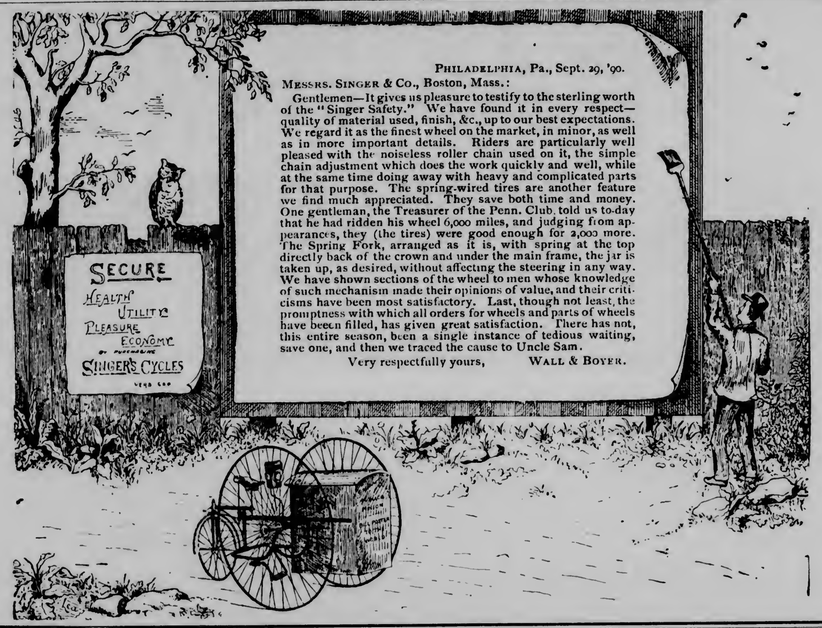
Owing to unexpected pressure the events run on Thanksgiving Day will have to be held over until next issue.

THE BICYCLING WORLD & L. A. W. BULLETIN.
DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF CYCLING.

Volume XXII. Number 7. BOSTON, 12 DECEMBER, 1890 $1.00 a Year. 5 cents a copy.

THIS is the time of the year when your mind is mostly taken up with considerations of how to make a four-dollar bill buy about nine very elegant Christmas presents and have enough left for a cigar and a street car fare.

The attempt to perform this stupendous feat has caused more silver threads among the flowing tresses of the youth of this country than the quest for the Northwest passage. We can advise you on most any point, (for instance VICTORS are the best bicycles to buy), but the above mentioned problem is rather beyond us yet.



If we ever get bicycles enough made up to last us over a day, we're going to take that day and attend to a lot of these matters.

In the meantime we must make bicycles, and what bicycles we do make! And "the line" for '91! Well, we'll tell you all about that before long now.

As heretofore, we shall make a catalogue for 1891. You can send in your name any time now.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 29, '90.

MESSRS. SINGER & Co., Boston, Mass.:

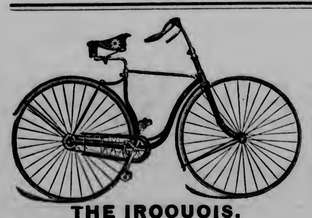
Gentlemen—It gives us pleasure to testify to the sterling worth of the "Singer Safety." We have found it in every respect—quality of material used, finish, &c., up to our best expectations. We regard it as the finest wheel on the market, in minor, as well as in more important details. Riders are particularly well pleased with the noiseless roller chain used on it, the simple chain adjustment which does the work quickly and well, while at the same time doing away with heavy and complicated parts for that purpose. The spring-wired tires are another feature we find much appreciated. They save both time and money. One gentleman, the Treasurer of the Penn. Club, told us to-day that he had ridden his wheel 6,000 miles, and judging from appearances, they (the tires) were good enough for 2,000 more. The Spring Fork, arranged as it is, with spring at the top directly back of the crown and under the main frame, the jar is taken up, as desired, without affecting the steering in any way. We have shown sections of the wheel to men whose knowledge of such mechanism made their opinions of value, and their criticisms have been most satisfactory. Last, though not least, the promptness with which all orders for wheels and parts of wheels have been filled, has given great satisfaction. There has not, this entire season, been a single instance of tedious waiting, save one, and then we traced the cause to Uncle Sam.

Very respectfully yours, WALL & BOYER.

RAISING THE WIND.

A sixteenth century idea, carefully resurrected and respectively dedicated to that fast decreasing number of people who think a country can be made prosperous by its inhabitants "wearing one coat where two were worn before."

Do you observe the cool satisfied look on the classic features of the gentleman here depicted? He knows that his boat is moving ahead, and he also knows that he is blowing against the sail, hence the reason of its moving is obvious to him.



THE DUTY ON BICYCLES

has been raised 10 per cent. Why? Did any American maker ask for it? No. Will it benefit the American manufacturers? Well, that is a question. This much is certain. It will bear heavily on our friends who are importing, and whose profits were small enough before. But how about the great American buyer? Prices may not be advanced, but such an increase in duty will tend to hold them firm. Strictly high class work cannot be produced much cheaper in England than here, while cheap work in large quantities is almost invariably made to better advantage in America. Now, assuming that the above is correct, you will say, "How can the imported machines be sold here to compete, unless the American maker is getting too high a price" The makers of good honest bicycles in this country are getting a comfortable profit, while I know of some instances where the English maker is selling his surplus product at a figure that barely gets "a new dollar for an old one," and the machines are brought into this country and sold by the importer at a profit so low as to be simply absurd. And the difference all goes into the custom house. What of it? Well, perhaps you will know some day.

This same cut may be of interest to those who think that a safety is driven from some point above the earth.

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 12 DECEMBER, 1890.

THE little row in Buffalo seems to have ended in a harmless explosion, a trifle of smoke. The statement made by a sporting authority in the News to the effect that after November 1st, open events in the A. A. U. City League would be things of the past, has come to naught, and at the meeting of the Buffalo City League A. A. U., held November 5th, it was unanimously voted to allow all recognized amateurs to compete in local events.

THE New York World in commenting on the present L. A. W. A. A. U. amateur tangle says:

"* * * The members of the Conference Committees of the two organizations above named should bear in mind one very important fact in forming restrictive laws, and that is, that there should be a happy medium struck, it being borne in mind always that amateur organizations are formed for the purpose of promoting amateur sport There is no question that the payment of certain expenses promote sport. It is only the abuse of the privilege or the payment of expenses without restriction wherein the difficulty lies. It is a serious problem."

There is much wisdom in the above excerpt; it is the "happy medium" that we want to strike. No one will say that the payment of proper and legitimate expenses hurt the sport. It is a question for the L. A. W. and the A. A. U. to once for all settle what those legitimate expenses shall be.

Many claim that the preparatory expenses of training are necessary expenses, and there is a strong element of logic in such a claim. Under the present L. A. W. rule the preparatory expenses are not allowed, therefore in cases where it is proven that the suspected man has accepted such expenses, expulsion must be the consequence if the rules are enforced.

Again it is claimed that expenses of riders who engage in record breaking should be allowed, and here also is room for argument, but as it is at present, the L. A. W. does not recognize records except made in open competition, the rule therefore would bar men from accepting expenses while record breaking.

Revision of some kind is imperatively needed so as to avoid this constant clash of rulings between the A. A. U. and the L. A. W. Let the organizations get together and decide on a set of rules if possible, which will not have any shadow of doubt as to the intent and translation of same.

We are anxious to see the matter settled, the interests of the sport demand it, and it is in the power of the two leading amateur organizations of the country to so settle it if they will come together in a proper and amicable spirit of determination to solve the difficulty.

A COMPLAINT FROM SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

Editor Bicycling World: I would like to know why the California Division cannot keep money in its treasury the same as other Divisions of the L. A. W?

The Secretary-Treasurer has issued a circular asking the members of the California Division for $1 per capita as the treasury is almost without funds. Now I would like to know if it is right for the officers of the Division to ask $1 from us so far down south that we can't get any benefits from the League? I don't think that the Secretary-Treasurer will get many dollars from the southern California members; not until we get some benefits from the League and then we will contribute as well as we can.

How many of the northern members will contribute dollars to the Secretary-Treasurer we will see, as their names will appear in the WORLD.

There is not a member in Southern California but what is working for the League—always trying to get members. In closing I would say I am sorry that the circulars were ever sent out, as the members cannot forget that the century run took a good portion of the money in the treasury to pay for the special train, etc.

Yours truly, A MEMBER OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

MR. VAN WAGONER ON HIS SUSPENSION.

Editor Bicycling World: I write this giving my views concerning my suspension from the L. A. W.

In the first place I am suspended awaiting trial on two false charges I am taking no means whatever in the matter to prove that these charges are false for two reasons. First, my business demands strict attention at present. Second, I do not care enough to remain a member of an organization that will bring up its members as suspects on false charges (and then instead of proving him guilty, and if unsuccessful acquit, go ahead and compel him to prove himself innocent or expel him) to go to any trouble to disprove myself a professional.

Your readers can draw their own conclusions from this. I have been racing as an L. A. W. member three years. It has been a source of continual expense to me, as I have to a certain extent neglected my business and have not made a cent in return for my work (notwithstanding another charge against me of selling a prize.)

I do not propose to let racing run away with my business and hereafter do not expect to race any more; also in case of my acquittal and reinstatement in the L. A. W. (and I do not see how judges with any sense of judgment whatever can do anything else), I propose to resign as soon as I get such a notification of reinstatement.

I am not writing this to gain favor, as I don't think I will gain favor by so doing. It makes no difference to me whether I am expelled or not, but I don't like the idea of being expelled or even suspended on the utterly false charges. The sooner I get my answer from the Racing Board, one way or the other, the better I will be pleased, as I wish to remain a member of L. A. W. no longer than possible, but would of course much rather resign.

WM. VAN WAGONER.

IN our issue of a week ago we said in this column, "Great Scott!! will some "unsuspected" amateur please send in his name? We think we can get him a permanent position in a Dime Museum as a living curiosity." The item comes back to us with the following added thereunto: "How about Mont Scott?"

BOSTON NOTES.

"TONEY."

BENEATH the protecting folds of the Star Spangled Banner, flanked on both sides by jovial men, and in plain view of a large audience, sat Interlocutor F. H. Atwood at the opening of the annual minstrel show of the Wakefield Bicycle Club in the Wakefield Town Hall last Thursday evening. As the curtain rose the notes of the song "The Wakefield Cycle Club" floated melodiously through the great hall and evoked the hearty applause of the audi ors, who refused to be satisfied until Mr. A. H. Hall had sung "Climb up Ye Children," in such a manner as only he can. The jokes were fresh baked and brilliant, and hitting as they did members of the bicycle club and local politicians they won the admiration of the audience which they kept in "one continuous roar of laughter." The topical song "Hush, Don't Give it Away," by End Man Nott was one of the features of the evening, as was also the singing of "Kathleen Mavourneen" by L. W. Flint, Jr. The first part of the programme was brought to a close by the singing of the "The Wakefield Fancy Ball," by the company, and then the Wakefield Bicycle Mandolin and Guitar Club rendered the "Darkies Patrol," and the Crescent Harmonica Club played a selection. Without stopping to remove the lamp black from the beautiful faces, the gentlemen of the company hastened to the rescue of the fair damsels who were waltzing up and down the polished floor together with some favored swain, and for long into the night the merry strains of waltz music floated down the quiet street of Wakefield.

FIVE members of the Cambridgeport Cycle Club travelled to New Bedford last Tuesday evening, and there participated in the annual party of the New Bedford Cycle Club. When the Cambrideport Club holds its fancy dress carnival next week but one, several of the New Bedford men will hasten to Cambridgeport, and neath the classical shades of Harvard will indulge in the dreamy waltz with the fair inhabitants of that prosperous city.

THE Medford Cycle Club men have added another feature to their already large list of winter indoor entertainments, that of lawn tennis. They recently leased the old skating rink in that town, and are having it fitted up for lawn tennis, and therefore expect to spend more than one pleasant evening in friendly competive tennis honor. One of the members is the champion tennis player of the town, and has defeated many of the most prominent tennis players in this State.

A FEW short weeks ago the new club house of the Somerville Cycle Club was dedicated by the wheelmen of this State who congregated in large numbers to accept of the hospitality of its members. Last Thursday evening the residents of that place assembled and went through almost the same course of sprouts as did the wheelmen. As early as seven o'clock a number of the members and their sweethearts were on hand to inspect the quarters, and a little later the older persons put in an appearance and looked with delight upon the festal scene. The parlors were filled to completion with the youth and beauty of Somerville, and the members enjoyed the evening fully as much as did their guests.

Two of the victories of the late city election were gained by J. S. Dean, the Democratic candidate for Common Council from Ward 14, and A. W. Robinson, the Republican candidate for Common Council from Ward 5. Both gentlemen received a handsome number of votes that elects them to a seat in the council chamber of this city. The most peculiar phases of Mr. Robinson's battle was not seen until after the polls had closed. Then an Irishman in his ward said to him that he had lost a number of votes for being connected with the Law and Order League. Upon being requested to explain what he meant, the Celt showed him a paper giving a biographical sketch of Vice Consul Robinson and pointed out that passage which referred to Mr. Robinson being connected with the L. A. W. The trouble was that a great many Democrats who read the paper thought that the letters L. A. W. stood for Law and Order, and believing such to be the case refused to vote for Mr. Robinson.

NEXT Tuesday evening the Rovers will hold their annual dinner, and also celebrate on a small scale the victory of their ex-captain.

NOTES BY

"Is it easier to ride that, Mister, than it is to walk?" Who has ridden a wheel and has not been asked to answer this and similar questions many times over by inquiring and ignorant onlookers. How few though of the wheelmen who have given the required information really knew how great the actual and scientific gain in ease and locomotion the cycle is over the natural one of walking or running. I am sure I have in different forms answered this and similar queries a thousand times during the past ten years, and I for one never knew what the proportionate gain of cycling over pedestrianism was until I read an article on the subject by Dr. E. B. Turner, who is to-day the foremost exponent, both practically and theoretically, of the scientific racing and riding of the modern bicycle and tricycle. He demonstrates that to run one mile at a twelve-mile per hour rate of speed takes more out of the runner than it does for a cycler to run twenty miles within the hour. Easier, he says it is, to ride eighty-four miles than it is to run eight, and if an individual is fit to run eight miles he can easily ride one hundred. These are not mere statements by an enthusiast, but they are scientifically proven facts, and Dr. Turner, though no longer a young man, has during the past racing season proven them in practice by breaking records in this the greatest time-smashing season cycling has ever known. Commenting upon cycling performances, requiring of the performer perfect condition and supreme exertion, Dr. Turner again repeats the caution to racing men to forego any attempts at record work until they are at least 19 years of age; not to do this is to risk serious results happening to ambitious riders whose youth tempts them into endeavoring to emulate the performances of their elder and more matured competitors. Cæsar was ambitious, and because he was ambitious his friend Brutus slew him. Let the youthful racing enthusiast remember this fact, so that his ambition may not cause him to undertake tasks unsuited to his immature frame and thus cause him to become his own Brutus and cut short a career, which, if it had have been less ambitious, might have been longer and more fruitful of success.

WHERE has not the fame and daring of the war correspondent not met with recognition and admiration! From foe and friend alike has praise been given him in recognition of the dangers he must undergo that the "stay at homes" may from the product of his pen and brush know how their battles in foreign lands have been won or lost, and with these facts before us it is not strange that in the columns of the press have lately sprung up a class of "war correspondents" who are as unlike the genuine, fair-minded, fearless original as a bicycle is like a balloon. There is war and rumors of war, if one accepts as truth all the products of the pens of these brave carpet knights. The armies that are to do battle before the eyes of the athletic world are those of the L. A. W. and the A. A. U. As yet only the skirmish lines of each have appeared upon the battle-field, but our veracious "war correspondent" assures us that oceans of blood are figuratively to be spilt, that a great battle is imminent and that the victor will only leave the field when the vanquished has not only been defeated but has been put to an ignominious death. Certain it is that such a conflict would be much appreciated by these jackals of the fourth estate, who scent from afar the chance to feed alike upon the corpse of friend and foe. But, seriously, there is not going to be any conflict, as the man said who was refused admission to the ark, "'Taint going to be much of a flood anyways." What is there to fight about? A few score of "pot hunters" have been called up with a round turn to answer a few pertinent questions by the Racing Board to prove to that body and to the world of athletics that what has been alleged against them is hot slander; to show that the spotless robes of pure amateurship which they wear are not as their enemies claim mere disguises, but are the raiment of athletic purity to which they are entitled from having ever told the Satan of professionalism "to get thee behind me!" Personally, I would that the L. A. W. had fewer instead of more racing men; that is racing men who seem to have time and money enough to go all over the country scooping prizes varying in value from a piano to a tin-pot. The vast body of members of the L. A. W., the men who support it and who made it great, are not wheelmen for revenue only; they are individuals who represent the best and brightest side of cycling; they are the true sportsmen of the wheel, who having taken up wheeling as a means of recreation and exercise do all in their power to keep it free from the smirching it receives at the hands of the few. How much worse off do you think the L. A. W. would be if it were laid down more upon the lines of the C. T. C., which does not indulge in any attempts at control of racing men, but devotes itself to the care of the many, letting the few who race organize a separate body to govern themselves. While I of course recognize the right of any wheelman to become a racing man if he has inclination or ability, I am not so sure that I am a believer in letting him in consequence thereof keep the other ninety-nine members out of each hundred in the L. A. W. continually in hot water. More important and broader interests are open for the energies of the League to devote its labors to and it should not have them withdraw from these channels every now and then to get into squabbles and newspaper wars over so trivial a question as whether a mere handful of their 20 000 members have been unlawfully scooping a tin dipper or a year's laundry bill from some other more honest but less speedy members. Let the L. A. W. make short work of the whole thing; either give up the care of the racing men altogether or inforce its laws against all who break them in spite of the A. A. U. or the wails of the guilty ones, but settle it once for all so that in the future we shall not have it all to do over again. If it can be done honestly and fairly so the racing man gets justice and is satisfied all well and good; if he cannot be satisfied with the result as under these conditions, but looks for special legislation and license, then the limb is diseased beyond cure, and let it be lopped off; better we be without such than ever sickened and worried by our possession of it.

CHICAGO NOTES.

"WAYNE SCOTT."

KOENERT of the Lincoln Cycling Club of Chicago is a young man who has but lately finished a continuous ride of 28 miles on the unicycle in three hours and one-half. He is but 18 years of age and has ridden since 1878, when he became proficient on one of the old wooden wheels. In 1889 he broke the backbone of his wheel and from that time on has ridden unicycle. He has ridden a mile in 3 10 on the road, 3.05 is Bert Myers' record, American I think; and contrary to most unicycle riders his position at all times is perfectly upright on the pedals. He says he has no use for handle-bars or forks, and I saw him ride a rough road with ease, without support of any kind whatever other than the pedals. Roy has ridden down a flight of 18 steep stone steps on one wheel. Ralph Temple declared he would not do it for any consideration. This daring rider will start from New York next June and ride to Chicago unicycle, and will ride for all unicycle track and road records next spring.

PICKING up one of our daily papers and glancing at the centre of a column I was dumb-founded when I read as follows: "Yes, I have just received word that wheels have advanced 70 per cent.,' said a prominent dealer of this city; "this move in conjunction with the increased duty on materials will cause an immense increase on wheels of all descriptions." My hands trembled as I turned the paper to see the heading, yet there I found little satisfaction for thus it read: "Only the rich may ride. Enormous advances in prices by the wheel trust." Ah, yes! that's it, carriage wheels; and I resume the perusal of my morning paper, but some time elapses before my pulse becomes normal and my scare is over. Would a raise of 70 per cent. kill wheeling?

No little surprise was depicted on the countenances of our Chicago racing men when the announcement of the suspension of 16 of America's fastest racing men was read in Saturday's daily papers. Frank Fanning expected such a move, but thought there were others who should be included. Geo. K. Barrett thought it all right and quoted several instances in which these amateurs had convicted themselves. N. H. Van Sicklen said: "I do not believe the suspensions will stand. I am surprised the Racing Board had the backbone to make such a move and think that some poor fellow will be made an awful example of and the balance will be reinstated." F. Howard Tuttle (under the ban): "I think it a shame, and will say right here I'm not with 'em and can prove it." Since then the announcement of the suspension of Windle and Zimmerman struck our men like a thunderbolt, for should investigation prove these charges Chicago is on top and the riders from the Windy West who attended to their "bread and butter" and trained out of business hours are the fastest amateurs in the country to-day.

THE Lincolns will feast the old year out and the new year in. Herrick is the responsible party. With subscription paper in hand he is touching 'em up and the result is to be an immense turkey dinner New Year's Eve. Two long tables will be set in the club parlors and seats for 100 provided. Speeches will be made by club orators.

"WHAT handicap do you suppose I will get in the Pullman" is already a leading question, and from the number of inquiries I have heard it would seem every man who rides a wheel expected to ride next season.

O. W. RICHARDSON, a 17-year-old member of the Chicagos, is the patentee of a cushion tire.

THE photo taken by the Lincoln Club on Lincoln Monument Thanksgiving Day is one of the best photos I have ever seen; 18x22 is the size and there are 85 wheelmen in the group. All the faces are distinct.

FRIDAY EVENING, Nov. 28th, the Illinois Cycling Club gave the first of their winter receptions at Martine's. Last winter these receptions were very popular and their first one this winter would indicate a still greater popularty.

NOTHING of importance will be done by our local clubs before the first of the year—that is toward building. In a conversation with a prominent member of one of our clubs, he said that they would do nothing until after election as the present officers were afraid of "queering" themselves, but that next spring would see them installed in a fine club house of their own.

THE Oak Parks gave a very successful dance Friday evening, Dec. 5.

THE Douglas Cycling Club have organized an indoor ball team under the management of O. C. H. Rellihan. Charlie Cutting is official umpire.

PROVIDENCE NOTES.

"ELNOD."

THE members of the Providence Ladies Cycling Club, although not doing any great amount of cycling at present are keeping up interest in the club by holding socials at the different members' houses during the winter months, at which gatherings the husbands or sweethearts as the case may be are always present.

MR. DAVID POST of Hartford was in this city last Tuesday, and under the guidance of Rankin found his way to the Rhode Island's club rooms in the evening. "Dave" has many friends in Providence.

HARDLY had our boys recovered from their surprise caused by the suspension of "the 18" when the resignation of Mr. Charles S. Davol as Chief Consul for Rhode Island was announced.

A MEETING of the officers of the State Division was immediately held, and Mr. Davol's resignation was reluctantly accepted, and Geo. L. Cooke, Vice Consul, by virtue of his office at once assumed the duties of Chief Consul and appointed Mr. Jas. L. Speirs to the position of Vice Consul.

MESSRS. COOKE AND SPEIRS have both occupied the President's chair of the Rhode Island Wheelmen, and are very popular with the wheelmen throughout the State.

THE regular monthly meeting of the Rhode Island Wheelmen was held last Monday evening, and one new member was elected to membership.

CAPT. PERKINS reported that ten men had attended eighty per cent. and over of the club runs for which they will receive handsome gold medals, Messrs. H. L. Perkins, J. T. Lakey, G. C. Barton and Benj. Smith having attended every run, and their medals will be extra nice and have three gold bars at the top.

IT would be hard to find a happier crowd of boys than that assembled at the rooms of the Rhode Island Wheelmen on Thanksgiving night. Entertainment was in the form of sparring, banjo playing and a black face, musical act by Old Hutch and Hick, which act wound up by rendering of the latest (what—?) "Are you coming out to-night Mary Ann?" It is safe to say neither will ever again attempt to warble the above as they were rushed by the entire club, and they haven't done anything since. Supper was enjoyed after the above ruth, and Messrs. Rankin and Hutchins, the able committee of the evening, are to be congratulated upon the success of the racket.

DETROIT.

"JUDGE."

THE pool and billiard tournament at the club house of the Detroit Wheelmen is under full blast. It is of course too early to give results or make any predictions as the tourney will last all winter. The sensation up to date was the defeat of "Shark" Schimmel at the hands of William Marks, "the boy wonder." It must have rattled the boy, as he has been losing ever since.

"GRIFF" arrived home safe and sound Sunday afternoon. That we were overjoyed to have him with us once more goes without saying. Although it was planned to have but a few meet him about 20 of the boys got wind of it and gave him a hearty welcome. He holds a reception at the club house tonight. He gives glowing accounts of the East, its wheelmen and the magnificent treatment he received at their hands and wishes them all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year (when it gets here).

YES, Mac, "me bye," poetry, prose, anything to get that meet, and we are going to get it, you bet.

FLINN received his Pontiac-Detroit medal a couple of weeks ago.

They ought to have kept it awhile longer and made him a Christmas present of it.

The concert of the Detroit Wheelmen will take place Wednesday evening, Dec. 17. Prof. Abel has secured the very best talent in the city and the concert is an assured success; and Fred, old man, we want a 'cello solo from you sure.

The annual election will soon take place. I have figured in these elections in years past to quite an extent and here thank you all for the many kind deeds received at the hands of the wheelmen in general in Detroit. This year I do not pose as a candidate for any office and therefore take the liberty of electioneering a little. First, president—why waste space and time, "Griff," of course. Next, vice-president—as one of Mr. Medbury's most intimate friends I can say positively he will decline a nomination for any office; hush, say it low, he is married, you know (pretty good rhyme that). I urge Mr. Holcombe to accept the nomination; as a parliamentary tactician he is superior to any man in the club, not excepting "Griff" himself, and in "Griff's" absence will fill the chair ably. For treasurer Mr. Case has shown himself a good officer and should be re-elected. For secretary "Mac" Josephi must be retained of course; he has worked long and faithfully and the club is under great obligations to him. Now next to the president the most important office in the club, captain. For years we have had in our midst a man who has worked day and night with all his might to further the interests of wheeling. Popular and respected by all he is the man for the place. I nominate William E. Metzger for captain. Remember the meet will probably come to Detroit and we should have a set officers of whom we may be proud.

"Griff" and "Metz" will make a good team to run the meet in '91, and make it the meet that takes the cream.

Hurrah! for Detroit in '91.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"ARIEL."

The South End Wheelmen's fourth anniversary was celebrated at their club house last Thursday and Friday evenings. The house was handsomely decorated, the affair on Thursday being a "stag," while on Friday evening the ladies were entertained. Six of the clubs were presented with silver medals for century runs made during last season.

McDaniel has a bet on with Geyer and Lofland that he can do the distance from New Castle to Wilmington, 5 1-4 miles, in twenty minutes. This would be record for course.

Speaking of records reminds me that Wilhelm has obtained affidavits from the timers in his recent attempt on the pike record from Paoli in, in order to satisfy the doubting Thomases.

"The Birds," a society of Philadelphia and Wilmington Wheelmen was organized in the latter city on Monday night by electing the following officers: President, W. Van Wagoner; Vice President and Treasurer, S. F. Tuchton; Secretary, B. F. McDaniel; Captain, W. C. Seeds. Road riders only can be members of this organization, although they have sufficient gallantry not to bar the fair sex, but one of the tests of membership will be the ability to cover five miles in twenty minutes over a stretch of road such as they can boast of at Wilmington.

Social events crowd thick and fast upon us. The Pennsylvania's last dance was a very successful one, while a progressive euchre is down for this week. Philadelphia is holding regular informal dances as are Quaker City and Century. The Park Avenue Wheelmen had a rousing theatre party last week, while on the 16th they will make their first venture at a smoker, which, owing to the size of the club house, will be limited to members only.

A most disastrous fire was just escaped by A. G. Spalding & Bros. last night. About half-past eight o'clock the policemen on the beat discovered smoke issuing from the basement of their store, No. 1022 Market street, and an alarm was promptly sounded. On the arrival of the fire department the doors were burst open, and the board ceiling of the basement was discovered in flames. Fortunately, the timely discovery prevented it from getting beyond control, and was extinguished with a loss of a few thousand dollars' damage to the stock and building—all covered by insurance.

The following circular from the Associated Cycling Clubs is the entering wedge for what it is hoped for will prove to be an American Stanley Show.

"The Associated Cycling Clubs of Philadelphia have in view the holding of an exhibition in the early part of the coming year, probably during the month of February; the exhibition to consist of cycles and cycling accessories, with particular attention to improvements and novelties for the next season.

The idea is to have it in a large, centrally located hall, and to continue for about a week. * * *.

The object is not to make money, but to popularize cycling, and to bring to the attention of wheelmen and others the great advances that have been made in the manufacture of wheels.

We think it an unequalled opportunity for the manufacturers to present their products to the public, and have every reason to believe it will receive the generous patronage not only of Philadelphia wheelmen but of the general public.

Thomas Hare,
Chairman, 2045 N. 13th street,

DAYTON, O.

"EAGLE."

As yet the cold weather has not put a dampness on bicycling in our city. Seven or eight members of the D. B. C. had a delightful moonlight run to Troy, O., the other evening. It was quite a treat for the boys as moonlight runs have been rather few and far between of late. The trip was run without any accident, with the exception of an occasional "header" by our genial secretary, E. H. Houck. It seems as though the gravel and sand was a little too much for him at certain places, and when he struck that pump, oh! ——. At Troy, O., we were highly entertained by some of the club boys, Messrs. Allen, Gibbs and a few others whose names I cannot call at present. At Hotel De Coolidge we were given an excellent feast by that accommodating landlord (and, by the way, I would advise any wheelman visiting Troy to stop at the Coolidge House), and after a short trip to the boat house (the boys will understand) we started on our homeward trip accompanied by a few of the Trojan members. We desire, however, to thank our kind friends of Troy for the cordiality shown us and congratulate them on their elegant club house.

The question has often been asked here and vicinity why the Rambler Club and the Dayton Bicycle Club are not on friendly terms. There seems to be no serious feeling among the members, but sort of rivalry. After repeated efforts of the D. B. C. to induce the Ramblers to join hands with us in various things, we have at last given up the idea and no doubt from this on they will never be heard of. I have heard they intended making their club a League club, but there is not enough "go ahead" among the members to bring it to the right point.

Our club photographer, Mr. Edward L. Rowe, Jr., has at last given up the idea of taking pictures. Some say he is rather timid about using the camera, but the truth will out, for in a private conversation with him he says: "I'll tell you just as soon as I get the gang together, that is, their faces, it will ruin my camera."

As our membership is getting rather large we will now have to look for larger quarters. A number of the members made the rounds of the city a few days ago, but as yet have not decided where we will locate. A great many desire to be in the central part of the city, while others seem to think differently.

PORKOPOLIS NOTES.

"STAR."

The Socialists seem to be very hards to please, for when I said their club was to be very select I was accused of indulging in "sarcasm," and when I hastened to make amends by declaring that it was not at all select I was accused of making a "fling" at them. Now as to my having a quarrel with them—that is a most prodigious mistake. On the contrary I have been doing my best to say something real nice about them. Verily, the lines of a correspondent do not always lie in pleasant places.

To one who has an eye for the picturesque, and who is not afraid of hills, the run to Petersburg, Ky., via Riverside Ferry, Constance, Hebron, Bulletsville and Gainesville, is one abounding in pleasant surprises. Log cabins that might have been built by Daniel Boone and in various stages of decay. Roads that wind back and forth up the side of a precipitous hill and turn sharply around a corner to reveal to the astonished cyclist a view of the Ohio more magnificent than he had ever dreamed of. The distance, 45 miles the round trip, is no greater than the run to Hamilton via College Hill and the roads are far superior and much smoother. The coasts, well! and the dinner! A good meal can be had at the hotel kept by E. T. Krutz, but it would be well for parties of four or more to order dinner a day or two beforehand.

On last Sunday, Nov. 30, the Crescents had a paper chase. The hares led the hounds up hill and down dale, through Clifton, St. Bernard, Norwood and Walnut Hills, and were within a mile or two of the starting point when their supply of paper gave out. Aszman of the hounds was close on their heels when they stopped.

A Word about High Wheels and Particularly the Eagle.

Have you noticed the number of "Safety" riders who are returning to the high wheel? They are already numerous and the number is fast increasing. There must be some reason for this, some advantage in the high wheel or disadvantage in the low; this reason is not hard to find. There is a charm about the easy gliding motion of the high wheel that can never be realized on a Safety, and one who has never ridden a high wheel has never known half the pleasure of cycling. The only reason wheelmen left the Ordinary was the fear of "Headers," and now that The "Eagle" has eliminated that danger, the old pleasure can be enjoyed in safety.

The following extract from a cycling paper expresses the idea exactly, and although written for the "Ordinary," it applies with greater force to the Eagle, which, while having more advantages than the "Ordinary" ever had, is still as safe as any "Safety:"

"There is an indescribable something about an ordinary that is lacking in a safety, and which can never be acquired by any addition or improvement. It is the same thing that makes the equestrian prefer his cob to a seat in the coach; the same thing that makes the true sailor prefer the tidy sloop, with its attendant dangers, to a steam yacht; the same thing that makes the hunter prefer to shoot at game rather than glass balls; or the fisherman prefer hooking the gamey trout or bass to dragging his fish out with a seine—in short, the difference between a true sportsman and a would-be."

THE members of the Queen Cycling Club have heard with dismay that the "Gay Chicago Bicycle Girls" are to be at the Dime Museum next week and are seriously thinking of draping their wheels in mourning, hanging them up and praying for wintry weather or anything else that might avert this impending disaster.

ONE of our wheelmen, who shall be nameless, has had attached to the steering post of his safety a square leather case for the reception of a quart bottle in which he intends to carry —— water! There will be a rubber tube and mouth-piece attached to it, a la nursing bottle, so that he can quench his thirst without dismounting. This is simply an idea of his own.

THE Porkopolis Wheelmen at their last meeting added to their already long list of members. They also took steps towards celebrating the anniversary of their organization in an appropriate and fitting manner.

NEW JERSEY NOTES.

"PALISADES."

ALL of the Jersey clubs sent delegations to the fair held by the Harlem Wheelmen, and all report having had a "large" time. If the Bergen County boys had turned out in larger numbers, and shown a trifle more "backbone," they would have won that chain. But——

THE Elizabeth Wheelmen have started a pool and billiard tournament, and considerable interest is being taken in it, as it is the first on their new table.

THE Englewood Wheelmen have decided to admit ladies as active members.

THE Bergen County Wheelmen will give their reception at Leonia Lyceum, Leonia, N. J., December 19th. They expect a large number present, but will be fully prepared to give all a good time (as usual).

THE New Jersey Division Board of Officers met at Elizabeth on the 10th. Full particulars of this important meeting will be found in next issue.

INDIANAPOLIS.

"SAFETY"

THE weather continues clear and dry, and every wheel is yet in use. Sundays give opportunities for fifty or sixty mile runs which are really made with more pleasure and less discomfort than the mid-season affords, on account of summer's heat and oftimes dust. We are having, so far this season, a repetition of last year's riding weather, and I only mention it to say that ten days or so, altogether, of rainy weather would cover the time we were not able to ride to business during the winter. Of course this record is possible mainly because we use the sidewalks awheel, the streets being often frozen rough and unrideable when other weather conditions permit business riding.

THE Zig Zags ran their road race on Thanksgiving Day as heretofore announced, though their course was changed in order to make a finish at home. The run was out of town and back, over a sandy road, with a finish of half a mile on the Penn street asphalt—10 1-2 miles. Willetts beat the crowd in 47.10; Hughes, safety, second; Ribble, on the g. o. ordinary, third. Three minutes saw the finish of seven or eight of the fifteen starters. Four good riders came later through the vicissitudes of loose tires, headers and bent cranks, and the first road race of the Zig Zags was lost and won.

SINCE we are all invited to express ourselves on the political question, allow me to have a shy at it. I am sure it would amaze many people in this broad land to know that anything can come out of Indianapolis not steeped in politics. It is a cool afternoon here when the political couldron does not at least simmer, and a meeting of the legislature is far more dangerous than all the sidewalk riding that was ever dreamed of or done. We are all politicians. In fact one of us got to be President, and several of us have gone to the penitentiary, while the rest of us are scattered all the way between. We all know there is a tariff on bicycles, and that acorns are on the free list. The entry into politics by the L. A. W., as an organization, will mark the beginning of dissensions, ending in dissolution. It is unadvisable because it is unnecessary. Some one asks if the members of the L. A. W. are too nice to enter the dirty pool of politics. Will refraining from open and organized action in this field abridge the rights and privileges of any member as an American citizen? Do your good work mainly on the quiet, gentleman, and let the politician feel your influence now and then and suspect, as he will, that you are more potent than to unmask your batteries would prove you to be.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

"RIPPLES."

A RECEPTION of the Ladies' National Bicycle Club was held on December 8, at No. 8 Chestnut street. About 500 of their friends were in attendance, including representatives from all the city clubs. A very pleasing literary and musical programme was carried out, after which they adjourned to the dining room where they did justice to the spread. This is the largest ladies' club in the state, and they may feel proud of this, their first reception.

THE Flower City Wheelmen have added a piano to their club property; a pool table is soon to be purchased. They had a very pleasant time at their first annual ball, although the crowd was not large, it was a success financially.

THE West Ends are to have a Christmas party at their rooms over 80 West Main street, Christmas night. The boys are hustling to make all the money they can to buy furniture for the house that they are to move into in the spring.

THE committees of the different clubs are hard at work making out their programmes for their winter entertainments. Some rich and rare treats are promised. Success to all.

POOL tournaments are to commence next week in both the "Crescents" and "Lake View" club houses.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

THE New York World, that most enterprising of metropolitan papers, honored us with an invitation to be present at the opening of the new Pulitzer Building on December 10. We do not know of an invitation that has given us such sorrow to be obliged to decline. The exercises were of the most interesting, and we pity those, who like ourselves, had to decline with thanks.

HERE is a story that comes from the Louisville (Ky.) Times. "Perhaps the best shot of the season was made the other night by Herman Rave, a reporter of the Times, who had been out on a hunt near New Washington and was bicycling over to Nabb Station, 8 miles distant, by the moonlight. While descending a steep, long hill, the wheel flushed a bird. Rave drew a pistol, and while the wheel was going at express speed down hill, shot and dropped the game. But the wheel also dropped, and the gunner went head over heels into a ditch. The result of the shot was a broken pedal, skinned knuckles and a magnificent pheasant, which overbalanced all the damage." The above story is good as far as it goes. The first part shows genius, but the last part is bungling and commonplace. The true artist in fiction would have said after the words "dropped the game" something like this: "The recoil of the pistol was so great as to drive Mr. Rave from the shot, where he shot backwards to the top of the hill, a distance of about half a mile, the grade of the hill being about one in five." That would have been high art.

A GOOD story comes to us from New York. Mr. Lozier, Ned Oliver and G. M. Worden took dinner at a well-known Italian restaurant of that city. The menu consisted of eight courses and a bottle of wine. After the dinner had been disposed of Worden remarked that he "could dispose of two more just such dinners." "All right," says Mr. L., "I'll pay for them if you will." Worden started in and ate another complete dinner, wine, soup and all. He squealed at the soup of the third dinner and gave it up. Tom Stevens acted as referee.

MR. J. L. YOST was serenaded by a musical club composed of employees of the Lozier & Yost Bicycle Mfg. Co. on the occasion of his return to Toledo from England. The club was invited in and Mr. Yost did the hospitable act to the great satisfaction of his serenaders.

THE Washington Cycle Club of Washington, D. C., held a most successful run on Nov. 30th to view the ruins of the "Glen Echo," which was destroyed by fire on Nov. 28. The "Glen Echo" was situated on the Potomac, a short distance from Cabin John's Bridge," a great number of wheelmen from all parts of the country being familiar with this famous and popular resort. The club held a hop and reception on Nov. 25 and entertained a large number of its friends until an early hour.

A CONNECTICUT genius has converted his regular cycle into an icycle and rides upon the frozen surface of the rivers and ponds with great enjoyment. The contrivance is as effective as it is simple. It consists of a strip of thin, flat steel, punched full of holes, which is wired to the tire of the rear wheel, burr side out, and enables one to skip around on the ice as freely and easily as on land.

THE cash value of A. A. Zimmerman's prizes for the season of 1890 aggregate $1800. He won enough goods and in variety sufficient to start a first-class store. The most valuable prize was the upright piano won at Peoria.

THE Gazette of Worcester reports Mr. Windle as saying that the charges against Hoyland Smith by the Racing Board are unfounded; as for himself, "He says he shall take no notice of the charges against him and unless there is different management in the L. A. W. next summer there will be no racing, as the public will not go to see fourth class men race, and the best men will keep out of it owing to shabby treatment."

THE Fostoria Bicycle Club gave its first "Ladies' Nights" on last Friday evening. The progamme says: "To-night we welcome our wives, our sweethearts and our lady friends to join us in our parlors. And not alone to-night, but on all nights set apart for your entertainment throughout the season."

"A MAN has brought suit against a bicyclist in the English courts. He says that the wheelman frightened him and developed a case of heart disease. Some of the Omaha wheelmen are developing cases of heart disease in certain quarters, but the cases will hardly come into court."—Exchange.

A LETTER from a well known physician of Lynchburg, Va., writes us that a certain man passing himself off as a member of the L. A. W., and giving the name of Edward Ingraham of Manchester, Eng., and son of Dr. Ingraham of that place, obtained money from him on these representations. Investigation proves both claims to be fabrications and proves the man to be a fraud and members are warned to look out for him.

SECRETARY JAMES E. SULLIVAN, of the A. A. U., says he can personally vouch for the fact that A. A. Zimmerman did not receive any money for expenses, and that he paid his own way.

THE Scranton Bicycle Club held its second assembly at the club house last Friday evening. There were one hundred present, among whom were many visitors from out of town.

"GRIFF" passed through Boston last week on his way home to Detroit. The return of "Griff" to Detroit will be made the occasion of much sounding of cymbals and tooting of horns and the rejoicing will be great thereof.

HUMANITARIANS are not all dead, that is if we are to judge of the fact that a man made a bet with a cyclist that he could run down a certain steep hill faster than a cycler could coast. His theory was that the wheel would go the faster, but he "took the chances of the cycler taking a header and breaking his bully neck!" The contest came off and this cycler won "hands down."

MISS KATIE FLETCHER of Washington, D. C., narrowly escaped death the other day while out riding her bicycle. She collided with a heavily loaded ice wagon, and by the merest good luck escaped being run over. As it was she was very badly bruised. The driver of the ice wagon never stopped to see what damage had been done.

YESTERDAY, W. W. Windle gave an excellent exhibition of fancy riding at the entertainment given for the benefit of the Millbury, Mass., Bicycle Club. There was a large attendance from the out of town clubs, Worcester and Whitinsville being especially well represented.

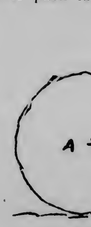
THE Plainfield (N. J.) Bicycle Club is certainly strong and solid with the City Government. Prominent among the active members may be named Mayor-elect Alexander Gilbert, Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, ex City Judge Wm. M. Stillman, Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed, ex-Mayor of the Borough Dr. J. H. Cooley, Councilmen O. L Jenkins and Townsend Rushmore and Councilman-elect Ernest B. Ackerman.

THE Kings County Wheelmen of Brooklyn have applied for membership in the Amateur Athletic Union.

CHIEF CONSUL COOKE of Rhode Island will no doubt prove a worthy successor of ex-Chief Consul Davol resigned.

OUR New England readers will please take notice that the WORLD was mailed to them on Friday night. Any delay in delivery must be charged to the Post Office Department.

THE Indianapolis Sun thus becomes facetious: "Bicycle riders should never run on the roadway—it's dangerous. Especially is it so when they try to jerk the wheel off an ice wagon by hubbing it. The young man who tried to wreck the ice wagon on Ohio street the other night will not try it again, nor ride on the asphalt, at least not until he gets a new machine and a new nose.



THE DIAMETER OF WHEELS.

THAT was the subject but now it is, "from what direction is a front wheel pushed." The gentlemen who have been fooling with this question evidently "didn't know it was loaded." Mr. D'Ancona says he "has taken a full university course in mechanics and has always made a close study of its principles." My early education was considerably neglected, and later when I went through Yale College it was so near sundown and my friend, the janitor, was in such a hurry that I didn't get as much of an insight into educational matters as I would have liked to. The "resolution of forces," "cube root" and "square root" I know very little about, but am more familiar with "root hog or die." Mr. Buchanan has figured the matter out in good shape, and if a bicycle was to be ridden with a lead pencil he would be all right, but unfortunately there are practical conditions which tend to modify and sometimes even snuff out theoretical calculations.

Mr. D'A. asks me to "give this a moment's thought." Just to please him I have done so, and here is the result:

Imagine if you please a gun barrel, having within it a spiral spring. Upon this spring place the ramrod and press it down until the spring exerts a force of five pounds tending to push out the rod. Now fix the gun barrel with its closed end on the ground at the point where rear wheel of safety rests and inclined upward at an angle so that the end of ramrod would press against the front axle. This would bring a force of five pounds to push the front wheel forward and upward. Who doubts this? We must assume that no one does. Now suppose instead of this spring we take a hoop pole and bend it in the form of an inverted letter ∩, placing one end on the ground and the other at the front axle. The pole tries to straighten and exerts a force, where? Why between the ground and axle of course, as it touches nothing else.

Once more. Allow the pole to run horizontally from the front axle at A (see cut *) to the rear one B, and at the latter point pivot to it a vertical stick with its lower end resting on the ground at C. Now in any way you please, connect a spring whose tendency will be to push farther apart the ends A and C, and of course if the grounded end doesn't slip the effect would be to push forward and upward against the point A, or in other words the force must of necessity be between the only two points of contact. This being self evident it follows that instead of a spring we may substitute any conceivable force so long as it is wholly carried upon and supported by the points named, and the result will be the same. Nor does it matter how or in what shape this force is applied.

The point from which a locomotive pulls is the top of the rail on which it runs. Whether the power is exerted by steam, a spring, or a man, this principle holds good. In the case of a locomotive, the harder it is pulling the more weight is thrown on to the driving wheels and taken off the front trucks, and if such a machine had enough power without increased weight it could tip itself over backward, using the rear drivers for a fulcrum.

In a bicycle the rider's force tends to separate the two points A and C, and in doing so has precisely the same effect that any other force acting within and upon the machine would have. The bicycle and its rider must be considered as a single entity exerting force, as every mechanism must, from its fulcrum, which in this case is the ground.

It has been suggested that the force exerted to revolve the driving wheel forward, tends in the same degree to revolve all other parts of the machine backward around the driving wheel, which would account for the lighter weight of front end of machine when the driving force was applied. This would be all right if there was anything to prevent the driving wheel revolving, but there is absolutely nothing, the top of it being entirely free to move.

STERLING ELLIOTT.

* I hope you won't criticise this cut. The engraver who has usually done my work declines it now since he has a family to support, so I was obliged to engrave this one myself on a piece of Hickory. The hatchet was dull, but I did the best I could.

THE "CITS" AND THE N. Y. A. C.

Editor Bicycling World: The following is a quotation from your paper of Nov. 28, which appeared in the column entitled "News and Comment":

"The Citizens' Club of New York has applied as a body for membership in the N. Y. A. C. The membership of the "Cits" is 80, and the application will be acted upon by the club of the winged foot at its next meeting Dec. 2."

Please permit me to correct this. The question of the consolidation of the two organizations originated with the New York Athletic Club and not with the "Citizens'." The membership of the Citizens' Bicycle Club was never greater than at present, the roll showing 107 active, 7 live, 27 non-resident and 2 life members, a total of 143. Yours truly, J. T. FRANCIS, Secretary C. B C.

THE ELIGIBLE AGE TO L A. W. MEMBERSHIP.

Editor Bicycling World: As I have had the pleasure of being a member of the L. A. W. for the past four years, and having travelled considerably through the country, associating and mingling with wheelmen, both attached and unattached, and having heard the question of age discussed—as regards the limit of the L. A. W. in relation to joining the League—I would like to have the liberty of expressing my views on the subject.

We all know that when a wheelman attains the age of 18 years he is of sufficient age to become a member of and also to understand the objects and aims of the L. A. W. Each year there are hundreds and perhaps thousands of young men who have reached the age of 17 (seventeen) years, who are barred from joining the League on account of that portion of Art. III. of the Constitution, which says—relatively to the eligibility of members, viz: Any amateur wheelmen in good standing, "eighteen years of age or over," etc., etc.

Now, Mr. Editor, I think it right for the limit to be placed at 17 years instead of 18 years—inasmuch as no doubt there are 500 wheelmen at the age of 17 years who would join each year, and it is plain to see that we would be benefited about $1000 a year by the extra increase thereby gained besides the renewals of extra members.

Looked at in the right light I can see no reason why the 17 year limit would not prove a healthy and beneficial change both in the increase of membership and financially—and all in all the L. A. W. would have no reason to regret the change.

There are several young men in this locality who are over 17 years of age and are active and respectable wheelmen, but who are barred from joining the League until next fall because the "age limit" makes them illegible to membership.

Let us hear more of this question, as I think it worthy of discussion. Fraternally yours, NELSON A. BRADT, L. A. W., 4415, Johnstown, Fulton County, New York.

A MID-WINTER TOUR.

A NUMBER of years ago Karl Kron and Mr. F. A. Elwell discovered the charms of Bermuda from a cycler's standpoint and the promulgation of their find has turned the longing eyes of snow-bound wheelmen to that land where frost never comes and good roads abound. Mr. Elwell's third annual tour to this favored land will begin Jan. 29. The inducements offered by this tour are many and peculiar. Here is a land whose manners, customs and scenery are as distinct from our own as can be imagined. The views of land and sea are semi-tropical in their aspect—the water is brilliantly blue or vividly green, palms, oranges, bananas, etc., are on every hand. The party will remain at the fine Princess Hotel during their stay and make runs to all points of interest. It is a tour especially adapted to lady riders and many will avail themselves of the opportunity. The announcement of the tour will be found on page 167 of this issue.

RACING EVENTS.

AT BUFFALO, N. Y.—Early Saturday evening the clans began to centre at the Sisste Arsenal on Broadway to witness the games and bicycle races of the 65th Regiment Athletic Association and the Iroquois Athletic Club. At 7.45 the 74th Regiment Athletic Association, headed by the Kazoo Band, and 200 strong, with colors flying, marched to their assigned position; just below them were a lot of empty seats with the blue and white banners which have been seen at so many theatre parties, indicating that the Ramblers "were in it." At 8 o'clock a long line of black uniforms stretched across the wide floor, and 125 Ramblers took their places, exciting much applause. The Press Cycling and Buffalo Bicycle Clubs also had places assigned them, while the Zig Zags were noticed among the various athletic clubs.

To wheelmen the five-mile bicycle race was the most interesting event, and the first to command their attention. The starters were Crooks, Klipfel, Kane and Lewis of the Ramblers, Penseyres of the Press Cycling Club, Dorntge (pronounced Dorn-gee) of the "Indians." Dorntge has been riding only three months, but I was given a tip early in the week that he was a sure winner, the Ramblers thought Crooks had a walk over, while Penseyres' friends thought the "dark horse" sure of first place, but Penseyres said he would be thankful to get third place.

A hot pace from the start was what we saw, and everybody yelled and shouted. The "Indians" told Dorntge to "keep the floor down," and the Ramblers stood up and asked Crooks to "go faster." I haven't seen so much excitement since the finish of the Century race last August.

Meanwhile the "Indian" kept passing the others, getting as many as three laps on some of the tailenders, and except Crooks they "weren't in it." The track was without raised corners, and was ten laps to the mile. Dorntge finished at the climax of the excitement in the excellent time of 16.57 1-2; Crooks a lap later, Kane third, Penseyres fourth, Klipfel fifth, though there was some dispute among the spectators, many holding that Penseyres was a good third.

After several less interesting events the ten mile cycle race was started with the same contestants. Lewis got a fall early in this race and quit. Crooks got another fall, too, and the "Indian" got a lap on him before he had hardly got to going again. Dorntge's riding in this race showed good head work as well as pedalling, and he took laps whenever he chose, getting from three to five laps on all the others. His time for the ten miles was 30.56. Crooks made a good fight, but could only get second. Penseyres' wheel, one he has just finished, was geared too high. Kane worked hard, and was given third place again; Penseyres fourth. Klipfel rode well, but was handicapped by the adjustment of his wheel; he won fifth place.

The first three prizes in each race were neat medals, gold, silver and bronze; the fourth prizes were special prizes.

Kane and Klipfel also competed in running events, Kane winning second in the 75 yard trial heat; they were entered as Rambler Iroquois Athletic Club, having been obliged to so enter in the cross country runs, and according to A. A. U. rules, still must so enter.

Mike Brunner, the Ramblers' Samson, won the shot putting, breaking the local record by over a foot.

Good luck to Detroit in '91. "I'm wid ye."

"SETAGAG."

AT PHILADELPHIA—A number of road races were held on Thanksgiving Day, the principle one of which was the 5-mile handicap race of the Park Avenue Wheelmen, for which thirty entries were received. It was held on the Montgomery Avenue course, from Havers ford to Bala, and it was expected that Taxis, who was scratch man, would attempt the record, but the pike having been newly metaled he decided not to ride. The men finished as follows: first, Linton (handicap 1.30), time, 17.48; second, Roberts (3 min.), 19.27; third, Beatty; fourth, Rich; fifth, Gill; sixth, Van Sciver; seventh, Herbst; eighth, Van Dousen, 10 seconds, making 16.43, the best time; ninth, W. B. Develin; tenth, E. Parker. The last man, Lindenfaeger, by terms of the race must ride the club goat from the club house to Fairmount Park—a distance of about four miles—and back again.

The Mount Vernon Wheelmen's 5-mile race was run immediately after the Park Avenue with the following result: first, Detwiler handicap 4 minutes, time 19.30; second, Ricketts; third, Creighton; fourth, Dacy; fifth, Osborne, who was scratch man. The men all finished well up.

ON Saturday evening at the games of Third Regiment half a dozen riders started in the two mile bicycle race, which was won by S. H. Crawford of the Reference Wheelmen, in 6.57, V. J. Kelly, second, the latter having taken a side fall on the last lap, losing his shoe and finishing the race with a stockinged foot on a sharp rat trap pedal—not an enviable situation by any means. W. W. Taxis started but dropped out owing to sickness.

A LOCAL twenty-four hour record was made on Thanksgiving Day by E. O. Roe of the Columbia Cyclers who covered 176¾ miles, while F. H. Garrigues, Century Wheelmen, did 181 1-2, both being club records. The actual riding time was about 19 hours. Roe received as a prize for his performance the B. J. N. medal. November 23d A. H. Vaux of the Quaker City Wheelmen broke their club record by doing 170 miles in 17 hours.

W. I. WILHELM on Friday last again broke the pike record from Paoli in, covering the distance of 15 3-4 miles in 43m. 24s. There was a strong west wind, but under any circumstances the performance was a remarkable one, as when Vad Wagoner made his record last fall in 45m. 52s., he did ten miles in 29m. Particulars as to the timing, etc., have not yet been made public, but I have a letter from Wilhelm in which he gives little account of the attempt, and states that this is positively his last race. He certainly retires with flying colors as he had ridden faster this season than ever before.

AT ASBURY PARK, N. J.—About 1000 people attended the races of the Asbury Park Wheelmen on Thanksgiving Day; the races were held on the new macadamized road, and were refereed by A. A. Zimmerman. The following is a summary:

First race, for club members only—Won by John N. Burtis.

Second race, 1-2 mile ordinary—Won by Fred Trick, time, 1.32; John R. Park, second.

Third race, 1-2 mile safety—Fred Trick, first, and Benj. Ford, second.

Fourth race—Won by Arthur Hope, Geo. A. Smock, second.

AT READING, PA.—A five mile road race for a gold medal took place on Thanksgivsng, and was won by Edw. Youse in 14m. 32s.

AT PROVIDENCE, R. I.—In the bicycle road race of the Rhode Island Wheelmen in Providence on November 27th, the starters with their handicaps were as follows: A. Barker and S. Wooley, 5m.; G. Woodley, 3 1-2m.; J. Foster and A. Hutchins, 3m.; W. Rands, 1 1 2m.; C. Rogers, 1m. Scratch man, C. Weld, did not start. The times made were as follows: Rands, 44m. 10s.; Foster, 50m. 17s.; Hutchins, 1m. 40s.; Woodley, 53m. 25s.; Rogers, 50m. 59s.; Wooley, 57m. 25s.;

Barker, 6m. 59s. Rogers lost the way, having never been over the course before, which accounts for his position. By his victory Rands wins the gold medal for 1st prize, also the handsome gold time medal.

AT ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—A large audience assembled on the board walks on Thanksgiving afternoon to witness the race of the Atlantic City Bi. Club. The following were the results:

One mile safety, championship of Atlantic City—W. F. Smith, first; R. Hewitt, second.

One mile safety, scratch—Won by J. R. Hazleton; V. J. Kelley, A. C. S. N., second. Time, 2.40.

Half-mile championship—W. F. Smith, first; R. Hewitt, second.

One mile ordinary, scratch—J. R. Hazelton, first; V. J. Kelly, second. Time, 3.00.

One mile tandem—Walk over for Draper and Kelley.

One mile safety, handicap—Won by V. J. Kelley, scratch; J. C. Donnelly, 100 yards, second; J. H. Draper, 75 yards, third. Time, 2.30.

AT SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—The bicycle road race held on Thanksgiving Day was won by F. C. Graves in 5om. 30s., which time is considered excellent taking the roughness of the road into account.

AT NEW HAVEN, CONN.—The five mile run of the Rover club took place Thanksgiving afternoon; Geo. Smith came in first in 16m. 59s., winning the gold medal; Howard Hewitt, 2d.

AT BRIDGEPORT, CT.—An event that will go down in the annals of the cycling history of this city was the grand hill-climbing contest of the Bridgeport Wheel Club on the famous "Volt" Hill at Greenfield, six miles from this city, on Thanksgiving Day. The event was open to all wheelmen in the city and was given for the purpose of establishing a record on this the steepest incline in this section of the country. The prize offered by the club to the individual making the most ascents in succession was a handsome solid gold record medal. No time limit was placed on each ascent. Time and again expert riders, racers who have won contest after contest, have tried to climb this grade but failed. There were several hundred wheelmen present on Thanksgiving Day when the contest started. A. A. Avery, the first entry, created a sensation and was declared by a majority of those present the winner after having scaled the summit eight times, when he was obliged to withdraw. An automaton in every sense of the word was Wm. Richardson of the Bridgeport Wheel Club, who next attempted the feat. Richardson was mounted on a 54 gear cushion tire safety, and 20 times he went up and down the acclivity not varying 30 seconds from 6 minutes on each trip. He was proceeding on his 21st trial, but was stopped by over-anxious friends, who declared that his work was undebatable. Franklin Smith of the Barnum Cycle Club, mounted on a 51-inch gear solid tire safety, next attempted the climb and rolled up a score of 18 ascents in just 2 hours and 25 minutes. Prior to the contest Richardson had voluntarily awarded a handicap of two ascents to all other competitors, and hence the judges, Messrs. Calhoun, Latham and Wm. Middlebrook, declared the contest a tie. Owing to the cold weather it will not be run over again until next spring. Prior to the "Volt" Hill contest a club event of the B. W. C took place on the long hill known as Greenfield Hill. This contest was won by F. E. Soule, who climbed, descended and again climbed the hill in 6 minutes and 49 seconds; Henry Lebing, second, time 6.55; George Fryer, third, time 7.20. "NOSTAW."

AT JACKSONVILLE, ILL.—The special feature Thanksgiving was the bicycle race between the city and Illinois College team; the race was closely contested for the whole six miles, and was won by Jos. Capps of the College team in 23m.

THE Arlington Wheelmen of Washington, D. C., gave their handicap club road race from Frederick on Thanksgiving Day as planned, but as the weather was very cold, and for private reasons, several of the members who had entered for the race did not show up. Those who did ride were D. L. Sandoe, F. C. Bowen, Wm. R. Mackville and Wm. T. Robertson. The last two started from scratch, and the first two were given a start of 35 and 30 minutes respectively. Sandoe won the race making the 60 miles in 4h. 58m., which is the record for the course, being about half an hour better than the previous record. The road for the greater part of the distance is an old pike, partly in very bad condition, and 8 miles consisted of dirt road. Sandoe deserves a great deal of credit for the time made, particularly as he was run over the day before the race by a lumber wagon and was so badly bruised that he could not walk without a limp. Nothing but his excellent muscular condition and his great activity kept him from serious injury under the horses' feet. The wheel he intended to ride was wrecked in the accident. Robertson broke a brace-rod in the frame of his wheel just out of Frederick but succeeded in catching up with the others, riding the first 14 miles in 62 minutes. Bowen and Mackville were too lightly dressed and nearly overcome by the cold.

MR. H. A. LOZIER INTERVIEWED

MR. H. A. LOZIER has but recently returned from a seven weeks' trip in England and Ireland, where with Mr. Yost he has been posting himself in the ideas and methods employed by the cycle manufacturers of the Old Country.

We were agreeably surprised by a visit from the first-named gentleman the other day, and knowing him to be a keen observer, we took the opportunity to ask him some questions relative to the trade in general and tires as viewed from an English and his standpoint in particular.

"What did you find out in relation to tires while in England, and what are the makers there going to do about it?" we asked.

"Mr. Yost and I went abroad to purchase tubing as a specific object, but we had naturally read the mass of matter pertaining to this question of tires, which has occupied so much of the English and American press during the past year, and determined to investigate sufficiently by personal experiment to form an intelligent opinion as to the desirability of using some form of compressed air tire on our own wheels. As you know, we control the Bolte Spring Fork and Frame, and had made our plans to use it on all the Giant Safeties, little and big. Still we should have used one of the new tires if we concluded it was superior to our own spring devices. The English have never experimented very much with springs. What they have done might be termed but a dim reflection of American ideas. The pneumatic tire was therefore much more of a revelation to them than to us, and not surprising either, as ninety out of every one hundred over there have ridden nothing but a perfectly rigid frame and a hard, uncomfortable saddle, and as a consequence every English manufacturer will use either the pneumatic or the cushion tire, so called. Of the comparative merits of the two there can be but one opinion. As one of the larger makers remarked to me, who will use cushions on most of his output: 'The cushion would never have been thought of if the other had not appeared.' It is a compromise, so to speak, and an offset to the costly first comer.

Yes, as a tire for the magnificent roads of England the pneumatic is a success, and has been considerably improved since Mecredy first brought it prominently before the public. It is not so liable to puncture now. Mr. Dunlop has introduced a strong web of woven canvas and wire fabric under the rubber, so that a more substantial resistance is offered to keen-edged obstacles. This cloth is so constructed that it will not stretch laterally, but only longitudinally, so that the contact with the edge of the felloe is not so liable to cut it. But with these precautions even the pneumatic will cut and the severe provocation offered by the ordinary American road will prove a successful adversary, which strengthens our faith in the solid tire and spring device. Besides disposing of the large output of our own factory, it is my intention to job extensively, so I placed a goodly order for both pneumatics and cushions, and shall be able to furnish either on a wheel of the highest grade to those who want them and will pay the price. Mr. Yost spent several days in the factory and thoroughly understands the construction of the pneumatic, so we can repair or put it on as well as its originators.

The different forms of cushions are almost innumerable and which is the best is a problem difficult of solution. It is generally conceded, however, that a hole a half inch in diameter is too large and much more liable to split from the inside or make the tire grow flabby. Dunlop has gotten up one which is expected to be productive of good results. I bought a number of these.

The cycle trade in England is phenomenal. There are more manufacturers springing up there by ten to one than here. Several concerns in Coventry are turning out 500 a week. I was told that Coventry was now making more machines than ever, and this is but one point, though the largest, all of which would tend to show that the trade was in its infancy in this country.

Our line this year? It will consist of the Giant, No. 4, Bolte spring fork, ball bearings all over, including the head, our new saddle, which we call the Yost, and strengthened and improved in minor points as suggested by our past season's experience, and listed at $55. The Giantess, 28 inch rear wheel, 26 inch front, balls all over, including the head, Bolte spring fork and frame, and the Yost saddle, for ladies, at $75, list. The Little Giant, cone bearings, Yost saddle and Bolte spring fork, at $35, and the Little Giant, with balls all over, including the head, Bolte spring fork, Yost saddle, all finished very highly, at $45. These machines will be made by the Lozier & Yost Bicycle Mfg. Co.

I am now changing my Cleveland store into what will probably be the largest cycle emporium between New York and Chicago, and will job the Pneumatic Giant, a machine with a diamond frame, Dunlop tire, etc., of the highest possible grade, at $ 6 , list. The Cushion Giant, which will be the same as the foregoing, with the exception of the tire, which will be the Dunlop Cushion, at $135, list.

LADIES' WARWICK PERFECTION SAFETY.

As promised in our last edition we now present description and cut of the ladies' Warwick Perfection safety. A brief glance at its symmetrical lines will convince that appearances are decidedly favorable.

The special demands of lady riders seem to be met in a cycle which readily adapts itself to graceful and easy mountings; is of weight approximating to requirements of a lady rider; easy of propulsion; is roomy between peak of saddle and steering; has a saddle that fits a woman; grips that find the natural position of a rider's hand, with the minimum of vibration.

The general requirements are that a machine shall be constructed of highest class; the material, when metal is used, of wrought steel; its workmanship the best obtainable; its finish and design elegant.

In the Warwick Perfection ladies' safety all the above mentioned requirements added to such as manufacturing experience suggests will be found. The machine is fitted with 28 inch driving, 30-inch steering wheel and is geared to 50 inch. The wheels are each fitted with 32 tangent spokes, attached to their well-known hollow rim (Warwick Perfection, specially constructed for cushion tires) by their patented process, which enables a rider to remove the spokes without touching the tire.

These rims being extra wide, with large rounded edge, the chances of cutting the tire are absolutely less than with the old solid tire and rim. The tires are of cushion pattern (their special construction) 1 1-4 inch diameter, securely attached to the rim, and equal to any solid tire in wearing qualities.

The crank throw is from 5 1-2 to 6 1-2; the handle-bar graceful, but fitted for business; the pedal neat.

All hollow parts are of cold drawn weldless steel tubing of specially selected gauge. All solid parts are from drop forgings of selected steel. There is no cast metal used.

The ball steering on long centres is a noteworthy feature, reducing the erratic steering of this type of wheel to a minimum. The machine is easily ridden "hands off."

All running parts are fitted with dust proof adjustable ball bearings.

The saddle has had very careful thought and is pronounced a decided success by ladies who have tried it.

The usual dress and mud guards are fitted as the cut shows in a satisfactory manner.

The chain adjustment on this wheel is a feature that commends itself. It is easy of access and the adjustment can be made absolutely true.

In the construction of this cycle, each part and operation is carefully guarded and inspected. A variation of 1-1000 inch is the maximum allowed. This very necessary precaution enables the Warwick Co. to produce work of great excellence and their product is throughout interchangeable.

The finish is black enamel and nickel plate. The weight of this elegant cycle is above described, fitted with cushion tires, is 40 pounds.

THE Overman Wheel Co. are having a line of four safety bicycles made for their trade by the Lamb Knitting Machine Co. of Chicopee Falls. These machines are to be medium grade wheels and a lower grade than is made in their own factory. They have them made outside to avoid the possibility of getting the parts of the high grade and low grade wheels becoming mixed up, a condition of things they consider as being very likely even in spite of the greatest care being exercised.

READERS of the WORLD will do well to keep their eye open for cuts of the celebrated "Swift" safeties fitted with special improved cushion tires, which will shortly appear in these columns.

THE Gendron Iron Wheel Co. of Toledo, Ohio, have just completed a set of five bicycles to be used by the Elliot family, the bicycle trick riders. The wheels are so made that while riding them the rider can completely dissect it, so that he can start on a complete wheel, and without dismounting the wheel can be entirely dissected.

MESSRS. READ & SONS will represent the Little Giant Youths' and Misses' machines for New England. This gilt edge firm handled these goods last summer, and so pleased were they with the results, the sales which far exceeded their expectation that they have placed a very large order for "Little Giants," and they expect to duplicate same before the season of '91 is far advanced. The '91 pattern of the Little Giants are fitted with Bolte spring forks and are interchangeable for use either by boy or young miss. They are a splendid machine for value, and those looking for an A1 machine for boys or girls will do well to look at the Little Giant before placing an order.

MESSRS. KEEFE AND BECANNON of New York have been appointed agents for the H. A. Lozier Co. for territory known as the eastern half of New York, and they have placed a very large order with the Cleveland firm.

THE Coventry Machinists' Co., ltd., makers of the celebrated "Swift" safeties, advise us that they have just received samples of their 1891 pattern wheels which have many improvements and are fitted with their special patented cushion tires; they also have samples with pneumatic tires. The C. M. Co. invite all wheelmen to call at their store, 239 Columbus avenue, and examine these wheels before deciding on their 1891 mount. Write them for their clearance list of second-hand and shopworn wheels; they have some "jim dandy" bargains.

THE Warwick Perfection as a hill-climber rather established a reputation at Bridgeport, Ct., on Thanksgiving Day. Twenty times up and down "Volt's Hill" on a Warwick, geared to 54 and fitted with cushion tires, did W. Richardson ride that hill, a feat that was supposed to be impossible.

MR. CHARLES E. MARSTON, son of the manufacturer of the Sunbeam cycles of Wolverhampton, England, has succeeded in placing several large orders for the Sunbeam cycles. Mr. Marston has appointed the Sweeting Cycle Co. of Philadelphia for all terrritory outside of New England.

THE Union Cycle Mfg. Co. have issued their '91 ten page leaflet, showing their Nos. 9, 10, 12 and 13 patterns of wheel. Nos. 12 and 13 are their new spring frame wheels, description and cuts of which have appeared in these columns.

THE bicycle muscles get awfully soft during the winter months, and the non-riding season, and many have been the schemes to overcome the difficulty. The best thing of the kind to meet the requirements of the case is the "Hartford Stand and Trainer," built and patented by H. J. Curtis, of 98 Asylum street, Hartford, Conn., and by referring to page 172 of this issue, an excellent cut of this most excellent device will be seen. By all means get a Hartford Stand and Trainer, keep your muscles in trim for the spring riding, besides it gives you a splendid stand to rest, oil or clean your wheel on. For further particulars see page 172.

THE Overman Wheel Co. will on Jan. 1st establish a branch house in Denver, Col. This will be in every way a full fledged branch, and will be in all essentials a part of the Overman Wheel Co.

SINGER & Co. have issued a very neat 12-page folder, giving valuable facts in regard to their 1891 patterns, and cuts of four of their leading safeties. We should advise prospective buyers to send to Singer & Co., 6 and 8 Berkeley street, for one of these folders.

MR. H. G. PRIEST, while in this country looking after the interests of his company, the Quadrant Tricycle Co., did some splendid business for his firm, and has made arrangements with the Messrs. Strong & Green Cycle Co. of Philadelphia, to place a large order for the Quadrant machines. The order placed by the Philadelphia firm for Quadrants is largely an increase over former years, and the business will be pushed with increased vim and enterprise by the Philadelphia company. Mr. Priest also made arrangements with T. D. Humphrie, of Topeka, Kansas, for certain Western territory, representing the Quadrants, and so the Birmingham manufacturers propose to be "in it" for business in the States, tariff or no tariff.

ELWELL BERMUDA CYCLE TOUR.

Jan. 29th—Feb. 14th, 1891.

The most delightful winter tour imaginable. Bermuda is a little paradise for wheelmen. The scenery is that of the semi-tropics. Hard coral roads extend in every direction, constantly presenting views of enchanting loveliness. Arrangements are completed for a party of 30 to spend nearly two weeks at the fine Princess Hotel on dates indicated above. Especially adapted for lady riders. Rowing, sailing, lawn tennis, etc. For time and money necessary for its enjoyment, few tours offer so much. The party is now being made up. All requisite information furnished to those wishing to participate, by addressing

500—Missouri Division—500.

To Members:

We want non-League wheelmen who reside in the State of Missouri to know that the best thing that a cycler can do is to join our organization. During the last ten years it has done more for cycling than all other agencies combined, it is founded on solid merit, backed by ample capital and conducted with honorable enterprise. Bright brains are discoverable all the world over, but their powers are differently directed. They have their places and lines in life. The great statesman makes laws; the engineer constructs bridges; the painter creates pictures, and "Hustlers" build big Divisions. Suppose you all try your hand at it and give me the result of the experiment. Fraternally yours,

ROHT. HOLM, C. C.

California.

The following letter was received by the Secretary-Treasurer in answer to the circular sent out asking for funds. I give it to the members without comment, trusting that they will have the goodness of heart to forgive the sender his insinuations against the officers of the Division. As for the officers themselves, they need not only the dollar but also the prayers of every right feeling member of this Division:

Oswald Groenicher, Sec.-Treas.:

Dear Sir—Yours just received, and allow me to say that I sincerely hope you have not died from fatty degeneration of the "grail." I consider your proposition an outrageous one. We in the southern part do not derive one single benefit, and then help defray expenses of your century runs, etc. Well not by A long sight, you people "got more neck" than A little but; it is my wish that you do not receive one single cent from this part of the country. Please put this is your pipe and smoke it. Yours, F. M. EISENHART.

I have this day appointed James L. Spiers Chairman of Committee on Touring for this Division, and Benjamin Smith third member of said committee, to fill vacancy. GEO. L. COOKE, Chief Consul.

Providence, Dec. 6, 1890.

Rhode Island.

At a meeting of the Board of Officers, Rhode Island Division L. A. W., held Wednesday, Dec. 3, 1890, the resignation of Mr. Chas. S. Davol as Chief Consul, was read and accepted.

NELSON H. GIBBS, Sec.-Treas.

The Rhode Island Division of the League of American Wheelmen, through its Board of Officers, in accepting the resignation of Mr. Davol as Chief Consul, desires to express its appreciation of his services, not only to the wheelmen of Rhode Island, but to the cause of wheeling in general, and it is sincerely regretted that the demands of the position which he holds in the National body requires so much of his time that he is obliged to relinquish the good work he has been engaged in.

It is not necessary to state all the good that has been done by Mr. Davol since he has held the office, but the fact alone that the membership has increased over 400 in the small State of Rhode Island in the short space of three years speaks well; for the work that has been done under his charge, and the expression of high regard in which he is held in this State, is ordered to be reported to the Official Organ of the League of American Wheelmen, and to be endorsed upon the records of the Rhode Island Division.

For the Board of Officers.

Indiana.

The annual meeting of the Board of Officers of the Indiana Division L. A. W. was held at Indianapolis, Nov. 19th, the following officers being present: H. T. Hearsey, Chief Consul; Edward Baer, Vice Consul; A. B. Irvin, Representative, and A. C. Newby, Secretary Treasurer.

The Secretary's report was read and accepted. The Treasurer's report, showing a balance on hand of $387.43, was approved.

It was decided to order 500 Hand Books, containing Constitution and By-Laws, Road Maps, lists of Local Consuls, League Hotels, and railroads which transport wheels free.

A. B. Irvin was elected delegate to the National Board meeting.

It was decided to hold a two days' Division meet at Indianapolis during July, the Division to furnish the championship medals.

California.

A special meeting of the California Division was held in San Francisco on Nov. 1., Chief Consul Hill presiding.

The Treasurer's report showed a cash balance on hand of $39.55, and a total membership up to date of 511.

A committee consisting of Messrs. D'Ancona, Phillips, Sr., and Wm. Dolliver, was appointed to confer with the Golden Gate Park Commissioners to obtain permission for wheelmen to use the main drive

The financial condition of the Division was brought up and discussed. Various means of replenishing the exhausted treasury were proposed, but it was finally decided to call for voluntary contributions of $1 from each member of the Division. The Secretary was instructed to so notify the members. Below is a list of those who have generously paid the amount asked for.

The run on the following day was enjoyed by about 75 wheelmen. The start was made from corner Van Ness and Golden Gate avennes, and after passing through the Presidio Reservation and Golden Gate Park, ended up at the Cliff House. The weather was all that could be desired, and every one voted the run a grand success.

The following members have responded to the call for contributions of $1 up to date:

R. M. Welch, A. E. J. Nye, F. S. Cobden, C. N. Langton, Geo. S. Clark, W. A. Phillips, R. Raymond, San Francisco; Geo. Drake, Oakland; Fred. W. Williams, R. B. Phillips, Thos. L. Hill, A. C. Haudee, Grass Valley; Oswald Groenicher, San Jose; S. S. Simon, Oroville; Thos. E. Sullivant, San Francisco; J. A. Desimone, George Owen, S. B. Alley, San Jose.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee hereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

OUR WHEELS HAVE BEEN PURCHASED BY

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

For use in the Postal Service at Washington.

Since beginning business we have maintained that riders of HIGH GRADE WHEELS are entitled to the best that money can buy, and we have from the first used nothing but Fine Steel Forgings. We understand that Next Season certain makers of High Grade Machines will follow our example and adopt Forgings instead of Malleable Iron and Steel Castings.

They have been a trifle slow in their reform, but we shall welcome them to the fold. In the meantime we feel we have not labored in vain.

THE HARTFORD STAND & TRAINER.

PATENTED July, 1890.

FITS ANY SAFETY.

RUNS NOISELESS.

PRICE ONLY $6.00.

Reasons WHY Every Rider Needs One.

1st. It makes a perfect Stand to rest, oil, or wash the Wheel on.

2nd It has been improved and perfected, which does not show in the cut, and pronounced perfect by all.

3rd. It occupies no more room than the Safety without, and by attaching the braces, you can have regular exercise all the year on your own saddle.

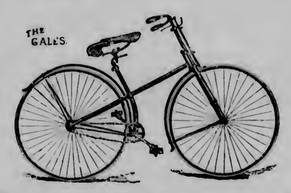
4th. Dotted lines show position of front braces when used as a Stand, and are fastened to frame by two thumb screws when wanted for Trainer. Back braces are self-locking, and are attached or detached instantly.

5th. When the braces are attached, any person can mount the Wheel without straining it, and for learners it gives them a chance to learn two-thirds the art of cycling.

6th. The back braces adjust so as to give any road friction desired, and with Cyclometer attached to rear wheel, speed and endurance can be shown.

7th. Every Club member should have one, as during the winter we have many open spells when roads and weather are perfect, and by a little exercise on the Trainer every day you get regular exercise, also put wind and muscles in perfect condition to enjoy a ride at any time.

8th. The parts will all pack between the two long pieces of wood, and delivered by express at small cost. A little pushing has proved it a good seller with liberal profits.



Every Dealer should order a Sample at once, from any of the following firms:

THE GALES SAFETY.

THE GALES SAFETY is designed with a view of meeting the demand for an ALL BALL BEARING Safety at a moderate price. The frame is of weldless steel tubing and steel forging throughout. The rear wheel is 30 inches, with 7-8 inch tire, geared to 54 inches. 30 inch steering wheel, with 3-4 inch tire. Best quality moulded rubber tires, firmly cemented into the rims. The spokes are direct, of No. 12 special drawn steel wire. Straight front fork; corrugated rubber coasters. The handle bar is one piece steel tube 30 inches long, bent back, and is detachable and adjustable.

Both wheels, crank-axle and pedals are fitted with ball bearings. The pedal rubbers are soft and tough, and so made as to prevent the rider's foot from slipping. The saddle rests upon an L seat rod, and is adjustable to height, also forward and back. The saddle is the famous Fish patent Hammock, is adjustable in all directions. The brake is of the Plunger style and very powerful. Neat Lamp Bracket, Mud Guards over both wheels. Finely enameled, with bright parts nickeled on copper. Each machine is supplied with tool bag, wrench and oiler.

CYCLING

FOR

Health and Pleasure.

CHAPTER I.

WITHIN the last few years one of the most striking features of American life has been the development of interest in athletic sports, not merely in imitation of English customs, but because it has slowly become recognized that athletic sports have great value, and that exercise is essential to health. This admitted, the question at once arose as to what is the easiest, the most agreeable, the most accessible and most beneficial form in which to take exercise. It soon became evident that Cycling is that form. Thousands took to the sport because of this, and the majority of them proved its efficacy in their own persons. Furthermore, they found that they had engaged in the most exhilarating pastime they had ever known.

The first full discussion of these points is found in Chapter I of Mr. Porter's "CYCLING FOR HEALTH AND PLEASURE." He argues with great force that Cycling excels all other sports both in the pleasure it gives and the health it produces; he explains why it is so, and quotes liberally from medical authorities to prove his position. Special attention is given to the advantages of cycling for women. One cannot afford to miss this discussion if he is interested in telling any one why cycling is the grandest of sports.

The volume, in which this is the first of nine chapters, is published by the WHEELMAN COMPANY, 12 Pearl street, Boston, Mass., and sent by them, postage paid, on receipt of fifty cents. They receive no postage stamps.

"BRONCHO,"

NOISELESS, CHAINLESS, LIGHT ROADSTER, SAFETY BICYCLE

THE GORRIE ICE MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

SAVANNAH, GA., November 3, 1890.

M. V. LIVINGSTON CYCLE MFG. CO., Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—It is I who bought the first "BRONCHO" in Savannah from your agent, and up to date, having ridden the wheel one whole month, I find I would not give up old "BRONK" for any other wheel I have ever seen or ridden. I have enjoyed my rides on the N., C., L. R., S. B., as I never dreamed I could enjoy cycling, riding with comfort (such as one experiences in a Brewster buggy only) over our cobble stones, through our sand and up and down our hills, slight as they are.

When I took a ride out to Thunderbolt on our shell road in company with another rider on an English Safety, which HE thought ran light until he had mounted "BRONCHO," I found the wheel was as good as recommended. The other rider told me after returning, "your machine runs the lightest of any I ever was on, and if a good fast man was on it, he could ride all around me." This was pretty tough on me, especially after I had already ridden "all around him," but I was so glad to see one more convert (although it was nothing in my pocket) that I said "Yes," as sweetly as if he had paid my riding a compliment instead of my mount.

No doubt all this and much more you have heard the equivalent of, as have other manufacturers, but I just wanted to let you know that you had one more friend of "BRONCHO" down South.

Yours, etc., SAMUEL M. WHITESIDE.

QUIDPROQUO.

XXXVII.

By some oversight, I neglected to mention last week the names of the Columbia cycles and their maker. Any one who will drop me a note addressed care Pope Mfg. Co., corner of Arch and Franklin Sts., Boston, Mass., will find me prompt in answering any inquiry about them. The truth is, the address of the maker of those excellent vehicles, which are at the same time so much in demand and so much in supply, has been so well advertised for some twelve or thirteen years, and is in so many city directories and other conspicuous places, that most people can find it. One of the peculiar things about advertising is that you have to repeat a thing so much, —the name of the seller, the name of the place, the name of the thing, the qualities of the thing, all about it reiterated over and over again. How tiresome this sort of thing gets, for example:—

POPE MFG. CO.
Columbia Cycles
77 & 79 Franklin St.,
BOSTON, MASS.

That form is, perhaps, least wearisome of any to the constant reader, because his eye takes alarm at a glance and passes on; but the casual reader is struck—clubbed, so to speak,—by the cut and the large type. He must see it and read it and 'cussto'mself to endure it whatever paper he takes up. But if its wearisome to the reader, what must it be to the writer, and to the advertiser? He must read it, and bargain over it, and approve it in "copy," and revise it in "proof," and— pay for it. In the case of the publisher the tired feeling is mitigated very much by the advantages of his position. He confines the advertisers to certain pages of his paper, and fines them heavily for appearing there. Sometimes he raises the fine repeatedly, until the sums he receives as penalties for the weaknesses of advertisers, are quite considerable, enabling the publisher to keep a gun and the editor to keep a canoe.

THE VANITY OF SIGNS

Some men, to be sure, are not so sensitive to seeing their name in print. They even find a tonic in it, an incentive to try to be as big as the name. Quidproquo was himself once so sensitive that he took his silver name-plate off from his own front door. The spasms are not quite so severe nowadays. He would even find a certain sort of pleasure in seeing his name on the second page of this journal—if it were spelled right. The modest Company that draws its check for the use of this very page I am chatting on, has a sign (just repainted by "Drew, N. Y. & London") with white shaded letters, from four to five feet tall, on a maroon background about 50x25 feet, to look at all the way from Washington street through Franklin, as it comes to the Boston store every morning. And all that the whole conspicuosity of that biggest sign in the trade says, is: "Columbia Bicycles and Tricycles. Pope Mfg. Co., 79 Franklin St. Branch Houses, New York, Chicago. Factory, Hartford, Conn.,"—which might be simply printed, on a card no larger than the cheek of a life insurance agent, and hung in the window. I understand that no such giddy label will be attached to the Company's new building, though they will somehow let the public know whose building it is, and what it is there for.

"SMILINGLY UP TO TIME.

The good-humored author of "Dreamthorp," in a very discriminative essay on "the importance of man to himself," wrote thus: "A man receives the shocks of life on the buffer of his vanity. Vanity acts as his second and bottle-holder in the world's prize-ring, and it fights him well, bringing him smilingly up to time after the severest knock-down blows. Vanity is to a man what the oily secretion is to a bird, with which it sleeks and adjusts the plumage ruffled by whatever causes." That's all right when a man has vanity enough. One needs a little something to go with it, however; a Columbia L. R. Safety, with or without cushion tires, for instance. I think I should have vanity enough to come up smiling with a Hickory one, of which I admire the workmanship next to that of the Columbia steel ones. I know that witch-hazel is used by those who don't want the earth, but simply a good reliable well in it, and I would sooner take hickory than hazel to conjure with, even with the small end in front and the line of push upward instead of downward, as it is in conjuring with hazel.

CAPTURING THOSE THIEVES.

I am in receipt of the following note, which explains itself,—though it may not be amiss to mention that the claiming of the $100.00 reward by officers whose duty it is to secure and convict thieves any-how, as against others who have no other incentive, has led to the publication of it,—viz:

Boston, 9 December, 1890.

Quidproquo,---Sir: We desire to announce to the public, thro' your page, that from this date we would have it understood that our offer of $100.00 reward for the return in good condition to the owner of any stolen Columbia cycle, and detection and bringing to justice of the thief,---payable on conviction and sentence of the thief, and the presentation of evidence thereof satisfatory to the owner of the cycle, to our nearest Agent, and to us,---is intended not as an inducement to Sheriffs, Police and other officers of the law whose duty it is to detect, capture and bring to justice thieves and other trespassers and criminals anyhow; nor as a bonus to those who have arrested or procured the arrest of such thieves for other offences; nor to bicycle agents and dealers, nor to the owner of the machine. We intend it for the reward of those who, having no other incentive than desire to help guard the rights of wheelmen and the safety of property, take time, trouble, exertion and expense, on our account, to find the thief and the machine, materially aid the officers and magistrates in enforcing the laws, restore the wheel, repaired of any damage, to the rightful owner, and who besides can satisfy us that they are the only one in each case who is entitled to receive it. We don't quibble, but we want to be just. Respectfully,

Pope Mfg. Co.,
By E. W. Pope, Treas'r.

And here is another letter, relating to the same general subject, which may be interesting:

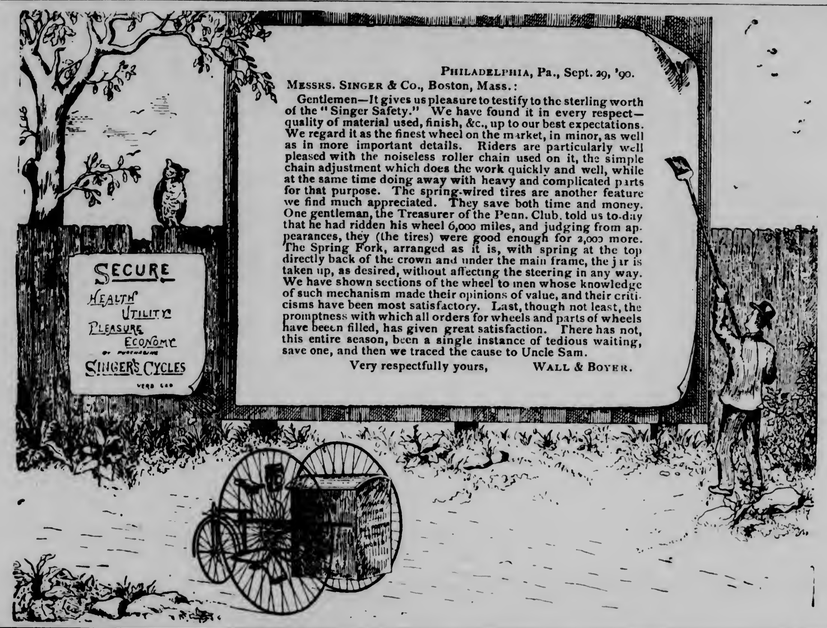
Paterson, N. J., 29th Nov., '90.

Messrs. The Pope Mfg. Co.:

Gentlemen---I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of 28th inst. in which I find enclosed check for $100 (one hundred dollars), presented to me by you as a reward for information I gave, which led to the recovery of a stolen Columbia Safety Bicycle and conviction of the thief.

With many thanks for the prompt payment of same, I am, Gentlemen,

Yours most respectfully,



James Allan.

VICTOR BICYCLES

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 29, '90.

MESSRS. SINGER & Co., Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—It gives us pleasure to testify to the sterling worth of the "Singer Safety." We have found it in every respect—quality of material used, finish, &c., up to our best expectations. We regard it as the finest wheel on the market, in minor, as well as in more important details. Riders are particularly well pleased with the noiseless roller chain used on it, the simple chain adjustment which does the work quickly and well, while at the same time doing away with heavy and complicated parts for that purpose. The spring-wired tires are another feature we find much appreciated. They save both time and money. One gentleman, the Treasurer of the Penn. Club, told us to-day that he had ridden his wheel 6,000 miles, and judging from appearances, they (the tires) were good enough for 2,000 more. The Spring Fork, arranged as it is, with spring at the top directly back of the crown and under the main frame, the jar is taken up, as desired, without affecting the steering in any way. We have shown sections of the wheel to men whose knowledge of such mechanism made their opinions of value, and their criticisms have been most satisfactory. Last, though not least, the promptness with which all orders for wheels and parts of wheels have been filled, has given great satisfaction. There has not, this entire season, been a single instance of tedious waiting, save one, and then we traced the cause to Uncle Sam.

Very respectfully yours, WALL & BOYER.

AN (auto) BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH.

I have received from the publishers of a sporting paper a letter stating that my efforts in the direction of bicycle reform have aroused much curiosity on the part of the cycling public, and that my picture, together with a brief biographical sketch would be of interest to their readers, and that if I will send photograph, together with the main facts in my history, they will have an engraving made and print the whole business for $20, and then by an almost superhuman condescension they say: "P. S. The cut would be sent to you when we were through with it." How they could afford to spare a cut as useful to them as that would be I can't understand, but that is just what they said. Such fidelity to the interests of readers is rare, and I feel flattered that any one would be willing to hold me up to the light on such easy terms. However, I feel an instinctive dread of these biographies where the victim drops the "main facts" in a slot and "they do the rest," and it requires more striking features than mine to stand being made up into one of "the most unkindest cuts of all." I have decided to forestall any garbled biography that might appear in the "Police News" or elsewhere by giving the "main facts" right here.

I was born. (You might have inferred as much, but in these days of patent incubators I thought it well to mention it.)

Just where I was born I don't remember, being quite young at the time. It makes little difference anyway, as I have moved several times since, and have never been "born again." My parents were poor (this fact would easily identify them as being my parents), and I am glad it was so for I find that nearly all great men were brought up by hand. In after years I wouldn't want my ambition to make Hickory Bicycles handicapped by having thrust upon me the proceeds of wealthy parents.

My father was a shoemaker. There can be no mistake about this, as I remember distinctly the strap which he used about his business (and me.) There was no Hickory growing near our house. My mother seldom punished me, a fact which may be regretted when she sees this.

She made for me (from father's old ones) many a pair of those reversible pants for which economical mothers are famous, though barring an occasional "hair cut" hers were mostly deeds of kindess.

Soon after I was permitted to wear suspenders, it began to dawn on me that my father (though the neighbors thought well of him), was not smart enough to have charge of a boy of my calibre. Holding such views it was natural that I should give them outward expression, and many arguments resulted, some of which began in the front part of the house and ended in the woodshed. I soon found that in the limited time at my disposal it was impractical to bring him to my way of thinking, and there was but one way out of it, and that was down the railroad track. Having severed the business connections heretofore existing between MYSELF and father it was at once necessary to open negotiations between MY "UNCLE" and me, and I might add that although the experience and judgment of my father took on a greatly enhanced value in my estimation during the succeeding years, my "uncle" always struck me about the same (and does yet.)

STERLING ELLIOTT, Newton, Mass.

P. S. I nearly forgot to mention that for several years I was a regular attendant at the Methodist Sunday School and used to sing with much earnestness (and the other scholars) that beautiful little hymn entitled "I Want to be an Angel." My teacher told me years afterward that she had spells of wishing that my desire might be gratified.

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 19 DECEMBER, 1890.

THE hitherto calm surface of Massachusetts Division politics has been ruffled on the surface; nay, we perhaps might say, stirred way below the surface. The even tenor of unanimity heretofore enjoyed by the Massachusetts Division has been struck by a small blizzard and what was once a band of united brethren has become a divided family. It behooves us not to comment editorially on the little episode of last Friday's meeting, an account of which appears in official columns, as we understand that there will be "comment" enough by the factions themselves before many moons. While we refer to the matter thus in a jocular vein we cannot but sincerely deplore the fact that dissentions have have crept into the working forces of the banner New England State.

THE personnel of the L. A. W. representatives at the coming conference with the A. A. U. on the matter of the recent suspensions in particular, and the amateur question in general is as follows: Charles S. Davol, Geo. R. Bidwell and Abbot Bassett. These names are sufficient guarantee that the interests of the amateur cause will be looked after, and that cool deliberation and good judgement will be the elements which they will take into the conference. We hope and believe that the actuating motive which will control both sides will be the broad one, "The general good of amateur sport," and not the narrow and fatal one of one organization to "score a point" to the others detriment. The League and the Union must stand shoulder to shoulder on these questions. Divided and with the constant friction that comes of a different reading of the same rules, cycling and amateur sports of all kinds must receive severe shocks and perhaps fatal blows.

The exact time of the conference has not at this writing been decided.

THE Hartford Cycle Club will no doubt be pleased to learn through the columns of the New York Herald that it is subsidized by a large bicycle firm which pays the club "a per centage" for the privilege of using the name of the Hartford Club in running an annual tournament!! What unadulterated trash does emanate from the brains of some of these so-called cyclings scribes. These Munchausen stories would be amusing did they not do honorable parties a grevious wrong. Luckily common sense and facts disprove such ridiculous assertions. The Hartford Club is an organization that has an international reputation for honesty and efficiency in the racing world, and we doubt even if it would not be lowering its dignity to take notice of such senseless chatter of irresponsible penny a liners. We, however, are ready to take the responsible of stating on behalf of the Hartford Cycle Club that the statement of the Herald as reported above is false.

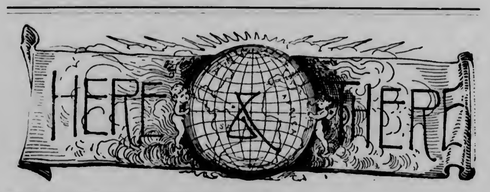
THE New York Herald brings into prominence the name of Mr. W. W. Windle as being threatened by a large "bicycle manufacturing firm" that if he ceased to ride their particular make of wheel they would see that he was suspended, and further that the firm had three of its representatives on the Racing Board and could control its action.

With all due regard to the source of information we doubt whether Mr. Windle was ever threatened, and while certain members of the Racing Board may be connected with the trade we on behalf of those gentlemen repudiate any insinuations which reflect on their honor and independence. Whatever the action of the Racing Board has been it has been unbiased and uninfluenced by any firm, and to assume otherwise, as charged by the Herald, is an insult to the integrity of the personnel of the Board which should not pass unnoticed.

MR. WILLIAM B. CURTIS of the Spirit of the Times has stripped off his peace garb and donned the paint and feathers of war. His tomahawk is sharpened for immediate use, and his scalping knife is ready to raise the tuft from the cranium of Chairman Davol. In a most lengthy letter he arraigns the L. A. W. for stupidity, despotism, assininity and general imbecility in daring to enforce the rule which does not permit of the paying any other expenses than those of actual travelling to and from race meetings and living expenses while attending same.

Mr. Curtis has to use 16,600 ems nonpareil to show that there is nothing in the racing rules to prevent the payment of training expenses and "sundries" so necessary to the well being of the true amateur. Mr. Curtis having rung the changes on that theory to the tune of about 10 000 ems devotes another 6600 ems to proving that there is not anything in heaven and earth or in the rules of the clubs therein, to prevent the payment of such expenses, and the other 600 ems to the announcement that he will at the meeting to be shortly held, offer a resolution asking that the A. A. U. do not recognize suspensions made by the L. A. W., and that the President of the L. A. W. be notified to that effect. In truth the whole weary 16,600 ems smacketh much of the fire-eater, and were it more moderate, less abusive and boiled down to about 600 ems it would be more effective, and more generally read. Cool, logical argument is powerful; abuse and bluster are weak and ridiculous. Mr. Curtis is an extremist, and if we guess aright his very vehemence and immoderation will defeat the end he has in view. His views will not meet with the unanimous approval of the A. A. U. Board.

THIS wild talk about the "injustice" of the late suspensions is pure nonsense. If the men charged are guilty of the misdemeanors alleged, their expulsion must follow under the rules, or pray what is the use of having a rule? If the rule is "unjust," then change it, but there is a vast space for argument even on that question.



In connection with the affair it will be of interest to read the resolution as adopted by the A. A. U. last spring.

"Resolved, That no athletic club, a member of the A. A. U., shall be permitted to pay any expenses of members of such club except when actually travelling to or from, and are in attendance as competitors at competitions. Any athlete who shall accept consideration for his services under the guise of his expenses, shall on proof of same before the board of managers of the A. A. U. be declared professional."

The question is what are "actual" expenses? That is the affair to be decided, and the problem to us seems very simple.

Will the A. A. U. repudiate that resolution as never having been adopted?

We are willing to place the reputation and honor of the men who conferred with Mr. Davol and agreed to adopt this resolution against the assertion of Mr. Curtis that it was not adopted. The insinuation of treachery and trickery as made by Mr. Curtis against the A. A. U. representatives is too outrageous to be believed, and we have every faith that the action of the A. A. U. will verify our belief in the honesty and integrity of its representatives.

BOSTON NOTES.

"TONEY."

JUST five years ago last Tuesday evening eight Charlestown gentlemen assembled at the residence of Mr. Hatch and formally organized, or as President Grew has it, "hatched" the Rovers Cycle Club of Charlestown. From this beginning the club has sprung into great prominence throughout the country as the leading and representative cycling organization of Massachusetts. Since the inception of this organization the members have clung together with the avowed purpose of advancing the interest of the sport of cycling in Massachusetts. While they may not have brought about revolutions (with the exception of their wheels), they have performed very many good things in order to make cycling one of the standard sports of the period. The yearly history of the organization is too well known to need repetition in these columns; the efficiency with which Capt. Robinson conducted the Albany-Niagara touring party, and the most acceptable manner in which Mr. A. W. Robinson has filled the position as Vice Consul of the Massachusetts Division has gained for them and their club considable respect from the wheelmen of the State.

WHAT more can be said of the fifth annual dinner than has already been published in the leading newspapers of this city. It was one of the most enjoyable events which I have ever had the pleasure of viewing from an outside position, and throughout the whole evening jollity reigned supreme. "Toney" took up his position as the outside sentinel early in the evening and saw White-top Atwell walk off with Papa Bassett, Herbert L. Grew taking the ever confiding and agreeable Howard under his protecting wing, and Capt. Robinson having in tow no less an individual than our incisive "Joe," the man who seldom says anything, but when he does open fire, he sends the missiles directly to the centre of the object. Then came the nervous doctor of dentistry, otherwise known as Dr. Kendall; Mr. E. B. Pillsbury, the crony of Capt. A. D. Peck, Jr., the ever jolly and light hearted Jack Seward, closely followed by that "wild eyed Herald man," as Papa Bassett once named him. These are only a few of the many familiar faces seen at that noted hostelry on the evening in question, but amid all the pleasures of the evening the men from Charlestown had some few thoughts for President Dunn and Editor Fourdrinier, who sent letters of regret to the club, in which they told how sorry they were that it was impossible for them to be present and renew the acquaintances. The speeches were all well received, and any allusion to the club itself was cheered to the echo. Most of the gentlemen had to speak a little piece, but not before President Grew had presented prizes to Messrs. A. W. Robinson, E. H. Norris and Eugene Lewis for attending the largest number of club runs throughout the last riding season, and prizes to Mr. Herbert Huntress, Mr. Lewis and Mr. Norris for their masterly efforts around the green table. As the clock in the banquet hall chimed the very hours of midnight "when graveyards yawn, etc.," the fifth annual dinner of the Rovers Cycle Club was a thing of the past.

A LARGE number of cycling celebrities attended the sociable of the Somerville Cycle Club in Odd Fellows Hall, Winter Hill, last Tuesday evening, and while the merry Rovers were getting outside a square "feed," the celebrities were killing the fleeting hours with flying feet.

GIGANTIC preparations are now under way for the proper observance of the annual "feed" of the Wakefield Bicycle Club, and the members who recently figured before the public as wandering minstrels will soon appear before the cycling public as great exponents of the proper use of the ordinary and safety. That is, they will transact their annual business in the "ordinary" manner and then apply the "safety" valve so that none can escape before the final act.

WHAT are the effects of a recount? Simply this and nothing more, that a recount resulted in the defeat of Vice Consul Robinson as a candidate for the Common Council by four votes, alas!!

NOTES BY "HAWKSHAW."

THE survival of the fittest is perhaps the fairest test of any that can be applied to facts as well as theories. Cycling has stood this as triumphantly as it has the many other severe tests it has been subjected to. Whenever it has been brought into competition it has vanquished its opponents; stronger than they it lived and they died at least so far as remaining in any way competitors for an equal share of public support and attention. See how this has been demonstrated in the leading cycling papers of this country. You allied yourself in your younger days with archery, thinking it a coming sport and one that would aid you in upholding cycling, of which you were the first defender and supporter in America. Gone and lost is the bow and arrow and the target of the archer, so far at least as the public is concerned, and you have long since lopped of the withered limb finding it but a hindrance rather than a help. Another wheel paper thought amateur athletics would strengthen it, and so incorporated them in its title and make up. Long since have they gone from both, and yet the paper flourishes upon cycling alone. Still another journal thought cricket was a good thing to give tone and support to a cycling paper, but experience has shown it, that, as in the other cases noted, wheeling needs no alliance with any sport or pastime to enable it to support journals devoted to its interests alone. Cycling has no peer, and hence all alliances with any other sport must be a concession on the wheelmen's part, in which the favor and benefit are all with the other side. Little things like these, more than anything else, must teach observers that the victorious march of cycling has but just begun, and that it will not cease until like Alexander, having conquered the entire world, it will have to halt until some other ones are discovered for it to convert to the cause of the wheel.

THE wheelmen who coast hands-off on a safety are, I am sorry to say, increasing in numbers. Flowers for funerals are dearer at this season of the year, but good rosewood coffins remain the same. Facts these gentlemen should bear in mind.

THERE used to be a club in Providence called the Hermes Bicycle Club now long since numbered with the dead. On one occasion the captain called a club run to one of the neighboring "shore" resorts, where the pugnacious clam could be attacked in his native jungle. Accompanying and awaiting the wheelmen were a host of mosquitoes, who dined upon the riders in so ferocious a manner that when they entered the dining-room to take their revenge upon the defeated bivalves the appearance of their faces was anything but beautiful. At an adjoining table sat an old doctor, who was both inquisitive and deaf. As the wheelmen filed in he turned to the waiter and asked who they were, and he informed him that they were the Hermes Club of Providence. "Herpes Club, eh?" grunted the old gentlemen, "well I should say they were from the looks of their faces. Hand them my card, and tell them I can cure them should at any time they desire to disband." And ever afterwards they were known as as the "Herpes Club."

JUDGE O'BRIEN in the Supreme Court, New York, last week rendered a decision in regard to the use of sidewalks by vehicles which will prove interesting and I hope instructive reading for the wheelman who claims that a cycle is entitled to use the road or the sidewalk as may best suit his refined taste. The judge said: "In the division of the space between the houses provision is made in the street for vehicles and the sidewalks are constructed for and alloted to pedestrians. The claim that because the street is narrow or in bad condition such use of the sidewalk is justified does not seem to me to have much force, for no good reason is shown why pedestrians should be prevented from traversing over the sidewalk in a narrow or badly conditioned street any more than on the sidewalk of a wide or well-paved avenue." This seems to me good law and good logic, and I hope some day to hear of it being cited in the trial of one of the sidewalk riding class of wheelmen, who by claiming the right both of pedestrian and of vehicle are liable to fall "between two stools," failing by their attempt at "hogging" to earn the respect or good will of either the driver or the foot passenger.

IT seems that the first attempt at teaching drivers here in New York that they cannot trample upon human beings simply because they are not able at all times to get out of their way will be by a woman. Miss Jennie Fyffe, who some weeks ago was run down by a wagon, while riding upon a tandem safety, has brought suit against the owners of the team for $10,000 damages. Certain it is that in no other way can such endangerers of the public safety be so promptly taught that they do not own the highways as by mulcting them a good round sum whenever through their carelessness accidents happen to the innocent and careful users of the street. I sincerely wish Miss Fyffe success in her present battle, as believe every wheelman who learns of her suit will also do.

MISSOURI.

"LINNEUS."

THE local dealers assembled at the Missouri Bicycle Club last Saturday evening in compliance with a call issued by Chief Consul Holm for the purpose of selecting a committee to go before the board of public improvements to protest against the present sprinkling system of the asphalt pavements. The committee was appointed and consists of five of the best known lawyers and business men of the city and who will go before the board next Thursday. The Liverymen's Protective Association is heartily in favor of the movement and they claim to have suffered even more than the cyclists from the superfluous slopping of our asphaltum streets, which has caused several of their horses to be injured, to say nothing of the unnecessary soiling of the carriages. The liverymen will appoint a committee to confer with our committee as to what steps shall be taken to remedy the present evil.

TREASURER HILDEBRAND of the Missouris is the possessor of a cycling log book which contains well written accounts of all the runs he attended since 1885. During this time he has ridden 10,036 miles.

THE Missouris' gymnasium class nights have been changed to Wednesday and Saturday of each week. A cigar counter has also been added to the billiard room and it has already become very popular with the members.

A LARGE crowd of cyclists will be gathered at the Pickwick Theatre next Thursday evening to attend the monster entertainment of the Cycling Club. If it is a financial success it must go on record as the first indoor entertainment gotten up by cyclists which cleared expenses.

The annual election of Fair Grounds' directors took place Dec. 13, and many new men were elected who will insist on President Green's retirement. If this is accomplished the embargo against wheelmen, which has been in force since 1885, will at once be raised and a quarter-mile cinder track for cycle and foot racing is among the possibilities. Charlie Green must go.

THE recent suspensions have caused a great deal of comment in local cycling circles and the action of the Racing Board is strongly approved by everybody. If the stories which are floating around relative to the abuses of the expense system are true the heroic remedy, expulsion, should be applied. Stand firm in this matter, Brother Devol, and the West will be with you.

LAST Sunday the first snow of the season surprised a good many of the local cyclist, who had taken advantage of the fine roads to take a final spin out into the country. It was the first chance that most of them had to enjoy the delightful certainties or uncertainties of a snow ride, and about the first club to be forced to adopt this novelty or train it home was the Missouris, who were caught at Clayton. Just on entering the town small flakes of snow were seen to fall, but not much attention was paid to it, and the surprise of the party can be imagined when, after leaving the hotel, they found the snow to be two inches deep and falling heavily. A quick consultation was held and it was decided to "ride or die." The soft yielding "beautiful" gave many a rider the first impression of what a cushion tire must be like. Luckily the Bonhomme road was smooth and no ordinary rider fell, although several safeties showed their side slipping qualities. When Delwar avenue was reached things changed rapidly for the worse as the snow had hidden all the ruts, and headers, slides and side falls were numerous. Those who were not adepts at the pedal mount were in a sorry predicament as they could not mount by the step. The ride must go on record as a hard one and adds another feather to the Missouris' cap as a road riding club.

THE Missouris musicale, which took place last Thursday night, was a big success, fully 120 members being present who greatly enjoyed themselves, and the entire programme was well received and encores were frequent. During the intermission light refreshments were served. It is just a year that the trouble among the members of this club culminated in a row. Looking at that properous organization today no outsider could be made to believe that harmony was ever absent among the members of this club.

DETROIT.

"JUDGE."

WHERE, in '91, you and I, brother L. A. W. member, with long, strong strokes will pull our little boat through the crystal waters of the miniature lakes of Bell Isle Park, now swiftly glides the steel shod skater. With many a graceful curve he darts over the frozen surface. By his side you may see his sister or sweetheart, "both drinking in new life and vigor and thankful for the northern winter." Over the same long asphalt-paved street that the next national parade of the L. A. W. will take place on, merrily to the jingle, jingle, jingle of the sleigh bell we take our first cutter ride of this winter. Out on the Pointe road, where a few weeks ago the silent steed rolled swiftly towards Auntie Wavers and a good supper (or McSweeny's and a beer), now we hear the toot, toot of horns and merry laughter of many sleighing parties. Such scenes as these are not for you my California or Southern friends. Sing of your perpetual summer, but give to me the ice and snow, the skating and sleighing of our Northern winter.

THERE will be a series of informal talks by "Griff" at the club parlors for the next three Sundays; the first will be on "Paris in 1870."

MISS EAGER and her kirmiss have been with us all the week. Quite a number of our wheelmen took part in the giddy whirl. One could hardly fail to observe the superiority of the wheelmen in limb development.

THE pool tournament goes merrily on. I played my first game on the 18th. Look out for me, I am a shark (aside). I entered in the six-ball spot class. Ha! ha! (supposed to be a fiendish, blood-curdling laugh.)

I RECEIVED a long, good-natured letter from my friend "Miza" of the Wheel a few days ago. We agree to let by-gones be by-gones, and from now on Detroit has another ally in her fight for the

L. A. W. meet in '91.

FOR "Mac" and "Miza" and "Judge," you know,
Are three jolly scribes all in a row.
One for the Athlete, one for the Wheel,
And "Judge," you know, the WORLD is his "weal."

SHOW that last to Bassett and tell him I am learning.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

"TREB."

THERE is at present no question but that should the League of American Wheelmen persist, as it is hoped they will in retaining their present attitude in the matter of the suspended wheelmen, that there will be war between that organization and the Amateur Athletic Union. Since the first news of the suspensions reached the public, wheelmen and athletes in general have been on the qui vive as to how the athletic clubs would view the League's action. Everything looked like plain sailing when the Union ratified the League's charges, but later moves have shown that on the part of a number of the board of managers of the A. A. U. their agreement to ratify the League's action was only a ruse, as now the same ones are using every means to have their colleagues vote for the raising of the suspensions at the board meeting on the 19th. Mr. W. B. Curtis, one of the board, has expressed his intention of moving that the L. A. W. charges be ignored, and the Union will if his move is carried out take charge of bicycling itself. While Mr. Curtis will have followers he will also have strong opponents in any such a move, and while the L. A. W. people would be displeased at the idea of ill-feeling existing there need be no fear but that the wheeling body can and will demonstrate its power and rights. This fire-eater, Curtis, shows a very childish disposition when he soundly berates Mr. Davol, the general impression being that with this gentleman it is a case of B. H. There is little fear on the part of the L. A. W. people that the threats of one of the suspended men, that, unless he be reinstated, he will sue the organization for defamation of character. This comes from W. F. Murphy. It is to be deplored that the case will not terminate without some trouble; but from all reports of the evidence in hand there is little question but that a number of the men will be found guilty of the charges.

In view of the strained relations likely to ensue between the A. A. U. and the L. A. W. the resolution adopted by the Kings County Wheelmen to join the former body had to an outsider a significant importance, which otherwise would not have accrued to the step. The members, however, disclaim any intentions of a slap at the League and state that it was owing to the desire of their race committee to run flat races with the wheeling events. This they were unable to do unless the consent of the A. A. U. was secured, hence their determination to join. As the K. C. W. is not a League club it cannot possibly harm the League, but it seemed inconsistent with a spirit of feality toward wheelmen in general to even appear to support an organization, which, at the present time, is likely to put itself in direct antagonism to the organization which supports and encourages wheeling.

There are sixteen entries in the pool tournament of the Brooklyn Bicycle Club and the handicappers as announced are as follows: Scratch—Messrs. Matthews, Hawley, Spinner and Ackerson; two balls—Borland; six balls—Kirk, Stillwell, Fuller, Rogers and Brown; eight balls—Schoefer and Jarvis; ten balls—Jones and McLean; fourteen balls—Vandergraw and Brumley. It will be a continuous fifty-ball match.

NEW JERSEY NOTES.

"PALISADES."

"Palisades" has been appointed official correspondent for New Jersey, and wheelmen having cycling news that might properly come under the heading "N. J. Notes" may give same to the secretaries of their respective clubs, who will forward it.

The question of where to hold the annual State meet in '91 is under consideration by the Board of Officers and will be decided at the next meeting. What town will offer the best inducements?

The Asbury Park Wheelmen is the youngest or most newly formed League club in the State. We learn that they are constantly increasing their membership and doing an excellent work already in the line of securing good roads in their district.

Captain Hinners and his brother "Ed" of the B. C. W. had better stick to their bicycles. A clipping from a local paper records a "sad accident" to the above-named, while out driving, in which there was "an awful smash." How do you like walking, boys?

BUFFALO NOTES.

"SETAGEC."

Alas! 'tis too true the old pioneer is out of the League. The Buffalo Bicycle Club voted against the League at their last meeting, this being the final vote and so clinches the matter. Various reasons are given for the step, the strongest reason put forward is that the club needed its money for other purposes and that the club received no benefits as a club by being an L. A. W. club. Chief Consul Bull and State Division Attorney Jenkins worked hard to keep the club in the League, but there were too many "agin it."

Several Ramblers tell me that that club will soon leave the League and there are little hopes of its staying in the L. A. W. When the time comes to renew, though, there is a chance of the Ramblers remaining a League club because the Buffalos have gone out, as they generally try to be on the opposite side.

Tuesday evening the Ramblers held their annual election.

Dorntge of the Iroquois A. C. did not go to the Staten Island games to compete in the bicycle races, though the Courier so stated. The Ramblers sent Mike Brunner, their gymnasium instructor, to bring back the prizes in shot putting and wrestling and I hope he will. Brunner is one of the finest athletes in the country, a regular Samson.

Chief Consul Bull and 13 other wheelmen have sent in their resignations to the Buffalo Bicycle Club. There is no hard feeling as far as I can learn, but for several years the club has been gradually changing into a social club and an amendment to their constitution will be submitted next meeting to strike out the passage requiring prospective members to be owners of wheels and therefore wheelmen, though there are several members now who do not ride and have not for some time. The club has not dropped out of the League to join the A. A. U., as they will belong to no association whatever.

The Wanderers have absorbed the Star Bicycle Club.

The Press Cycling Club will probably become the premier bicycle club here and they expect to build a club house too.

I had a pleasant chat with Billy Schaak while coming up the street today and he informs me that he will not go across the pond, as he has arranged his importing by correspondence.

CHICAGO.

"WAYNE SCOTT."

"Van Sicklen & Barrett Printing and Publishing Co., incorporated to do a general printing and publishing business." So our old friends have joined hands in another line. They have ably managed the Bearings, and will undoubtedly manage the new company as well. (We wish them all success.)

Erwin has resigned as a delegate from the Lincoln Club to the Associated Cycling Clubs, and President Gerould has been appointed in his place.

The Lincoln Club Indoor team have reorganized. F. J. McVoy is Manager, H. Tyler Caldwell, Captain; J. C. Harrington, Secretary-Treasurer, and Geo. C. Stamm, Official scorer.

The Lake Views will give their second reception at the Lincoln Park Refectory, January 2d.

A party of the Lincolns will ride the Old Year out and the New Year in.

The Lake Views will hold a skating tournament on Christmas morning at the North Pond in Lincoln Park. One mile for a medal, five mile for a pair of skates and a one hundred yard dash. Two other races will also be included.

The Ravenswood Athletic Association asked the Lincolns to appoint a member of the Lincoln Cycling Club to confer with their committee in regard to a track. A new and insurmountable obstacle has made itself known. The money that is already subscribed is on the condition that the track be not opened on Sunday. Not many of the wheelmen will join an organization under such conditions, for Sunday is the only day in the week that many of them can spare the time to train. The R. A. C. people say that should the track be open on the Sabbath, a constant stream of wheelmen would be passing through the town, and that they would destroy its peace and quietude.

J. G. Modine of this city lays claim to the one-legged championship of America. C. G. Kilpatrick of Danville, Ill., originally claimed that title, but I hardly think will do so after he reads the expose of his duplicity in this week's cycling papers.

One thing he says: "Now 'Mo' we are in it for the money. You are to win the race. The people of this town will back me for any amount, and in Lafayette too. Get somebody in Chicago who has good money to come to Lafayette with you, and he can carry away a clean thousand of these jays' money."

Then he goes on to state that the race is for "amateur championship," and they are to get sixty per cent. of the gate receipts, and to race for an imaginary gold medal, etc.

The Chicago Cycling Club gave a progressive euchre party December 10th. Wednesday evening, December 17th, they give a dance at Rosalie Hall. New Years Eve they will dance the Old Year out and the New Year in. Their Saturday evenings still continue a popular feature of this club.

The Associated Cycling Clubs held one of the best attended meetings of its existance last Thursday evening (11th). Work on the Constitution was begun but not finished, and will again be resumed at a later meeting. Interest in this excellent organization increases daily, and the delegates from the various clubs lay everything by to attend its meetings.

The Illinois Club active as ever. The gymnasium class is free to members, and Prof. Du Plessis reports a splendid attendance at the classes.

The Bowling alleys are very popular, and numbers of the members are becoming very proficient. The cafe yielded four hundred and fifty dollars receipts in the first two months of its existence.

While the club is increasing in size so rapidly the chances are good for an addition to the club house by spring, which will double its present space. This success represents hard, persistent work.

The proof of the Pudding is in the eating, and the proof of the success of the Eagle is the testimony of its riders.

New York, N. Y., Nov. 18th, 1890.

The Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co., Stamford, Conn.:

Gentlemen—I have ridden my "EAGLE" over 3000 miles during the last year, and it has never failed me. The tires and brake-spoon are considerably worn, but otherwise the machine is as sound as when new.

As for comfort, speed, safety, etc., if it did not embrace more of these good points than any other wheel, I would not be riding it.

Congratulating you on the great success of your wheel on track and road last season, and wishing you still greater success next season, I am,

Yours very truly, Stanton M. Smith.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 17th, 1890.

The Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co., Stamford, Conn.:

Dear Sirs—The 50 inch Eagle which I have been using since April is giving perfect satisfaction. In my six years' practical experience as a rider of all the best makes of high grade wheels, I can truly assert that I never was as absolutely contented with my mount.

As a road wheel and hill climber it is a grand success, being especially safe, easy running, and easy of control. The material, workmanship and finish is fine.

Our captain and many club members have Eagles and praise the "bird" highly. Very truly yours, E. J. Righter.

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 10th, 1890.

Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co., Stamford, Conn.:

Dear Sirs—I have now ridden my 52 inch Eagle the greater part of last season, over all kinds of roads and in all kinds of weather, and I find it the most comfortable and easy running wheel I was ever on, and I have never regretted exchanging my Ordinary, one of the best makes, for my Eagle, as it needs very little adjusting or care and is a splendid hill climber. I have ridden it a great deal after dark, on strange roads, and never taken a tumble. I find it very easy to ride hands off and on one wheel, which is of great use as well as pleasure in riding over rough places and curbs.

I also find that I can make better time on the roads with it than I did with my Ordinary, and with a great deal more ease. I shall continue to ride the same old 52 next season, which in spite of the rough usage I have given it, is as good as new.

Wishing you the best success next season, I remain,

Yours respectfully, Guy E. Reynolds.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 7th, 1890.

Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co., Stamford, Conn.:

Dear Sirs—I have ridden the Eagle nearly 3000 miles this year over all kinds of roads, and I am thoroughly satisfied with it. I have found it fast, safe, easy running, comfortable and excellent wheel for touring, and I would not change it for any other wheel made. Yours very truly, Chas. E. Tripler.

"NOT WORTH A DAM."*

Not long since we heard a young man pass this verdict on a wheel, a wheel which, even though not of our own make, we are willing to admit is a good one. The owner of the wheel, who was near by, "took him up," so to speak, and it then transpired that the young man had never ridden the wheel more than half a mile in his life, and had passed the verdict without a single thing to back it up. The young man was simply prejudiced in favor of some other make. The world is full of such people,—individuals whose prejudice will permit them to see no good in anything in which they are not directly interested, and whose wanton condemnation thereof is unfortunately not without effect on those who do not stop to think, or to "take 'em up." The instance just cited recalls that of a now firm friend, who a year ago "wouldn't ride a Rambler if it was given him." Some months elapsed before he was again seen. He was then riding a Rambler. Naturally we inquired the cause of his change of heart. He then frankly owned that when he spoke belittingly of the wheel, he had never even ridden it, but having occasion to do so shortly afterwards, as he inellegantly put it, he "got stuck on it," and was not happy till he got one. And so it goes. Prejudice is a thief which robs one of many good things.

The new year is not now very far off, and perchance, dear reader, you may be thinking of a change of mount. In such an event, you should be above prejudice. Gather all the information and experience possible. If you have an opportunity to try a wheel, don't refuse it. Remember no manufacturer expects the whole world to go daft over his output. Endeavor to try a Rambler, if you have never done so. We do not urge more. The trial we feel sure will furnish you with some food for reflection in determining your choice.

* "This is an expression which, to people who do not know its meaning, and there are few who do, is very shocking. A dam is a small brass coin, which is current in countries of Persia and India, and is equal to one fortieth of a rupee, or about one cent of our money. The phrase 'not worth a dam' was used by the Englishmen in the east to express their sense of an article's worthlessness. Owing to the ignorance of its origin and meaning, it has been badly misconstrued, and has finally come, by most people, to mean an orthographical profanation or curse, and to signify a thing of so small value as not to be worth the waste of breath in damning it. This, however, is entirely the wrong meaning of the sentence."—Ed.

THE Washington Club with its seventy-five members are about the most exclusive club in this city. Their club house is very handsomely and expensively furnished, and the members are as "white" as you make them. Spooner rarely speaks of his twenty-four hour ride, but when he does he always speaks of the splendid treatment received at the hands of the Washington Club members on that occasion. Every attention was shown him and their treatment of him was royal.

CHICAGO wheelmen live without a doubt in the land of the blessed. With the World's Fair coming in 1893, and the consequent number of wheelmen as visitors, what a boulevard system we will have to show you fellow wheelmen. Why, we will start you off in the morning for a tour around Chicago. Fifty to seventy-five miles in the circuit, and then you haven't seen the inside drives, only the outside. Then there's the Sheridan drive, forty-five miles northward along the lake shore and back; then a few days exploring our great park system and a run to Riverside, over newly paved streets, Oh, we can give you all the riding you want for a week and never go over the city borders.

THE Lincolns will mourn the loss of one of its best riders and the Lake Views will gain one. T. R. McDonald, for some unexplained reason, has tendered his resignation to the Lincolns, and transferred his affections to the latter club.

TOM ROE is again in clover, having inherited $40,000 He pays for everything as of yore, and his many friends are with him again.

OUT of the embers of the Ashland Cycling Club the Garfield Club has come forth. There were several very objectionable members in the old club, and a number of the members decided to disband and start new. They were granted a charter November 22d. They have no road officers as yet. The will identify as an L. A. W. club.

E. L. FERGUSON, of the Western Cycle Co., is now in the East purchasing safeties for the spring trade.

SEVERAL members of the Lincoln Club may be expected to materialize a vast amount of speed, if what they say comes true. This is not for the benefit of the handicapper, but a warning to a select few to pull in their horns before that august personrge catches on.

THE Douglas Club had a picture taken Sunday morning, Dec. 14th, and will give a euchre party Dec. 19th. The first indoor game in which they played was won by the Garden Cities, in a ten inning game, by a score of 10 to 9.

TWIN CITIES. "MIDWAY."

TOM ECK, the genial veteran cyclist, proposes to push his track to completion in the spring, as an electric line now connects the location with both cities, and the boys will help in any way that they can. The clubs cannot do much financially, as they are all weak from that standpoint, and all surplus at present seems to be devoted to fitting up new quarters.

Is all interest in cycling matters dead in "T'Etoile du Nord," or only sleeping? If the latter, when will it awake.

I WOT not till Gabriel's horn shall toot the Doomsday toot and it is "mount and away for the pearly Gates.

JOKING aside though, why don't the Twin City clubs bestir themselves and put a little life into cycledom in this section.

WHO knows there is a cycle club in St. Paul for instance but the immediate members thereof, and in what way does the Minneapolis Bi. Club show remarkable energy and development?

ALTHOUGH the wheel can be used more readily in Minneapolis for business purposes on account of her level streets, St. Paul has the advantage of beautiful asphalted boulevards and streets in the St. Anthony Hill district, which should be a paradise to the cycling embryo in his wary wobblings.

NOW boys, let us hear from the Saintly City in the coming year, and let the Apostles of the League go forth and round up their recalcitant brethren who should know, but do not, of the pleasures of the wheel.

THE Flour City Cyclists are a strong Minneapolis Club organized this year, and they seem to have come to stay. Their pretty uniform of blue-gray will make a good showing next year, and their numerous lady members will form an additional attraction. (And in confidence, let me tell you, these same young ladies look very fetching in their neat costumes, and the boys are very proud of them and their skill on the wheel).

THE St. Paul Cycle Club have moved to new quarters on the third floor of the Willoughby Block, corner 4th and Robert streets, and will be glad to meet any wandering brethren that come their way. The club is minus a bath-room at present, and Shorty feels that his privileges are curtailed somewhat, as he cannot indulge his amphibious habits as of yore.

To prevent Shorty, the club duck, from splashing all over the carpet, they had better make a miniature lake on the roof and call it Shorty's Pond or Duck Lake. Shorty considers fresh water bathing a necessary adjunct to well appointed club rooms, and it certainly is in the opinion of your humble servant.

WHAT Minneapolis cyclists are responsible for the following which I clipped from a local daily: "* * * Almost every night a crowd can be found on Fourth street in front of the Ideal restaurant, composed principally of those brainless youths who deem it the noblest thing on earth to swathe their spindle shanks in gay colored stockings, wear knee breeches and a variegated cap, and bestride a bicycle. There the—they are not young men—missing links nightly congregate, and when not creating an uproar, pass their time in insulting ladies. They are a disgrace to the human form which they bear. * * *." It cannot be that any club members who have the interests of cycling at heart are guilty of behavior of this kind, and the Minneapolis Bi. Club, whose headquarters are near the scene of this nuisance, should remonstrate with the offenders who are in the habit of disgracing the vicinity with their unseemly revels.

WHEELMEN should be gentlemen, first, last and all the time, and if they expect ladies to join their ranks they must be. From one who knows.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

A GOOD deal of opposition was found last year at the close of the Stanley Show to the continuance of that event of world wide fame. Those who spoke by the card asserted that the 1890 Stanley Show would be the last. The opposers, however, over-estimated their strength, and in spite of all discouragements, the Stanley Show will be held on January 23d at the Crystal Palace, London, and all the old faces will be seen there including those who "spoke by the card," and said that the curtain had been rung down finally on the great show.

THE possible dates to be proposed by the Detroit Wheelmen in their invitation to the League to hold its 1891 annual in that city will be July 3, 4 and 5.

SHOULD not "the punishment fit the crime?" Are there not degrees of guilt even in the violation of that awful amateur rule? There is such a thing in civil and criminal law as grading the penalty to be in accord with the degree of crime. This simply as a suggestion to the members of the coming conference, respectfully submitted.

THE Philadelphia Mercury in attempting to draw a parallel between the cases of men suspended for selling prizes, and the payment of a fee to the official handicapper, is about the silliest argument among the very many silly arguments during this controversy.

THE Buffalo Times asserts that the Buffalo Bicycle Club will withdraw as a League Club when the present membership expires.

THE District of Columbia Division L. A. W. is backing up Mr. D. L. Sandoe in a suit for $1000 damages for injuries to person and machine in being run down by a team owned by Mr. Reilly and driven by a negro. At the time of the collision several teams owned by Mr. Reilly were racing, and the reckless conduct and driving caused the smash up and damage,

WHAT is the difference between an amateur who sells his prizes, and a professional who rides for the cold cash in the first place?

How to breathe when riding during cold weather: "The chily feeling produced by the keen air may, to some extent, be overcome by throwing the shoulders back and repeatedly filling the lungs to their utmost extent, holding the breath for about ten seconds and expelling the air through the mouth. A repetition of this exercise will cause a feeling of warmth to pervade the entire body, including hands and feet."

GIVEN: a clear sky, a hard frozen road worn smooth by the tires of carriages and wagons, and absence of strong wind. Result: the very perfection of conditions for cycle riding. This condition of things has existed more or less round Boston during the past few weeks, and at the present writing the snow has held off, though the sky looks "snowy." The only danger of winter riding is carelessness in protecting oneself against chills after over heating. In the first place a man need not ride any faster than to induce a delicious glow, and if he is a wise youth and not a dyed-in-the-wool scorcher he will not get into a perspiration, but will ride so as to enjoy to its fullest extent the ideal of winter cycling.

Who is "Sandy?" where, oh, where is "Sandy?" Two gentle men (not of Verona), of the names of Berlo and Zimmerman, are very anxious to meet or hear of the whereabouts of a blonde individual who passed by the name of "Sandy." When last seen he was on the track at Washington, D. C., making certain unsavory claims reflecting on the venality of the above two named racing men. [N. B.—$100 reward will not be paid for the information desired —Ed.]

A young man named D. H. Fenton of Danville, Ill., after dismounting from his bicycle last week fell dead. Heart disease is supposed to have been the cause.

The Fall River (Mass.) Cycle Club members ate oysters at their club room last week Tuesday. The club orchestra will give a concert on Christmas Eve.

Now that the cruel war is over in Buffalo men turn to other fields for excitement. The suspended eighteen furnish their full modicum of excitement, and alas! a cloud hangs o'er Massachusetts. Let us hope that the favoring breezes of harmony will dispel it without the showers accompanying thunder.

Imagine a brass band on safeties, and yet that is what Detroit proposes to have. Fifteen men mounted on wheels all alike painted in club colors and playing on instruments specially constructed to be manipulated with one hand. "Griff" is at the bottom of that scheme.

G Minturn Worden is in our midst. He does not deny or affirm the three-dinner story which appeared in the last issue of the World, but he "mutters vengeance deep and low."

The Nashua (N. H.) Cycle Club has just completed its organization and at once commenced proceedings towards making things pleasant socially in the thriving New Hampshire city. A masquerade ball and several assemblies are on the tapis.

Capt. Burbridge and Lieut. Gettinger of the Washington Cycle Club of Washington, D. C., have signified their intentions of going on the track in the coming spring, and no doubt they will be familiar in racing circles before the close of the season.

The committee of the L. A. W., Messrs. Davol, Bassett and Bidwell, to meet the committee of the A. A. U. in conference on the amateur embroglio promises from its make up to bring about something satisfactory and permanent.

Chicago claims that it at least has one amateur who never sold a prize and his name is Van Sicklen. Van has won a lot of cycles, but he never sells one and can today show every one of his wheels and prizes. We do not mean to say that there are not others like Van Sicklen, but he was quoted as a shining example.

The Gotham Wheelmen of New York City gave a smoker at their club house last week Saturday.

Mr. C. H. Smith, the manager of the Detroit to Niagara tourists, proposes to send to each of the participants of that famous tour a Christmas present. Now are you not sorry you failed to be one of them? Mr. Smith will organize a European party to sail on the City of Berlin, July 29. Particulars later.

Chicago must be called the banner "club city." It is claimed that there are twenty separate cycling organizations in that city.

The Wilmington (Del.) Wheel Club held a private reception at its club house last week Thursday evening. About 35 members were present and brought lady friends.

Now that Dr. Emery has withdrawn from the field as candidate for the Vice-Presidency, the friends of Dr. G. Carleton Brown of New Jersey are urging his candidacy for this position. Dr. Brown has been a hard worker for the League during many years and such a recognition of his services would give him no more than he has earned. We understand that Illinois will claim a Vice-President and the names of Chief Consul Davis, F. W. Gerould and Secretary T. F. Sheridan are mentioned.

The Philadelphia Bicycle Club have redeemed $3000 of their bonds issued four years ago for building purposes.

Maryland racing managers will try and minimize the "loafing evil" next season by offering special prizes for the best times made either to the quarter, half or three-quarter mark in mile events and to the one-mile mark in two-mile events and so on.

A. W. Barr, he of "No. 405" notoriety, arrived home in Westboro, Mass., last week.

The Rochester Wheelmen want the New York State Division meet there next season.

The hospitable Hagerstown Bicycle Club held its annual banquet last week Wednesday. Guests were present from Baltimore, Chief Consul Mott being among the most prominent.

On Thursday evening, Dec. 11, the York (Pa.) Cycle Club formally opened their rooms to their friends by holding their first reception. The usually beautiful rooms were most tastefully decorated with palms. About 40 couples attended. Dancing was the order of the evening. Ice cream, cakes and fruits were served at 11 P. M. in the way of refreshments. All seemed to have a pleasant time until 2 A. M. keeping time to the sweet strains of the harp in the skillful hands of Mr. Frank Iula of Baltimore, and thus the York Cycle Club entered a new life—one of social pleasure.—— New Year's Day the club will keep open house and all afternoon and evening the members will receive calls from their friends and during this time lunch will be served to all who call —— January 15th is the date set for the next social evening, which will take the shape of a progressive euchre party.——The club is now discussing the popular "pool tournament" question and will no doubt fall into line and have a pool tournament.—— As the end of the year is near at hand perhaps it would not be out of place to mention what has been done by a few of the members this season. Seven out of twenty-four members have each a century run to their credit, while two of the seven have each made two centuries this season. A very good average we consider is seven out of twenty-four.

Some time ago W. J. Wilhelm was run down by a driver of a mule team. Wilhelm knocked the teamster down and the teamster had W. arrested. On Tuesday, Dec. 9th, the case came up before the grand jury at Reading, Pa., and it was dismissed and the prosecutor ordered to pay costs.

The board of governors of the N. Y. A. C. held a meeting last week Wednesday and the board held the opinion that, under the rules of the Amateur Athletic Union, the New York Athletic Club, to which 13 of the disqualified bicyclists belong, had committed no wrong and directed its secretary to so inform the L. A. W.

"He's fallen off a great deal since I first saw him," she said, as she looked at the young man on his bicycle. And her little sister exclaimed, "Why, I didn't see him fall off once!"

The Arlington Bicycle Club, Washington, D. C., started on Sunday morning, Nov. 23, from the navy yard bridge at Anacostia to break the record for sixteen miles' distance to Marlboro. W. R. MacKrille reached there in 1 hour and 3 minutes, breaking the record by 7 minutes. D. L. Sandoe made the second time in 1 hour 10 minutes. The timers at the start were H. V. King and E. C. Bowen, and J. S. Wilson and C. Warring at the finish.

THAT "SANDY"-MURPHY-BERLO-ZIMMERMAN AFFAIR

The following story sounds very much as though a certain individual rejoicing in the name of "Sandy" and masquerading as a go between, tried to play a confidence game on the N. Y. A. C. The report says that "Sandy" not getting the money disappeared. The question naturally arises if "Sandy" had got the money would he have remained visible to those reputed to be interested in its proper (or improper?) disposal? The story of the alleged offer of Zimmerman and Berlo to throw the two mile race at Washington in favor of the N. Y. A. C. men is as follows:

Mr. Barrett, editor of Bearings, states that W. F. Murphy told him that he (Murphy) had fixed things between Berlo and Zimmerman to throw that race, and the sum agreed upon was $75 each. This Murphy claims was done so that N. Y. A. C men could win first and second place; Berlo and Zimmerman to finish third and fourth.

President Walter Schuyler of the N. Y. A. C. was seen and stated he was approached by Murphy as to whether the club would pay the sum named ($150) or not, and that he (Schuyler) had promptly refused.

Murphy was seen, and he stated that he was approached by a professional runner of light complexion who he knows only by the name of "Sandy." Sandy asked Murphy if his club (the N. Y. A. C.) would like to win first and second in the two mile championship. Murphy assented and then "Sandy" said that for $150 he could fix Berlo and Zimmerman. Murphy then saw President Schuyler, and getting his refusal to have anything to do with it, he reported the result to "Sandy," and that worthy faded away, and was not seen since.

Murphy saw Zimmerman and said, "I hear you are trying to sell that two mile race Zimmy?" Zimmerman thought it was a joke, and when Murphy told him the whole story, Zimmerman was very indignant. Murphy goes on to say, "I met Berlo on the track, and he said he did not know anything about it. It was a good thing for 'Sandy' that he did not show up. I could hardly believe that Berlo and 'Zimmy' would do such a thing and that's why I asked 'Sandy' if he had seen them about it. I don't believe either of the men would 'throw' a race, and the professional must have been trying to make a stake. In my opinion Zimmerman and Berlo are two of the most honest riders in the country."

A. KENNEDY-CHILD ON THE CUSHION TIRE.

By your courtesy and through your columns I desire to add my mite (culled from experience) as to the value of cushion tires. A priori: I enter the debate as an uncompromising defender and advocate of cushion tires. The contention that these tires, when properly constructed, contribute in a manner often dreamed of, but never before practically realized, to the comfort of the rider and the possibilities of the cycle is one few will object to.

That their introduction marks in cycle construction the grandest improvement since the adoption of adjustable ball bearings is probably a fact. That the only serious objection to their universal adoption is their alleged tendency to cut and split; an objection which if true and unsurmountable (in view specially of the great cost of these tires) would possibly be fatal.

That in a majority of the cases personally investigated by me these serious objections were only too well founded I admit. That the tires cut in an alarming manner was unfortunately true. That they had a tendency to crack from the interior wall was also true, and my original opinion was not at all favorable; but—and there is in most cases a "but"—later I discovered there was a way to obviate all the unfortunate tendencies of the tire; and now I have a cycle fitted with cushion tires, which has successfully stood all kinds and conditions of road riding; has been subjected to such abuse as falls I hope to the lot of few machines; and today it shows, so far as the tire is concerned, no more wear outside than a solid one would show, and internally it is perfect. So far as the wheel itself is concerned it is in much better condition than I could expect a solid tire wheel to be, and to the tire I attribute its condition.

It has saved the wheel from the severe jars and concussions which under the old conditions would in all probability have utterly wrecked it. Bolts, nuts, and working parts have remained firmly when set, and the rigidity as a consequence never impaired. What alchemy did I possess to bring about such a result? None. Just common sense. During my first trials of the tire my wheel had a single U shaped rim of generous width—it was the edge of this solid rim that cut the outside. I had rims of different widths, but they did not materially change the result—it was impossible at that time to procure a suitable hollow rim in this country, but that was a deficiency requiring only time to overcome. Eventually I received the desired rim. Let me describe it. Simply a hollow rim very wide and with large rounded outside edges. This rim did away entirely with cutting on the outside, where edge of rim met the tire; the rubber at point of contact having a large rounded edge to press against, instead of the knife-like one presented by the solid rim, but the internal objection still remained, that of cracking. To achieve the same success there that I had outside was not so easy. Still it was not impossible. Eventually a composition was struck that, whilst in no degree detracting from the elasticity of the rubber, reduced the possibility of internal cracking to a minimum.

I do not claim it will never crack, but so far—a period of five months' use and abuse, have inspired in me every confidence that the tire will give fully as much wear as any solid tire of rubber used under similar conditions. To sum up, it seems to me arguing from analogy, that in order to make a cushion tire effective it must of necessity be attached to a specially constructed hollow rim, with wide rounded edges, and that internally it must be prepared in a manner that reduces the cracking nuisance to a minimum. With these conditions complied with the cushion tire marks the greatest improvement in cycle construction that the past decade has produced. Yours faithfully, A. Kennedy-Child.

PNEUMATIC TIRE AND LATENT POWER.

Having observed various reasons accounted for increased speed of cushion-tired cycles, that of latent power has not come to our notice yet. Noticing the great similarity experienced by the rider between the cushion tire and flange and skate combination for winter cycling, manufactured by Ohio Cycle Supply Co., we come to the conclusion that the tire plays a very important function in cycling. Both devices reduce vibration to a minimum right at the foundation of support, and here is where the pneumatic tire is superior to all springforks, as they are not capable of receiving, at least to a great extent, stored power like the cushion tire, which in leaving an obstruction through the impression received utilizes the stored power in propelling machine, hence economy of power. While a watch is running down the main spring exerts the same power, friction excepted, that it took in winding the spring, and while it takes force to make an impression by meeting an obstruction, the pneumatic utilizes said impression as soon as it gets beyond the perpendicular of said obstruction, hence stored or latent power. THE PLACES OF MEETING FOR 1891 AND 1892.

Editor Bicycling World: It may be said that it is yet too soon to locate the meet of "92," but as Detroit seems to have got a pretty good grip on the meet of '91, why not begin to talk of disposing of the '92 affair. A correspondent has recently put in a bid from Washington to have the next meet there instead of at Detroit. Now why not let the invitation come from the Capitol City to hold the national gathering at that place in '92? Think of the splendid streets we hear so much of. Of the public buildings to be inspected. The legion of wheelmen who would appear. A parade reviewed by the President of the United States and the representatives of other lands, and let us have the meet of '92 discussed, that of '91 is already practically disposed of. RULES FOR INDOOR BASE BALL.

[Through the courtesy of Hancock & Co. of Chicago we have permission to print the following rules. A new edition of full and complete rules has just been published by Hancock & Co., Chicago, which contains every regulation for governing the new game. The new book will contain about sixteen pages.—Ed.]

"It can be played in any hall or room of dimensions which will permit of a proper distance for bases and fielding, the composition of the floor being immaterial, as the rubber-soled shoes required to be worn are equally suitable for a smooth surface or carpet.

The game is played like ordinary base ball, with special rules and regulations to equalize the difference in size of grounds and surroundings.

The ball used is of large size, made of a yielding substance, especially for this purpose. The bat is 2 3-4 feet long and 1 1-4 inches in diameter at the large end. The four bases are each 1 1-2 feet square, half filled with sand.

The following special rules govern the game, other points being the same as in the regular rules:

1. The pitcher's box shall be 6 by 3 feet, to be marked on the floor, the nearest line of said box to be 22 feet from home base. This distance is not to be varied.

2. The bases to be 27 feet from each other, forming a diamond, where the size of the hall will allow. Should the hall be too narrow, the distance between first and third bases may be lessened. The distance from home to second base should always be 37 1-2 feet.

3 Nine or eight men may be played on each side.

4. Only shoes with rubber soles to be worn.

5. Only stright-armed pitching, in which the arm and hand swing parallel with the body, will be allowed, and the ball is not to be curved.

6. A batted ball which strikes inside or on the foul line is fair, the first point of contact with the floor, object or player, deciding, regardless of where it afterwards rolls.

7. A batted ball first striking outside the foul lines shall be foul.

8. The third strike caught before touching the ground is out.

9. A foul tip or foul fly caught before touching the ground is out.

10. Four unfair pitched balls give the batsmen first base.

11. A pitched ball striking the batter is a dead ball, but does not entitle him to a base. If it should be the third strike the batter is out, and no base can be run on that ball.

12. A base runner must not leave his base when the pitcher holds the ball standing in his box.

13. A base runner must not leave his base on a pitched ball not struck, until after it has reached or passed the catcher, on penalty of being called back.

14. A batted ball caught after striking any wall or fixture shall be considered first bound, and is not out.

15. In over-running first base the runner can turn either way in returning.

16. If a batter intentionally kicks or interferes with a ball he has just batted, he is out.

17. If a batted ball, after striking fair, rebounds and hits the batter, he shall not be declared out on that account.

18. The game shall be judged by two umpires—one shall take a position in centre field and give decisions on second and third base plays, and shall see that a base runner does not leave any base before a pitched ball has reached the catcher. The other umpire shall take a position behind the catcher and judge all other points of the game. The two umpires shall change positions at the end of every inning. Umpires shall not be chosen from the two clubs contesting.

19. The umpires shall be the sole judges of the play and discussion will only be allowed on correct interpretation of the rules, and not on any optional decision. All such discussions restricted to the two captains.

(Adopted by the Mid-Winter Indoor Base Ball League of Chicago, October 24, 1889.)

The catcher should always play up close to the bat as foul tips are frequent, and the composition of the ball will not allow a serious injury if a player should be struck in the face with it.

Masks and gloves are not essential, but it is a good idea for players to have their suits padded all around the knees, as the frequent sliding and bumping on the hard floor would otherwise be hurtful."

THE LEAGUE IN POLITICS.

Editor Bicycling World: I have carefully read all that has been said in the World of late as to whether the League should "Dabble in Politics" and am of the same opinion still.

Elections are of three kinds: National, State and local.

As the improvement of our highways is not now a National question, or at least not in the same sense as the silver or tariff questions, it will probably be some time before the League could be called upon to interfere in National politics.

As to State elections, they are often influenced by National issues, for our State Legislatures elect the United States Senators, and the voter may consider the National issues of more importance than the highway question, and resent any attempt to influence him to vote for the opposite party. Again, in State elections, the liquor question or the school question may be an issue overshadowing all others, and the voter will be for or against a candidate, regardless of the position he would take on the highway question.

Now as to local elections. Here is the place, if any, where anything could be accomplished by League interference. The wheelmen may hold the balance of power. They may get a candidate to promise to do certain things, and they may succeed in electing him. When it comes to fulfilling his promises, however, he may conclude that by so doing he would retain the good will of 500 wheelmen at the risk of alienating the affections of a thousand or more other voters, and decide to ignore the demands of the wheelmen, and they will find that they have not only accomplished nothing, but have elected a demagogue to office. This is not theory. It is simply the history of the results of a number of deals in the past, and politicians are just as mercenary to-day as they ever were, and probably more so.

Granted that in isolated cases good may have been accomplished by such procedures. Where is the line of demarcation to be drawn? Does not the League have sufficient trouble controlling her racing men? Let the League do with politics as has been done with road racing; ignore it. At least for the present. If the wheelmen of any locality are strong enough to accomplish anything they have their club organizations.

Poor roads are not a late innovation, they existed long before the Declaration of Independence was thought of. The large majority of the people do not fully realize the benefits of good roads as they have never seen a real good road. It will take time to convince them. It can't be done in a week, month or a year.

Let the educational part of the work be pushed. A popular demand is what we want more than "deals." Very respectfully,

William D. Kempton.

THE BOWN-CENTAUR CASE.

Noticing the controversy going on in the English papers in regard to the recent decision in this famous case, and the probable outcome and final decision which will be made on the appeal, we asked the following questions of the Bown patent owners in this country, the Overman Wheel Co., as to the probable effect of the decision in the United States, and the reply we received was as follows: "If the decision in the case is confirmed by the appeal it would not materially affect the United States patent. The laws relating to anticipation of patents in this country are entirely different from those in England. However, from advices we have received from the other side we feel very confident that the late decision will not be sustained by the higher court on appeal."

The Elwell Bermuda party is rapidly filling up, and all having the tour in contemplation should clinch the matter as soon as possible, as the steamer is sure to be full before date of starting. Among those who are expected to be of the party is Henry George, the advocate of the single tax, who is somewhat broken down from overwork, and thinks of resorting to Bermuda and the wheel as a tonic.

TO "STAR" ONCE MORE.

Editor Bicycling World:, While it is evidently entirely within the province of a correspondent to take up your valuable space with futile attempts to be funny at the expense of any one who incurs his displeasure by refusing to join his pet club, I submit that the line ought to be drawn somewhere, and beg to ask your editorial opinion as to whether it should not be drawn at the offensive appellation of "Socialists," as applied by "Star" to the members of the Social Cycling Club of this city in your last and previous issue?

LAMSON'S LUGGAGE CARRIER NO. 4 FOR SAFETIES

Is made of one continuous piece of spring-steel wire, hooked behind the bar, and is not rigid at its lower end but forms an elastic rest for the package, preventing undue jar to the contents. It does not interfere with the brake or mar the nickel. There are no screws, clamps or rivets to work loose and break or get lost. It is easily adjusted to rest on the handle bars and is strapped down firmly to hang in front of the machine. It is not intended to take the place of the smaller standard horizontal Carrier No. 1, but as an additional variety especially intended for touring and for carrying the bundle well down in front. It will safely and securely carry as large a package as any rider would be likely to take along, and carries it where it is out of the way in mounting, and always under the eye of the rider so that he can see that nothing is lost off. It cannot rattle, and it fits nearly all the different makes of safeties, as well as the Victor and Eagle ordinary.

Manufactured by C. H. Lamson, No. 203 Middle street, Portland, Me. For sale by all dealers in Cycle Sundries.

The Overman Wheel Co. will on January 1st establish a branch house in San Francisco, Cal. This is in line with the policy of this pushing house to establish real branch houses in the different large cycling centres, and the San Francisco house, like the Denver, Washington and other branches will be in all essentials a part of the Overman Wheel Co.

THE NEW GIANT NO. 4.

We present in this issue a fine cut of the New Giant No. 4. The specifications are in brief: 30-inch wheels, tangent spokes, steel hubs, ball bearing parts steel, weldless steel backbone, hollow steel tube handle bar, rear brake, ball bearings all over, including head, Bolte spring fork, new Yost saddle. Finished in enamel and nickel. This machine will be listed at $85.

THE EAGLE RACER.

THE EAGLE RACER.

This cut represents the racing wheel which the Eagle Bicycle Mfg. Co. will put on the market in '91. The Eagle roadster having made such a success in the road races, there was a demand this season for a racing wheel on the same lines. A few of these wheels were built the latter part of the season, and the work done on them so far has fully demonstrated their success. The weight is 21 pounds, the frame rods are all of steel tubing, the size of front wheel rim is 3-8 inch, rear wheel 1-2 inch, number of spokes in large wheel thirty-two, small wheel sixteen. It is fitted with a brake the same as the road wheel, and the model is in all respects the same.

"Senator" Morgan writes from Portland, Oregon, that in all probability he will cast his lot with a new concern now forming, called the Chicago Cycle Supply Co. As its name indicates it will be a concern to manufacture and supply cycle sundries, etc., to the trade. Portland (Oregon) capital will figure largely in this new venture, though probably the headquarters will be in Chicago, to which place the "Senator" will undoubtedly move as soon as the arrangements are consummated. More of this new concern anon.

The Columbia desk calendar for '91, issued by the Pope Mfg. Co., will be in great demand. As usual, it is in pad form mounted on a stained wood, brass bound stand. Although this is the sixth issue of the calendar, all the matter is fresh and new, comprising notable events in cycling, opinions of physicians and clergymen, hints about road making and numerous other topics, the whole being enough to make a fair-sized volume when printed in book type. The whole is most creditable to Mr. Cole, the compiler.

The Board of Officers of this Division having cancelled the action taken Sept. 26th (for want of legal notice to the members of the Board), and having by ballot expressed their preference for the following members as delegates to the National Assembly, in accordance with the By-Laws I hereby appoint R. A. Barker, Geo. F. Kehew, J. S. Dean, Charles G. Wells, J. W. Bean, George A. Perkins, I. E. Moultrop, Sanford Lawton, J. Fred. Adams and E. B. Pillsbury delegates to the National Assembly from Massachusetts.

Fraternally, WM. H. EMERY,
Boston, Dec. 15, 1890. Chief Consul.

Massachusetts Division.

A meeting of the Board of Officers of the Massachusetts Division League of American Wheelmen, was held at the Clarendon Hotel, Boston, on the evening of Dec. 12, 1890.

Chief Consul Emery presided, and the members present were Vice Consul Robinson, Secretary-Treasurer Howard and Representatives Kendall, Lamont, Pillsbury, Carsley, Barber, Gorton, Dean, Robinson, Lowell, Adams, Whitten, Kehew, Bean, Wells, Gooch, Pierce, Moultrop and Palmer, or 22 of the 25 members of the Board.

As soon as the meeting came to order the Chief Consul requested the Secretary to read the records of the annual meeting held last September. The records were not at the meeting of the Board held a month after the annual session, consequently they were not presented for approval until Friday evening. When they had been read Mr. J. S. Dean moved that they be approved. Mr. Wells offered as a substitute for Mr. Dean's motion a set of resolutions. Mr. Dean doubted that such a substitution was in order, and questioned the decision of the Chair. On the question being put to the meeting the Chair was sustained by a vote of 15 to 5.

Mr. Wells then offered the following resolutions:

Resolved, That this Board declares that no meeting was held on Sept. 25, 1890, because due notice had not been sent to all the members, as is provided in the By-Laws; and that the acts of the members present at that meeting were not the acts of this Board, and are hereby repudiated and rescinded.

Resolved, That on account of the illegality and irregularity of their election, and for that reason only, those members announced as chosen to represent this Division at the National Assembly are hereby removed from that delegation; and that it is the duty of the Chief Consul to fill the 10 vacancies so caused.

A lengthy discussion followed the offering of these resolutions. Several members stated that they had not received notice of the meeting in time to attend. The Secretary stated that all the notices were mailed at one and the same time, and that if any went astray it was the fault of the Post Office officials. The By-Laws provide that the Chief Consul shall give five days' notice of meetings called. Chief Consul Emery stated that he had sent notifications of the meeting to the Secretary on the Monday preceding the Friday on which the meeting was held. Had the Secretary received the Chief Consul's notification on the day that it was mailed, it would have been impossible for him to have given more than four days' notice to the members.

Mr. Dean considered that more than two months having passed since the annual meeting—a full report of which was printed in the BULLETIN, and therefore a legal notification of the business transacted given to all members of the Division—that it was now a rather late date to question the legality of that meeting. Mr. Wells, Mr. Barber and other members spoke in favor of declaring the meeting illegal.

The resolutions were adopted by a vote of 15 to 5.

The Chief Consul was requested to appoint 10 delegates. He stated that he would much prefer that the members decide by ballot whom he should appoint, and Messrs. Barber, Carsley and Bean were appointed a committee to receive the ballots.

While the vote was being taken, Mr. Kehew moved that the delegates to be appointed should support Chief Consul Emery as a candidate for any office which he should decide to stand for at the National L. A. W. Convention in February. The motion was carried without opposition.

The result of the ballot was that Messrs. W. G. Kendall, H. W. Robinson and J. B. Seward, elected at the annual meeting, were dropped from the list, and Messrs. C. G. Wells, Geo. F. Kehew and Irving E. Moultrop were chosen as their successors. The others elected were Messrs. Dean, Bean, Perkins, Lawton, Adams, Barber and Pillsbury, all of whom were on the original list.

Vice Consul Robinson said that he wished to have his protest recorded against the Chief Consul appointing delegates to succeed those he believed to have been fairly elected at the annual meeting. Believing that such action was illegal he had refrained from voting on the matter. While having no personal interest in the affair he thought that the exhibition of ill-feeling shown was not commendable to the Board.

Mr. Dean echoed Mr. Robinson's sentiments, and said that he had also refrained from voting. He objected to being instructed how he should vote as a delegate, and said that while in the past he had always supported the Chief Consul, if he should be sent as a delegate to the National Convention he would vote as he pleased.

The Chief Consul replied that this was a matter for Mr. Dean to settle with the Board.

Mr. Bean desired to refute any intimation that passing the above resolutions was the result of ill feeling. He believed in rewarding good services, and thought it but justice to the Chief Consul that other delegates should be appointed.

Mr. Kehew had understood that certain of the delegates elected at the annual meeting had stated that they would not support Dr. Emery for Vice President of the League, hence his motion of instruction.

Chief Consul Emery referred at length to his work in League affairs, saying that his time was too limited to allow of his accepting the two offices of Chief Consul and Vice President. If he stood as a candidate for the Vice Presidency he must resign as Chief Consul. He wished the Board to express by a vote which of the two offices it was desired he should retain.

Mr. Robinson thought that the Chief Consul was competent to discharge the duties of both offices. Mr. Palmer said that speaking for New Bedford he hoped Mr. Emery would continue as Chief Consul. Mr. Wells said that it would be easier for the League at large to secure a Vice President than it would be for Massachusetts to find a satisfactory Chief Consul, so offered the following motion which was carried: "It is the sentiment of this Board that the Massachusetts Division of the L. A. W. cannot do without its Chief Consul."

Dr. Emery said that this was perfectly satisfactory to him, and that he would not be a candidate for Vice President of the L. A. W.

The question as to whether or not the Division should allow mileage to delegates attending the National Convention was discussed at great length, and the motion made by Mr. Dean that mileage be allowed was lost by a vote of nine to six. The Chief Consul stated that the Division could not pay expenses to the delegates without endangering the chances of publishing a new road book containing county maps of the State. The proposed new book was described, and on motion of Mr. Bean the Chief Consul was appointed a committee of one, with full powers to publish the work. The Chief Consul was also appointed a committee of one to issue a Division hand-book. He was empowered to add to the members of these committees as he saw fit.

Mr. Pierce moved that the Chief Consul be allowed $75 per quarter for clerk hire, and the Secretary-Treasurer $31 for the discharge of the duties of his office. Mr. Adams, Chairman of the Finance Committee, offered as an amendment that the Chief Consul be appropriated $62 per quarter and the Secretary-Treasurer $50 per quarter. The motion as amended was carried by a vote of 9 to 2, the amendment being adopted by a vote of 7 to 6.

On motion of Mr. Adams the Secretary-Treasurer was requested to file a bond for $1000 with the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York, expense of obtaining the bond to be paid by the Division.

On motion of Mr. Dean the payment of $50 to Messrs. Beers and Hutchins for racing expenses by the Treasurer, in accordance with a vote passed at the meeting declared illegal, was ratified. It was also voted to sustain the vote refusing racing expenses to Mr. Berlo. CHAS. S. HOWARD, Sec.-Treas.

500—Missouri Division—500.

To Consuls and Members:

In spite of Jack Frost's visit to us, our Division keeps on growing, and if each of you will only do his share, the figures 500 will be snowed under. We want our non-League wheelmen to know that among the other advantages of membership the free weekly newspaper is not to be lost sight of. It is founded on solid merit, backed by ample capital, and conducted with honorable enterprise. On the other hand some bicycle riders pay $100 for an expert lawyer to prosecute road hogs. There are others who pay $1.50 for a year's membership in the League of American Wheelmen, and are thereby protected in case of assault on the road by an experienced lawyer in the employ of the Missouri Division. But even these are not the extremes reached. There are bicycle riders who lose over $1000 a year by doing neither one. A poor argument is a handicap in procuring new members, and if you will only recall the many advantages of League membership and paste them in your hat for every reference you will constantly have before you a good argument which no sensible wheelman will fail to heed. Fraternally yours,

ROBT. HOLM, C. C.

New League Club.

The following clubs have qualified as League clubs and filed the certificate required in the office of the Secretary:

305—Hartford Ladies Cycle Club, Hartford, Conn. Margaret A. Martin, Secretary.

306—Oshkosh Wheelmen, Oshkosh, Wis. Bayard T. Higgins, Secretary.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

"COMMON SENSE" SAFETY.

We present this week a cut of a new Hickory wheel made by David Pettit & Co., of Philadelphia. The specifications are as follows:

Wheels are 28 inch, of best selected second growth hickory, made by one of the oldest makers of wheels in this country. Steel rims, with adjustment for any possible shrinkage of felloe. Geared from 50 to 60 inches.

Sprocket wheel is supported in the most rigid manner possible, having crank shaft bearings on the outside, and so as to alter gearing at pleasure; sprocket rims detachable, without disturbing hub on shaft.

The chain is of a special light weight design and very strong. It runs in split teeth on sprockets, instead of on sides of teeth as is usual, and hard steel rings save the friction. Owing to spokes being straight and central in hub, the chain is run further in towards the centre; it is only one inch from centre of driving wheel, making it almost practically central driving.

The crank shaft is attached directly to forks that support rear wheel, and adjusts for chain tension instead of moving the driving wheel, thereby insuring the driver always in line with frame. The cranks are detachable and adjustable from 5 1-4 to 6 1-2 inches throw.

Wheel and crank shaft bearings are hardened steel rollers, very simple, and neatly fitted and easy running. Pedals are ball.

The frame is U pattern, suitable for either sex, and is very strong, being made of double tubes telescoped around the bend.

Steering centres are cone, arranged so that a line drawn through them strikes ground at point of contact of steering wheel.

Handles have a backward slope with long up and down adjustment.

Saddle is light hammock pattern with front and back adjustment, and from 26 to 36 inches vertical adjustment.

Finish, black enamel. Actual weight, 40 pounds. Solid or cushion tires.

We are in receipt of a sample piece of the Banker & Campbell cushion tire, cuts and description of which appeared in our issue of a few weeks ago. These tires will be applied to all the machines to be manufactured by the Banker & Campbell Company, viz., the "Meteor" cycles for women and men. The man's "Meteor" will weigh 40 pounds and the lady's 37 pounds. The tires alluded to above are moulded and endless, and are 1 1-4 to rear and 1 1-8 to front wheels. It is the intention of Messrs. Banker & Campbell to furnish these tires to the trade providing the manufacturer can make them in sufficiently large quantities.

REDUCED PRICES

on second-hand wheels. From now on during the winter we offer special net reduced prices on our second-hand stock; same is large and complete, and you can buy almost any wheel wanted at prices that will surprise you. Also special bargains in brand new, high-grade, job lot machines. Special bargain list free.

ROUSE, HAZARD & CO., 9 G St., Peoria, Ill.

The Victor Wrench. A genuine triumph! By actual tests over 80 per cent. STRONGER than the strongest wrench of its class heretofore in the market. Nickel plated. Price $1.00.

Overman Wheel Co., Makers, Chicopee Falls, Mass.

THE GALES SAFETY.

THE GALES SAFETY is designed with a view of meeting the demand for an ALL BALL BEARING Safety at a moderate price. The frame is of weldless steel tubing and steel forging throughout. The rear wheel is 30 inches, with 7-8 inch tire, geared to 54 inches. 30 inch steering wheel, with 3-4 inch tire. Best quality moulded rubber tires, firmly cemented into the rims. The spokes are direct, of No. 12 special drawn steel wire. Straight front fork; corrugated rubber coasters. The handle bar is one piece steel tube 30 inches long, bent back, and is detachable and adjustable.

Both wheels, crank-axle and pedals are fitted with ball bearings. The pedal rubbers are soft and tough, and so made as to prevent the rider's foot from slipping. The saddle rests upon an L seat rod, and is adjustable to height, also forward and back. The saddle is the famous Fish patent Hammock, is adjustable in all directions. The brake is of the Plunger style and very powerful. Neat Lamp Bracket, Mud Guards over both wheels. Finely enameled, with bright parts nickeled on copper. Each machine is supplied with tool bag wrench and oiler.

CYCLING

FOR

Health and Pleasure.

CHAPTER I.

WITHIN the last few years one of the most striking features of American life has been the development of interest in athletic sports, not merely in imitation of English customs, but because it has slowly become recognized that athletic sports have great value, and that exercise is essential to health. This admitted, the question at once arose as to what is the easiest, the most agreeable, the most accessible and most beneficial form in which to take exercise. It soon became evident that Cycling is that form. Thousands took to the sport because of this, and the majority of them proved its efficacy in their own persons. Furthermore, they found that they had engaged in the most exhilarating pastime they had ever known.

The first full discussion of these points is found in Chapter I of Mr. Porter's "CYCLING FOR HEALTH AND PLEASURE." He argues with great force that Cycling excels all other sports both in the pleasure it gives and the health it produces; he explains why it is so, and quotes liberally from medical authorities to prove his position. Special attention is given to the advantages of cycling for women. One cannot afford to miss this discussion if he is interested in telling any one why cycling is the grandest of sports.

The volume, in which this is the first of nine chapters, is published by the WHEELMAN COMPANY, 32 Pearl street, Boston, Mass., and sent by them, postage paid, on receipt of fifty cents. They receive no postage stamps.

My Cycling Log Book. By "Papa" Weston. The transitory pleasures of cycling can be made as permanent as its physical benefits, by jotting down in a wel devised log book, the distances and incidents of one's various journeys. Knowing that such a record is a most pleasant thing to have, and believing that the keeping of such should be encouraged, as tending to the permanent good of cycling in more ways than can be referred to here. The Log Book is handsomely and strongly bound in red leather, will last for years of constant use, and is the best arranged book of its kind ever yet devised. It fills a want often felt by the cyclist who values records of interest for future reference. Price, post paid, $1.25 For sale by Bicycling World Co., 12 Pearl st., Boston.

"BRONCHO,"

NOISELESS, CHAINLESS, LIGHT ROADSTER, SAFETY BICYCLE

Montclair, N. J., Dec. 13, 1890.

M. V. Livingston, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir—After riding "BRONCHO" over 2000 miles, I want to congratulate you on turning out the only safety that will not slip from under you when riding through mud or over slippery pavements. It is the handiest wheel I ever rode, and for winter use has no equal.

After the snow storm of last week "BRONCHO" was the only wheel seen on the avenue. I rode home through frozen wheel tracks three inches deep without a dismount—distance two miles and a half—time midnight—no lamps on wheel. I could not do it on my old mount.

Two weeks ago I was out with a friend, and covered five and a half miles in fifteen minutes.

With your brake, the wheel is easily controlled with one finger. "BRONCHO," unlike its namesake, does not kick up.

Book me for one of your '91 "BRONCHOS" with cushion or pneumatic tires. Truly yours,

(Signed) Philip Young,
Secretary Montclair Wheelmen.

$100.00 REWARD.

Our offer made here last July in these words,—"$100.00 Reward. for the return of any stolen Columbia Cycle and detection of the Thief,—payable on conviction of the Thief.—Pope Mfg. Co.," and all other offers or implications relating to the subject by us heretofore, are hereby WITHDRAWN. In place thereof, we substitute the following offer:

$100.00 REWARD for the return to the owner, repaired of any damage, of any stolen Columbia Cycle and the detection and bringing to justice of the Thief.—payable on conviction and sentence of the Thief and upon presentation of evidence of the facts satisfactory to our nearest "Agent" and to us; provided that this only applies when the cycle stolen was practically in use by the owner and not stored or on sale or unreasonably neglected, and that the reward is not payable to cycle "Agents" or dealers, acting in the line of their business, nor to sheriffs, police officers or others whose duty it is by law to detect, capture or arrest thieves, acting in the line of their official duty, nor to the owner of the machine, nor to more than one person in any case; and this offer is to continue until our notice of withdrawal in our usual advertising space in the "Bicycling World and L. A. W. Bulletin," of Boston, Mass.—We intend this as an inducement to those who, from a desire to see justice done and to protect rights of property in cycles, are willing to take some time, exertion and expense on our account, in aiding officers and magistrates in enforcing the laws and in making our patrons more secure in the unmolested enjoyment of our wheels.

QUIDPROQUO. XXXIX.

Being away last week, I let the average proof reader have a chance at me; and he got the number XXXVII in, for the second time, instead of XXXVIII as it should have been. Let any kind reader, who will, put in the missing I with his pencil, so that his file may be corrected. Peradventure some will care to refer to these pages yet; for they are storage room for many carefully verified facts. In opinions, I am bold to state mine, when they seem in place, and moreoften those of others; either may be mistaken, and I only offer them for what they may seem worth. In comment and criticism, or illustration, one cannot expect me to be perfect. But when I state things as facts, it is upon such evidence as affords good guarantee or after personal investigation that they are given as facts. Neither I nor the Company whose space I use, have any need or disposition to try to climb on wind or fictions.

SEVERE TERMS.

That bicycle stealing is a serious offence and moreover is hazardous, that it isn't mischief like hooking apples, but is a crime like stealing a horse, is in a way to be taught pretty plainly by some heavy sentences. One case on the Columbia Thief List recently, (at the usual expense of $100.00,) was that of a young man in Minnesota, John Lachey. It seems that he was examined in the lower court, as usual, in such cases, but instead of being lightly treated there, was bound over to the grand jury; and the grand jury found an indictment against him for grand larceny; he was duly convicted and the court sentanced him to two years and six monts in the state prison at Stillwater. Grand larceny,—that's what it is. And this was the longest sentence yet, I believe. In two cases in Connecticut recently, the cycle-thieves were sentenced to one year in jail. Such sentences as either of these ought to be given a wide publicity by wheelmen and the press.

Horse-stealing is punishable in Connecticut by two years in prison, I'm told. The punishment for this offence increases in severity as you go West, until in some sections it varies according to the height of the tree or the calibre of the gun. The stealing of bicycles ought to be made as dangerous. Even the mischievous taking and using a bicycle without right or the owner's consent is, in the State of Massachusetts, at least, a statutory misdemeanor, and is punishable by fine not exceeding three hundred dollars or by imprisonment in the house of correction not exceeding six months, even where there is no concealment or sale and no intention to steal the machine. See Pub. Stat., chap. 203, sect. 53.

THEY SAY IT IN SPANISH.

It is pleasant to come upon sentences like these in regular business letters,—I quote from a letter to Pope Mfg. Co. from Porto Rico, dated 15 November, 1890:—

"Muy S'res Mios: La presente se dirije a Uds con el fin de participarles que por conducto de los S'res * * * de esta, les encargue dos velocipedos, uno con la marca J para mi, y otro con la R para mi hermano; los que hemos recibidos a toda nuesta satisfaccion, pues son immejorarables y estamos contentissimos con ellos.

"Con dichas maquinas estan Uds accreditandose mucho en esta Ysla, por lo bien acabadas que se encuentran las nuestras.

"Nosotros recomendamos mucho su fabrica a todos los que desean de estas maquinas, pues estamos convencidos que es la que mejor trabaja en la construccion de eston objectos."

This gentleman and his brother, from their far isle of the sea, send most appreciative praise of their Columbia mounts, and refer to the good impressiou these machines make as compared with others, only a little more fully than many another does. Indeed the grand old Castilian language seems always to bring from our Southern or Eastern neighbors alike most courteous acknowledgements. Muchas gracias por sus amables escritos!

HAPPY THE LAD.

The gift days being hard upon us, it is not unseasonable to revive recollection of the fact that a Columbia cycle makes a mighty good Xmas donation, either to a popular pastor or schoolmaster, or to almost any youth. It is a sensible present to either, because it carries along with it the value as a practical thing and the evident sacrifice of the giver and the association with pleasure, which are the three desirable things in a Christmas present. If a lad be active, here is something safe and wholesome for his activities; if he be studious or delicate, here is something to lure him into the open air and the sunshine, to invite bodily exertion in the most varied and gentle ways, and to make him happy. Quidproquo always feels pleasure in passing by the venerable Roxbury Latin School at sight of the numerous cycles outside awaiting their riders, who will, after recitations, quicken their vital fluids and processes therewith. A Columbia bicycle is a joy for years. A "Merry Christmas" to the lads and ladies, misses and men, who ride them!

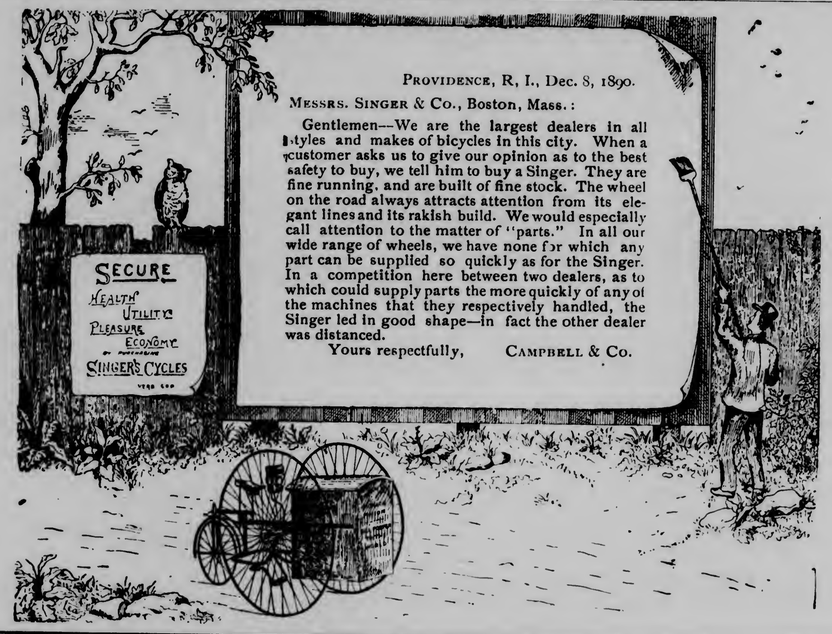
DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF CYCLING.



Volume XXII. Number 9. BOSTON, 26 DECEMBER, 1890 $1.00 a Year. 5 cents a copy

OF COURSE it is natural that we, who make bicycles, should keep closer watch of the performances of each particular season's make of machines, than those whose success is less intimately related to that of the said machines. The army of Victors stands up before our mind's eye in classes—'90, '89, '88, etc., and we know them as a mother knows her children. You, however, have some opportunity to know how a particular grist of Victors behaves.

What do you know or hear, for instance, of the '90 Victors? We have never known a season's machines to average so well as these—that, though, was only to be expected, as it is directly in the line of a progress which has been steady and unfailing with us from year to year, ever since we commenced to make bicycles—and we commenced when we were younger than we are now. Our judgment as to what would prove desirable and successful in the line of improvements has been so often vindicated that it is with a fine large stock of confidence that we prepare for the season of '91. Wait till you see the '91 Victors.

MESSRS. SINGER & Co., Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—We are the largest dealers in all styles and makes of bicycles in this city. When a customer asks us to give our opinion as to the best safety to buy, we tell him to buy a Singer. They are fine running, and are built of fine stock. The wheel on the road always attracts attention from its elegant lines and its rakish build. We would especially call attention to the matter of "parts." In all our wide range of wheels, we have none for which any part can be supplied so quickly as for the Singer. In a competition here between two dealers, as to which could supply parts the more quickly of any of the machines that they respectively handled, the Singer led in good shape—in fact the other dealer was distanced.

Yours respectfully, CAMPBELL & Co.

Owing to an unwillingness on the part of the publishers of this paper to make with me a satisfactory advertising contract for another year I have thought best to discontinue the use of this space with the present issue. I cannot do so, however, without expressing my appreciation of the many kindly words of sympathy which have reached me from unseen friends.

To those interested I would say that in addition to the regular style, I am getting out for '91 the finest thing that has yet been seen in the way of a safety bicycle. Particulars by addressing me at the old stand.

BOSTON, 26 DECEMBER, 1890.

THE MEETING OF THE A. A. U.

The meeting of the Board of Managers of the Amateur Athletic Union took place last Friday in parlor A at the Grand Union Hotel as announced, and this meeting proved to be spicy and breezy to the fullest extent. Saturday morning was several hours old before the Board adjourned, and the discussion on the action of the L. A. W. in suspending the eighteen amateurs was the most spirited that had ever taken place by the Union Board.

Mr. W. B. Curtis was on hand, and when the routine work had been disposed of he is described as having "taken off his coat, stroked his whiskers" and pitched in. His first move was to convince the members of the Board that the resolution which was accepted by Mr. Stephens' committee last spring as per agreement made with the L. A. W., was never accepted or put on the records of the A. A. U., and consequently had never been incorporated as one of its rules. The battle that ensued over this question was sharp and decisive, the Board would not look at it in the light that Mr. Curtis desired it to, and consequently his effort to stultify the Union happily miscarried. The resolution, which is as follows, was therefore recognized as being a part of the Union rules:

"Resolved, That no athletic club a member of the A. A. U. shall be permitted to pay any expense or expenses whatever, directly or indirectly, of a member of such club, except when such member or members are actually travelling to or from, or are in attendance as competitors at competitions. Any athlete who shall accept or receive consideration for his services under the guise of his expenses (an excess over the actual cost of transportation to and from competitions, and hotel bill while in attendance as competitor), shall, on proof of same before the Board of Managers of the A. A. U., be declared a professional, and the club or organization implicated with such athlete shall be dealt with as provided for in Article IX of the Constitution."

Having failed on that tack Mr. Curtis then moved that the rule be quashed, and the resolution was seconded by Secretary J. E. Sullivan—then the trouble began in earnest, and the speakers on both sides exhausted their eloquence. Hours passed in wordy warfare, but no final action was taken on Mr. Curtis' resolution, it being the desire of the Board to have its committee meet that of the League on January 3d and confer with same before taking final and decisive action.

It is gratifying to note that the extremists, with Mr. Curtis at their head, failed to carry the Board with them in their attempt to repudiate the resolution which was submitted and adopted by the L. A. W. in good faith; had it done otherwise it would have covered the Union with lasting disgrace. The Board as a Board has, however, shown itself to be honorable, and having done so it would be well for the Union to dispense with the services of certain members of the Board of Managers who would, by chicanery and trickery gain ends which should be reached by honest, manly methods.

Having commented on the questionable methods employed by Curtis & Co., we cannot but refer to the discussion which ensued as to the abolition of the rule. That was a good honest fight, and were it not for the fact that the same gentleman of tricky ways led the assault, we should say this difference of opinion was born of honest intention and manly motives. It is an open question and a vexed question withal, and those who oppose the rule honestly are entitled to the utmost consideration and respect. The matter is safe and in conservative hands, and the Union has put itself on record as being in sympathy with straight methods, even though the heavens fall and wholesale suspensions follow. The rule is in existence, the L. A. W. has shown good faith by living up to same: now let us see whether the Union has backbone enough to enforce a rule which it has adopted. As to its merits or weakenesses we have nothing to say. In joint conference the representatives of the two leading amateur organizations decided on the rule, we therefore logically conclude that the rule as adopted, and as it now exists, found favor in their eyes.

Of the two organizations we submit that the League occupies the more consistent position. It adopted the rule and is determined to enforce it, while the A. A. U. has also adopted the rule, and is now demurring about enforcing same. The Union is on the horns of a dilemma, and the question is what will they do? It is a knotty problem, and the work of the conference, January 3d, is such as will call into play the coolest judgment and most careful consideration. We most sincerely hope that petty rivalries and narrowness of motives will be sunk out of sight, and that the real motive, which must be the general good of amateur sport, be kept constantly before the conference.

It is not a question of A. A. U. or L. A. W. simply; it is a question as to the life or death of amateurism in this country.

MANY will read with surprise and regret that Dr. W. H. Emery has resigned his position as Chief Consul of Massachusetts as well as that of Vice President of the L. A. W. It is needless for us to comment on any of the causes which have led to this resignation. It would be ungenerous if we did not give to Dr. Emery the meed of praise he deserves. For many years he has been untiring in his efforts to place the Division of this State in the fore. Under his administration Massachusetts has been a hard pusher for first place. His labors to secure favorable road improvement legislation, and his eloquent appeals to wheelmen to join the League, will long be remembered.

BY Dr. Emery's resignation Arthur W. Robinson of Charlestown will assume control of the Division. We commend him heartily to all members as a man of sterling worth. That he will prove a worthy successor we doubt not. We think he appreciates the difficulties of his position, but we believe he will prove well fitted for the position.

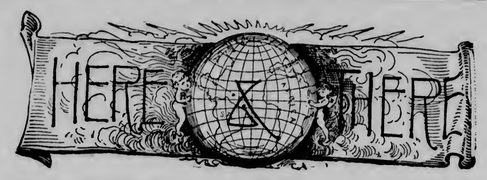
THE decision of the Treasury Department that bicycles are not personal property causes the press generally to come to the logical conclusion that they must therefore be real estate.

A FEW days ago a young lady rider was run into and badly injured by the driver of an ice cart in Washington. The driver was arrested but escaped punishment because he was on the right and the cycler on the wrong side the road.

In giving his decision Judge Miller said the laws of the District required that all vehicles should be driven on the right side of the street. In this instance the lady was on the wrong side and the ice wagon on the right side, otherwise the accident could have been avoided. The defendant was dismissed.

We simply call attention to this case because there are many wheelmen and women too who ignore the rules of the road. That more accidents do not occur is due more to the narrowness of the machine than to the skill of either driver or rider.

WILLIAM D. KEMPTON in our last issue struck the key note of the League in Politics. We are not yet prepared to say that the League should interfere as an organization, but it is quite proper for wheelmen as a class to unite in local elections. They may thus become an element for much good. But after all, the way to secure good roadways is to create a popular demand for them. The people must be made to realize that good highways are more economical and more convenient than poor ones. The voter must be educated. In the meantime, wheelmen should lose no opportunity to cast a vote for local officials who are avowedly in favor of improved highways. The repair and maintenance of ways is in the hands of the various towns and cities, and it is locally that all effective political work must be done.



WE are very glad to note that the A. A. U. has repudiated W. B. Curtis and has said to the world that its word was as good as its bond. The Racing Board had assurrances that the rule relating to expenses would be passed and lived up to by the A. A. U., and they conducted the season with full faith in the integrity of the gentlemen who gave the assurance. The tirade of W. B. Curtis has no one behind it but himself, and in no way represents the gentlemen who control the A. A. U. We are very glad that it is as it is.

MR. VAN WAGONER has resigned from the L. A. W. The world is very large, and there is room in it for both the L. A. W. and the gentleman from Newport.

GIVE NEW JERSEY A SHOW.

Editor Bicycling World: I want to speak a word for New Jersey and urge her claim to a Representative on the Executive Board of the League. I will let others speak of the merits of the candidate that the State presents, if it is necessary to commend Dr. G. Carleton Brown to the attention of the National Assembly, and I will confine myself to the simple statement that New Jersey has never had a representative on the Executive Board, and it is quite time that she had. Every other Division of prominence has been represented, and New York has had a representative on every Board since the League was organized in 1880. New Jersey is loyal; her Chief Consul is a worker, and justice should no longer be delayed.

VETERAN.

NOTES BY "HAWKSHAW."

IF to copy is to pay to anything the highest and sincerest form of flattery, then the L. A. W. badge has received this honor, for in modified forms it has been used as the basis for club badges without number, and in the case of the Cyclist Touring Club of England, it has been stolen outright. There can be no denial of the beauty of the badge, as all of its numerous wearers admit, but how few they are who can recall the beginning of the evolution that has given us the emblem as we now wear it. At the first quarterly meeting of the Board of Officers of the L. A. W., held at the Metropolitan Hotel, New York, on the 18th day of September, 1880, Frank W. Weston submitted a design for a League badge described as "a silver shield of the United States coat-of-arms shape, with an enamelled bar running transversely across it, bearing the letters L. A. W., for members, an entirely enamelled one for directors, and the addition of a bar across the head of the shield, bearing the title for the executive officers, the back of the shield to be used for the name or number of the member." Now this design was but an Americanized modification of the Bicycle Touring Club, since changed to Cyclist Touring Club, and the patriotic sympathies of the Board would not admit of them copying the English organizstion's emblem, an example, however, that later on the English did not see fit to follow. Albert S. Parsons of Cambridge, Mass., offered as a substitute what was called the "Continent Badge." This was of white metal, similar to silver, and about the size of a trade dollar; upon it in relief appeared the Continent of North America, encircled by a bicycle wheel, surmounted by a handle-bar, and it was accepted and declared to be the badge of the League. The die to make it was the property of the L. A. W., and was made, I think, at the Mint in Philadelphia. The result was a failure; the badge was at once dubbed the "ham-badge," and no end of ridicule was poked at it, and it was deserving of all it got, and more too, as it really looked like a blacking-box lid that had met hard and defacing usage. At the next meeting of the L. A. W., at Boston, May 30th, 1881, the feeling against the "ham" had grown so strong that something had to be done, and when C. H. Lamson, who was a jeweller in Portland, Maine, came forward with the present artistic design, he was hailed as a saviour, and his badge at once accepted as the very thing wanted, and it remains to-day, unchanged from the original, pleasing all, and meeting the approval of every one who sees it. When Lamson presented this idea of his badge, he declined to part with it to the League, but reserved for himself the sole right of manufacturing it, a transaction the League itself had done with the old "ham badge." Some years later the L. A. W., being hard up for money, and almost as badly off for resources to raise it from, the then treasurer, W. V. Gilman, offered to sell me the entire stock of "ham badges," owned by the organization, some thirty odd, I think, and I bought them to present to a few of my friends who wanted them for monstrosities or antiquities, and thus passed from active use one of the homeliest things that was ever credited with being a beautiful one.

IT has been said that any one who reads attentively the advertisements in the daily papers will, if he remembers what he reads, become in a short time a well informed man. This, like all broad assertions, is capable of being construed in many ways. Much of what we read in advertisements is undoubtedly bombast and self-praise on the part of the merchant who thus chants the perfections and beauties of the wares he seeks to sell, but still among all of the chaff thus cast before the public some grain is to be found, that will often repay the reader for the winnowing he will have to perform to separate the grain of truth from out the heap of chaff that hides it. The Christmas holidays causes the keen-witted merchant to spread his traps, in the shape of cunningly worded advertisements, to catch the elusive dollar of the present-purchasing public, and if there be any truth in the foregoing ideas of mine, this is the season of seasons to test it. I will give you a couple of examples to show you how it works: Two large sporting-goods houses here are both advertising extensively, and each offers to the public a list of their goods which they think would be advisable to purchase for presents. Premising that the dealers have in these printed lists of theirs placed at the head of them the article that they think the most suited, it is somewhat queer to notice the different way the bicycle is estimated by the two firms. In one the wheel is outranked in the list, in the order named, by a kodak, a racquet, a decanter that plays music while you drink from it, and by dog furnishings. Rather a lowly position, is it not? In the other "Abou Ben Bicycle's name leads all the rest," as it should, and need I say, that the firm who thus rate the wheel as first and foremost, outrank their competitors in every way where push, far-sightedness and quick appreciation of the public's needs are concerned? Certainly they do! Anyone would know that when it comes to ranking bicycles after decanters, dog collars and racquets that the man who thus rates them won't be in the swim with the man who places them ahead of them all.

AS Parnell is the uncrowned king of Ireland, so is Davol the untitled sovereign of cycling. Both are advocates of home rule, Parnell of Ireland, Davol of racing men; both demand the right to govern and be governed by their own people; both are right and both will win. Each in his sphere now occupies the eyes of the public, and the Kilkenny battles of each are rumored in the columns of the press. They differ though in one fact; Parnell is blind or nearly so and thus must wage his battles at a disadvantage, but Davol's eyes are oper, very wide open, as any of the "suspends" can testify to such as doubt it. The part of "John Bull" in our "Home Rule" fight is very aptly taken by William B. Curtis, who from the inception of cycling has ever worked upon its independence and management of its own affairs, as a thorn in the side of the athletic trust which he so vigorously upholds. True to the part he plays he does not fail to bluster and threatens utter annihilation to everybody and everything that is opposed to him; the end all know. The League will decide justly, fairly and impartially upon the truth of what has been alleged against the "suspends." If it finds them guilty it will punish the offenders; if a verdict of "not proven" is the result nothing I suppose can be done, but whatever the result arrived at is it will meet the hearty support of 99 per cent. of the L. A. W. members and the organization will go smoothly onward unmoved by the threats of the remaining 1 per cent. and their athletic supporters. See if it don't!

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA. "X-BONES."

HAVING been spurred up by an inquiry from one of the Arlington Wheelmen as to when he was going to begin his character sketches, "X-Bones" forthwith furnishes the first sketch of the series, taking for his subject the inquisitive gentleman mentioned. He has comparatively recently joined the Arlingtons, but in that time has won considerable distinction as a rider, though his voice has never been heard, nor his visage seen at a business meeting or an evening gathering. In fact he is generally reputed to be afraid to be out after dark with the boys, although his magnificent muscular development—of the exterior muscles of the arms and shoulders in particular—and the skill and experience imputed to him in the manly art of self-defence would indicate that it is an offence to his delicate and refined tastes rather than personal violence that he has to fear. The gentleman is at present to be pitied for having won the road race by the Arlingtons on Thanksgiving Day. Previous to his doing this he had a friend or two in the club. Now only the outcasts of the club will speak to him. As long as the boys thought he couldn't ride they didn't mind encouraging him; but it has become a matter of club policy to snub any man who has been riding less than a year, and he has only been an Arlington three months and yet is so afraid of the boys that he wouldn't let them catch sight of him in a 60-mile race from start to finish. They think, too, he was "coming it pretty low down" on the fellows, when he got half an hour start, so they should not even have a chance to look at him a little bit in the first part of the race. Of course there weren't any favorites in the race, but then nobody likes "dark horses," and particularly not when they wear red moustaches Then the way girls take take to this man is simply abominable. What is a club of fellows of merely reasonably good looks to do with a handsome man with a silky, curly, auburn moustache, and tender blue eyes, and the manners of a Chesterfield, when that suave fellow knows all the points of scientific boxing and has more sheer strength than any unmarried man in the club, and on the top of all breaks bicycle records? There is just one thing about it, if the Arlingtons had known what a wolf in sheep's clothing they were taking into their fold it would have been easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for him to have gotten into the Arlingtons. If the Columbias or any other resident club have any wall-eyed, hard-featured, cross-grained specimen that can't ride a load of hay, when tied on, the unmarried men in the Arlingtons will be willing to trade off this man in exchange and will throw in all the balance in their treasury to boot.

NAME? Well, of course, I won't mention names, but I might add that whatever other elements enter the doe (not dough) of his composition there is sand to it, and a D. L. (i. e. great deal) of it.

BY the way, "X-Bones" will take this channel for announcing that any wheel news which anyone in the district may desire to contribute to this paper may be sent addressed to "X-Bones," care Wm. T. Robertson, 611 F street, N. W.

PORKOPOLIS NOTES. "STAR."

ON last Sunday (Dec. 14) I took one of my experience runs. Crossing the Ohio on the Ludlow Ferry and taking the Lower River road on the Kentucky side to Constance (opposite Anderson's Ferry), I turned to the left on the road which led up the hill just beyond Constance creek. The grade was something less than forty-five degrees, and I walked. From a point near the top of the hill the Ohio side with its fields of different sizes and shapes resembles nothing so much as a crazy patchwork quilt. A short distance beyond the top of the hill the pike ends in a dirt road. The frozen mud had begun to thaw, and walking was again in order. After floundering along for several miles I inquired of an aged granddame as to where the road led.

"Is it to Flawrence ye want to go?"

"No, I want to go to Burlington."

"Don't know anything about that place, but if ye'll jist kape on till ye come to th' cabin and thin turn to the lift yer naden't take yer fut off the road till ye come to Flawrence."

Following her advice I did not take my "fut" off the road till within a mile of Florence where I struck some macadam.

After a substantial and well cooked dinner of "hog and hominy" at the hotel kept by W. H. Corbin I returned by way of the Lexington Pike.

LONGWORTH STREET is to be paved with asphalt, and there will be nothing then to prevent the fastidious residents of that exclusive locality from taking to the wheel.

THE attempt to sell Spring Grove avenue to the city has again failed, and the hopes of seeing this important thoroughfare improved during this generation are apparently vain.

WILL wonders never cease? The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette which, until recently, has opposed the movement for better roads, has of late been clipping items on this subject from other papers and publishing them without a word of unfavorable comment. Verily the world moves.

ARTHUR STEDMAN, a rising young artist, carries a sketch book on every run. On its pages are pictures of mouldering cabins, secluded nooks and gaping rustics that may be seen on the pikes radiating from our city.

CHICAGO NOTES. "WAYNE SCOTT."

THE Illinois Cycling Club gave a ladies' night Monday evening, Dec. 22, an enjoyable evening was spent. New Year's night this club give the second of their winter receptions at Martine's West Side Hall. These receptions are recognized among the leading society events of the West Side.

IN the latter part of January the Illinois Division, L. A. W., will hold a meeting in this city. An entertainment of some kind will be arranged to which none but L. A. W. members presenting membership tickets will be admitted.

THURSDAY evening, Dec. 18, the Oak Park Cycling Club, together with the ladies' organization, gave a special programme and entertaiment. This was well attended and enjoyed by all. On Saturday evening, Dec. 20, this club gave its fortnightly stag party and smoker. Mr. Stimpson provided the "chuck," as he calls it. The General Grant Quartet and Solomon Levi entertained the members with several choice selections. Friday evening, Dec. 26, the club's third party occurs at Howard's Hall. A handicap billiard tournament will be in full swing next week for which four prizes are offered. Messrs. C. O. Ludlow, Drew H. Miller and H. B. Wood are arranging a whist tournament. The Oak Parks annual election occurs Jan. 6, and the fear of not being re-elected does not seem in the least to have affected them.

THE Æolus give the third party of their winter series Friday evening, Jan. 9. This will be a grand masquerade ball.

THE Chicagos gave a dance at Rosalie Hall Wednesday evening,

Dec. 17. These dances are free to club members and consequently are always well attended.

THIEVES broke into the front window of the Æolus club house during the last week and stole the team cup that the club team won at Rockford some years ago. As this was the only team prize possessed by the club they were very proud of it. Walter and Tom Bray and Martin Bowbeer were the team.

HARRY MORRIS, an old and well-known member of the Illinois Cycling Club, is at the Lyceum Theatre this week. A large number of his club mates attended one of the performances and were well pleased with his specialties.

THE Æolus indoor ball team will journey to Ottowa, Ill., Christmas, to play two games with the team of that place. The Ottawa boys are royal entertainers, and Æolus can count their Christmas Day well spent.

F. HOWARD TUTTLE has answered Chairman Davol. In his letter he denies that he received one cent more than actual expenses while in the East; says he did receive his expenses to and from two race meets and expenses while there and that he can prove it.

THE members of the Lake View indoor base ball team challenged the Ravenswoods and announced with great blare of "ink" that the second game would result differently from the first, as the Lake Views had improved much of late. And the result was different (from their expectations), for the Ravenswoods won by a score of 27 to 0.

AT LAST! Chicago wheelmen are on the eve of one of the greatest boons for which they might ask. Monday morning Mr. N. B. Manning, foreman of a prominent San Francisco firm, arrived in this city. He will lay at the intersection of Washington and Dearborn streets a strip of asphaltum pavement with a view of laying over 20 miles of this pavement in Chicago should this trial strip prove satisfactory to the city officials. This pavement has been laid in San Francisco with splendid results and there is hardly a chance for a failure here. From this city Mr. Manning will go to St. Louis, Denver and other Western cities with the same object in view, so that others are in for a similar streak of luck (and asphaltum too).

A JOINT meeting of the committees from the West Park and Lincoln Park commissioners was held in this city some days ago. The object of the meeting was to formulate a scheme to connect the West Side park system with Lincoln Park. The route which will probably be selected will be north on Western avenue to Diversey avenue, then east to the North End of Lincoln Park. Thus the West Side wheelmen will have boulevard connection with the great Sheridan drive, which will extend north to Waukegan, 45 miles. This and other contemplated improvements south of Douglas Park will soon connect all the Chicago parks in one system of good boulevards.

VICTORY perched upon the Chicago team's banner at the last minute in their game with the Carletons this week. The Carletons defeated the Chicagos some time ago and this being the second game the C. C. C. boys were bent on winning. No runs were made by either side up to the ninth innings. The first half of the ninth the Carletons failed to score and the Chicagos came to the bat. With two men out, Lumsden stepped to the plate and rapped the ball away up into the gallery and came trotting around the bases the winner of the closest game of indoor ball on record.

DR. WHITE of the Washingtons refused the nomination for presidency. Speaking of this gentleman reminds me that Mr. Patterson of his club now carries a full sleeve through the skill of the doctor. Patterson, while in the Northern woods, shot a bullet through his arm at the elbow, accidentally of course. The doctors up there advised him to have the arm amputated, but he came down to the city, and at the Presbyterian Hospital of this city the doctor also said this must be done. Dr. White had called to see his fellow club member and he took the case then and there. By laying back the flesh and removing the shattered bones he saved the arm and today Mr. Patterson is his staunchest friend.

THE Washington Cycling Club are at present threatened with dissolution through internal eruptions. C. E. Graham, W. L. Whitson and Cornell are under arrest and will be tried by the Board of Directors and brought before the club for expulsion. The offence is an infringement of the rules. Opinions differ, however, for at a meeting called last Monday evening to nominate a ticket for the election, Bert White, the present incumbent, and C. E. Graham, one of the above under arrest, were both nominated, and none for other positions as the meeting broke up and another is to be called.

MEMBERS of the Lincoln Club are requested to notify Wm. Herrick at once their intentions as to the New Year's Eve dinner. Plates will be laid for those and all others will be barred.

FROM the embers of the Ashland Cycling Club, the Garfield Cycling Club was brought forth. They were granted a charter Nov. 22, and with a charter membership of 20 are now located at 497 W. Van Buren street. They will qualify as a League club and all members will be required to wear the full club uniform on all club runs. Their club colors are dark green, old gold and silver.

THE Lincolns' gymnasium was wanted very badly before it was secured, but now members are wanted to exercise in it. Six members were there one day last week, and an attempt will be made to organize a gymnasium class under the charge of Jno. West, formerly of New York.

DETROIT.

"JUDGE."

WELTON FLINN has left Detroit for Chicago; he intends joining the Lincoln Club. Flinn was in the lead in the billiard tourney. As he shook hands with the boys Saturday night and said his good-byes it was very evident it was an effort to put on a cheerful manner. Well, success to you, Welt, my boy.

"OUR FREDDIE" ABEL recently purchased a new cushion-tired machine and ever since has been picking out the roughest riding in town. I saw him riding the cobbles between the street car tracks the other day. He says "the cushion is a dandy." Now a new cushion tire is certainly delightful, but the question is how long is its life? Now I had a sort of a cushion tire three years ago. At first it was very nice, but I don't think I had ridden 500 miles before it was as dead as any other solid tire. Something will certainly come out of all this and the end is not yet in sight.

IF you want to get Abel on a string ask him if he remembers the night the Jones boys showed him (and "Judge," alas, poor "Judge") "Old Goggles."

SCHIMMEL, "the Shark," and Marks, the "boy wonder," played a match game of pool for a $5 prize. Schimmel won.

AT the present writing handsome Fred Eckliff is in the lead in the pool tournament.

THE decorations which were so tastefully draped over the stage at the recent concert by Mr. Schimmel are now being put up in the club rooms, the effect is very fine and a great compliment to Mr. Schimmel's taste.

"GRIFF'S" talk on "Paris in 1870" was largely attended last Sunday. His account of the seige was thrilling and very interesting. He passed through the French lines and into Paris when a boy of 17 and still has the passport he then carried. Say, you Eastern fellows who recently met "Griff" can now figure his age. Quite an old duck, is he not?

THANKS, "Setagec." Thanks, old man.
Give us a lift whenever you can.
In '91 I will greet you here,
And drink your health with right good cheer.
Hurrah for Detroit in '91.

NEW JERSEY NOTES.

"PALISADES."

THE report of the last meeting of the Board of Officers has failed to reach me at this date, and so can give only a synopsis of what occurred. A new Constitution and By-laws were adopted, and they show good judgment on the part of Secretary Pennell and co-committeemen. There were 1500 copies ordered printed at once, and other State Division officers would do well to secure copies for reference. The articles of incorporation were signed by those present, and will probably be signed by the rest of Board and filed with Secretary of State this month. If "Palisades" can get permission to attend these meetings hereafter he will give a more detailed report.

WHEELING is fine, and the poor creatures who were deluded into storing their wheels for the winter made a grand mistake.

THE Hudson Co. Wheelmen have revived the project of a club house. A three-story and basement brick building has been selected and will, undoubtedly, soon be bought. They have a very unique and original plan to pay for same, which will be given later for the benefit of other clubs having homes in view.

THE Bergen Co. Wheelmen held their second annual reception at Leonia on the 19th. We hear they had a very enjoyable time.

THE Hudson Co. Wheelmen are expert bowlers, but they were taken in to the tune of 164 pins by the New York Bicycle Club last week. It was their first defeat.

THE Elizabeth Wheelmen and Englewood Wheelmen seem to be the only clubs endeavoring to have the annual State meet in their respective localities.

A VERTICAL POSITION

—— IS THE ——

MOST NATURAL AND GRACEFUL.

The vertical position is obtained to perfection on the Eagle, as the saddle is almost directly over the pedals, and the body is erect from the feet up.

Much more power is obtained from a downward thrust than from one partly forward, and the weight of the rider is used with much greater effect in aiding to propel the machine.

This is one reason for the success of the Eagle in the races this year, and to it is largely due the remarkably easy running qualities of the machine and the freedom from fatigue after long rides, which is noted by so many Eagle riders.

Every ounce of the rider's weight is utilized in each push on the pedals, and if he weighs 150 pounds, he can put 150 pounds pressure on the pedals at each step.

It has been repeatedly proved that an Eagle can be driven up a grade of 1 foot in 12 entirely by the weight of the rider, and without pulling an ounce on the handles.

The vertical position enables the rider to use the pedals to the best advantage, as he can stand on them clear of the saddle and virtually walk on the machine.

This gives a control of the wheel which can be obtained in no other way. It makes the rider seem a part of the machine, and gives a feeling of security and power which must be experienced to be appreciated. It renders unnecessary any anti-vibrating springs or appliances, as all the shock and vibration is taken up by the muscles of the legs. They are natural anti-vibrators and can hardly be improved upon.

There is a fascination about the Eagle which increases the pleasure of riding many fold, and it combines more good features than any other wheel.

All we have ever claimed for it has been more than proved by its records during the past two seasons, and no cycler's education is complete until he has learned to ride the "Bird."

"POP" MANNING of the B. C. W. heads the mileage list in that club with a record of 1800 miles since July 15, "and he dldn't hire any one to turn the wheel either."

MEMPHIS. "ANCHOR"

CYCLING matters in the Bluff City are at present at a standstill, but it is rumored that a new League club is to be organized at an early date, and at its head will be found several well-known and popular wheelmen for its officers. "We hope so."

THE Sawyer Bros. are working hard for the Tennessee record on their tandem safety. They are close up now.

JULIUS WOOD, the fast (ten) 10 mile wheelman, has thrown aside the high wheel and bought a light safety. He says he will break the record on this wheel for this State.

LAST Sunday the M. C. C. members took out for the 48 mile run to Collierville. The road was not in the best condition, but however, the boys all enjoyed the trip and will soon make a trip to Brownsville, Tenn.

JULIUS SEELIG, the long distance bicycle champion of this city, says on January 1st, '91, he will start in to break his own great record of 5300 miles. We wish him success.

THE farmer wheelman Furgerson is home from his trip down in the Mississippi valley.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

THE League closed the year 1889 with 12,135 members. It closes 1890 with 17 650. We are really getting on, and if we keep the pace America will soon be able to claim the largest cycling organization in the world, and we shall have a body that will be a power in shaping legislation in the interest of good roads.

THE Conference Committes of the L. A. W. and A. A. U. will meet in New York, Jan. 3.

THE Garden City Wheelmen of Newton is the latest Massachusetts cycle club. Since Secretary Bassett is the President of the club it may be inferred that ladies will be admitted, and that next summer will see the club represented at the meets.

IT is proposed to have a tri-State meet at Cottage City next year. Connecticut and Rhode Island will join with Massachusetts in the annual gathering.

CHIEF CONSUL BULL of New York promptly resigned when the Buffalo club left the League and he was followed by a dozen or more members. Perhaps the club may learn that there is some advantage attaching to League membership when they lose their strongest supporters.

THE wholesale suspension of amateurs does not benefit the sport of cycling. It depletes the ranks of the amateurs, and does not increase the number of racing pros.

THERE is pending before the Supreme Court of New York a suit brought by a cyclist to recover damages for injuries received by being run into by a team in Central Park. It seems that the accident happened in the evening, and that the team had no lights as the law demands. We hope the cycle was not also a transgressor.

THE Cambridgeport Cycle Club will pay a tribute to Terpischore in fancy dress at Union Hall, Central Square, on Friday evening, January 23, 1891. Buffum's Orchestra will furnish the music, and those who are fortunate enough to be invited will enjoy a very pleasant evening. This is the club's third annual.

THE wheel clubs of New York will keep up the old custom of racing to Tarrytown on New Year's Eve. The New York Bicycle Club for two years has been the first to knock at the door of mine host of the Franklin House.

THE Genesee Bicycle Club has elected Gordon S. Montgomery, President; Henry Lambert, Vice President, and E. S. Warrenson, Secretary.

E. L. FERGUSON of Chicago, F. B. Graves of Rochester. N. Y., and Sanford Lawton of Springfield have visited League headquarters this week.

THE Rights and Privileges Committee will decide which delegation shall represent Massachusette at the annual meeting.

THE introduction of pneumatic and cushion tires will call for a modification of brakes on safeties. For all purposes we give preference to a rear wheel band brake. The rear wheel is unquestionably the place for the brake, and we think no one will take issue with us that a band brake properly fitted is better than brake acting directly upon the tire. Such a brake is more powerful, clearly, and less tiresome.

"PNEU" is now the slang or abbreviated form for pneumatic.

WE regret our inability to accept the invitation of the Baltimore Cycle Club for Christmas Day.

J. A. HUNT of Westboro, Mass., has invented a bicycle toe clip adaptable to any wheel and considered by many a great improvement over any one now on the market. Mr. Hunt expects to be ready to begin manufacturing by Jan. 1.

LAST Thursday (18th) a game of ten-pins was rolled between the ordinary and safety riders of the Utica Cycling Club. The score was very close, the safeties winning by 20. After the game the contestants partook of an oyster supper at Owens' cafe at the expense of the losers. New Year's Day the two factions will again contend for supremacy, this time in a game of polo on the ice. The club has secured the Tennessee Jubilee Singers for a concert in Association Hall New Year's evening, and on the evening of Jan. 15 the Rev. Rev. Dewitt C. Talmadge will deliver a lecture under their auspices.

THE State Capital Wheelmen of Concord, N. H., held a banquet at their new rooms Friday evening, Dec. 19. State Consul F. A. McMasters, Vice-President A. E. De Wolfe and Treasurer W. V. Gilman of the Nashua club were present as guests. After the banquet the party indulged in a smoker till the small hours of the morning, when the party broke up well pleased with their first banquet.

GEO. A. PERKINS has been appointed Vice Consul for Massachusetts. A very nice selection by C. C. Robinson

THE N. Y. A. C. seems to have an insatiable appetite and is now trying to absorb the Citizens' Bicycle Club bodily.

CONCORD, N. H., wants the next State Division meet.

SOUND the timbrel. Down in Orange, N. J., a cushion tire has beaten a pneumatic.

MALTBY has been racing a roller-skater in San Francisco and was defeated.

WE regret that the withdrawal of the Buffalo Bicycle Club from the League is due to its innoculation of social lymph.

JACK PRINCE is still on the turf, and is set down for a six days' race, three hours a day, this week at Omaha.

MECHANICSVILLE, PA., has just organized a bicycle club with Frank Griffith as President, and Edward Bernado to wield the club stylo.

THE wheelmen of Circleville, Ohio, have formed a club. Circleville is a good place for a wheel club to hail from.

THE death of J. Lester Scherrer of Orange Valley, N. J., as the result of hard cycling is being reported very generally by the press. While riding in Montclair he burst a blood vessel in his head, paralysis following. Violent exercise in any other form would have produced the same results.

THERE are are a great many people who believe the method adopted to bring suspected amateurs to book is unjust. It is certainly not usual to make the accused prove himself innocent. The ordinary rule among ordinary people is to consider a man innocent until proven guilty.

THE Canton (O.) Bicycle Club formally opened their new club house on Dec. 2 with a reception and banquet. The rooms were thrown open from 2 to 5 P. M. to their friends to the number of 250. The billiard and reception rooms were tastefully decorated with potted plants and light refreshments were served. At 10 P. M. the club and their League friends adjourned to the Barnet House—the League hotel, mine host having tastefully arranged the large dining room for the occasion, the leading feature being a "safety" gaily decorated, which was placed on the sideboard (but with two exceptions the Canton Bicycle Club stick to their "ordinaries"), a choice dinner reflecting much credit on mine host was in due course of time disposed of, after which followed speeches by several members—John M. Danner carrying off the palm in his little speech, "Wheeling as a Means of Reducing Corpulency." Mr. Danner, however, weighs but 115 pounds. At 12.30 the company dispersed with everybody in good humor and no bones broken. This club was organized in 1883 and has always been solid financially. It is a League club (No. 40) and was incorporated in 1887. They moved into their present quarters in November, 1890. The new club house was erected after plans furnished by the club architect, Guy Tilden (who by the way is also president), and we all think that we have as fine quarters as any exclusively bicycle club in this section. The club house is opened to members at all times, and a fine lot of fellows they are. During the riding season we have our scheduled club runs to the surrounding towns, and although we have no members that can be considered fast, nor yet any long, hard riders, still as clubs go we think we can stay in the ring, though we do become slightly disfigured.

The Hudson County Wheelmen are to build a club house. It takes money, energy, members and harmony to successfully maintain a club house. The Hudson County Club seems to have all those requirements, and we wish it success.

The Boston Journal calls the Charlestown Rovers the Revere Cycle Club. The Journal's cycle man had better get a move on.

The Century Wheelmen says its latch string is out all New Years' Days.

London contains no less than two hundred and twenty-three cycle clubs.

The wheel trade is going wild over pneumatics. Tires, handles and saddles are a few of the pneumatic productions.

The Pickwick Bicycle Club of London recently celebrated its majority by a dinner at which nearly one hundred members sat at the board. Twenty-one years for a cycle club is very aged.

The Fall River (Mass.) Cycle Club will hold a ball January 20th, '91.——A. H. Griffiths ('Griff") has been made an honorary member of this club.——The Fall Rivers have voted to admit lady members, and have already received one application.——They have been presented with a handsome French clock by the Overman Wheel Co.

Attention to minutiæ is one of the chief duties of the cyclist if he would use his wheels with comfort and safety. There are far too many even old hands at the game who are inclined to let bearings run loose, chains slack or bolts untaut, just for the sake of being able to boast that for such and such a time no spanner has been used on the machine or that it has traversed so many thousand miles without requiring adjustment. This sort of boast is in nearly every case a very empty one, for a slight examination of the cycle in question will reveal many things that have either escaped or been unheeded by the owner. It is a false economy that forbids the liberal use of the spanner. As soon as any bearing shows signs of being worn, the shake should be instantly taken up, and a little attention to this will insure the machine not only a longer life but easier running powers. The bearing that is left to run loose will almost inevitably wear untrue, and when that is accomplished it is a very difficult matter to rectify. Sometimes a bearing will run 500 or 1000 miles without requiring any attention beyond an occasional drop of oil, while the next 100 miles will develop a noticeable shake. Should this happen, the bearing ought instantly to be adjusted and thus keep the balls and adjusting cones well up to their work. The slight attention needed to insure correctness in these little matters will always more than repay the time expended.

"LET'S DABBLE."

Now that it seems pretty well established that a judicious and discreet "dabbling in politics" on the line so forcibly and tersely laid down by Mr. Mott and other contributors to the World recently is expedient it would seem proper and interesting that a full discussion of the means by which this political venture will aid us be had.

So many road bills and measures looking to the betterment of our highways have failed of passage, even after submission to Legislatures, that one almost despairs that even "dabbling in politics" by the L. A. W. will effect better results. Why is this true is the natural query. Because the passage of such measures appeals immediately to the pockets of our already well taxed citizens, and this is a tender spot. Consequently legislators hesitate to enact measures which they know to be in direct opposition to the wishes of their constituents. If "dabbling in politics" will turn the tide of popular sentiment in this respect well and good, for we will have won a well-earned victory and one productive of much good not only to the wheelmen, but the future welfare of the country. But even eliminating the question of doubt of the ultimate success of our undertaking, and the most sanguine can but admit there is some, it may take years to educate the people to a proper realization of the importance and necessity for good highways. In the (mean)time all the cushion and pneumatic tires extant will not supply what we need.

It is the "mean"time that I have special reference to in my prelude to this article.

Would it not be well to support a measure the success of which would mean an immediate and happy solution of the whole problem, which would not appeal to the pockets of our citizens? I refer to the employment of convict labor on our road.

Years ago many of our highways were built and repaired in this way; for instance the old Frederick pike from Baltimore to Frederick was almost entirely built by convict labor, but the convicts were subjected to such hardship and degradation that public opinion put its ban of disapproval on this mode and chain-gang labor was discontinued. Now, however, there are signs of a decided revulsion of feeling on this subject and successful experiments have recently been made at road building with unshackled convicts at Cambridge, Md., in Harmar township, Pennsylvania, and elsewhere. In every instance the convicts so employed expressed themselves as better pleased than at continual confinement and were really benefited by the change. In addition the leading papers of this city have recently printed editorials favoring the employment of convict labor on roads.

If judicious "dabbling in politics" will aid us in having convict labor, and I see no reason why it may not, I say let's dabble.

Baltimore, Dec. 16, 1890. Chas. R. Sharretts.

THE PROPELLING FORCE IN BICYCLES.

It may be presumptuous in a youngster to try conclusions with one skilled in abstruse calculations, in the telling use of keen wit and who, furthermore, possess the friendship of that learned and powerful individual, the janitor of the leading college of this country, and yet it is considered the province and prerogative of youth to "rush boldly in where Angels dare not tread," and so I am going to venture, in all my ignorance, on the treacherous and slippery ground of mathematical discussion and then prepare for the scathing storm of satire and derision that is sure to break about my defenceless head. In view of his brilliant natural abilities, it is greatly to be regretted that Mr. Sterling Elliott's collegiate education was left to so late an hour as that of sundown, and was apparently confined wholly to the academical department of Yale, for if he had had time to visit the famous Sheffield Scientific School and struck up a friendship with the genial Stoddard there, he could hardly have left the shades of learning that hover about that college janitor's den without becoming cognizant with one of the primary principles on which the foundation of that noble seat of learning rests, namely, that action and reaction are equal and always in opposite directions. Taking Mr. Elliott's own examples, on account of their superior lucidity and clearness, we have been taught to believe, in accordance with the above rule, that the compressed spring between the breech of the gun barrel and the ramrod will act with as great force on the gun barrel as on the ramrod and, if both are free to move, will move in opposite directions in inverse proportion to the weight of each. If Mr. Elliott's supper had ever depended on the squirrels he could bring down, the backward "kick" of his gun might have opened his eyes to this important fact. In like manner the two arms of the hoop pole, when compressed will fly out equally in opposite directions in its efforts to straighten itself. Of course he may say that the end of the gun barrel and one end of the hoop pole is supposed to be immovably fixed at C (see his home made sketch), but he has not the mathematical right to make false suppositions in order to distort facts and thereby support his own, and apparently humorous, theories. As he is endeavoring to explain the force which propels a bicycle he must be consistent with his own statement that the "force has precisely the same effect that any other force acting within and upon the machine would have." Therefore, if the ramrod is placed at the axle at A, then the gun barrel end must be connected with the tire at C so that the force can act within and upon the machine, in which case as the ramrod urged the axle upward and forward, the gun barrel would urge the point C of the wheel downward and backward. But that the force does not act between the points A and C can be readily demonstrated by lifting the rear wheel of a bicycle clear from the ground and spinning the pedals and of course the rear wheel around, under which conditions the front wheel, resting on the ground, remains quiet and apparently ignorant of the immense force that is pushing its axle upwards and forwards. Its fallacious absurdity can be further shown by supposing the front wheel of a bicycle to be the driving wheel, in which case the force that vainly attempts to drive the front wheel forward will, according to Mr. Elliott's theory, drive the axle of the rear wheel backwards and upwards in the line drawn from the point of contact of the front wheel to the rear axle, B. So that the rider, notwithstanding his frantic efforts to advance, will find himself, like the lone fisherman in Evangeline, carried rapidly backwards until he disappears from mortal view.

It is greatly to be regretted that Mr. Elliott's theory is not the correct one, for as the angle of his wonderful "Keeley like" force with the ground remains ever constant, it would be as easy to ride up the steepest hill or even the side of a house as on a level surface, or again, by fastening a hickory board firmly to a bicycle so as to give a point of contact for the rear wheel at C, aerial navigation would be assured so that the rider by having his front axle forced upwards and onwards would go sailing through the blue empyrean accompanied perhaps by the strong man who lifts himself out of sight by his bootstraps. A MOST IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY.

The Buffalo Tidings remarked the other day in its Lockport notes that the Lockport Wheelmen are having more solid enjoyment to the square inch than any other club in town, and every member of the club is willing to admit that such is really the case.

Each one of the series of smokers given by this club this winter has developed some new and original feature of amusement, but the climax of the series so far was reached on Friday last when one of the most popular members of the club, Capt. Podunk, was united in marriage to Miss Fredericka B. King, the tallest member of the club.

The cosy club house was gaily decorated for the occasion, and at the appointed hour it was well filled with mourning relatives and sympathizing friends of the unhappy couple.

At precisely 8 30 the peals of the wedding march from Lohengrin burst forth, and the bridal party wended its way through the golden corridor, preceded by the orchestra (a solitary coon and fiddle especially imported for the occasion), following which came the Rev C. H. Cornes d—d—the only clergyman (?) belonging to the club. Then the bride appeared, six feet four in her stocking feet, leaning on the arm of her widowed mother, Mrs. Emilya Grosse. Solomon in all his glory was never arrayed like this most imposing bride.

She was attended by the following beautiful bridesmaids: Misses Allie Cooke, Lena Poole, Bertha Green and Anna Louise Davison, while the maid of honor was Miss Harriet Fenton. All of these dam-o-selles were attired in elegant costumes of more antique cheese cloth cut low in the neck and short sleeves, and they carried bouquets of cabbages, turnips and cauliflowers—the gift of the bride. At the spot where the marriage ceremony was to take place, with palpitating heart stood Capt. Podunk attended by his best man, Carl R. Seifert. At this point the ceremonies were interrupted by what the guests thought was an earthquake, but they were relieved by discovering that the shock was caused by the bride having fallen into the arms of the groom.

The following impressive service was then read by the officiating d—d·

Dearly beloved: We are gathered together here to-night in the face of this company to join together this man and this woman in the bonds of matrimony, which is commended of St. Paul of Minnesota to be honorable among all men, and therefore is not by any to be entered into inadvisedly or lightly, but discreetly, soberly and with both feet. Into this noose these two persons come to put their necks. If any man can show just cause why these may not be joined, or why the bride-elect became so intoxicated, let him now speak or forever hold his breath.

Capt., wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife; to live together after the ordinances of the common council and the rules and by-laws of this club? Wilt thou take her, abuse her, make her saw wood, build fires, shovel snow and hustle coal hods so long as ye both shall live?

Frederica Anna Louise Cora Gertrude Evantine wilt thou have this terrible rake to be your old man? Will you hustle him about, take his wages every Saturday night, wash his socks and lock him out nights so long as ye both shall live?

Who giveth this woman to this man? Captain repeat after me: I, Capt Podunck, take your homely carcass to be my wedded wife, and all that therein is, for taller, for shorter, for fatter, for leaner, to fight with, and jaw with, until Pioneer Hill is paved with asphalt.

I, Frederica, etc., take thee, Captain, to be my wedded husband, to have and to hold, for better or worse, Lockport or Medina, Canandaigua or Gosport, to cherish and obey until the boys learn to spit in cuspidors instead of on the floor.

The following was then pronounced:

With this ring (the sound of a chestnut bell), I thee wed, and with my worldly goods endow.

The officious d—d delivered the following peroration: "Man that is married to woman is of many days and full of trouble. In the morning he draws his salary, and in the evening behold it is all gone; it goeth but he knoweth not where. He spendeth his shekels in the purchase of fine linen to cover the bosom of his family, yet he is seen at the gates of the city with but one suspender. He goeth forth as an ox or an ass and draweth the chariot of his offspring. He rises clad in the chilly garments of the night, and seeketh the sonambulent paregoric wherewith to heal the collicky bowels of his offspring. Yea, he is altogether wretched and full of misery. Wide is the road and broad the way that leadeth to the gates of matrimony, and many there be that go in thereat.

I now pronounce you duly wed, and it will be the privilege of all present to kiss the bride." In the rush which followed the bride lost some of her auburn locks, and several of the gentlemen got hairs from her mustache in their teeth.

After the bridal quadrille had been danced, the festivities became general and were continued till a late hours.

It is understood that the bridal couple are not living together. The groom claims that his elephantine bride don't know how to make bread, and the bride claims that the groom does not allow her sufficient spending money to keep her supplied with gum.

It is hoped that their differences will be amicably settled, but further information must be deterred till the next."

"BARON MUNCHAUSEN, JR.," ON WHEELS.

It has been with a feeling of pain and oftimes anger that I have heard the veracity of my sire questioned concerning his great exploits throughout the earth, but I have solaced myself with the thought that they were the utterances of ignorant ones whose minds were steeped too deeply in the darkness of ignorance and held only too firmly by the envenomed serpent of jealousy to comprehend the lofty courage and high-minded spirit of one who was as much above them as the mid-day sun is above our heads.

I aim in these few narratives, by my own personal experience (the truth of which cannot be questioned), to show how our family have always been engaged in adventures and to which I have in no wise been an exception to a rule already long established and by so doing to do justice to a parent whose only fault was a too confiding nature.

One evening I was riding on my silent steed along a quiet road, but little travelled (although of great excellence), through a pastoral country, where droves of cattle covered the hills in every direction. The sun had set behind the distant hills and the gloom of night was casting long shadows into the twilight. For fear that I should be belated in this lonely country, I put forth a great effort and the wheels under me hummed like unto the strings of an Æolian harp. Suddenly a shadow loomed before me, disappearing on either side as I passed—I at the same time experiencing a considerable shock. My momentum being so great I was carried fully a mile before I could check my steed. On riding back I discovered that a large bull had been standing in the middle of the road with his front headed toward me. I had struck him head first, and my speed being so great I had divided him into two equal halves, which was shown by the hair and blood collected on my machine, both halves lying clean cut on either side of the road; in fact even the tail was split in half from end to end; there were in the tuft at the end of his tail 81 hairs (I having counted them), an odd number as you will notice, and when I got to the forty-first hair, lo! the hair was split in twain, each half of the tail having forty and a half hairs. I do not think he could have been more equally divided by weight and measure.

Again while coasting down one of the long grades of the Alleghenies mountains, the road sharply winding around steep hill sides, I unexpectedly came to a chasm hundreds of feet deep with perpendicular sides of huge gray rock, the bridge for some unaccountable reason, which had formerly spanned this wild canon, had fallen to the bottom of the rift and lay in the wild waters which tumbled over the rocks below.

When I first discovered that the bridge was gone I had like to give up the ghost with fear, as I saw I could not check my wild course, but the spirit of my father entering into me, I gained the pedals of my noble steed and tugging mightily at the handlebars and treading strongly with my legs I lifted my wheel by main strength from the ground and vaulted over the chasm, landing safely on the opposite side, although the width could not have been short of 100 feet. I would, however, caution any wheelman from attempting this feat as the great strain on my nervous system had like to bring me to death's door.

One early summer's morning, while riding a safety bicycle, close to the seashore, I felt strongly moved by seeing the powerful restlessness of the vast ocean to try my strength and speed, the uniform excellence of the roadway making the desire doubly great. While racing along ahead of a lightning express train my chain suddenly snapped and flew swiftly through the air out over the ocean.

This brought my trip to an end, and boarding a vessel in the evening I found myself in New York harbor the following morning, where a lately arrived ocean steamer was discharging her cargo. While engaged in watching this novel sight a sailor approached me and entering into a conversation with him, his curiosity having been excited by seeing my bicycle, I related to him my experience of the chain; he looked at me a moment as if in doubt, then at my wheel, and suddenly seeming to make up his mind to do something he rushed from my side, ran down into the interior of the vessel and returned, bringing with him a safety chain, and wonder upon wonders—my chain.

He said that while they were about 100 miles off Sandy Hook in the early morning of the day before, this chain suddenly struck the deck with such a force as to break a large hole into the oaken deck and descended into the hold with such force as tended to knock a hole through the bottom of the vessel; as nearly as he could remember the time the chain struck the vessel coincided with the time I had lost my chain with the exception, as he thought, that it was some minutes later in the day, which naturally could be explained by the time it must have taken for the chain to travel this great distance. The captain and crew were thunderstruck when they heard of this and complimented me greatly on my strength, so much so in fact that my excessive modesty was like to have received a shock.

I have related these experiences of mine to a friend of my bosom who recalls the fact that there is living somewhere down East a wheelman who has ridden so hard and with such great speed as to blow all the hair from the top of his head.

I should greatly like to meet this man for the purpose of trying his strength against mine upon the arena, and should this greet his eye I herewith enter a formal challenge, providing he is a good and loyal member of the League of Truth, of which I am proud to say I am a member in good standing, to do battle with me before the people assembled on the day called the 30th of February, 1891, at 12.61 A. M.

BARON MUNCHAUSEN, JR.

A PROTEST.

Editor Bicycling World: May I raise my voice in a gentle murmur against the prostitution of the columns of our valuable organ in the ridiculous "booming" by otherwise good-intentioned correspondents? For some months past this bad practice has been indulged in by one correspondent in particular. "Judge" has brought into too common use the respected name of Mr. Griffin. To those with whom he is acquainted Mr. Griffin is sufficiently known, while in the eyes of foreign wheelmen the nonsense uttered by "Judge" is anything but courtesy and the slush poured out creates a false impression in the minds of those who will be in Detroit in '91 and meet Mr. Griffin. I have met many foreign wheelmen in my travels and almost the first question asked is "Who is 'Griff' that 'Judge' is slobbering over?" or some such remark that is not pleasant to a wheelman who was one of the first to mount the old "bone whacker" in old days. Let "Judge" drop his familiarity, remembering the old adage and not place Michigan in so ridiculous a light. We want our State to do itself justice in the entertainment of all who can be induced to come to the next national meet. "Judge" is not the only offender, but as a Michigan man I am loyal to Michigan and watching her welfare desire to protect her from the criticisms of other wheelmen who read our organ for its news and not for its freaks of hair-brained nonsense.

Respectfully, LEAGUE No. 15,462.

THE A. A. U. RESOLVES.

AT the board meeting of the A. A. U. held in New York the following resolutions were carried:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this board that no athletes should be suspended or disqualified either indefinitely or for a stated period until charges have been presented to him and he has had an opportunity to make a reply thereto, or until he has at least a preliminary examination, and that the committee on legislation of the A. A. U. be requested to prepare any legislation necessary to make the resolution effective.

Resolved, That after May 1, 1891, no club in this union shall give and no athlete shall receive any prize for excelling in competition except medals or other like emblems appropriately inscribed, and no such medal or emblem shall be of greater value than $30, and that any club violating this rule shall be liable to suspension or expulsion, and any athlete so violating shall thereby cease to be an amateur.

Both resolutions commend themselves to us. We never did see the justice of inflicting punishment without a hearing. If we are to have amateur racing, emblems of no great intrinsic value are the only suitable prizes.

Resignation of Dr. Emery.

To the Members of the Massachusetts Division:

During the time I have been Chief Consul of this Division I have worked hard and faithfully for it, neglecting my own business.

The Division has increased from 1244 to 2281 members, the funds have increased from $17.62 to over $1800. This is a record of which I am proud, though to accomplish this has cost me much time and money, which I have cheerfully given without compensation, but to continue to carry on this work is more of a burden than I am willing to bear. I have therefore decided to relieve myself of all office, and thereby be enabled to devote my time wholly to my personal interests.

I resign the office of Chief Consul, thanking you for the honor which you have conferred upon me.

The Vice Consul under the law assumes the duties of this of this office. Fraternally,

Boston, Dec. 16. WM. H. EMERY.

Resignation of Vice President Emery.

To the President of the League of American Wheelmen:

I hereby resign the office of First Vice President in order to devote my time wholly to my personal business.

Fraternally, WM. H. EMERY.

Boston, December 16, 1890.

Attention, Illinois Division Members.

A meeting of this Division will be called in Chicago the latter part of January or early in February to adopt a new Constitution and transact such other business as may come up. If any objections, file same with the Secretary-Treasurer, T. F. Sheridan, Springfield, or the undersigned. Fraternally yours,

500—Missouri Division—500.

To Members:

It goes without saying that it is the American wheelmen who celebrate the Christmas festivities. This paper should reach you in time to wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year and many returns. This is just the time for you to speak to your cycling friends about joining our organization. It is true we did not reach the 500 mark this year, but whose fault was it? Ask yourself this question, and if you find you have not secured us your quotas of new members start in at once to make amends. Don't delay this matter, "All things come round—even bankruptcy—to him who will but wait." If you want to succeed go to work at once. Make the unattached riders feel your presence by your hustling. Interest them by showing various copies of the BICYCLING WORLD AND L. A. W. BULLETIN and then see how easily you will obtain their membership fees. We will not promise the performance of miracles for the sake of securing new members. But we do claim to give honest service and secure for our members more advantages for less money than can be obtained in any organization in the world. I make this statement boldly, and you can repeat it without fear of successful contradiction.

The name of the York Bicycle Club of York, Penn., No. 224, has been changed to York Cycle Club.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

WARWICK CYCLE MFG. CO., - Springfield, Mass.

CATALOGUE. JANUARY. 1891.

BRIEF SPECIFICATIONS OF THE GIANT SAFETY BICYCLES, '91 PATTERN:

THE Giant has 30-inch wheels, tangent spokes, ball bearings all over, straight and hollow handle bar, rear brake, weldless steel tube backbone, Bolte spring fork, Yost saddle, an ample chain guard and is listed at $85.00.

The Giantess has a 28-inch rear wheel, 26-inch front (we make the front wheel smaller to secure the additional space needed by a lady), tangent spokes, straight and hollow handle bar, rear brake, weldless steel tube backbone, Bolte spring fork to both front and rear wheels, ample chain and skirt guards, and Yost saddle. By applying the Bolte spring to both forks, we offer our lady friends a spring framed machine devoid of all vibration at the seat. The Giantess is listed at $75.00.

The Ball Bearing Little Giant is similar in construction to the Giant, with ball bearings all over. All wearing parts are steel, the backbone tube is weldless steel, handle bar solid and straight, cranks drop-forged, wheels 24 inch with tangent spokes nickeled to intersection, and is listed at $45.00.

The Little Giant is precisely the same as the Ball Bearing Little Giant, excepting it has adjustable cone instead of ball bearings. It lists at $35.

Advance Circular now being mailed free on application.

WINDLE TO THE HERALD.

The following letter was sent by Windle to the Herald, but was not published:

WEST MILLBURY, Mass., Dec. 13th, '90.

To the Editor of the Herald: Dear Sir—In your evident desire to produce something new and startling on the much vexed subject of the recent suspension of racing wheelmen by the Racing Board of the L. A. W., you have been led into publishing in your issue of 11th inst., that which is weak and foolish in its statements and not worthy of the serious consideration of any sensible wheelman. But as you have openly named me as being a rider who is under the control of a certain firm of bicycle makers and so dominated by it that I am not free to follow my own desires and interest, but must in fear and trembling accept its dictum as to what wheel I must ride, I feel called upon to state that that portion of your article is utterly untrue in every respect.

I am under no obligation to any firm to use its bicycle and no firm ever threatens me with suspension in case I would not ride their wheel, and furthermore I would say that did any firm attempt to thus infringe upon the freedom and privilege which by nature belongs to me, of exercising my own choice in the matter, I would be the first to denounce such despotic conduct in the columns of the press.

I have always maintained the right to use in races and on the road the bicycle which I considered the best, and the fact that I have won every race of note and hold the championship of the world for a single mile on a solid tire wheel seems to me sufficientreason for me to cling to that wheel that has carried me swiftly and safely through.

In regard to the other portion of your article I would only ask in justice to the L. A. W., if you can believe that that cycling organization, which includes all the many makers of wheels, is controlled by one firm or that that firm which profits most by the victories of the men recently suspended is foolish enough to cut them off from future contests? In regards to my suspension: I have broken a rule of the L. A. W., though unintentionally and unknowingly. I do not deny that I have not and for such I am willing to suffer.

I am, sir, respectfully, W. W. WINDLE.

WARWICK COMBINATION SAFETY.

SAFETY cycles for lady or gentleman riders, suited to the uses of a family, have filled a vacancy that long existed in the cycle trade, and have met with popular favor. The Warwick Cycle Mfg. Co. have for three years past, placed with gratifying success on the market, their now well known Warwick Perfection Combination Safety, a wheel which in its various seasons, has become one of the standard Cycles of America, and secured official endorsement by the United States Government.

A cycle that can be used equally well by each member of a family, that is light as the majority of specially constructed ladies' wheels, yet strong enough (and so guaranteed) to carry as great a load, and successfully stand strains equal to any make specially made for men, has undoubted merit, and of necessity is very popular with that section of the riding public who do not wish to purchase more than one wheel.

Since its original appearance in 1888 this wheel has held first place as a high grade interchangeable family cycle. For the fourth season the Warwick Perfection, as a combination wheel of the highest class, is placed on the market, built practically upon the lines that have made it so popular, but with improvements that time and added experience suggests.

The machine has 30-inch wheels, geared to 54-inch, hollow rims, specially constructed cushion tires, tangent spokes, dust proof ball bearings, long centred ball steering, improved saddle and gracefully curved handle bars of ample width. The frame is the well-known "Warwick Perfection," being double tubes of cold drawn weldless steel tubes running parallel from the head to the rear axle in one piece.

Every part of this machine where metal is used is from wrought steel of selected stock, and the makers claim that in its "make up" no castings are used.

The finish is black enamel and nickel plate, the general appearance that of an elegant cycle. It is fully guaranteed and its weight is 50 pounds all on.

CONCERT OF THE DETROIT WHEELMEN.

THE Wheelmen's concert was a grand success. To Prof. Abel is due the chief credit. It was he who originated it and carried it forward, and his friends furnished the music in connection with him. Mr. Robert Deacon worked hard to make it a success financially and succeeded. The club clears in the neighborhood of $100.

Between the fourth and fifth numbers "Griff" stepped before the audience; it was not an audience of wheelmen only, but a representation of Detroit's best people. He spoke briefly of the wheel, its benefits and pleasures; he denied that the sport was a selfish one, and spoke of the hundreds of lady riders all over this broad land. He spoke feelingly of the friends it had made for him and of the many beautiful scenes it had taken him through. His speech, which was a very short one, was well received by the audience.

To Prof. Abel and the ladies and gentlemen taking part in the entertainment the Detroit Wheelmen extend their thanks, wishing them one and all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

THE GALES SAFETY.

THE GALES SAFETY is designed with a view of meeting the demand for an ALL BALL BEARING Safety at a moderate price. The frame is of weldless steel tubing and steel forging throughout. The rear wheel is 30 inches, with 7-8 inch tire, geared to 54 inches. 30 inch steering wheel, with 3-4 inch tire. Best quality moulded rubber tires, firmly cemented into the rims. The spokes are direct, of No. 12 special drawn steel wire. Straight front fork; corrugated rubber coasters. The handle bar is one piece steel tube 30 inches long, bent back, and is detachable and adjustable.

Both wheels, crank-axle and pedals are fitted with ball bearings. The pedal rubbers are soft and tough, and so made as to prevent the rider's foot from slipping. The saddle rests upon an L seat rod, and is adjustable to height, also forward and back. The saddle is the famous Fish patent Hammock, is adjustable in all directions. The brake is of the Plunger style and very powerful. Neat Lamp Bracket, Mud Guards over both wheels. Finely enameled, with bright parts nickeled on copper. Each machine is supplied with tool bag wrench and oiler.

CYCLING

FOR

Health and Pleasure.

CHAPTER I.

WITHIN the last few years one of the most striking features of American life has been the development of interest in athletic sports, not merely in imitation of English customs, but because it has slowly become recognized that athletic sports have great value, and that exercise is essential to health. This admitted, the question at once arose as to what is the easiest, the most agreeable, the most accessible and most beneficial form in which to take exercise. It soon became evident that Cycling is that form. Thousands took to the sport because of this, and the majority of them proved its efficacy in their own persons. Furthermore, they found that they had engaged in the most exhilarating pastime they had ever known.

The first full discussion of these points is found in Chapter I of Mr. Porter's "CYCLING FOR HEALTH AND PLEASURE." He argues with great force that Cycling excels all other sports both in the pleasure it gives and the health it produces; he explains why it is so, and quotes liberally from medical authorities to prove his position. Special attention is given to the advantages of cycling for women. One cannot afford to miss this discussion if he is interested in telling any one why cycling is the grandest of sports.

The volume, in which this is the first of nine chapters, is published by the WHEELMAN COMPANY, 12 Pearl street, Boston, Mass., and sent by them, postage paid, on receipt of fifty cents. They receive no postage stamps.

"BRONCHO,"

NOISELESS, CHAINLESS, LIGHT ROADSTER, SAFETY BICYCLE

127 ST. BOTOLPH ST., BOSTON, Dec. 9, 1890.

M. V. LIVINGSTON CYCLE MFG. CO., Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen—Now that the riding season of 1890 is over, I wish to write you and testify to the merits of "BRONCHO." In my opinion, there is no safety made that is its equal, and my reasons for that statement are:

"BRONCHO" is very handsome, strong and light, it is easily adjusted, its parts are mechanically exact, and do not get out of order. The rubber tire is most durable, the nickel parts very handsome, and the Enamel is the BEST I have ever seen on any cycle, and after the whole season's use, it is as bright and fresh as ever, and does not show the hard usage it has had.

The brake is the simplest, best and most efficient yet devised, and DOES NOT CLOG WITH MUD, as did the brake on my ——.

The "POSITION" we hear so much about is NOT unnatural; it is perfectly easy, and in view of the great advantage of increased power by virtue of that position, it is to be chosen before any other. I must say I don't find the vibration claimed for "BRONCHO" by riders of spring fork and spring frame machines, and owing to the weight on the front wheel being so greatly reduced, the vibration from the handle bars is hardly perceptible, and by rising on the pedals, the shocks from the rear wheel may be rendered unnoticeable.

I find the machine under perfect control at all times, and the story of its "tipping backward" is untrue, as it DOES NOT, when one has learned to ride.

The gearing in the rear hub is the principle feature, and it is simply PERFECT. It is at ALL TIMES, BETTER than the best CHAIN at its BEST.

What I say may sound pretty strong, but I trust "BRONCHO" is strong enough to bear out the weight of my statements.

Wishing you success, I am, Very truly yours,

(Signed) ALBERT G. FROTHINGHAM.

XL.

HAVING arrived at both XLence and the end o. the calendar year, Quidproquo may be permitted a word about both. For these forty times in 1890, he has written his little Monday or Tuesday message, which has got to you about Saturday, not with the mere exhuberance of a one-man dash, but with some sense of the responsibilities of his opportunity and the conservative reserve of one of a board or group working in harmony and who cannot afford, any or all of them, to tamper with the truth. He may have a more connected series of messages for 1891; but, however it be, he will stop whenever either he tires of what he has to say or his readers tire of the way he says it. He counts his readers all as his friends, some for a consideration and some without,—it's all included in the fair quid-pro-quo.

And all are friends of the Columbia Cycles, in a small way at least, for even their interested opponents respect them, and before a man is really your enemy he has ceased to respect you. Quidproquo is not, however, entirely oblivious of that difference between friends and friends so strongly illumined by La Fontaine:

Le bon Socrate avait raison
De trouver pour ceux-la trop grande sa maison.
Chacun se dit ami; mais fou qui s'y repose:
Rien n'est plus commun que le nom,
Rien n'est plus rare que la chose.

But Quidproquo is too little of a pessimist not to see that it's better to have make-believe friendship, too, so long as it is added to all the genuine friendship we can have. There's value in the courtesy that prompts one to call himself your friend,—but of course hypocrisy—another thing. To all my Readers, whichever kind of friends, I wish a "happy new year" in every way.

Of course one of the ways in which they will be happy will be in riding one of those famous "safety" cycles that promise to be as preeminent in the nineties as the genuine good old [—"ordinaries" demeans too much—] bicycles of the same make did in the eighties. Their fame has been increasing already for several years, like the cuts in this column; and the safety that equals the 1890 Columbia Light Roadster Safety has yet to be put upon the market, if it exist at all. 1891 will tell its own story, of course.

How the decades roll off. In 1870 bicycling in America was expiring, suffocated, swamped with an overproduction of thousands of cheap and poor machines, that when put to use on the road, were falsifying all the promises of the few good ones. It took nearly all the last half of the following decade to resurrect bicycling in America, and the Pope Mfg. Co. principally did it. When you come to consider all the circumstances of setting that humpty dumpty back on the wall, you'll find that the Pope Mfg. Co. principally did it. Then in 1880 the manufacture was established and business founded; but the Pope Mfg. Co. is the sole survivor,—"left to tell the tale." In their catalogue of that year, (which Quidproquo helped to write,) they said: "The organic necessities of the machine to be observed by any one attempting to improve it are, (1) lightness consistent with strength and durability; (2) least friction of bearing parts; (3) least exposure of surface to the wind; (4) compactness of design; (5) rigidity of structure in all fixed parts and directions; (7) elegance of proportion, lines and finish; (9) comfort in the adjustments of step, saddle, handles, pedals, brake, and other using parts; and (10) directness and simplicity of form and action in every detail." That's a pretty good chart to go by, even now, after ten years, isn't it? And its a good indication of the careful, conscientious, methodical way in which the Columbia machines have always been made.

SOME five or six years ago, Quidproquo bought for the convenient sum of two dollars, a convenient block calendar with a bronzed iron stand, for his desk. When the Pope Mfg. Co. a year later presented him with a sample of its first issue of the Columbia Calendar, for 1886, he first took the pad off and put it on his iron stand, saving the price of a new pad and getting a better one. The next time he put aside his old stand took the Columbia blessing full size and was thankful for it,—as he has been every year since. It's a mighty handy thing for the desk, with its compact patented stand (you want to be a little careful in putting it together the first time, just as you are in putting on a new pair of gloves), which holds your pencil and pen-holder (a well regulated writer will not have but one pen-holder on his desk), and its plenty of plain figures to enable one to keep run of the days of the year and month, and its ample blank space for engagements and other memoranda, and its convenient lifting up to make these memoranda, and its stripping off neatly without leaving any waste stub, and—also—its terse sentences, statements of experience or other dates, now and then a good sentiment, etc., all well chosen, and mostly about bicycling, which are pleasant to see and often useful refreshers of memory. No less so because they refer occasionally to the cycles whose older name the calendar bears.

SOON EXHAUSTED.

THE matter contained on the leaves of these calendars is carefully prepared, selected with discrimination by the "calendar-editor," and is entirely fresh and new every year. It is largely extracts from the best things in the public print. It was first got up for the editors of the public press, and is this year being sent to some thirteen thousand of them. But they were soon so much in demand by tout le monde that many thousands more had to be printed. Nearly every year they are exhausted soon after the first of January,—the small price of 24 cents each conducing to that effect as well as their several conveniences. It is one of the things, this calendar with its goodly carriage of good things about bicycling and good impressions in its favor, which the Pope Mfg. Co. has always been doing for the general interests of bicycling.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

WELL, again the compliments of the season to all my indulgent Readers. During the coming months I shall try now and then to give you some paragraphs more full of substantial food for reflection than this is. Just at present we are all thinking of gifts and jollity for the little ones, and good resolutions for ourselves. Here's a sentiment which Quidproquo once offered in rhyme to the editor of the Columbia Calendar, and may-be as true now as it was then:

The cycler now "swears off" a while
From fragrant weed and liquid smile,
And lets the dancers whirl.
What makes him such a prudent man?
He means to buy soon as he can
A cycle for his girl.

Volume XXII. Number 10. BOSTON, 2 JANUARY, 1891 $1.00 a Year. 5 cents a copy

was a good many years ago that we commenced to make bicycles, and each year
we have done our utmost toward the perfection of such a system as would place us up and away ahead of any other concern in the field. Pardonable ambition, is it not? Everyone should do his best and strive to excel. This year sees another splendid addition to our big factory, and now, in our modest, wood-violet little way, we make our claim to the finest and best equipped bicycle factory in this poor, imperfect world. So much for the producing end. Our facilities for placing the goods in the hands of riders will include establishments of our own in the cities of Boston, Washington, Denver and San Francisco. These, with our special agencies with Messrs. A. G. Spalding & Brothers in New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, and our hundreds of regular agents scattered over the country, make it seem reasonably sure that the Victors will have a fair show in the market—and with half a show, they will find their way to the front. Watch for the Victors for '91.

OVERMAN WHEEL CO.,

BOSTON. WASHINGTON. DENVER. SAN FRANCISCO.

Office and Factory, CHICOPEE FALLS, MASS.

PROVIDENCE, R, I., Dec. 8, 1890

MESSRS. SINGER & Co., Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen—We are the largest dealers in all styles and makes of bicycles in this city. When a customer asks us to give our opinion as to the best safety to buy, we tell him to buy a Singer. They are fine running. and are built of fine stock. The wheel on the road always attracts attention from its elegant lines and its rakish build. We would especially call attention to the matter of "parts." In all our wide range of wheels, we have none for which any part can be supplied so quickly as for the Singer. In a competition here between two dealers, as to which could supply parts the more quickly of any of the machines that they respectively handled, the Singer led in good shape—in fact the other dealer was distanced.

Yours respectfully, CAMPBELL & Co.

BUY A CYCLE! BUY IT NOW!

BUY IT AT PEORIA AND SAVE MONEY!

Why? Because you cannot afford to do otherwise. We have purchased several large job lots of both safeties and ordinaries, and to make things interesting during the winter, have withdrawn all agent's discounts on job lot and second-hand machines, and are selling direct to the purchaser AT MUCH LESS THAN FORMER WHOLESALE PRICES. Speedwell Safeties, brand new, formerly $115 (and worth every dollar of it) now $85. Mercury Diamond Safeties—first-class, English made, all ball, all steel machines, formerly $100, now $75. American Champions reduced 25 per cent. and Light Champions 20 per cent. Springfield Roadsters reduced 40 per cent., and so on through a long list. Second-hand machines of all makes, safeties and ordinaries, at greatly reduced prices. Our list includes many rare bargains and it will pay intending purchasers to investigate, as we will save them big interest. 600 wheels now in stock and no 1891 wheels yet received. Easy payments, if desired, with no extra charge. Send for Cata., 2d hand and Bargain List and save money. Send on your repairs now, while we have time to do work without delay.

ROUSE, HAZARD & CO., 9 G St., Peoria, Ill.

N. B. Which means No Bother to mail our 1891 Cata., which will be out about Feb. 1. Your name on a postal card with "1891" will bring you one as soon as issued.

A DEATH-BED REPENTANCE.

The way was rough, the night was cold,
His Cycle seemed infirm and old;
While twisted frame and shaky wheel
Proclaimed it not of high grade steel.
The rider gaunt, begrimed with dust,
Cried hoarsely out, "Pikes Peak or Bust!"
But this was only bluff you know,
As subsequent events will show.
For as he pedalled o'er the trail
I heard a melancholy wail
Borne backward on the wint'ry gale;
And following up his cycle's track
I found him lying on his back.
His eyes were dim, he spoke once more.
"Would I had seen this 'ere before,
How different would have been my fate,"
But echo cried, "Too late, too late."

I placed him gently on my shoulder,
And from his hand released a folder,
Then read this legend from the bill,
The "UNION CO., of HIGHLANDVILLE,"
And knew how great must be his grief
To find a cure when past relief.

Down where the weeping willows wave,
The peasants made his lonely grave.
And on a cross of *—— wood,
They carved, "He rode a 'Just as good.'"
While underneath appeared his name
And who he was and whence he came.
Then one on wicked mischief bent,
Wrote how he died and where he went.
The moral 's plain, apart from jest,
In North, or South, in East, or West,
The Spring Frame UNIONS are the Best.

* We respectfully decline to advertise Mr. Elliott's materials any more, until he settles up with us for the last time we boomed him.

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 2 JANUARY, 1891.

THE conference which is to take place in New York to-morrow between the A. A. U. and the L. A. W. does not promise much. The League, in the persons of President Dunn, ex-President Luscomb, Chairman Davol, Secretary Bassett and Vice President Bidwell, will be well represented. No better body of men could be sent to cope with the questions likely to arise. We understand that the appointment of this special conference committee has caused some jealousy in the Racing Board and that one member has already resigned. If the object of this conference is to liberalize the policy of the League, its powers will be extremely limited. The amateur rule and the interpretation thereof is clearly defined in the Constitution, and no alteration can be made without a constitutional convention. The administration of the rule is in the hands of the Racing Board, and it seems disposed to enforce it rigidly.

NOTWITHSTANDING the fact that most of the large manufacturers have agreed not to exhibit at the Stanley Show, it will be held as usual. We admire the pluck and enterprise of the Stanley Club in carrying out its annual exhibition and not yielding to the attempted boycott. The extent of the trade in Great Britain is indicated by the announcement that no less than one hundred and forty firms will be on hand to display their productions at the Stanley Show of 1891. The show this year will be unusually interesting and instructive. The whole inventive force of the cycling world has of late been in the direction of the reduction of vibration. Spring frames and hollow tires have concentrated their force, and we doubt not that before the doors have closed upon the Stanley Show of this year the world will have been given something thoroughly efficient and reliable. Speaking of the Stanley Show, which has become a fixture in England, reminds us that the Associated Clubs of Philadelphia have in contemplation a similar exhibition to be held in February. We cannot but wish that Boston might maintain its prestige in this direction. Here was held the only cycle show of any importance, but we welcome heartily the proposal of our Philadelphia brothers, and will accord them our heartiest support. There are enough manufacturers and dealers in the United States to make a very creditible and interesting display.

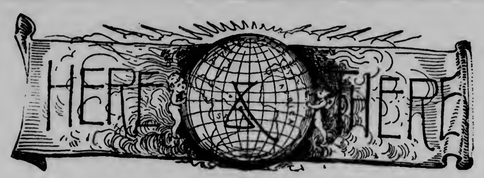
Such an exhibition, if carefully and economically managed, could be made a source of profit to the promoting clubs. We hope the American Stanley Show will become an accomplished fact.

MR. J. H. ROBBINS, the editor and proprietor of the Chicago Sporting Review, unbosoms himself to a reporter of the Buffalo Sunday News in a marvellous degree. He starts out by asserting that he "has not the slightest hesitation in saying that the recent suspension of the amateur bicycle riders is unjust and made without the slightest foundation."

We cannot deny him the right to his opinion, though we may differ, but when he comes down flat and says the suspensions were made "without the slightest foundation," he slops over with a prodigious slop.

He then reiterates the charge made by a New York Herald man to the effect that the L. A. W. is run by a certain manufacturer, a matter on which we commented at the time of the Herald's "discovery." He then cries wolf, and says that the A. A. U. and the L. A. W. will amalgamate. As he proceeds he grows wilder and more frantic in his invectives, and he winds up by accusing the Racing Board of not daring to suspend a certain Chicago man because, forsooth, the aforesaid manufacturer dictated to the Board that they should not suspend him.

Mr. Robbins is one of those creatures who "knows it all." Having been a member of the League for the long period of about six months he feels prepared to give the "inside history." He writes himself down an ass. His statements are devoid of substantial truth. There never was any likelihood of the League amalgamating with any athletic association and there never will be. Mr. Robbins should make good his boast and prove that the Chicago man he alludes to is guilty. In the matter of road improvement the most active workers for the cause have never taken any other stand than that advocated by this Chicago gabbler. Mr. Robbins "is intoxicated with the exuberance of his own verbosity."



WE print in another column an exhaustive opinion by Mr. F. Chamberlin on the effect in this country of the recent decision made on the Bown-Centaur case in England.

THE ELWELL BERMUDA TOUR.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

THE steamer which takes the party to Bermuda on January 29th is now rapidly filling up, and appearances now are that all berths will be taken by the 15th. It is therefore important that all intending to participate in this tour should notify the managers at earliest possible moment. Address F. A. Elwell, Portland, Me.

Bicycling News, England, is responsible for the following: "About as quaint a sight as we ever heard of in connection with cycling was that described to us the other day by one who had seen it. The rector of a certain country church lives a decent distance from it, and is not blessed with anything that can justly be called a vestry. He is an ardent cyclist, and he solves the difficulty by robing at home, and riding to church in full canonicals. The effect, as he hurries along the country road, working his very hardest, with his surplice floating gaily on the breeze, is said to be unique, imposing, and calculated to strike terror to the soul of the village wrong doer, especially if the dusk of an early winter afternoon is beginning to fall."

BOSTON NOTES.

"TONEY."

LAST year was certainly a glorious one for Massachusetts and her sister States of the East. Their riders during the year forced themselves to the front rank of cycling, defeating all the great cracks of the West, only to be eventually defeated by the rulings of that noble Racing Board. In previous years, or to be more precise, from the days of '86 to '89, Massachusetts had comparatively few first class riders, but last year a new field was developed with the result that Massachusetts men, although riding for a New York club, honored their native State by capturing many first and second prizes at the different tournaments of the season. Among the great surprises which the last cycling season was productive of was the introduction of the pneumatic tire, the last stroke to the dethronement of the stately ordinary and the common acceptance of the lowly safety; the many surprises in racing circles; the phenomenal lowering of records all along the line, and lastly the enforcement of the ban under which many of the country's best riders are now chafing. What will be the result of the coming season time alone will demonstrate, and fearing a repetition of last year's work and surprises the more careful writers are not willing to prophesy lest they should err.

As I have said before the members of the Medford Cycle Club, of which organization Mr. Perry is an active and influential member, are a set of energetic fellows, always ready to improve each fleeting moment. As they sat in their cosey quarters in the little town of Medford, and watched the snow flakes placing their white mantle on the frozen earth one evening last week, some one suggested the idea of enjoying a sleigh ride. The club immediately went into executive session of the whole, and by a rising vote announced its determination to enjoy at least one sleigh ride while the snow was with us. Consequently early Sunday afternoon an excellent turnout drove up to the club rooms, and in a few minutes the large sleigh was filled with the jolly men from Medford. The snap of a whip rang out like a pistol shot on the cold chilly air of the Sabbath, and the handsomely caparisoned horses started for the historic mile ground, where all persons "irrespective of sex, color, creed or previous servitude" congregate. Mr. Perry handled the ribbons in a manner that demonstrated to the experienced eye that he was no more a stranger to man's best friend, the horse, than he is to a bicycle.

NONE the less active, however, are the members of the Cambridgeport Cycle Club, who know how to appreciate a good thing when they see it and what pleasure it would afford their lady friends to be taken into confidence, and also to participate in any pleasure giving scheme. These gentlemen also decided to have a sleigh ride, but on a different scale than that of the Medford Club. The Cambridgeport men invited their possible future better halves to meet at the club rooms on Monday evening, and in compliance with general orders issued therefrom a number of young women and youth, whose faces were hidden from human sight beneath a thick covering of furs, assembled there. A drag was also on hand, and amid the merry peals of laughter, the chime of sleigh bells, and last, but no means least, the notes from the bugler, the merry party of 40 started off on their journey to Woodland Park Hotel. A full moon shone upon the party as over the frozen ground they rode, up hill and down dale, until the familiar old structure at Aburndale was finally reached. Here a steaming repast was awaiting their pleasure, and after satisfying the inner man and also woman, the party returned to their native city thoroughly at peace with themselves and the world at large.

THE dancing school under the auspices of the Rover Cycle Club, of Charlestown, was brought to a most auspicious close last Tuesday evening by the holding of a gigantic party, complimentary to the pupils of the school. As is usually the case with anything the Rovers take hold of, this party was a grand success, and the fine evening toilets of the ladies were displayed to advantage against the dark and gentlemanly evening dress of the men.

THE members of the Somerville Cycle Club evidently enjoy a little fun at their business meeting now and then, and at the last meeting of the organization they had all they wanted. The meeting was held last Monday evening, when W. J. Emerson was elected president, but the fun did not begin until the question of admitting several new members came up, and then came the exciting and interesting events of the meeting.

DAYTON, O.

"EAGLE."

YARNS are getting very "chestnutty" now that the winter season has set in and the members congregate at the club rooms of evenings. Some of the stories are very comic, while others are thrilling, even dangerous—that is, as they are told. Our secretary, E. H. Houck, related a very comic and laughable experience which he had while out riding with a few of his chums. I will try to repeat it, but, reader, if it sounds a little bit "cheesey" please stop. "It seems there was a party of five or six out enjoying the summer breeze on their wheels, spinning along the nice pike at a rapid gait, as all bicyclers know when they say they will go real slow before starting. Well, after riding along at a good gait they happened to catch up with a fast trotting mare, which was getting rather frisky as the silent steeds drew near. Naturally a couple of the boys pulled around to one side to get ahead and as they passed the horse became frightened and made a sudden standstill. Well, our friend Houck happened to be riding in the rear of the wagon within a few feet, and, as you know, he was riding the "good old ordinary," his wheel and the back part of the carriage suddenly met. Well, as he puts it, "I do not know how it was, but I must have turned at least two somersaults and landed on the driver's head, because I laid half in the wagon bed and half on the seat." Dear reader, judge for yourself.

ALL the members of the L. A. W. are quite anxious that the meet should be in Detroit. Our greatest wish is that the beautiful city gets it, as Dayton will make a good showing. Why shouldn't they have it? I am sure there is not a city in the States that is better located than Detroit; it being centrally located for many of the Western cities. Let us all hope for Detroit in 1891.

TALKING about roads or pikes being bad it would be an excellent idea if many of the officers could see our excellent pikes with their nice bed of gravel, which is a curse to bicycling.

DAYTON streets are worse than some of the old run down pikes. However, there will be a change in the near future as the city contemplates paving and hope that we will seen enjoy good riding.

CLUB skating is getting to be the go here, but it does not seem to last long. Many of the boys, however, enjoyed themselves the other night on our beautiful river.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"ARIEL."

NEW YEAR'S was a day of festivities among the clubs. The Centurions, as had been their custom for years past, kept open house, while the Park Avenue Wheelmen did likewise and spread themselves on this occasion. A number of the other clubs had informal reunions, while the Oxford Wheelmen issued invitations for a smoker and musicale.

ALTHOUGH the race meet of the Park Avenue and Quaker City Wheelmen was held Oct. 18th., the committee's final report has not yet been handed in; this is due to the fact that the entrance fee of a number of the competitors have not been settled for. As is usual in such cases it was decided that the entrance fee should accompany the entry, but this was waived at the request of several of the various athletic clubs, who stated that bills for the entrance fees of their men would be paid at presentation. One of these clubs is a New York organization, while another hails from Ridley Park, near this city, and entry was also received from a Reading man who promised payment of the fee upon his arrival in this city, but his amount in common with the others has failed to materialize, although repeated requests have been made. What to do in such cases is a question. The only effectual means would be the publication of the parties' names. Surely their can be no greater meanness than an entry for a prize without the common payment.

A NUMBER of local riders have a project on foot which may lead to the development of a European tour next season. Upwards of a dozen names are already booked and if carried through successfully the party will leave Philadelphia next May and two months will be spent in Great Britain, France, up the Rhine and to Venice.

AN inter-club pool tournament is being talked of between half a dozen of the leading clubs and as there is considerable talent lying around loose such a contest would prove highly exciting, particularly as valuable prizes will reward the winners.

ON Tuesday evening the Associated Cycling Clubs held a meeting at which it was decided to go ahead with the cycling exhibition proposed a few weeks since. Favorable replies have been received from about 25 of the leading manufacturers, who stated that they would exhibit if the affair were properly carried out. It is certain to make a hit in Philadelphia.

Hazleton goes to New Orleans to engage in the cycle business there in company with Crossley of the Camden Wheelmen.

THE attempt to get up an indoor race meet during the Christmas holidays did not carry through successfully. The owners of the hall, which it was proposed to rent, demanded a price that made the projectors inquire whether they expected to sell or simply rent and there was an end o't.

TAXIS has been under the weather for some time past, having had to give up school temporarily, but is now about again.

THE fair members of the Fairmount Lady Cyclers are giving some very enjoyable entertainments these winter nights, to a number of which, unfortunately, the sterner sex are not invited.

A NOVELTY last week was the Christmas tree entertainment given by the South Ends, at which suitable (?) prizes were presented to a number of the members. The affair was a jolly one, mirth, music and song contributing their share to the evening's pleasures.

PORKOPOLIS NOTES.

"STAR."

So it is all owing to the inadvertent use of that "offensive appellation 'Socialists'," is it? Well, that is the name they go by in this section of the country; in fact I do not remember of hearing them referred to by any other name. If, however, it will tend to smooth their ruffled feathers I will solemnly promise to never, never, never do so any more.

IN your issue of the 19th ult. you say that the Elwell party is rapidly filling up. Several anxious individuals would like to know whether it is with solids, liquids or gases?

IF the unfortunate 18 will only stay suspended there will be nothing to prevent the Crescents from gathering in all the prizes, medals, etc., that may be offered during the coming season. There are three of the members of that club who have been known to make a mile in less than 2 minutes and 30 seconds. Fact! It was done on wheels and on a track that had two rails. Steel ones at that.

I HAD hoped 'ere this to have been able to give full particulars as to the location of the new cinder track we are to have, but owing to a little hitch, which will no doubt be soon unhitched, the question of location has not been settled. Quite a number of our wheelmen are waiting quite impatiently the outcome of the scheme.

BUFFALO NOTES.

"SETAGEC."

VARIOUS ideas in relation to the withdrawal of the Buffalo Bicycle Club from the list of League clubs, has gone out from here, and none so far have been right. The Secretary of the Buffalos tells me that he has offered several of the news and wheel paper scribes a nice little sum to prove any of their statements. The truth of the matter is this: The club is as great a friend of the League as ever, only it, like an ever growing number, are of the opinion that the benefits of the League are for the individual wheelmen, and that while members of clubs as individual League members get certain advantages, as a club they receive no more by being a League club; again there are some of the Buffalo club who don't think it necessary that they should belong to the League, and yet in a League club they must be members. This question of allowing part of the members of a League club to belong to the League and others not to, was thoroughly discussed at Niagara, and was decided wrongly, so I think, and in my opinion there will be many clubs who will back up their belief on the subject by withdrawing. In the case of the Buffalos, nearly all will renew as individuals, at least 125 will, so I am told, so that most of the club will still be in the League. A score or more have from one reason or another given up riding and yet desire to stay in the club and enjoy the benefits of the club, and that is the only part of the club which will compose the social division which has been referred to as the "tail that is to wag the dog" as explained originally by a Western cycling correspondent and much quoted since. There is no division in the Buffalo Club and no danger of their splitting up, all but one of the fourteen who resigned at the annual meeting did so from other reasons than that of the League question, in fact the leader of the party in favor of withdrawal as a League club, is a strong believer in the L. A. W., and will always remain so, I think.

ALL'S quiet again. Wonder what will next disturb cycling and be a nine days' wonder?

THERE are many looking forward to the next annual League meet, and while Detroit has not been settled on definitely I think there will be no opposition to Detroit. I will not soon forget the day before Christmas which I spent in Detroit. The Detroit Wheelmen are the people and no mistake! I ran across Clarence Smith during the day who tells me he has the long felt want in the form of a new luggage carrier. In Detroit they dub him "Luggage Carrier Smith," and I noticed on his portrait which adorns the western wall of the club house, a vignette of his title; he says this last invention of his tells you when to take off your coat, and also when to replace it, all done automatically. I did not meet the WORLD'S hustling scribe "Judge," which I much regretted, though I derived some satisfaction by gazing on his picture which was shown me by some of his fellow club men.

DETROIT wheelmen have two mascots, the live one is Josephi's pet 'Gator, the other is Three Golden balls which graces one of the parlor entrances, whether this latter mascot keeps the club members from locking their wheels. I know not, but I looked in vain for "my uncle," though I saw a wheel in the next room, and several mysterious articles near by among which was a black box that my guide told me contained the club's stereopticon. I met the captain and his brother, two scorchers, and I noticed that they weren't slow with a cue either.

I WAS taken about the city by "Mac," the American Athlete's correspondent, and am under many obligations to Mr. Cole of the U. M. C. A., Will Hadger, and many other members of the Detroit Wheelmen whose names I have forgotten, for the many kindnesses that I received. Detroit forever, so say I.

CHICAGO.

"WAYNE SCOTT."

THE past week has been an ideal week for cycle riding. No snow on the ground and the roads frozen hard and worn down smooth. Last Sunday was bright and clear, as was also Christmas Day. In fact Chicago riders have lost not one good Sunday or holiday's riding this winter. The idea held by many that the wheel should be stored through the winter months is wrong as some of our best riding is enjoyed in the winter months.

ROY KEATOR of the Lincoln Cycling Club, the wonderful unicycle rider, is to have a running mate. "Sid" Black, a Cleveland boy, is coming to this city to live. He also rides nothing but a unicycle, his mount being a 44-inch, while Keator's is a 54-inch. Keator some time ago rode on one wheel 128 feet along the foot wide top of an 11 feet high stone wall. He has ridden from Waukegan to this city, 48 miles, on his unicycle, and with his new found friends in the Lincoln Club can be seen every good day scorching over our city roads.

THE Lake Views hold a meeting Tuesday evening, Dec. 30, to consider a proposition for a club house. This club has been one of the most active of our local clubs, but has not as yet come under cover. Now they have the refusal of a twelve-room house on Evanston avenue between Nellie avenue and Addison street, located in a nice large yard. A house was never built, they declare, that was better fitted for a club house, being built for a private family.

THE Æolus Club's indoor team tested the hospitality of the Ottawa people Christmas Day. The team was accompanied by about 30 members of the club, including the Waverly Quartet and Bachelors' Club. A special car was chartered, leaving Chicago Christmas morning at 8 o'clock. On arriving at Ottawa the party was escorted to the hotel by the Clover Club, a team from which club they were to contest with in two games of indoor ball. At the hotel a huge old-fashioned Christmas dinner was partaken of, and perhaps the boys ate too much, for the afternoon game was won by the Clovers—7 to 4—before a crowd of nearly 500 people. The supper was a counterpart of the dinner, but the game was not. The Æolus boys won by 10 to 7, the attendance being nearly 1000. In the evening game Keening of the Æolus knocked out a home run and amid the wildest enthusiasm crossed the plate. After the game about 75 (the players and invited guests) repaired to the banquet in the Clovers' club room. The speeches that were made and the toasts that were given were many and the Ottawa boys may be sure the Chicago boys appreciated their hospitality and will try to do as much for them at the rubber.

A TRIPLET was what we thought we saw, but on riding nearer it proved to be three people on one safety. The gentleman and lady were both on the seat—close quarters. His feet were on the pedals, her's were on the coasters, while on the front in a basket was presumably the child of the pair. Rather unique if nothing else.

CORONER HERTZ, our Cook county coroner, came within an ace of not getting into the Æolus Cycling Club to which he had applied for membership. The first time his name was black-balled. Then there was war. A vote to reconsider was carried immediately with the result that the secretary declared him elected. Some one had hinted that it was their political pull he wanted. Being personally acquainted with Coroner Hertz I can safely declare him not that kind.

THE Chicagos' gymnasium will be as complete as any of the cycling clubs of this city. A competent instructor will be secured and our Western flyers will try gymnasium work as a conductor to speed.

THE Lake Views' skating races on Christmas Day proved a delusion and a snare. No permit was obtained and the races have been postponed until New Year's Day. A large crowd of spectators were sadly disappointed.

THE Illinois Cycling Club gave a stag party at their club house Christmas evening. Two hundred and fifty were present and thoroughly enjoyed an athletic programme, promoted by the club's athletic class. The members by popular subscription raised $75 as a Christmas present to their janitor, William Giles. Giles was cook on Gen. Hancock's staff during the war and it is very probable that his good cooking in the club's cafe touched the club boys' stomachs so well that their pocketbooks naturally followed.

A PLUCKY rider is Mr. Humphreys, an employe of the Chicago Herald. He lives at Oak Park, 10 miles from the office. As his work is not finished until after midnight he has either to ride home or stay in the city. Rain or snow this hardy rider takes that lonely ride home in the early morning and says he enjoys it too.

THE Ladies' Oak Park Cycling Club has 35 members and its membership is gradually on the increase. In all entertainments of the Oak Park Cycling Club a committee of three from their club acts in conjunction with a like committee from the gentlemen's organization, and all the entertainments are a huge success.

MISSOURI.

"LINNEUS."

THE track at Brotherhood Park, which is to be constructed in the spring, is a certainty, and our local cyclists who have in the past been obliged to put up with the poor accommodations offered at the Compton avenue track are jubilant in consequence. The St. Louis Driving Club will build the track, and as the club is backed by ample capital and enterprise it will be a success from the start and fill a long-felt want. Secretary A. H. Spink has furnished Chief Consul Holm with the following particulars: "We propose building a half-mile track in Brotherhood Park and on the ground adjoining it, which we have just secured from the Allen estate. Our intention is to build a track on the same principles as the one at Peoria, and we will be glad to make some sort of arrangement by which bicycle men can use the track on stated days during the year." This track is conveniently located and easily accessible from all parts of the city. A good grand-stand and dressing-room are already on the grounds and the proposed club house will make it about as well equipped for the purposes intended as any race track in the country.

DURING the dull months of last winter a series of fixtures was established for the riding season and it worked like a charm. This should again be done at an early date so as to give ample time to thoroughly advertise them.

WILL LAING tells me that the Cycling Club's entertainment at the Pickwick Theatre was a big financial success and the club's exchequer was enriched considerably thereby. There is some talk of the club's seeking larger quarters, but if the move is made it will not take place before spring.

NOTHING in the cycling line has ever rivalled the boom of the Missouri Bicycle Club. Since last August, when the last of the disgruntled members resigned, the club has been riding on the top wave of prosperity. At each meeting 12 to 15 members were admitted, and even now in the dead of winter 18 applications are hanging on the bulletin board to be acted upon at the January meeting.

AS the meeting of the Legislature approaches the attention of cyclists is directed with lively interest to the business of road improvements. The changes suggested are to make road overseers elective instead of appointive and that needed roads should be built or improved by contractors, special taxes for the purpose to be levied on the townships or the county at large, with the selection of the most intelligent and experienced men in each district as road overseers. At a recent meeting of the Farmers' Institute held at Mexico, Dec. 19 and 20, four papers were read on the subject of road improvements, namely: "A Road Law," by Judge Van Court Yantis, Marshall; "Importance of Railroads to Good Wagon Roads;" "Construction of Roads," Prof. T. J. Lowry; and "Roads an Important Factor in Civilization," Prof. H. C. Penn, ex-chairman of the Division Highways Improvement Committee.

A RED HOT scorch was indulged in by some eight members of the Missouris to Fenton on Sunday last; the 21 miles were covered in 38 minutes. While enjoying the fine dinner the boys collected all the spoons on the table and deposited them in P. Kramer's pockets without his knowledge. The discomfiture of the cyclist can be imagined when the landlord, who had been posted, sternly demanded the return of his property and threatened prosecution. The laugh which followed shook the house, and "Kramer hand over those spoons" is still heard at the club.

A SECOND pool tournament will be inaugurated at the Missouri's club house on Saturday, Jan. 3. It will be a continuous 50 ball match with suitable handicaps. Fully fifteen men have entered to date, and it is expected twenty-five will take part when the entries close. On account of the large number of contestants entries who are not on hand promptly will forfeit their right to compete.

THE telegraph brought us the startling news last week that Chief Consul Emery of Massachusetts had resigned on account of the troubles among the Division Board. If this is a fact the act is to be deplored, as no person who ever held an office has worked with such untiring energy for his Division as did Dr. Emery.

NOW that the riding season has come to an end, foot-ball has the call. Both clubs have good teams, but the obstacle which prevents the arrangement of a match is that the Missouris play under Rugby rules while the Cycling Club will have nothing but association rules. Last Sunday the Cycling Club's team was beaten by the M. A. A. C. Juniors, by a score of 3 to 0. To-day this club plays the Olympic A. C's team, and on New Year's Day the Missouris play the St. Louis University team.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

MUCH surprise is evinced at the news of the resignation of W. H. DeGraff from the Racing Board. The general opinion is that there is much back of this resignation as Mr. DeGraff more widely known as "Pop" was known to have been widely interested in his work. He was working with much vim for the furtherance of the Bull racing circuit, and his resignation coming in now when he was working in with Mr. Davol for the purification of the amateur ranks, is a conundrum.

THE general cycling public is on the tip toe of expectancy as to what shall be the result of the meeting of the A. A. U. and L. A. W. on Saturday. There is a strong belief that everything will be amicably arranged, but under all this comes the rumor that the A. A. U. may desire some concessions before they agree to a joint rule, viz., the abolishing of all the suspensions. It would no doubt be a wise move for the L. A. W. to meet such a demand half way, for instance, if the Union is willing to frame a resolution agreeable to the wheelmen, if the latter will raise the suspensions the L. A. W. might, for the consideration of an easy settlement of all troubles, suspend the men for a short but definite period, which might be overcoming all obstacles.

THE committee appointed to arrange for a joint theatre party among the clubs in this city have appointed January 29 as the date, and the play to be witnessed the "Faker" at the Park Theatre. After the performance the bicyclists will enjoy a banquet at the Clarendon. The theatre party is not to be confined, as generally supposed to club men, as any unattached riders can, by communicating with B. M. Cole, 58 Prospect place, City, have arrangements made for their accommodation.

THE Brooklyn Bicycle Club will hold a euchre party and dance late in January.

THE clubs in this city and across the river held high carnival on New Year's eve. The Brooklyn clubs all rode the old year out. The Citizens, Riverside and Gotham clubs held entertainments at their club houses, while a number of the boys rode to Tarrytown for the wine offered by the proprietor of the Franklin House to the first bicyclist to reach his place from the city.

There is much truth in the assertion that the Citizens will amalgamate with the New York Athletic Club, in fact I learn that it is only the matter of a short time until the arrangements will all be consummated.

A VERTICAL POSITION

—— IS THE ——

MOST NATURAL AND GRACEFUL.

The vertical position is obtained to perfection on the Eagle, as the saddle is almost directly over the pedals, and the body is erect from the feet up.

Much more power is obtained from a downward thrust than from one partly forward, and the weight of the rider is used with much greater effect in aiding to propel the machine.

This is one reason for the success of the Eagle in the races this year, and to it is largely due the remarkably easy running qualities of the machine and the freedom from fatigue after long rides, which is noted by so many Eagle riders.

Every ounce of the rider's weight is utilized in each push on the pedals, and if he weighs 150 pounds, he can put 150 pounds pressure on the pedals at each step.

It has been repeatedly proved that an Eagle can be driven up a grade of 1 foot in 12 entirely by the weight of the rider, and without pulling an ounce on the handles.

The vertical position enables the rider to use the pedals to the best advantage, as he can stand on them clear of the saddle and virtually walk on the machine.

This gives a control of the wheel which can be obtained in no other way. It makes the rider seem a part of the machine, and gives a feeling of security and power which must be experienced to be appreciated. It renders unnecessary any anti-vibrating springs or appliances, as all the shock and vibration is taken up by the muscles of the legs. They are natural anti-vibrators and can hardly be improved upon.

There is a fascination about the Eagle which increases the pleasure of riding many fold, and it combines more good features than any other wheel.

All we have ever claimed for it has been more than proved by its records during the past two seasons, and no cycler's education is complete until he has learned to ride the "Bird."

LOOK OUT FOR THEM!

Those "only practical spring frames," we mean. They are becoming multitudinous. but nearly all of them are new and untried and their practicability and "onliestness" have yet to be proven. It is a mill they all have to pass through. The Rambler went through it, but that was years ago, and to-day while others are offering experiments, the success and practicability of which is on paper only, in the Ramblers we are able to offer a line of spring frame machines on which no risks are taken,—a spring frame which has been tried by years of varied actual use and been found not wanting.

Possibly no better evidence of the value of spring frames could be offered than the number of new machines of that style being presented and in prospect, but it should be remembered that the Rambler was the original spring frame machine and set the fashion for spring frames. We use this "set the fashion" advisedly, too. These facts all carry weight with the judicious buyer.

DETROIT. "JUDGE."

JAS. JOSEPHI, better known to the cycling public as "Mac" of the American Athlete, has shaken the dust of Detroit from his number nines, and will hereafter breathe the soft and balmy air that comes bowling over Lake Michigan into the "Windy City." It is but a week since his dear friend Flinn left here for the same city, and the separation was too much, and so he has sacrificed all and gone to join his beloved friend.

GEO. LANE is spending the holidays here with his family and renewing old acquaintances, also Frank Blodgett, the ex-President of the Star Club of blessed memory. Frank is getting very corpulent and fills out his natty cadet uniform to its fullest capacity.

HERM OSBORNE established his claim to the title of "Long Distance" by riding from here to Saginaw. This was accomplished just before Christmas, and the total (103 miles) distance made in less than one and a half days. The first day he made Flint, 68 miles, and early the next day his destination. Why lay up the wheel in winter?

THE club house of the Detroit Wheelmen was jammed all Christmas day, and the click of billiard balls was incessant, much to the enrichment of the club treasury.

A LARGE club run was planned for 28th, but a heavy snow storm again disappointed us. The roads everywhere in this section are in superb condition.

INADVERTENTLY I forgot to mention in my last week's notes that a fund to be known as the Detroit Wheelmen's memorial fund has been started, its object being to mark by stone tablets or otherwise the historic spots of Detroit. This will be done before either the L. A. W. meet or G. A. R. encampment. All who have read history know that there is a great deal of interest to the historian in and about Detroit. Most of the old landmarks have disappeared, but where they once stood will be commemorated. A few hundred feet from my home still stands an old house (on the grounds of a Mr. Huger) in which the noted Frenchman died (General Hamtranck). A trifle further on and we find the noted Pontiac tree standing as a grim sentinel guarding the dead warriors of Pontiac; many other points of interest centre in and about here, mementoes of the French and Indian war.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

COL. ALBERT A. POPE of Boston, Mass., spent the Christmas holidays in New Orleans, La., as the guest of Mr. H. H. Hodgson and was the recipient of much attention; on the evening of Dec. 24 he was tendered a reception at St. Charles Hotel by the wheelmen of the Crescent City between the hours of 8 and 10 P. M., and he was also entertained by the Pickwick Club on the same day.

THE Columbia Cycle Club of Worcester, Mass., are to have a social at Continental Hall, Jan. 16, '91.

THE second assembly of the Somerville (Mass.) Cycle Club was held in Odd Fellows' Hall, Winter Hill, on Tuesday evening, Dec. 16, the next will occur Jan. 6, '91,

THE magnificent cycling and athletic building at 310 W. 59th street, New York city, was formally opened to the public on Dec. 23 and a large number of people availed themselves by invitation of Manager Bidwell of the opportunity to view the various departments of the institution. Mr. Watson L. Savage will have personal supervision over the athletic classes.

THE Hagerstown (Md.) Bicycle Club is making preparations for a large meet in Hagerstown on July 4, '91; the Maryland Division of the League has already accepted an invitation to attend.

PROF. D. J. CANARY gave an exhibition of fancy bicycle and unicycle riding before a delighted audience at the Coliseum, Denver, Col., on Dec. 22.

"WHAT are you going to do?" asked a young man of his friend who was learning to ride a bicycle. "break the record?" "No, I don't think I'll do that," was the reply. "It will be either my neck or my bicycle."

THE Rhode Island Wheelmen held their annual burlesque Christmas tree at their cosey rooms on South Main stree., Providence, on the evening of Dec. 26, and about 40 members assisted in the raid on the tree. Light refreshments were in order and a very pleasant party was kept up till a late hour.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., is behind the times. At the last meeting of the council, on motion of one of the members, the ordinances were so amended as to prohibit any bicycle or tricycle from being driven on the pavements of the city under penalty of not less than $1 nor more than $5.

THE annual meeting of the Columbia Bicycle Club of the Attleboro, Mass., was held Dec. 22. The committee on the late fair made a report which showed a clear gain of $560 50 to the club. A vote of thanks was tendered the committee having the fair in chair. There is now $664 in the treasury The annual ball will take place March 10, '91.

THE Keystone Bicycle Club of Pittsburg, Pa., recently laid claim to one of the standing rewards of $100 offered by the Pope Mfg. Co. for the arrest and conviction of any person or persons stealing one of the machines made by that company. Last summer a bicycle was stolen from a house on Broad street, East End. Some of the members of the club furnished a clew to Detectives Robinson and Fitzgerald of the person who stole the same. The thief was arrested by the officers, tried and convicted, and then the inspector wrote to the managers of the company stating that the detectives named were entitled to the reward. The Keystone Club officials made a similar claim on behalf of their members. A dispute arose, a compromise followed and the result was the lawyer in the case received $25, the wheelmen about $30 and the officers about $30 more. The balance was contingent expenses.

AT the annual meeting of Humber & Co., limited, the chairman announced that arrangements were being made for the development of the American trade. This company declared a dividend of 4 per cent., while Rudge & Co. paid 15 per cent.

THIS is the winter of our discontent.

NEW ORLEANS is to have a cycling club of racing men only, similar to those formed at Chicago and Philadelphia, only riders who can do a mile in 3m. 20s. or better, are eligible to membership. The club will be known as the Crescent City Cycling Club.

THE Lincoln Cycling Club of Chicago have just elected a remarkable wheelman to membership in that organization. He is but eighteen years of age, but has ridden continually since his sixth year, for the last three years he has ridden a unicycle, he rides altogether on one wheel, and with as much ease as an ordinary wheelman rides a bicycle.

FRED ROLLISON, the old time professional, is still in Australia, doing fancy and burlesque riding.

W. S. MALTBY has returned from Australia and is in San Francisco—he will come East and then return to the Hawaiian Islands as a permanent residence.

DR. E. B. TURNER, one of the English cracks who is contributing to the cycle press a very learned article on pacemaking, etc., in bicycle contents, proposes a cure for loafing tactics in scratch races, by a mutual agreement among the contestants to divide the pacemaking. It has met with so much favor on the other side that an association of racing men has been formed to carry out the principle of that idea.

AMONG the noted residents of Hartford, Conn., is Samuel L. Clemens known to the world as "Mark Twain." He was at one time an enthusiastic bicycle rider. One fine day, however, he took a ride, robed in a long linen duster, the tails of which caught in the spokes, and threw him so heavily that he became somewhat disgusted with the sport. He has again taken to cycling. The Hartford Post says that he was riding with the Rev. Joseph H. Twitchel, and while they were pedalling along together one day, the author of "Roughing It" suddenly took a header. Mr. Twitchel slowed up and was about to assist his friend, when Clemens shouted: "Don't stop, Joe, go right ahead; I think I will stay here a little and swear."

THE Baltimore, Md., Cyclers held a most successful reception at their house on Eutaw place on Christmas Day. The hours were from two to ten, but bright lights could be seen in windows until a much later hour, and it was fully eleven o'clock before the last of the 1500 guests had paid their respects to the committee of reception, of which Mr. James Stansbury, the President of the club, was chairman.

CHIEF CONSUL MOTT recently furnished some interesting statistics concerning wheelmen, in response to a request. He says that in 1876 there was one bicycle rider in the United States. In 1890 the number was estimated by the best authorities at 150,000. Of these on December 19, 1890, 17,599 were members of the League of American Wheelmen. As nearly as can be learned, the cities having the largest number of wheelmen are Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington and Buffalo in the order named. In Washington the proportion of L. A. W. members to bicycle riders is about 1 to 50. The ratio is more in favor of the League in Philadelphia and Chicago, and best in Buffalo, which is the home of Chief Consul Bull, and numbers a host of earnest workers among its 15,000 wheelmen.

THE Ladies' Bicycle Club of Rochester, N. Y., recently gave a reception which was attended by over 500 people.

A NORWICH, CONN., sidewalk rider was recently the principal actor in an object lesson that some of our public nuisances would do well to profit by. Following his favorite pastime, coasting down hill on the walk, his wheel became unmanageable and fired him over the handle bars, leaving him suspended between now and the hereafter on the business end of a picket fence.

DR. L. K. GARFIELD, who is over seventy years old, and resides at Algona, Ia., recently mounted and rode a safety without any previous instruction.

IT is said that the 2.50 Club of Chicago expects to promote a road race to Pullman on June 1. The prize to be awarded the winner is a bottle of champagne and a fine dinner.

ONE hundred and seventy five dollars has already been subscribed towards the $250 Citizen's Cup by the New Orleans townspeople interested in bicycling. A series of handicap road races will be run for the cup, and the winner of each race will receive a gold medal, and his name and time will be engraved on the trophy. It will remain in his possession until he meets with defeat at the hands of one of the other contestants.

THERE seems to be some tall hustling among the New Bedford boys since their new rooms have been put in shape. Much interest is taken in affairs. The cosy rooms make one feel at home. Christmas Eve a musical was given; the singing by Messrs. Spooner and Hunt. Piano solos of Mr. Swan and the club orchestra rendered themselves full justice in manner of execution and selection. After ending of programme, cigars were passed, and the smoker lasted until the wee hours of the morning.

"TERTIUS," whose witty and hair-raising tales of adventure used to delight the cycling world, has evidently lost none of his old-time skill. His reply to "Baron Munchausen, Jr.," in another column is as breezy as ever and full of his amusing illogical logic.

THE entertainment of the Queens County Wheelmen on Dec. 22 was a huge success and the boys feel encouraged; they say they will try their little act again. From a financial standpoint the affair netted about $125, notwithstanding the heavy expenses, which exceeded the net return. The proceeds will go toward furnishing their new club house.

WE are glad to notice that the charges against Zimmerman in regard to selling that race at Washington proved false. Our theory that "Sandy" was a confidence man working for his own interests without Zimmerman's or Berlo's knowledge we think is about correct.

LEGAL.

THE BOWN-CENTAUR CASE.

WE are in receipt of the following communication sent us by President A. H. Overman of the Overman Wheel Co., with the request that we give same space in our paper. The letter will speak for itself and we take pleasure in presenting same to our readers:

Mr. A. H. Overman, President of the Overman Wheel Company:

Dear Sir—In answer to your question as to what effect the decision of Justice Kekewich in the case of Bown v. Centaur Cycle Co., lately rendered in an English Court of Chancery, on the English ball-bearing patent of Sept. 17, 1877, to Joseph Hughes, assignor to Wm. Bown, can properly have upon the United States letters-patent to William Bown for the same invention, dated May 18 1880, or any suit for infringement of the same, I would say that I am clearly of the opinion that such decision can have no effect whatever upon the United States Bown ball-bearing patent or any such infringement suit.

I have read Judge Kekewich's decision, as reported in the Birmingham Daily Post of Nov. 20, 1890, the substantial and material parts of which are as follows:

"In this case I am called upon to decide a question of fact. The discussion of this question of fact occupied nine days. I had many witnesses and I had the assistance of all the strength and energy that the bar could command. At the end of those nine days I did what is entirely contrary to my usual practice—I reserved judgment. It is the first time that I have ever reserved judgment on a question of fact, because I have thought and said I do not see why a judge should not come to a conclusion in the same way that a jury does immediately after the trial and it may be with an hour or two to reflect. I reserved my judgment because I was completely puzzled in regard to the matter. During the trial I attended to the evidence of the witnesses and I listened to the arguments of the counsel, and since then I have spent much time and thought on the case I do not in the least grudge that. It is a part of my duty, and, quite apart from that, I know of nothing in which the human mind can be employed better than in the elucidation of truth. But my difficulty has been and it still remains, can I discover the truth? There is so much still wanting explanation; there is so much in the evidence without any satisfactory solution that I can find; that although I have thought it necessary to come to a conclusion, although I am not at liberty to adopt the grand solution of disagreement, I am by no means satisfied in my own mind that I now stand on firm ground. I have come to a conclusion and I believe it to be right on the evidence, but how much more there is behind, how much more there could be discovered, I can only guess." * * *

"After much deliberation I have framed this issue, as I think being the most correct: Had Lambert's bicycle, when delivered in July, 1877, bearings on either wheel such as were the subject of the subsequent patent now vested in the plaintiff?"

"I answer myself in the affirmative—yes, on the front wheel. The result is that the defendants have proved an anticipation and that the plaintiff's case fails. There must be judgment for the defendants accordingly, with costs on the higher scale."

It appears from the above that the justice found as a fact that a bicycle (Lambert's) had been made in England as early as July, 1877, with bearings such as were patented to Hughes in his patent of Sept. 17, 1877, and accordingly he decided under the English patent laws that defendant had proved an anticipation.

I.

Conceding the conclusion reached by Justice Kekewich to be correct—respecting which, in view of the grave doubts expressed by him, there must always be in the mind of the public a serious question—his decision cannot in any way affect Bown's United States Patent for Ball Bearings for the following reasons:

1. In the United States a patent cannot be invalidated by anticipating public use or sale of the invention covered by it, unless such sale or use took place in the United States at least two years prior to the application of the patentee for a patent, while in England, proof that anyone invented the device before the patentee, establishes the defence of anticipation.

The anticipating device which defeated the plaintiff in Bown v. Centaur Cycle Co. appears to have existed only about two months prior to Hughes' application for a patent, and therefore had Justice Kekewich been construing the patent laws of the United States his judgment upon the facts found by him would unquestionably have been for the plaintiff instead of for the defendant.

2. It is well settled in this country that foreign public use is not prior use. In fact, I believe that Curtis, Walker and Robinson, the leading authors upon patent law in the United States, in their treatises, all agree that such foreign use, under the provisions of our statutes in relation to patents, does not give the public in the United States any knowledge of the invention. Decisions of the Federal Courts without number might be cited declaratory of the same doctrine, but where text writers and judges all agree a recital of the cases is certainly uncalled for.

The existence of this Lambert bicycle in July, 1877—if it did really exist at that time, or ever—could not be a material fact in any suit upon the United States Bown Ball Bearing Patent, and evidence respecting it would, in any suit in this country, be regarded as irrelevant and immaterial as not tending to establish in any way a defence in our courts.

Had therefore Justice Kekewich been called upon in America to pass upon the validity of Bown's Ball Bearing United States Patent, upon the evidence before him as reported, his decision must have been in its favor, and his judgment against the defendant.

II.

There is another ground for believing that the testimony passed upon by Justice Kekewich would, under the rules of evidence applicable to defences of patent causes as established in the United States, have brought him to a conclusion in favor of the plaintiff.

It is a rule of patent law that a patent enjoys the same presumption of novelty that an unconvicted prisoner does of innocence. That he who attacks the validity of a patent on the ground of its want of novelty, or prior use, must furnish such evidence as will satisfy the trier—judge or jury—beyond a reasonable doubt.

That such proof was wholly wanting in the trial before Justice Kekewich, is abundantly shown by his own confessions of doubt and dissatisfaction. He says:

"I reserved my decision because I was completely puzzled in regard to the matter. * * *

"My difficulty has been and still remains, can I discover the truth? There is so much still wanting explanation, there is so much in the evidence without any satisfactory solution that I can find, that, although I have thought it necessary to come to a conclusion, although I am not at liberty to adopt the grand solution of disagreement, I am by no means satisfied, in my own mind, that I now stand on firm ground."

Clearly he had a reasonable doubt—a doubt that in a criminal case would have acquitted—a doubt, that, had he been at liberty to do so, he would have solved by the adoption of "that grand solution of disagreement" which has been by law reserved for juries only.

It seems to be quite probable that another case upon the testimony, even in England, might be decided in favor of Bown rather than against him, but however that might be, I feel confident for the reasons above given, that the decision of Justice Kekewich cannot affect in any way Bown's United States Patent for ball bearings of May 18th, 1880—or any suit for infringement of the same.

Furthermore, the effect of the long and exhaustive trial in the English Court of Chancery on the English ball-bearing patent is to strengthen the United States patent for the same invention.

The contest in England has apparently been a thorough one. Able counsel represented both parties; Justice Kekewich in his decision says, "I had the assistance of all the strength and energy that the bar could command."

But in spite of the thoroughness of the contest, it seems manifest that no defence was made, or could be made, save one, and that one of such a nature as will not admit of its being interposed as a defence to the United States Bown ball-bearing patent.

Very respectfully,

F. CHAMBERLIN, of Chamberlin, White & Mills.

Hartford, Dec. 22d., 1890.

"TOO PREVIOUS" WITH HIS OPINION.

Editor Bicycling World: Will you permit me in your columns to correct a statement which has been made in a Western bicycling paper, which, to say the least, is very misleading? The statement reads: "The very best authority is the law of the land under which the patent will become totally invalid should the recent decision be sustained," and as a matter of fact, the contrary is true.

If it should occur in appeal that this alleged anticipation, which is without doubt fraudulent, is sustained, it would have no effect whatever on the validity of U. S. patent.

It is certainly unfortunate that there are editors of bicycle papers who are willing to make haphazard statements without any regard whatever to the facts. Very truly yours,

A. H. OVERMAN.

"TERTIUS'" REPLY TO "MUNCHAUSEN, JR."

I AM always ready to accept a challenge—whether it be to drink a glass of Bass, eat pie or make love to a pretty girl. In the WORLD of last week the "Baron" expressed a desire to do battle with the "wheelman down East who has ridden so hard and with such great speed as to blow all the hair from the top of his head."

Now it happens that I am that wheelman. But, as I related at the time—some six years ago—my wheel blew the hair from the head of my friend who was riding ahead of me at a distance of about 40 feet. I was sorry that it happened, but as I explained in my article at the time, my friend did not hear me shouting to turn aside, as we were going faster than sound. The "Baron" brags about jumping over a little chasm of 100 feet. Pah! Why I once jumped my ordinary over a whole freight train by simply standing on the step and applying the brake. My old friend "Secretary" was with me at the time, and when I published the story he substantiated it. The "Secretary" and I are "old timers," dear "Baron," and had many adventures which would curl the hair of yourself or your lamented papa.

Many of my trifling little adventures I never thought worth writing up. Here is one in point. I started off on a morning ride one day last summer to a town 100 miles away. I was jogging along at a 25-miles-an-hour gait (I seldom ride fast on the road) and on reaching the brow of a hill, decided to coast it. The hill was exactly four miles long, with posts at each mile. I let my bike run rather freely, and so covered the first mile in a trifle over 2 minutes.

The road was clear, so I lifted the brake and the wheel began to jump. The second mile was made in 1.45 and the third in 57 11-15 seconds (I like to be exact when describing facts). Just then I remembered that the road took a sharp turn at the bottom of the hill to avoid a large pond of water. I knew it would be impossible to make the turn while going faster than a mile a minute, so I put on the brake. Horror of horrors! The rapid motion made so much heat that the brake melted in a second and the wheel went faster than ever. Before I could say "quidproquo" I struck the pond. There was a sizzle, a cloud of steam, and lo! the water had vanished. The heat generated by my rapid plunge had evaporated all the water in the pond, and I was left on dry land—after enjoying a refreshing sort of Turkish bath.

I walked into town, however, as the rapid coast had melted the ball bearings, and, worse than all, the cold air of the upper regions condensed the steam from the pond so that it rained hail Columbia, water, fish, tadpoles and bullfrogs for four days.

I seldom mention such a riding adventure as this, but I will meet the "Baron" as he requests on February 30th, at 12.61 A. M., prepared for slaughter. "TERTIUS."

THE BUFFALO CLUB AND THE L. A. W.

Editor Bicycling World: In your issue of December 26th appears the following:

"CHIEF CONSUL BULL of New York promptly resigned when the Buffalo Club left the League and he was followed by a dozen or more members. Perhaps the club may learn that there is some advantage attaching to League membership when they lose their strongest supporters."

While the Buffalo Bicycle Club does not desire to enter into a newspaper controversy regarding its actions it desires those actions to be honestly stated. Chief Consul Bull is the only man who has resigned from the club because of its withdrawal from the League and not one member has followed him, your statement to the contrary notwithstanding. Thirteen other men resigned before the meeting at which the League action was taken and all for business reasons, many of them not having ridden a wheel for years. The "strongest supporters" of a club are the men who bear its burdens by filling its offices. Of the retiring Board four voted to stay in the League, and of these three were naturally Messrs. Butler, Bull and Jenkins. Of the incoming Board only two favored remaining in the national organization, and in the entire club of 150 only eleven men could be found who were willing to stand up and be counted in favor of keeping the club in the League. Almost unanimously it was decided that it was better we should not be a League club, and there will be few withdrawals of individual memberships; in fact our Board has determined to do all in its power to keep up our members in the L. A. W. as individuals, and unless the WORLD and our over-zealous League officials, by publishing false statements and circulating false reports, shall incense our members, we believe that we shall be able to send to Secretary Bassett as many dollars as we have members.

We very much regret Mr. Bull's resignation; he is an old member of the club, and one who has had our best efforts in all his League ambitions, even so late as the Niagara Falls meeting, when he and Mr. Jenkins were authorized to cast the club's entire vote; but notwithstanding our regret, and our unbroken personal regard for him, we are not cast down and will continue in the even tenor of our way, soon filling our membership to its limit, and being ready to fight the battles of wheelmen, we hope as successfully as our Club Committee did the "sidewalk question" last summer.

Thanking you in advance for the space given this communication, I am, very respectfully, WM. M. BLOOMER, President.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 29, 1890.

FROM A MEMBER OF NORTHERN CALIFORNIA.

Editor Bicycling World: The call from the California Division for voluntary contributions of funds from members is I think in bad taste without some explanation as to what disposition has been made of the large balance (I believe upwards of a thousand dollars) on hand last year, which it is presumed has all been spent by the administration that went out of office a short time ago and which has seen fit to render no report of disbursements, although repeatedly requested to do so.

The present Chief Consul's action in presenting "without comment" the "kick" of a Southern member does not in my opinion meet the requirements of the case. The Southern members ask why the Division needs money and they are not the only ones that want this information. As a member of that portion of the Division for whose "benefit" the funds were presumably used, I would like the information before blindly contributing funds which may be used no one but the "finance committee" knows or is to know how.

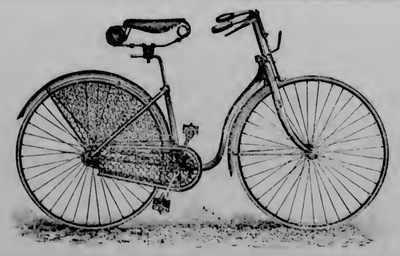
It is understood that the chartering of a train used up some of the funds, but we don't know how much. The propriety of using funds for such a purpose when spent for the benefit of a mere handful of members is another question. League members are probably not generally favorably disposed toward contributing funds for such a purpose. I think each man should foot his own bill for an expense of that kind.

It should be reported to the Division members, among other things, how much this chartered train cost and how many Division members of the League were transported on it. My own impression is that it was for less than 20 out of a membership of upwards of 500.

Of course these remarks do not reflect upon the present Division officers as they did not engineer the matter, but it is considered they should see that it is shown exactly for what purposes the Division funds have been expended when pleading the necessity for more.

In former years with a smaller membership, and with a smaller proportion of the dues inuring to the Division, there was no lack of funds, but on the contrary the money was accumulated which was spent by the last administration, if such it may be called, and yet I believe it will be almost universally admitted that very much more was done in former years for the good of the cause than has been done of late.



As a Division the League is practically dead in California at present and has been for a year past; there is no interest in it. It is only the interest that members feel in the national body and the cause at large and the percentage of dues received that keeps the Division going. It may be remarked that the Division officers are not overburdened with modesty in fixing the limit of the voluntary contribution from members at $1. Considering the fact that in the natural course of events the Division would only receive as its share from each member but half that sum as its dues for an entire year, that for the other half the members receive perceptible value in the shape of a weekly paper, their membership certificate, the paid labors of an able Secretary, the valuable services of President and Chairmen of several committees, and the prestige which a body of upwards of 17,000 naturally carries with it, it may be doubted whether the Division organization, as constituted and worked in this part of the country at least, comparatively considered, is worth supporting at such proportionate cost.

A MEMBER OF NORTHERN CALIFORNIA.

A GREAT WAY TO MAKE MONEY.

Mr. Editor: The "help or the talents" plan of raising money for mission work was new to me, but our Mission Band each agreed to invest $3. Some always made wonderful investments, but I felt sure I could not even double my "talent." During the week while reading your paper. I concluded to buy a Plater. I sent $3 to W. H. Griffith & Co , Zanesville, Ohio, got a Plater and went to work plating spoons, knives, forks and jewelry, and in a month I had cleared $116 40 and done all the work after school; in three months I cleared $406. This is certainly a rare chance to make money with ease and rapidity. MARY BRITTEN.

A NEW "PNEU."

MR. I. W. BOOTHROYD of London, Eng., has gotten out a new "pneu" forwhich he claims the following advantages over the Dunlop patent:

Cheapness, greater strength for same weight material, ease of repair, will stand higher air pressure, simplicity in manufacture, can be used as an ordinary cushion.

In section this tire is like a cushion with a somewhat larger and an eccentric hole. Embedded in the rubber outside the hole is a canvass tube or hose. Then comes the outer rubber covering. All these three parts are really one solid piece welded or cemented together. We will speak further and fuller of this invention next week.

CHAS F. STOKES MFG. CO.

"NOTHING succeeds like success" is a maxim as truthful as it is old. One of the grandest methods to insure this success from a commercial standpoint is the united qualities of energy, perseverance and sound business principles faithfully applied towards achieving a certain end or accomplishing successfully the task undertaken. It is quite evident that the Chas. F. Stokes Mfg. Co. of Chicago, Ill., have thoroughly realized the truth of the above remark. Few engaged in the bicycle business can look back over such a long and pleasing array of continued successes as can this company. It is composed of Chas. F. Stokes, Philip Goetz and Chas. H. Sieg, a combination well adapted for the various channels in which their several efforts are directed. Mr. Stokes, the president of the company, is known throughout the cycling world, as well as by thousands of sewing machine dealers in this country, as a keen and shrewd business man. He is well versed in the various details of his business and possesses that magnetism which is a gift granted to comparatively few. He is a fluent conversationalist, a genial companion and a gentleman. Philip Goetz, the treasurer, is recognized as one of the best informed men on financial matters in the city of Chicago, shrewd, careful and thoroughly posted as to the reliability of the myriads of customers of the company. Chas. H. Sieg is secretary of the company, and is the cycle man of the concern. The selling department of the company is in his hands. Mr. Sieg has been engaged in the cycle business for many years, and having carefully studied the construction of the various American and English machines is recognized as an authority.

The firm represents a strong combination. They work in perfect unison and have so systematized the running of their well known establishment that they are capable of doing nearly three times the amount of business which one would naturally think would keep them busy. The business of the company has increased year after year, their business during the past season having exceeded by nearly 1000 per cent. that of any former year. From a modest beginning in the bicycle trade a few years ago, at which time the sales for the year were less than 500 wheels, the volume of business has steadily increased until now their output for 1890 is considerably more than 6000 machines. The arrangements for 1891, although not quite completed, show that this company have contracted for nearly 8000 bicycles. One of the most important changes in the business is that of the Union Cycle Mfg. Co. of Highlandville, Mass., surrendering to the Stokes Mfg. Co. the exclusive control of the sale of the Union cycles throughout the entire West ot the United States, starting from and including the States of Michigan, Indiana, Kentuckey, Tennessee and Louisiana. Mr. Stokes is interested financially to a large extent in the Union Co., and there is no doubt that the many friends of the Union will be pleased with this arrangement. It will facilitate the prompt delivery of goods and at the same time lessen the freight or express charges, an item that would amount to considerable during the season with many dealers.

The Stokes Co. have arranged with a prominent manufacturing concern, which will build for them for their own exclusive trade a line of medium grade safeties which will be in all the popular sizes and convertible. This contract calls for 5000 wheels, a large per cent. of which have already been placed with prominent dealers throughout the East and West. The deal recently made with the Indiana Co. for 950 wheels for immediate delivery has been accepted by both concerns and the company is preparing to sell all of these wheels in the next 60 days. They propose to do this by selling only to the largest dealers and giving them the benefit of a price which will warrant them in ordering liberally.

Perhaps the largest order ever given for bicycles, the sale of which is restricted to one city only, is that which the Stokes Co. gave to H. A. Lozier & Co. of Cleveland for Little Giants. The order calls for 425 wheels. The company have various other arrangements now pending and have assured us that while they are not ready as yet to announce fully their plans for the coming year they expect to be shortly. Their new catalogue is being compiled by Mr. Sieg and will be ready for the mails in a few weeks. It will contain illustrations and descriptions of a line of wheels embodying all sizes and grades, selling at all prices, and for riders of all sizes in either sex.

MR. CLIFTON S. MERRIL is now connected with the John Wilkinson Co., and will look after the interests of the Rover "on the road." He started December 22 for a flying trip East and was in Boston for a few days this week.

THE Columbia catalogue for 1891 is out and shows the novelties the Pope Mfg. Co. intend to present the coming season. The most marked change in pattern is that presented in the Columbia Light Roadster Safety is that the '91 pattern will have double diamond frame. The frame is very fetching in its lines and strong in construction. The rear wheel guard is made of seamless tubing rolled into concave section, carrying the crank shaft bracket at its lower end and firmly bracing the frame itself. The brake operates on the rear wheel. Elliott self-oiling chain, specially made by the company's own process. The machine can be fitted with either solid or cushion tires. No castings whatever are used in the construction of the Columbia Light Roadster Safety. The spring joint on front fork will be retained as it has proved very satisfactory. The Ladies' Safety is pratically the same pattern as presented last year and a season's test has resulted most satisfactorily to both riders and manufacturers. The catalogue is most beautifully gotten up and the frontispiece is a most exquisite specimen of the engraver's art. A plan of the Columbia factory is also given and will prove of interest to riders and purchasers.

WE note with pleasure the appointment of Mr. G. Minturn Worden as New England manager for the Lozier & Yost Bicycle Mfg. Co., manufacturers of the Giant machines. Mr. Worden is too well and favorably known in New England to need any special introduction from us. He is thoroughly conversant with the possibilities of the territory, and is a most efficient salesman. His headquarters will be at Wm. Read & Sons, No. 107 Washington street, to which address all matters apertaining to the New England business should be sent to Mr. G. Minturn Worden.

THE Referee pneumatic tired machines have just arrived from England, and are said to be the prettiest balloon tire safety in existence. Bretz & Curtis Mfg. Co. say they are more than pleased with the appearance of the full roadster, which generally appears so unsightly on most machines. It weighs only 41 1-2 pounds, actual, with pedals and saddle. The racer, such as Jones used in breaking the world's record on, with a pneumatic tire, weighs 19 pounds. The price for the pneumatic has not yet been decided, but for the present the Referee will be sold at $165. Owing to great delay in getting rims which will not cut the cushion tire, the standard pattern Referee will not be in shape till about February 1st. It will be listed to sell at $140, and will weigh the same as the present machine. Speaking of the prospects for 1891, Messrs. Bretz & Curtis says: "We have already sold more machines than we contracted to take, and will have to more than double our order if we expect to supply the orders which are now pouring in on us. We have lately added a salesroom to our now large store, and we hope before many weeks to have one of the largest riding schools in the country. We have added the Warwick to our line this year, and we are anticipating a big trade for 1891.

THE HARTFORD STAND & TRAINER.

PATENTED July, 1890.

FITS ALL MAKES OF SAFETY BICYCLES.

RUNS NOISELESS.

PRICE ONLY $6.00.

It gives you a perfectly natural exercise on your own wheel and saddle, when you can't get out on the road; and every rider (lady or gentleman) knows that to stop riding a short time puts health, muscles and wind out of condition to thoroughly enjoy it.

The price is within the reach of all, and it not only gives you healthy exercise, but makes a perfect stand to hold, oil or wash the wheel on.

Ask your dealer to order a sample, which can be sent by express at small cost; all the parts pack between the two long pieces and are shipped in a paper package.

State Representatives.

To James R. Dunn, President L. A. W.:

The Committee of Rights and Privileges, to which was referred the letter of Arthur Allen Dean, Chief Consul of Connecticut, asking a construction of section 3 of article IV of the Constitution, report that it is the opinion of the committee that each Division is now entitled to one Representative for each one hundred resident League members on the roll on the first day of July last; that the number of Representatives is not to be increased by reason of any addition of members to the State Division after July first until the next election. Under the Constitution as amended, there shall be elected at the next election one Representative for every one hundred members on the rolls of the Division on the first day of October.

In addition to these Representatives there may be elected one Representative from any League Club of not less than twenty members, and one additional Representative for every fifty additional members that were on its roll on the first day of July 1 st. All District and club Representatives must have been elected between the fifteenth day of July and the fifteenth day of August last.

No other Representative can be elected in the Division until the annual election in 1891, between October 15 and November 15, and appointments by Chief Consul can only be made to fill vacancies. The amendment to article IV, changing the date from July first to October first, does not take effect until January first, 1891.

CLARENCE HODSON,
CHAS. F. COSSUM,
JOSIAH S. DEAN,

F. A. MCMASTER, Chief Consul.

Missouri Wants 500.

To Consuls and Members:

Do you want to reach the wheelmen who do not belong to our organization? If so, send to the undersigned for a supply of recruiting circulars, which will be promptly mailed to you. Here is a hard, plain fact: If you have a good thing, and who doubts that membership in the L. A. W. is not a good thing, write about it, advertise it, talk it up. Intrinsic merit is all right; but in this hustling and bustling age, "he that blowth not his own horn, the same it shall not be blown." This is a homely way of stating an immortal truth. The new year is now upon us, and let us all make a resolve right at the beginning to add at least one more member to the ranks of our Division. You certainly have cycling friends who are not members, and you cannot offer this as an excuse for failing to act. We must pull together to place Missouri in the front rank, and is not your pride and interest in cycling sufficient to aid in the work of recruiting?

Fraternally yours, ROHT. HOLM,
St. Louis, Dec. 26, 1890. Chief Consul.

Maryland.

The regular quarterly meeting of the officers of the Maryland Division was held at the Baltimore Cycle Club, Saturday evening, Dec. 20.

Chief Consul Mott presided. Messrs. Chism, Jackson, Lord, Le Cato, Zimmerman and Unverzagt were present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Report of the Secretary-Treasurer, showing total cash on hand Oct. 1, $892.06; expenses for three months $63.75, leaving balance $749.21 on hand, was read and approved.

Mr. Lord, Chairman of the Rights and Privileges Committee, reported verbally, that the case of Homer vs. Ditch had been compromised; another victory for the L. A. W.

Chairman Chism, of the Transportation Committee, reported verbally, that in case of a wheelman travelling with his wheel, and carrying extra luggage, the railroad company will only check the wheel.

There being no unfinished business, new business was taken up. The following communication was read:

HAGERSTOWN, Dec. 15, 1890.

Mr. Albert Mott, C. C Md. Div., Baltimore, Md.:

Dear Sir—At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Hagerstown Bi. Club, held this evening, we the undersigned were appointed a committee on behalf of the Hagerstown Bi. Club to invite the Maryland Division to hold its annual Division meet at Hagerstown on the 2d, 3d and 4th of July next. Every effort will be made by our club to co-operate with you in making the meet a success, and we earnestly h pe that you will be able to accept this invitation. If you determine to do so the committee will be glad to hear from you at the earliest practicable time, and to arrange with you all details in reference to the holding of the meet at the time stated.

GEO. F. UPDEGRAFF, Chairman,
A. B. SCOTT, JR.,
HARRY B. IRVIN.

The following motion of Mr. E. F. Le Cato was carried:

"Moved, that the invitation of the Hagerstown Bi. Club to hold the Division meet in Hagerstown July 2, 3 and 4 be accepted, and that the Chief Consul appoint a committee of three to co-operate with the Hagerstown Bi. Club to secure a general meeting of all the Divisions in the Third Racing District in Hagerstown at that time."

Chief Consul Mott appointed Messrs. E. F. Le Cato, Arthur Cline and Charles L. Mitchell on this committee. Meeting adjourned at 9.40.

Respectfully yours, WM J. UNVERZAGT,
Baltimore, Dec. 20, 1890. Sec.-Treas.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

CATALOGUE, JANUARY, 1891.

Brief Specifications of the GIANT SAFETY BICYCLES, '91 Pattern:

The Giant has 30-inch wheels, tangent spokes, ball bearings all over, straight and hollow handle bar, rear brake, weldless steel tube backbone, Bolte spring fork, Yost saddle, an ample chain guard and is listed at $85.00.

The Giantess has a 28-inch rear wheel, 26 inch front (we make the front wheel smaller to secure the additional space needed by a lady), tangent spokes, straight and hollow handle bar, rear brake, weldless steel tube backbone, Bolte spring fork to both front and rear wheels, ample chain and skirt guard, and Yost saddle. By applying the Bolte spring to both forks, we offer our lady friends a spring framed machine devoid of all vibration at the seat. The Giantess is listed at $75.00

The Ball Bearing Little Giant is similar in construction to the Giant, with ball bearings all over. All wearing parts are steel, the backbone tube is weldless steel, handle bar solid and straight, cranks drop-forged, wheels 24-inch with tangent spokes nickeled to intersection, and is listed at $45.

The Little Giant is precisely the same as the Ball Bearing Little Giant, excepting it has adjustable cone instead of ball bearings. It lists at $35.

CYCLING

FOR

Health and Pleasure.

CHAPTER II.

This is the historical chapter of the book; its subject is the "Evolution of the Bicycle." This is treated of succinctly and clearness is assured by the use of some sixteen illustrations, showing the different types of machines as they appeared at various times between 1816 and 1890. Very few wheelmen are familiar with all these types, nor do many know of the slow process of development through which the well-nigh perfect machine of today reached its form. Perhaps two-thirds or three-quarters of those now cyclists have begun riding within three years. This vast majority, as a rule, know only by hearsay of what has gone before. In the twenty three pages here given to the subject will be found a clear, concise and complete account of the growth of the bicycle, and it cannot fail to prove of interest both for the information it contains and the curious machines it shows.

"BRONCHO,"

NOISELESS, CHAINLESS, LIGHT ROADSTER, SAFETY BICYCLE

[CLIPPING.]

The performance of Charlie Woods on the "BRONCHO" Safety last Sunday was quite remarkable, when it is taken into consideration that it was his first road ride. He started from town at 8.20 A. M., arriving home at 5.30 P. M., in the meantime passing through Southboro, Northboro, Shrewsbury and Worcester, returning through Westboro and Woodville, and was compelled to dismount but twice, at Shrewsbury and Quinsigamond Hills.

A great deal of riding outside the regular course made the distance covered more than 43 miles. Charlie Woods is but 13 years old.

HOPKINTON, Mass., 10, 19, '90.

Gentlemen—The boy Charlie Woods is but TWELVE years old and weighs 78 pounds. The "BRONCHO" weighs 45 5-16 pounds. What is the matter with "BRONCHO"?

G. P. WOODS.

P. S.—The boy is my son.

A COLUMBIA for 1891.

QUIDPROQUO.

XLI.

THE holidays are over and the busy days of 1891 begin to demand the best energies of all. That is, of all of us who make up the greater part of this American people, which consists in a vast solution of energies in action upon useful things,—with of course a little froth on top and a few dregs at the bottom. While a goodly portion of this people were using the 1890 pattern of Columbia cycles, the Pope Mfg. Co. were busy not only in supplying those, but in designing, modeling and building a substantially new machine wherewith they might more irresistibly delight their patrons. It is their Twenty-Third (No. 23) in their series of Columbia machines, (not including annual improvements of same patterns) and they offer all its improvements and perfections to you,—these and their new 1891 Catalogue which describes them,—promptly on time, as New Year's Presents. The price of the machine has not been increased. In such manufactures "experience teaches," and skill increases, and materials offer better choice, and wisdom gathers in from the many and is concentrated and applied, so that, if the same honest purpose and persistent will and careful work be continued, a better product can be turned out for each added year. This 1891 Columbia Safety for gentlemen will bear studying in every detail of its mechanism,—whether it be taken with or without "cushion tires,"—and for every departure from or retention of any feature in previous patterns, there are reasons which after careful trial won the unanimous vereict of a corps of discreet men who are beyond doubt as well qualified to represent the experience and the intelligence of both riders and makers of cycles as any that could be found. The result of their decision has been put in form by an apparatus of factory plant, machinery, skilled mechanics, practiced experts, and experienced officers, holding its unequalled position for years. So, it ought to be a fine machine, this 1891 Columbia gentlemen's safety.—— There are of course the same unrivalled saddle, pedals, rims, spring fork, rear-wheel guard-brace; but the new double diamond frame, new Elliott chain, new wheel hubs and spokes, new saddle supports, new steering head, and other new details of improvements, will enlist approval as soon as studied.—The machine is about five pounds lighter than the 1890 Col. L. R. S., and that will commend it to many. Upon this matter of weight and these new matters of improvement we shall have more to say as the weeks go by; but in the meantime send for the 1891 Columbia Catalogue and read that.—Address: Pope Mfg. Co., 77 and 79 Franklin street, Boston, Mass.

THE BETTER LAND.

I hear thee speak of a better land,
Devoid of rocks and mud and sand,
With fairy views and asphalt ways,
Where the barbarous roadhog never strays;
A land where the season is never done,
And all the flyers race for fun;
Where springtime and flowers never fade,
And all the hills have a downward grade;
A land long sought, which I grieve to say,
Is still to the cyclist far away——
Far away.

But though the fact is, Alas! too true,
There's a way of getting a distant view;
A notion of what that land will be
In time to come, for you and me.
My friend, your cycle must have a spring,
It is going to be the final thing.
Then the roughened places smooth shall grow,
And you'll find the "Better Land" here below;
While the UNION wheels I'm proud to say,
Will glide from all others, far away——
Far away.

ON ORIGINALS.—Don't run away with the idea that the original is always the best. So far as we are able to find out, the Ark was the original ship, but how would it compare alongside the "City of Paris," for instance?

While we venerate the originator of any good thing, we hold that every contrivance is open to improvement at some period, and the original is only the crude idea ready for the perfecting process to begin.

"Mr. Stokes, of Chicago," will answer all enquiries from West and Northwest of that city, with regard to the UNION wheels. He knows all about them.

BOSTON, 9 JANUARY, 1891.

THE long-talked of conference between the committees of the L. A. W. and A. A. U. was held in New York on Saturday last. This conference grew out of a request received by the L. A. W. officials from the A. A. U. for a conference on the question of paying the expenses of athletes and cyclists who engage in competition. It was not a conference to discuss the recent suspensions, as has been erroneously stated in the press, for the request was made many weeks before the suspensions were ordered, the resolutions embodying the request said nothing whatever about the suspensions, and furthermore those who sent the resolutions and those who received them had no knowledge whatever that the suspensions were to be made. We say this because the press has from the first misunderstood and misrepresented the object of the conference. Agreeable to the request received, President Dunn appointed on the committee for the L. A. W., Chas. S. Davol, the Chairman of the Racing Board; Geo. R. Bidwell, the Second Vice President; Chas. S. Luscomb, Ex-President, and a man whose legal ability has on many occasions been of good service to the L. A. W.; Abbot Bassett, Secretary and formerly Chairman of the Racing Board; and for the fact that the President of the A A. U. was on the other committee, President Dunn took a place on the L. A. W. committee. The A. A. U. presented its President, H. W. McMillan, representing the Schuykill Navy; G. W. Carr, President of the Manhattan Club; C. F. Matthewson, of the Berkeley Club; Wm. B. Curtis, of the New York Athletic Club and J. E. Harder of the Turnverein.

The joint committee accepted the kind invitation of President Dunn to dine at the Lawyer's Club at 2 P. M. on Saturday. The door closed upon the committee at two o'clock and did not open till five hours later. It only opened then because the club rooms were about to be closed and it was necessary for the committee to find another place to continue the meeting. By invitation of the A. A. U. committee the conference dined at the Astor House and after that adjourned to parlor 47 for further deliberations. The conference adjourned at half past two on Sunday morning and the members dispersed. It was a long, earnest and energetic meeting, not "heated and stormy" as the press represents, for the members of the conference are of the calibre of man that never loses control of himself. We are not allowed to give out the results of the conference for, in fact there are, as yet, no results. The conference is not yet concluded and it is very probable that within a week another meeting will be held. The interests of the sport are in good keeping, and we look for important results growing out of the conference. In the meantime everything remains as it was before and no action will be taken on the suspensions till the conference reports

WHAT peurility is shown by some writers in trying to prove that the Racing Board in withdrawing the charges made against Zimmerman is "showing the white feather," and "doing it for policy's sake." The Racing Board made the charges on information received and were in duty bound to investigate. Mr. Zimmerman promptly denied the charge, and on investigation by the Board the charges were found to be false and promptly dismissed. There is no "white feather," no "policy" in the matter, only simple justice. If the principle that right or wrong charges once made must be true is correct, then of course the Board's action in Mr. Zimmerman's case is the "white feather," etc. But thank goodness the Board is not governed by any such principle. We congratulate Mr. Zimmerman, and we should like to see every suspended man disprove the charges made against him as readily and conclusively as did the "New Jersey wonder."

WE are pleased to hear that Mr. W. H. DeGraaf has withdrawn his resignation from the Racing Board. Mr. DeGraaf sent in his resignation under a misapprehension, which as soon as corrected he withdrew the resignation. Mr. DeGraaf is too good a man for the Board to lose, and we are pleased to note that the misunderstanding was satisfactorily explained.

WE look for the issues of the papers for this week with a good deal of curiosity as to what they will have to say of the results of the joint conference of the A. A. U. and the L. A. W. There will be some pretty tall guessing indulged in, but unless some member of the conference proves untrue to his pledge of secrecy until the basis of settlement has been reduced to writing and accepted by the joint committee to reconvene in about a week, all that is printed and said will be purely a matter of conjecture. We therefore warn our readers to accept all statements that will be made orally and in print cum grano salis.

ON New Year's Day the safety and ordinary riders of the Utica (N. Y.) Cycling Club contested for honor in a game of polo on the Rutger street ice rink. The teams were made up as follows: safeties, G. C. Hodges, J. R. Baxter, E. H. Crosby, Stephen Coram, G. W. Payne, W. W. Devine, F. J. Jenny. Ordinaries, A. H. Dobson, C. H. Ballou, L. R. Devine. J. B. Paddon, Jr., F. P. Miller, P. C. Hammes, A. R. Grant. The game was hotly contested, the score being 3 and 3 at the end of the time agreed upon. The deciding goal was won by the ordinaries in ten minutes, and the safety riders will buy an oyster supper as a penalty. After the polo game a team selected from the club was defeated in a bowling contest by the Y. M. C. A. team.

NOTES BY "HAWKSHAW."

I AM awfully thankful that I am not a correspondent on a French wheel paper, not that I am any more of a coward than most men, but because I would hate the expense and annoyance of having to go out and engage in a theatric duel every time I wrote something that did not please everyone who read it. The game isn't worth the candle, the honor is too dear a one. Recently a lady correspondent in a French cycling journal wrote something that did not meet with the ideas of a male correspondent on another and rival wheel journal; true to the ethics of Parisian journalism, the offended writer went at once to a cafe and "shot off his mouth" about the lady correspondent and her ideas, then the chivalrous hero appeared, cried "liar," threw his glove and card in the other's face, with the usual result—there's going to be one of those idiotic Parisian journalistic duels in which no one ever gets hurt, and every one's honor receives the satisfaction that these idiots claim is due to it. As long as they must meet in mortal (?) combat, why not "make the punishment fit the crime?" Do something that is original, something in which danger and originality both enter. I would propose that both men be mounted upon wheels, with their feet strapped to the pedals, the brakes removed, and the wheels started down a steep hill, the steeper the better, the one that gets down first to be declared the victor, and have the right to have his honor nickle-plated, so that in the future nothing could tarnish it. If both contestants should get killed, so much the better, two fools less in the world. Should this plan not be satisfactory, let them be mounted upon one of these new patterned safeties, which are equipped with a small Maxim gun, faced toward each other, say a half mile apart, and then at a given signal ride at each other, firing as they approached, firing to be kept up until one or both had placed a debt of gratitude upon the world by being killed. Perhaps though, both of these plans are too complex, too expensive, too dangerous for my French fire-eater, and the easiest and best way out of it is for us to chip in and see if we can't get up enough money to tempt the fool-killer to begin making up lost ground in France, beginning with these two idiots.

A FRIEND writes me that James Revell is running a cheap theatre somewhere or other in New Mexico. This fact may not prove very interesting to many of my readers, for the reason that Smiling Jimmie was a feature, both costly and unique, in cycling, before the time of many of those now riding. Revell was an Englishman, who drifted over here because the climate was good, the pastures of prospect newer and greener than they were in Albion; he declared that he came for the good of this country, though there were those who said that it was a more personal motive induced him to cast his lot with us poor benighted Americans; be that as it may, Revell came, saw, conquered, and skipped. New York was the place he chose for his first field of operations; the field was rich, the wheelmen enthusiastic and soft, the plunder speedy and successful, and we knew James no more. Beginning as an instructor for Rollins, he soon ingratiated himself into the good graces of everyone; cheerful, light-hearted, and as irresponsible as a child, no one could help liking him, or suspect him of any deliberate intention to defraud anyone; he simply did so in the same way that a child would steal jam, not criminally, but, nevertheless, successfully. From teacher of riding, to doing the wheel notes upon a small weekly called the Courier, was but a step upward, or downward, it is hard to determine which, and then James' chances for making a coup broadened. Upon the assurances of Revell that the time had come in New York, wheeling when we should arise and in our social pride smite the souls of the 400 with envy, we determined to give a ball, or rather Revell did, and we agreed to pay for it. We carried out our part of the programme, we paid, and paid liberally, but he only carried out the money he had collected from us, and when we went to the hall at which the event was to have taken place, we found it dark, and an irate proprietor on guard at the door, who declared no money, no fun, and requested us to pay in advance in case of fire, or otherwise he would have to keep us standing outside in the rain. We talked with each other, argued with the proprietor, and collectively and individually blessed the missing Revell, but the falling rain drowned out alike enthusiasm, argument and disgust, and we eventually went home, agreeing that you were not always sure of having been to to a ball until the band played "Home, Sweet Home," and the lights were turned out. Afterwards the missing manager returned, pleaded poverty and misfortune for his actions, was forgiven by many of us, and he started over again as an originator of a female beauty show as a dime museum attraction, but again tempted, he again fell, and until this I had not known whether he was dead or alive. Revell was a character in his way, expensive to us pioneers in wheeling, but then in his own peculiar fashion a necessity to us, since he enabled us to cut our eye-teeth at an early age, and in a manner that made New York ever afterwards an unprofitable field for wheeling adventurers to exploit in. I hope that Revell will not fail to remember that the climate of New Mexico is not suited for any similar line of action to the foregoing on his part, as the inhabitants have an unpleasant habit of hanging a man first and trying him afterwards, that makes the matter of conviction or acquittal one of no special interest to the accused.

WHEN the history of '91 comes to be written, I wonder if the events to be then recorded will be as favorable to cycling as those of its predecessor were; if they are, then the advance of cycling will indeed be beyond compare, but I much fear that the boom of inflated and cushioned tires will not be followed by any other marked improvement in the speed and comfort of the wheel; but who knows; only a fool will attempt to foretell what the future will bring forth in the world of wheels, and any one who values the reputation they may possess is not going to be caught in any attempt at prophesying in regard to any such uncertain thing as the possibilities of the wheel.

I MET a rider one time in the South, who had an original idea of what an amateur was. It appears that at the county fair a set of races were held for cash prizes varying from ten dollars down, and my informant was the winner of one of them, and another local light carried off the honors of the other. The managers of the fair then tried to get up a race between the two, when my acquaintance declined to compete because he said the other rider was a professional. Here was something that none of the officials ever heard of, and they asked him to explain how, when both he and the other rider had raced for money on the day before, that he remained an amateur and the other fellow became a professional. Putting his hand in his pocket he pulled out a savings-bank book and showed that he had that day deposited $10, the amount of the prize won, while he scornfully said the other man had "spent his money,' and that was the difference.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"ARIEL."

THE first head to fall under the recent sentence of the Racing Board is that of W. F. West of the Century Wheelmen who was accused of having sold a bicycle won as a prize. The notice of his expulsion was sent him last Friday. I had a conversation with Mr. Gideon, the Philadelphia Representative on the Board, in which he expressed the opinion that several others would follow West, although a number of the other men would in all probability be reinstated.

THE receptions given by the Century Wheelmen, Quaker City Wheelmen and Park Avenues on New Year's Day were the most successful yet attempted in this city. All day long the three club houses were thronged with visitors. Situated as they are within a radius of two or three blocks, a constant stream of wheelmen strolled from one to the other, in each case partaking of the cheer that had been provided. And then in the evening the crowd united and overflowed upon the defenceless quarters of the Oxfords, who good naturedly attempted to squeeze them all into the house with the usual result, but it was a happy party, and the evening passed merrily.

MR. W. S. MCCARTY of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club, who has been connected with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad some time, leaves this week to take up his residence in Irwin, Penn., a new industrial town near Pittsburg. Mr. McCarty will probably join the Keystone Bicycle Club of that place, to which he will be a valuable adjunct.

NOW my dear "Flyer," do you know I think it very unkind of you to bring up against me an illustration of long ago as apparently of the current period. When I spoke of "that small but growing club recently formed in the vicinity of Broad and Columbia avenue," did it not correctly describe the C. C's? But that you know was ever so many moons off, and the vigorous growth of your club has been noted with great pleasure by yours truly.

TAXIS and Zimmerman propose to ride as a team on the tandem bicycle this coming season, and with practice they ought to make some of the others hustle. Their successful attempt on the five mile road record made over the Lancaster Pike course last fall was done the second time they had mounted a machine together. The news of the removal of Zimmerman's suspension was received with great pleasure in this city, where he has many friends.

THE Century Wheelmen claim credit for the largest club run for the year. On New Year's Eve twenty men under the leadership of Captain C. W. Dalsen, braved the snow and ice with which the streets were covered, riding to the park entrance and back to celebrate the advent of '91. The Park Avenues were there also, as more than one weary sleeper discovered upon being aroused from his slumbers by the wails of the calliopes and the shrieks of the club yells, and with them came representatives of a number of the other clubs, all of whom contributed their share to making night hideous.

THIS week the Quaker City Wheelmen have a whist tournament at the club house; the annual meeting and election of the North West Wheelmen comes off; and the Time Wheelmen hold their theatre party at the Chestnut Street Opera House.

THE European tour mentioned by me in last week's issue has developed into an assured fact; President O. F. Bunnell of the Park Avenue Wheelmen is the projector, and it has been decided that the party will leave May 5th for a two months' jaunt abroad, returning in time for the League meet, which is now thought will be held in Detroit the beginning of July. A number of names have already been secured—nearly all of them Park Avenue men by the way—and it is thought that quite a pleasant little party can be made up. It is more than likely that Draper of the Athletic Club Schuylkill Navy and Park Avenue Wheelmen may accompany the tourists, in which case he will probably get himself in condition and do a little racing while across the water.

THE Century Wheelmen—whose entertainment committee is nothing if not original—are proposing for their delectation and that of their many friends a novelty in the entertainment line, being nothing more nor less than a regular minstrel show, which is to be held in the wheel room on the 16th of this month. Lew Simmons, one of the old timers in minstrelsy, will contribute his mite toward the evening's pleasure.

NEW HAVEN.

"ELM CITY."

A VERY enjoyable time was had at the club house of the New Haven Bicycle Club Christmas Eve when a Christmas tree was enjoyed by the members. Everybody had a present on the tree, and some two or three; the presents were not valuable, but were hits on the different members. Mr. Thompson, our President, who is a temperance (?) man got a snake and a bottle of wine, and others equally good and appropriate were greatly enjoyed by the crowd, before which each member had to open his gift.

THE Rovers Club here also had a Christmas tree for its members, the presents being distributed New Year's Eve. They number about eighty now and are a League club. Mr. Geo. F. Booth, President of the Rovers, has been appointed a Representative at large.

WITH the commencement of the New Year the New Haven Bicycle Club changed the manner of conducting club business; instead of a monthly meeting of the club, all business is now transacted by a Board of Governors composed of eleven men. The officers were elected for the ensuing year.

CONSIDERABLE interest is taken in the games of the Connecticut Wheelmen's Polo League. Bridgeport leads at present, Hartford and New Haven tied for second place, and Meriden third. The Bridgeports have the best team in the League.

PAULINE HALL plays here Saturday evening, January 10th, and a theatre party from the New Haven Bicycle Club of fifty will attend in a body in uniform.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

"TREB."

UNDER the heading, "Notes of Interest," the Chicago Bearings says: "The Brooklyn Bicycle Club has withdrawn from the League." Pray enlighten we Easteners how this is to be defined. The Brooklyns left the L. A. W. some years ago, and are now members of the Wheelmen's Bowling League, with no idea of resigning. A club whose name began with a B left the League in Buffalo a short time ago.

THE euchre party and dance to be given by the Brooklyn Bicycle Club on January 26th, will take the place of the cotillon which the club had intended giving.

AT the annual meeting of the Riverside Wheelmen last Friday evening officers were elected for the year 1891.

THE Orange Wheelmen at their meeting on Saturday evening elected officers for the ensuing year.

WEARING a well feigned smile William F. Murphy, of the New York Athletic Club, is met around New York most every day, and in conversation appears to the casual observer entirely indifferent as to the outcome of his case, but this is not really so, as W. F. Murphy is one of the most anxious of men as to how his case will be disposed of. He is particularly wrathy at present over what he calls being misrepresented in an interview in one of the New York City dailies, where he says he is quoted as going to raise a fuss if Windle was re-instated, which he says is untrue. The trouble with Murphy is he talks too much; ever since his suspension he has been filling reporters up with matter, I should judge from the papers, and then personally half-denying the matter afterward. The wisest course after all the unpleasant developments during his suspension would be for him to keep very quiet.

CHICAGO.

"WAYNE SCOTT."

TWENTY-THREE resignations from the Washington Club at their last meeting. W. L Whitson, C. E. Graham and G. W. Cornell some time ago committed an infringement of the rules of the club. They were summoned before the Board of Directors to show cause why they should not be punished. This resulted in the expulsion of the first two and suspension for thirty days of the latter. As a special meeting called to accept or reject the decisions of the board, the law and order side were in the majority and the Boards action was sustained. Then it was that twenty-three of the members tendered their resignations and had them accepted so quickly that they were considerably surprised. The club has more than half as many applications for membership now. They will be stronger than ever in the future.

NEW YEAR'S EVE the Washingtons gave a musicale, an informal card party followed and supper was served by Eckhart.

NEW YEAR'S EVE the Lincolns gave their first annual club dinner. The club parlors are 41x17 feet. Two long tables were spread in these rooms and at 10.30 a merry crowd of seventy-five men were seated. A good old fashioned turkey dinner with all the "fixin's" occupied their attention until nearly the close of '90. Toasts (dry) were answered to by different members. 1891 was then ushered in with blare of trumpet and sound of guns. For two hours and more following the members indulged in an informal stag party.

THE Illinois Club gave one of their receptions at Martine's West Side Hall, New Year's night. This was their third, and like its predecessors both this winter and last, was a very swell affair. Fitzgerald's incomparable orchestra provided the music. A. J. Street and Miss Oswald led the grand march, followed by full eighty couples. Full dress it was, and the costumes of the ladies were very pretty. Supper was served during the evening.

NEW YEAR'S EVE the Chicagos held a watch night dance at Rosalie Hall. Fifty couples were in attendance and that a good time was enjoyed by all goes without saying. Supper was served in the club house next door.

NEW YEAR'S DAY Munger, Roe, Van Sicklen, Barrett and Thorne rode (?) to Pullman through the mud and rain. Walked might come nearer to the truth. The cause of all this mud slinging was a "hot mince pie and a bottle of wine" at the other end offered by the landlord of the Hotel Florence to the first man in. Birdie Munger was the lucky man; he came in a good ten minutes ahead of the rest.

TUESDAY EVE, Dec. 30th the Englewoods gave a ladies' night. Dancing, card playing, pool and billiards served to pass away a very pleasant evening.

THE Lake Views have raised their dues to $1.25 per month, $1.00 if paid before the tenth. They will devote all their time and attention to securing a club house in the early spring. The Evanston Avenue House they decided not to take on account of the location being too far north.

THE Lincoln Board of Directors have secured the services of Mr. Jno. West as gymnasium instructor. Free instruction in all branches of gymnasium work will be given to club members on Tuesday and Friday evenings. The Lincoln's gymnasium is 50x25 feet and two stories, furnished with everything a first-class gymnasium should contain. President Knapp of the Equitable Gas Co. has proven a veritable Santa Claus, furnishing the "gym" with hundreds of dollars worth of needed apparatus.

THE Æolus Club have an eruption at their next meeting, when the club will be purged of a number of unruly members. This is the crowd who black balled our Cook County Coroner when he applied for membership, to spite one of the officers for censuring them because they gambled in the club house. The members who will resign will form a rival club called the Columbia Cyclers. They have rented a cottage near the Æolus club house. The Æolus will not be hurt at all by these resignations, as they have good backing and applications constantly coming in.

C. P. SMITH of the Illinois Club is an expert in wrestling. He has formed a class of club members and for two months will instruct them in this art. He will then offer a medal valued at twenty-five dollars, to be wrestled for by members of this class.

THE Illinois Club will give a stag party and athletic entertainment on Jan. 17th. Some time ago they gave an entertainment of this kind which proved so successful that another has been arranged. This club have two nights a week a gymnasium class of from thirty to forty who receive free instruction in all branches of gymnasium work.

NEW JERSEY NOTES.

"PALISADES."

CHIEF CONSUL BROWN has appointed T. F. Merseles, Jr., of Jersey City and John H. Hinners of Edgewater as State Representatives. Both of these gentlemen are enthusiastic League members, Mr. Merseles being one of the older members thereof, and Mr. Hinners, while not so long in the ranks, has proven himself a worker as captain of the Bergen Co. Wheelmen. Mr. Merseles served for a few years as a member of the Transportation Committee, and his good work as a member of that committee is yet fresh in the minds of many wheelmen.

THE Passaic Wheeling Club has widened its scope, changed its name, hired quarters and hustled for new members. Result—name is now Passaic Athletic Club, 119 members, well appointed gymnasium, bath, pool and billiard tables, and a lively interest exhibited by all. As the officers of this club are all wheelmen, it is likely that the wheeling feature of the club will remain prominent.

THE Passaic City Wheeling and Athletic Association was organized much the same way as the above club but some time previous. They have 165 members, beautiful club house, fine gymnasium, bowling alleys, billiard tables, baths and all club blessings. Its social features are most prominent at present.

ABOUT twelve inches of beautiful snow has caused cycling to take a back seat. The article in the last issue was written before the fall of snow.

THE Palisade Wheelmen held their regular semi-annual election for officers this month. Their first reception and ball takes place January 14th, and judging from the number of invitations distributed, it should prove a success.

NEW JERSEY has over 1000 L. A. W. members and was the "Banner" State on renewals at the first of this season. Her members take an active interest in all League matters, and yet it is true that New Jersey has never had a Representative on the Executive Board of the League. Why should we not have a representation, and why will not the name of Chief Consul Brown commend itself to the National Assembly as such Representative, or even better as Second Vice President?

SECRETARY J. V. L. PIERSON, of the Bloomfield Cyclers, is wintering in the "Sunny South," at Macon, Ga.

ATTENTION is called to an article in another column by "New Jersey."

DAYTON, O.

"EAGLE."

CHRISTMAS EVE was spent in various ways by the Dayton (Ohio) Bicycle Club members; some going to dances, while others whiled away the evening at the club rooms. However, the majority congregated at the Octo Club rooms, which are in addition to the Dayton Bicycle Club rooms. Here the boys lost control of themselves, playing foot ball with each other, and a game of base ball with dishes, etc. Towards midnight an elegant lunch of raw potatoes, sliced cheese and a few drinks (not beer or Tom and Jerry) was placed at their disposal. After this refreshing meal, indoor sports were again indulged in. Jigs, waltzs, polkas were played on the piano, a great pedesdal act was performed on the stove, and the greatest of all feats, a double hand stand on the billiard table was shown. The boys then departed for home, and none who were there can ever forget Christmas Eve of "90."

NEW YEAR'S the club wished to invite all its friends, and for their sake kept open house. In spite of the mean, damp and rainy weather the club rooms were crowded. A most tempting collatiou was spread in the parlors. A marked feature of athletic and bicycle clubs is the cordiality which is ever present where such men congregate, and the members of this club proved no exception to the rule. "Hail fellow well met" is most manifestly their motto. It was very gratifying to note the presence of quite a number of ladies—friends of the wheelmen and their trusty steeds.

SEVERAL selections were rendered on the mandolin and guitar by Messrs. Speck and Whiteside accompanied by B. Gerber on the piano, which were pronounced excellent by the enthusiastic audience. Several ladies also entertained the company with vocal and piano music.

THE rooms were tastefully decorated with cedars of every description draped from window to window, and graceful festoons of cedars were suspended from the chandeliers and ceiling. Clusters of palm leaves waved good cheer from their places on the walls. Evergreens of every description drooped from cabinets and pictures and every available nook evidenced the decorative taste of the entertainers.

ABOUT four o'clock in the afternoon a number of the members of the Jefferson, Jackson and Garfield clubs, headed by a lively drum corp, paid their respects to the Dayton Bicycle Club and mingled in the festivities. Mr. Nolan on behalf of the visiting clubs made a few brief and appropriate remarks, expressing thanks for the cordial reception, which was answered by cheers of the bicyclers.

EVERY visitor was presented with a beautiful souvenir in the shape of a beautiful bow ribbon of the colors of the club—"orange and blue"—on which was printed the following: "Happy New Year, 1891—Dayton Bicycle Club."

THE attendance was about 800 during the day. As the guests dispersed, expressions of appreciation of the efforts of the club and well wishes for a prosperous New Year were heard on every side.

DETROIT.

"JUDGE."

CLARENCE (Luggage Carrier) SMITH is already booking tourists for his European tour next summer. The number will be limited to twenty-two. Passage is engaged for that number on the City of Berlin, leaving the 29th of July. Eight persons have already agreed to go. Chief Consul Richmond and wife and Griff are among the number. The cost for 80 days will be $300. The following is a summary of the tour: Start at Liverpool, England, to Birmingham, Coventry, Warwick, Kenilworth Castle, Stratford-on-Avon, Oxford, London, New Haven, across the Channel to Dieppe, France, Rouen, Paris, Geneva, Lucerne, Strasburg, down the Rhine, Cologne, Brussels, Battlefield of Waterloo and Antwerp, Oct. 3, and home via Red Star Line. To all who go on this tour with this veteran wheelman I can assure a grand time. He is full of fun, an excellent companion, and business from the word go.

FOR the last few Sundays Griff has been giving Sunday afternoon talks. It is hardly necessary to comment on them; everybody knows how Griff can talk. I wish to give Mr. Jos. Bressler and brother great praise; their stereoscopic views greatly increased the force of the speaker's descriptions. In last Sunday's talk a view was shown of one of the many pools in Yellowstone Park. Lawson in all sincerity asked "if fish lived in these pools." Before the speaker could reply Engells cried out, "ah, yes, Pool sharks!" A roar greeted this sally, and Engells will hereafter be called the club wit.

A LETTER from a well-known Boston wheelman is published elsewhere in these columns. It is a better reply than I can make to the attack made on me by 14,562, and attack that showed mean, low malice and green-eyed jealousy on the face of it. By the way, if the gentleman (?) has been "bone-whacking" such a great length of time, how is it that he has such a high number. This one statement brands him as a man not regardful of truth. I might add that the letter referred to was a complete surprise to me, as the editor can certify it was sent to "Judge," in care of him, and then forwarded to me. "Pegasus," I thank you.

NEW YEAR'S was spent very quietly here. At midnight, as the new year came in the boys congregated on the club house steps and gave the club yell several times and three cheers for Detroit in '91, and then repaired to the "lower regions" of the club and ate and drank to the health of "Billy," the janitor. It rained steadily all day, but to-day is snowing heavily.

To every League Club and to all the other unattached clubs we could get track of the club sent a New Year's greeting. If your club did not get one it is a mistake; send us the address. [We received one, and it is a most charming little souvenir.—ED.]

AT the Sunday afternoon "talk," word was received of the supposed mortal illness of Miss Emma Abbott, an honorary member of

IT IS A FACT

THAT YOU WANT AN

Eagle Mileage Book

FOR 1891.

Our mileage book for 1890 was so popular and so much appreciated, that we shall issue it again for 1891, and on the same terms, viz: Free to all on application.

Do not stand on the order of your coming, but send in your name, and at the same time remember that

YOU ALSO WANT AN EAGLE

FOR YOUR 1891 MOUNT.

The Eagle is so popular and so much appreciated that we shall continue to sell it at the same price, viz: $135.

The Eagle and the Mileage Book go well together. On the one you can make the fastest time and cover the greatest number of miles, and in the other you can keep the best record of it.

SOMETHING ELSE TO LOOK OUT FOR.

During last year we had considerable to say concerning small steering wheels. We will have quite a little more to say on the same subject in '91. True, it is early, very early during the new year, dear reader, but early as it is, we urge you to keep your eyes open for the proverbial straws which make their appearance along about this time. There will be many of them fluttering in the breeze and every one of them will contain an object lesson. You will see many "positively perfect" wheels of last year so changed as to mystify you; you will see an abundance of "only (on paper) practical spring frames;" you will see the first wheels of many new makers, and, if you are keenly alive, you will notice that they are very generally built with small steering wheels; you will notice, too, if you are wide awake, that more than one of the older makers will present small steering wheeled safeties. There may be "ifs," and "buts," and ' ands" connected with it, but the small wheel will be there just the same. And, reader, you will be sensible and logical, and you will draw your own conclusions from all this. We want to send you our new catalogue, too. We want you to study the lines, the design, the principles of construction and general make-up of our wheels. It does not necessarily follow that you will purchase either a Rambler or a Champion, but the book will interest you, of that we feel sure. It may set you to thinking,—it may create a desire to try our wheel. If it does no more, we will not carp. The catalogue is large, it is comprehensive, it is artistic. If you desire a copy, drop us a postal; we'll do the rest.

the Detroit Wheelmen. Miss Abbott is greatly beloved by every member of the club, and a motion was immediately put and carried, ordering a message of condolence wired at once. "Griff" spoke feelingly of her beautiful character and useful life, and a silent prayer was wafted up to heaven from each heart, praying that she may stay a little longer. "S. F."

DETROIT "Judge" is about right; we do sometimes (particularly after reading the accounts of sleighing, skating and winter parties in the merry East), long for a little ice or snow just for a change. And how like a lot of insane people the people here in San Francisco do act when once in seven or eight years we do have a little fall of snow. Men, women and children get out and snowball each other, even the very dignified members of the City Council. I remember having seen a grave and reverend City Father throwing snow balls near the City Hall, and a very good shot he was too. He learned, I suppose, when he was a boy Do you know I believe the wheelmen of this coast would be far more enthusiastic in cycling matters were we compelled to stow away our wheels (not "silent steeds" this time) for three or four months every year, instead of being able to enjoy a ride almost any day out of the 365. Between the showers in the fall and spring is really the most delightful season for wheeling with us, as the sun is always at its best, warm and pleasant, and the roads usually in No. 1 condition.

THE Bay Citys hold a smoker the third Saturday in January. Needless to say a good time will be enjoyed by all attending. Probably the musical team of which we have heard so much will make its appearance then.

WE note from a circular recently issued by the Bay Citys that they intend holding a series of road races during the spring, being for their own members only; one or two scorches each month; also that they have changed their old time suit of gray to one of dark green, with very plain trimmings, and very similar I believe to that of the Harlem Wheelmen. They on the second Tuesday in January also start another whist tournament. This with their billiard matches, etc., ought to keep them busy for some time.

THE Oak Leaf Wheelmen of Stockton held a "high jinks" for their members some time ago, and judging from all accounts was highly satisfactory to all interested. The club has a membership of about seventy-five, partly social members, and is in a very prosperous condition, They have changed their club rooms from Hunter street, where they were when the last meet was held at Stockton, to Masonic Hall. We wish them all success in their new quarters.

THE Division Officers are travelling in hard lines from all accounts that reach us. It is a pretty hard job to "draw blood from a stone," more particularly so when the "stone" happens to be a hard one and don't want to be "drawn," and certainly without money the Board can accomplish but very little. The members of the Division, at any rate those who received so much benefit from the League last year, ought to be willing to "pungle" a little as suggested in the Secretary's letter, and so tide the officers over their temporary difficulties.

THE new roller skating rink has had several exhibitions by Maltby lately, and seems to be frequented a good deal by the wheelmen.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

MR. F. T. MERRILL of Portland, Oregon, tells the following story on himself. It seems that when he concluded to come East a brother of his gave him a list of some thirty relatives whom he was charged to visit. As the relatives named were rather scattered, Mr. Merrill felt as he was reading the list that he had a contract on hand, but when the final instructions were read to the effect that he "get off at Bucksport, Me., and visit a graveyard containing the remains of many of his ancestors," Mr. Merrill collapsed. "In the name of old Boreas himself" said Mr. Merrill, "did my brother expect me to shovel through five feet of solid snow and brave the blasts of a Maine blizzard with the thermometer at 'steen below zero? I'm fond of excitement and I have the utmost respect for my ancestors, but for whom I would not be in existence, but I do draw the line at burrowing in the snow in order that I may be "exhilarated" at the sight of my ancestors' graves. I have enough live relatives to engage my leisure time pleasantly."

WE are in receipt of the following mileage records: Mr. A. M. Beers' (of Everett, Mass) riding record for the past three years 1888, 6888; 1889, 8549; 1890, 5565. Mr. A. W. Swan of New Bedford has a record of 6055 for the year 1890.

MR. F. T. MERRILL of Portland, Oregon, is in Boston this week on business. It is now some four years since Mr. Merrill was East and the kind of climate he finds here does not come up to the Oregon kind.

AMONG our cycle exchanges there is none more welcome than the American Athlete, published and edited by that brightest of cycling scribes, Arthur H. MacOwen. The success of the Athlete under Mr. MacOwen's fostering care is deserved, and we wish him and his paper continued prosperity.

THE following from Hawkshaw: "Dr. Richardson in a recent lecture advised cycling for lunatics; in doing so the doctor probably thought he was advocating something entirely new, but he wasn't. Cycling has always had more than its just share of them, and we who are sane owe Dr. Richardson no thanks for his endeavor to increase the number of them. Who that is charitable can look upon the ballet dancer rider with his frame clothed in tights as anything else but a lunatic; surely he is not sane? Who, but one demented would race through a crowded park or city street as many wheelmen do? Who but an idiot would deck himself out in all the colors of the rainbow, and with ribbons flying, parade before the public like a strutting jack-daw, imagining that the onlookers admired him? These are but a very few of the most aggravated specimens of lunatics that cycling is burdened with, but goodness knows, even this small list is large enough, without anyone advocating any increase of it. If Dr. Richardson really has any kindly feeling towards either cycling or lunatics, let him show it for both by advising lunatics to forsake, not adopt, wheeling."

THE monthly meeting of the Cyclers Social Whist Club of Malden and Everett was held last week Monday evening at the residence of Mr. Gilbert McArthur, Oak Grove, Malden. The first prizes were awarded to Miss Beers and Mr. Kirkwood, and the second prizes to Miss Dillingham and Mr. Beers. The next meeting will be held Monday evening, January 26, at the home of Mr. Sam'l Dillingham, Vine street, Everett.

W. S. MALTBY is in Portland, Oregon; he is giving exhibitions of fancy riding in that city and Seattle.

THE following pretty sentiment is the subject matter of a beautiful Christmas and New Year's card received from Mr. Henry G. Priest of the Quadrant Tricycle Co.

"True friendship lives
And lives forever,
And chance and change
Shall reach it never."

To our New England readers: We are watching our mailing department carefully, and we find that if there be delay in delivery it is not the fault of the mailing department, but that the delay is somewhere in the post office. The Boston post office officials assure us that they are forwarded from this city promptly.

THE "Club Grumbler" sends us the following: "Seventeen members of the Norumbega Wheel Club of Waltham, Mass., slipped up to Bailey's at South Natick from Waltham the other night over the old familiar road. Music, singing, recitations and eating made the hours glide pleasantly by until near midnight when we "glode" rapidly home, well pleased with the first of the series of winter cycling meets. The supper, by the way, was one of Bailey's usual "feeds." The piano, however, seemed to be a trifle flat in the six upper octaves; the lower octave we forgot to notice, so do not care to make assertions concerning that part of the instrument.

THE annual banquet and election of officers of the Binghamton, N. Y., Wheel Club occurred on the evening of January 1st. After the appointment of road officers by Capt. Earle the members present adjourned to Fowler's Cafe where an elegant spread awaited them, and it took the boys two hours to do the meal justice. Landlord Fowler, who is a valued member, had decorated the dining room very tastefully with the club colors, and every one went home declaring they would be on hand at the next annual. The club has a large membership, and it is expected that in a few months it wi become an L. A. W. club.

AN Irish bull by an Irish paper is appropriate, quoth the Irish Cyclist, as follows: "Bicycles will be useful in war because a man riding one can run away without being heard!"

A WRITER from Cincinnati, signing himself "Non-Contestan , takes the following item from our paper: "So far as heard from, F. J. Allsup of Cincinnati, Ohio, stands at the head of the mileage record scorchers with the very tidy figures of 9808 for six months' riding, from May 1st to Nov. 1st. His opponent (name not given) rode 7500 miles in the same time." "Non-Contestant" then proceeds to analyze the claim made by Mr. Allsup of 2670 miles for the month of October. "There were 31 day in October, out of which it rained at least 7, leaving 24 riding days; assuming, however, that the longer rides on 4 Sundays would compensate for time lost on 4 rainy days, 28 days remain in which this 2670 miles could be ridden. This requires an average of 95.4 miles per day, which we will assume was ridden at the rate of 12 miles per hour (pretty fast riding for the time and distance.) Each day, for four weeks, must have been spent somewhat in this wise: Work, as claimed, in business, 9h.; noon hour (without riding), 1h; to and from work, 30m.; dressing and undressing, three times a day, 1h.; breakfast and supper, 40m.; bath and rubdown before retiring, 20m.; 95.4 miles riding, 7h. 57m.; sleep, 3h. 33m.; total, 24h. The person believing that this can be done by any living man is a fit subject for an inquiry as to his sanity. If the rider never ate, washed or dressed he would have but about five and one-half hours for sleep!! I know that some people at first believed that the 'Big Six' from Chicago rode from Indianapolis to Cincinnati in one day, but that is mere 'baby's play' compared to this alleged performance."

ERNST VON MEYSENBURG, son of Baron Von Meysenburg, the Austro-Hungarian Consul at New Orleans, collided with a street car, Dec. 29, and was instantly killed. The boy was a beginner, and in racing with other boys he lost control of his bicycle, and colliding with the car he fell under the wheels and was crushed to death. The car driver was exonerated from blame.

CAPTAIN DIMON of the Century Wheelmen is addicted to black tights (Hawkshaw please note), and on the occasion of the club Christmas tree he was given a very pretty ballet dancer's skirt.

HAVE you ordered a copy of "Cycleland" by "Secretary"? The most delightful series of sketches ever published, fifty cents, Wheelman Co., 12 Pearl St., Boston.

THE New York Express says: "If there is one thing beyond another which seems to get a driver's blood up, particularly if he is young, it is to have a bevy of bicyclists hover around him as he trots along through the park, keeping alongside without apparently any undue exertion, and darting past his horse when so inclined with the greatest ease. It takes a good horse to get away from a wheel, and cyclists know it."

THE Berkshire County Wheelmen, of Pittsfield, Mass., have sold out their lease and personal property to a temperance and literary organization. The purchase includes the furniture, billiard-tables, etc., formerly owned by the wheelmen.

MR. A. G. MOTT is mentioned prominently as a candidate for Vice President of the L. A. W. Well, what is the matter with Mott? Can any one say nay to the nomination?

ZIMMERMAN, so the Ledger of Philadelphia says, will commence suit against the paper which first started the story of his selling that race at Washington.

MR. F. WHITE, of the White Cycle Co., has returned from Europe after an extended stay "over there."

"THE Melbourne bicycle club has framed a new amateur definition. A man may accept money and still be a 'Simon pure,' only those who actually live by their winnings being considered professionals. Melbourne is evidently the place for our suspended racing men."—Exchange.

MR. ROBERT P. SCOTT speaks of the use of the bicycle by ladies as the "most daring innovation." It may be daring, but it is an innovation that has come to stay and increase.

THE annual meeting of the National Assembly will be held at Willard's Hotel, Washington, on February 16

THE uniform committee has selected a very neat cloth for the new L. A. W. uniform, and Divisions may now appoint League tailors to make it up. It is very probably that every large division will have a tailor of its own, while there will be as before a National tailor to whom any person may send orders. The Secretary will sell the cloth the coming season.

THE proposed basis of amalgamation between the Citizens' Bicycle Club and the New York Athletic Club is as follows: That the Citizens' Club consolidate with the New York Club. That as soon as the consolidation is effected, the members of the Citizens' Club shall become active members of the New York Athletic Club. That the present club-house of the Citizens' Club shall be maintained for three years after the consolidation, and that it shall be open to the members of the Athletic Club, as the Athletic Club building will be open to the members of the Citizens' Club. At the end of three years the present club-house is to be given up.

MR. ISAAC B. POTTER called in this office last Tuesday on his way home from Portland, Me., where he had been confined by sickness for some two weeks. Mr. Potter left New York about Christmas to indulge in a little hunting in the Maine woods. Just before starting he fell and hurt himself, as he thought only slightly; the injury, however, proved more serious, and instead of proceeding on the hunting expedition he had to go to bed. He is O. K. now, though he does not like going to Portland to be sick.

MR. W. F. WEST of Philadelphia is adjudged a "professional" for selling his prizes.

THE Clark Cycle Company, of Baltimore, Md., January 2, made a deed of trust for the benefit of creditors to Thomas R. Clendinin, trustee, who gave bond in the penalty of $30,000, indicating assets at half that amount. The trustee stated yesterday that the liabilities would not be in excess of the assets, and that the company would be enabled to pay its obligations in full. Capt. Philip R. Clark is a preferred creditor to the amount of $15,087.65.

C. H. Peck of 105 40th street, Chicago, claims a mileage record of 7,000 miles for the year 1890.

THE annual ride of the New York Wheelmen to Tarrytown to secure the bottle of wine offered by the proprietor of the Franklin House brought out about twenty men, representing the Harlem, Citizens, New York and Riverside Clubs. The start was made at midnight. The roads were horrible; only half a dozen men finished. The first three men in were R. B. Morrison, Geo. M. Nisbett, Geo. H. Bird.

"In statu quo," that is the condition of the suspension cases.

"SECRETARY'S" charming collection of sketches under the title of "Cycleland" is meeting with a ready sale. "The best thing of the kind ever published." Fifty cents, Wheelman Co., 12 Pearl St., Boston.

MR. H. T. HEARSEY of Indianapolis, Ind., was in Boston this week. He called on us and reported business in his section as being most promising for the coming season.

THE Manhattan Athletic Club and the New York Bicycle Club are informally negotiating an amalgamation scheme. The matter has not yet received the official notice of either organization.

MR. E. F. LECATO, late of the Clark Cycle Co., Baltimore, has accepted a position with A. G. Spalding & Bros. of Chicago. Mr. LeCato will have charge of the Chicago cycle department of that firm.

CHIEF CONSUL MOTT'S name appears as one of the stockholders of the Clark Cycle Co., and much unnecessary sympathy has been extended to him over the supposed heavy loss in consequence of the suspension of the Clark Cycle Co. Considering the fact that "Good old" Mott is only interested to the extent of a $10 share of stock, we do not imagine his family will suffer for want of the necessaries of life.

THE good old Syracuse (N. Y.) Club will hold its annual banquet on Monday evening, January 19.

CHIEF CONSUL HOLM of Missouri sends out his "compliments of the season" in the form of a handsomely engraved card. Same to you Robert.

ABOUT forty of the workmen at the Union Cycle Factory in Highlandvile, have started a new cycle club, and a meeting for the choice of officers will be held next Saturday afternoon.

MR. NELSON A. BRADT of Johnstown, Pa., started on January 1st to roll up a year's mileage of 10,000 miles for 1891. Mr. Bradt has cut out a task the performance of which we do not envy him.

"SECRETARY" sends us a little "reminiscence" with his compliments to "Munchausen, Jr." It will appear next week.

THE good results to be derived from a wise highway improvement law are exemplified in Union County, New Jersey, where such a law has just been given a fair trial. At an expense of $10,000 per mile nearly thirty miles of country roads have been put in fine condition, and as a result where people were leaving on account of the bad roads the population is now increasing. The expense has been provided for by the issue of long term bonds, thus rendering payments easy and distributing the burden upon future as well as present users of the road.

THE Zig Zag Bicycle Club of Buffalo, N. Y., will hold its fifth grand ball at Orpheus Parlors, Music Hall, on the evening of January 15. We desire to acknowledge receipt of complimentary.

THE Hyde Park (Mass.) Ramblers held their second select assembly in Everett Hall last Wednesday evening. We regret we could not avail ourselves of the kind invitation to be present.

RICHARD DAVIS has accomplished a feat which is not likely to be soon equalled. He has won the one, five and 10-mile championships and the great Australia wheel race, the value of his prizes being about $4000.

"CHAIRMAN DAVOL'S BOMB".

Editor Bicycling World: The explosion of Chairman Davol's bomb seems to have excited every fellow in the wheeling world who possesses a pen to seize it and write something on the subject. In all the mass of this literatur that has come under my notice the writers seem to take it for granted that the men now under suspension are solely to blame, and no one attempts to look beyond them and locate where it may belong the responsibility for the existence of a state of affairs that has made these suspensions necessary. I am, therefore, also impelled to take up my pen and say my say, hoping to open up a new line of discussion, and possibly do some good.

Many wheelmen who have had the best interests of the sport at heart have watched for years past, with feeling of regret and alarm, the gradual lowering of the amateur standard in the minds of large numbers of riders, and the lack of consistent effort on the part of League officers to check the tide.

In every group of wheelmen, whether organized as a club or not, are many unruly fellows who have been playing fast and loose across the dividing line between amateurship and professionalism; divided in their affections, by their enjoyment of amateur standing on one side and their love of professional gain on the other. Such men cannot or do not of themselves make that nice distinction which governs the true amateur and keeps him so far away from the line as to be above suspicion.

They have constantly trespassed on forbidden ground, and when reminded of it and warned that such actions were in violation of the rules they deride the rules and express their contempt for the officials who should enforce them.

The examples they have set and the impunity they have enjoyed has been highly detrimental to the sport, in that it has disgusted all thinking men, and caused many who have become hopeless of a remedy to withdraw from League membership; while the more thoughtless elements dazzled by the successes and imbued with the spirit of contempt for authority of the law breakers, have set their standards accordingly.

Now in my opinion the responsibility for this state of affairs rests very largely, if not altogether, on the League officials, particularly on the Racing Board which has by its past actions fostered and brough about, unconsciously perhaps, the very conditions that it is now seeking to remedy. It is governed by a splendid set of rules, as clear and explicit as they can be made.

Has the Board lived up to these rules itself, or sought to enforce them uniformly on others?

Has it not rather by its own past weakness in the infliction of penalties, or when inflicted by their remission in violation of a rule or by-law that seems absolutely prohibitory, done much to bring the rules and the Board too into contempt, and invite the very delinquencies it now wishes to stop.

I have in mind particularly the practice of reinstating men who, having once been convicted of professionalism were expelled from the amateur ranks. I cannot from memory call off all the names of men in this category, but as examples can mention Prince Wells, Percy Stone, George M. Hendee, Grant Bell, F. F. Ives, E. P. Burnham and Charles E. Kluge.

This practice of the Board has been indulged in so many times and in such questionable cases that the only corrective measure in its control has lost its influence and force, and rank delinquents have boasted openly that suspension amounted to nothing serious, as it was no trouble at all to get back into the amateur fold.

How often, when declaiming and protesting against petitions for the restoration of a man who had deliberately made a professional of himself have we been met with the argument that he was no worse or not so bad as so and so, or so and so who had previously been re-instated.

In fact I have it from good authority that this is one of the stock arguments in the Board itself, and its members undertake to justify a present wrong action on the ground that the Board had previously committed an error as grievous or even worse than the one under contemplation. This of itself is enough to merit serious consideration, but the real question I think lies deeper.

How can a man who has once forfeited his amateurship be restored to his original standing in the League? By what authority or power does the Board undertake to restore to a man that which under the rules he has deliberately destroyed?

Amateurship once forfeited, is, under the rules, as much beyond recovery as the virtue of a fallen woman. It may be regretted, and repented of, but for all that it is gone. Article III, Section 9, of the constitution defines an amateur as follows: "An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized atheletic exercise for money, or other renumeration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description."

Now when an amateur is defined as one who has never engaged in, etc., it cannot mean one who has engaged in and then repenting of his action seeks to evade the penalty.

The language is plain, clear and strong; leaving no room for repentance, and certainly conferring no pardoning powers on the Board.

If it means anything at all it means that a man who has once become a professional must remain so until the Constitution and By-Laws are amended, and I question the power of the Board to forgive or condone his offence and restore him to amateur standing. Article IV of the By-Laws, Section 7, paragraph C, says:

"It shall be within the province of the Racing Board to receive the request of any wheelman for re-instatement as an amateur to make full inquiry and to decide the case upon its merits. A unanimous vote shall be required for re-instatement." I understand this to empower the Board to investigate such cases as may come before it, and if satisfied that the applicant has been wrongfully convicted to undo the wrong and re-instate him.

I do not think it confers any such general pardoning powers on the Board as it has exercised in the past, and if this is so the legality of many of its re-instatements may well be questioned.

It gives the Board power to right an injustice, but not to pardon an offence.

Under the present Constitution and By-Laws, amateurs only are eligible to membership, and as amateurs are those who have never been professsionals, the League itself cannot legally restore a professional to his amateur standing.

In the present crisis are not some of the questions here raised well worthy of consideration? They lie close to the root of the evil, and I should much like to have the views of others, especially our old and reliable wheel horse "Hawkshaw."

I do not wish it to be understood that this criticism is levelled at all the members of the present Racing Board. Most of them are new men in their positions and are not therefore responsible for the action of their predecessors, though in some recent cases they seem to have been too much influenced by the precedents established by earlier Boards. Until Davol struck his splendid blow at the evil, the case appeared to be as hopeless as of yore, and those of us who held that amateurship should be like the virtue of Cæsar's wife, above suspicion, could only wait and hope for better things. A champion seems to have been raised up for us at last, and as long as he pursues the course upon which he has entered fearlessly aud without favor to individuals or influence, he will be sustained by the very best sentiment in every amateur organization.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 31st, 1890. WM. A. SKINLLE.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Dear Judge: I have always read your notes in the BICYCLING WORLD with much interest, and have read your remarks about "Griff," and it never struck me that there was anything out of the way in the remarks. It now appears that a member (No. 15,462), is "protesting."

If you had spoken ill of a man it would be another thing, but don't stop your praise of your "Griff" just because some one is jealous of his exalted position.

It appears to me that it would be far more gentlemanly in No. 15,462 to have written directly to you instead of publishing his envy.

Hurrah for Detroit in Ninety-one!
For Eighteen Ninety is surely gone;
I live in Boston, but it's my plan,
To go to Detroit, that is, if I can.

"PEGASUS."

"THE SECOND VICE PRESIDENCY."

Editor Bicycling World: I heartily agree with the remarks made by "Veteran" in the WORLD of week before last, in regard to "Giving New Jersey a Show."

The New Jersey Division is fourth in the order of seniority and has always been loyal to the League, even when she sacrificed her own interests by so doing. Her members have held from time to time responsible positions, have proved themselves hard workers and true and faithful to the cause they represented.

New Jersey was among the first, if not the first, in percentage of renewals this year and has increased her membership nearly fifty per cent. She has taken the lead in road improvement legislation and has been most successful, having the finest riding districts of any Division in the League.

To her present Chief Consul Dr. G. Carleton Brown, a great deal of this good work is due. His persistent and persevering efforts and his untiring zeal has accomplished all and we feel sure that his work for the League would be done with the same spirit and zeal that has done so much for his Division. Dr. Brown has always been prominent in League work and has a host of friends among the members. He has been chairman of the Membership Committee, and of several important special committees in the old days, where, by his justness and straightforwardness he made countless friends. He is among the handful left who have been members of the National Assembly, since the fifth annual meet at Washington, D. C., and was on the ticket for Treasurer at the St. Louis meet but withdrew in favor of Illinois. He has for over four years (not consecutive), been Chief Consul of the New Jersey Division, and the Division is never in such good condition as when under his able management.

We think the time has come that good old New Jersey should be represented on the Executive Committee of the L. A. W. and we know of no one we would rather have to represent us or we think better fitted to fill the office than Chief Consul Brown of Elizabeth, N. J., as Second Vice President of the League of American Wheelmen. "NEW JERSEY."

DETROIT FOR THE NEXT LEAGUE MEET.

MANY of us have frequently visited the City of the Straits by railroad, and some of us have dared the sands of Southern Michigan, while others have, after a pleasant trip over Canadian roads, crossed the river from Winson and come in by that way, but whichever way we go we will all be there at the League meet which will take place at Detroit next July, and so having had the pleasure Christmas week of visiting that city, what I say I hope will be considered appropriate. Detroit has some asphalt streets, and on the whole, quite smooth pavements, while in all directions are nice country roads that are as good as the average roads in this country, and all wheelmen know what that means. The Detroit Wheelmen have a pleasant and interesting club house on one of those broad avenues, and the club is made up of lively, sociable cyclers who are always ready to welcome visiting wheelmen. The drives of Belle Isle make an easily reached ride, and surrounded by the usual charms found in suburban parks, will be a source of pleasure to all riders, while the interesting sights in which Detroit abounds will keep League members busy enough for two days, not to mention the convenient race track which will be the scene of some interesting races; surely we will all be there. Some of the runs which can be quickly taken are a visit to Winson, Manhattan Beach, Brighton, Ypsilanti, up to the Lake and over to the island. Hurrah! for the City of the Straits. "SETAGEC."

CENTURY WHEELMEN (PHILA.) NOTES.

THE total mileage of the Century Wheelmen of Philadelphia foots up 151,300 miles. The names of those who made 4000 miles and better are: Capt. Dalsen, 5042; Lieut. Keim, Jr., 5006; Lieut. Degre, 4500; Theo. Jones, 4426; E. Raymond, 4246, D. M. Keim secured the President's cup with a record of 3497 miles. F. H. Garrigues receives the Spier medal for the highest twenty-four hour record of 181 1-2. The captain's gold medal goes to C. P. Allen, Jr., for attending the greatest number of club runs.

During the year members of the club have won 29 track contests and 12 road events, lowered the 10 mile pike record, the Paoli-52d street record, the Myerstown-Reading record, the Lancaster pike 5-mile record, the Fort Hill record and local single day record for 1890. In a run from Newark to Philadelphia the club made a mileage of 3400 miles, the largest single day record for the year. The membership is now 193 active, 25 associates, four non-resident and two honorary, total, 221. A gymnasium will be built in the spring which will cost $5000. Financially the club is prosperous.

"POORMAN ROAD RACE" FOR 1891.

OWING to the great success of the Poorman Road Race last July 4th, I have concluded to make it an annual fixture in Cincinnati cycling, and wish to announce that the second annual Poorman Road Race will be run from Hamilton to Cincinnati, July 4th, 1891. It will be a handicap race and open to all amateurs. Entry blanks will be ready May 1st. The list of prizes will be larger than last season, and will include several safety bicycles.

J. E. POORMAN.

MEET OF THE HAGERSTOWN, MD., BI. CLUB.

THIS wide awake club (the Hagerstown, Md., Bi. Club) is more than usually awake in making the early announcement as to the dates of the club's tournament. The dates selected are July 2, 3 and 4. See advertisement on page 268.

TRADE NOTES.

THE MULLER TANDEM.
PATENTED BY V. H. MULLER OF NEW YORK.

JUST at this time, when the entire attention of the inventors of cycle improvements seems to be turned to the all absorbing theme of cushion, pneumatic, spring and ball tires, the wheeling public will be somewhat interested at the appearance of a tandem safety, which many competent judges say is sure to be ridden the mile under 2.20 next season.

From the accompanying engraving one can get a good idea of the great compactness attained, and the small number of pieces employed, both of which have a tendency to reduce weight. To give an idea of its simplicity I have compared it with single wheels of several well known makes, and I find it several inches shorter and lighter than these singles.

The tandem roadster of the "Muller pattern" has been given a thorough trial by many different riders in and about New York, and in spite of its sixty-four-inch gear with only five and a half inch cranks, it climed in good time all the hills ridden by the ordinaries and safeties, and went ahead of everything encountered on the road.

The frame (on which Mr. Muller holds his patent) can be applied to any size wheel, and made its appearance about three seasons ago, when, fitted with two fifty-six "Expert" wheels, Mr. V. H. Muller and his brother rode it defeating that year Crist and Brown and all other tandem teams of prominence.

Last spring they gave the frame a thorough trial on a pair of fifty inch Springfield Roadster driving wheels, and on it made a tour of Europe where its novel lines attracted much attention among the cycle manufacturers. The Humber Co. made a heavy bid for the patent right in England, but the offer was refused.

This season, the last and by far the most successful experiment was made in connection with a couple of regular "Broncho" driving wheels, and the machine as shown above, is readily acknowledged to be the fastest, neatest and most perfect tandem cycle ever produced. This opinion, as expressed by all who have seen or ridden the machine, is amply backed by the offer of a prominent manufacturer to pay seven thousand five hundred dollars cash for the patent, while another firm has gone even higher than this.

The specifications are: Two thirty-two inch driving wheels geared to sixty-four, with "Broncho" hubs; cranks five to six inch throw; tangent spokes; five-eights inch solid tires; ball head; weldless, cold-drawn steel tubing, fitted throughout; cow-horn bars and spade handles. There are no chains, "middle axles," ratchet wheels, chain guards, mud guards, guard supporting rods or handle bar connecting rods. Nickel everywhere except spokes and rims.

The machine has been ridden up and down curbstones and submitted to every practical test that could be suggested. Its appearance on the track will be made early next spring, and it is expected to prove as much faster than the chain tandem as the pneumatic is than the solid tire.

Several photographs have been taken with Messrs. Muller sitting still on the machine without supports. Nearly all of the tricks that can be accomplished on the ordinary are as easily done on this, which is certainly a new departure in the tandem line.

Trusting that the machine will fulfill, and even surpass, the great expectations of those who have seen and ridden it, I would have you believe me to be, as I am, Yours very sincerely,

C. PERSONS,
Manager Southern Department, Livingston Cycle Co.

THE BOOTHROYD AIR TIRE.

LAST week we referred to the Boothroyd air tires, and this week we give a little more in detail the special features of the new tires. Our information is taken from the London Evening News and Post: "* * * Mr. Boothroyd's pneumatic tire may be simply described. Its appearance in section is that of a cushion tire with a somewhat large eccentric hole; on examination it is found that embedded in the rubber outside the hole is a ring of canvas. Comparing it with the component parts of the original pneumatic, we find first, that the part which answers to the bladder inside the canvas is rather stouter than the bladder of an ordinary pneumatic. Then comes the canvas circle, this being a continuous tube or hose, is obviously stronger than the built up and "solutioned" canvas envelope of the Irish tire, if it be made of the same thickness of canvas, whilst the outer layer of rubber can of course be made as thick or thicker than in the original tire. Each and all of these component parts in Mr. Boothroyd's contrivance acquire additional strength from the fact that they are all intimately welded together in one solid tire. * * The question first asked is "how are you going to mend it if it bursts" * * * As an experiment a penknife was thrust into an inflated tire and the air rushed out. The repairer approached the tire with a syringe. It is a microscopical little affair, perhaps an inch in length, made of metal. He opens it, drops in a few, a very few, drops of solution, inserts the nozzle in the puncture, depresses the plunger steadily, removes the nozzle from the aperture, and the thing is done.

* * * The injected solution passes through the hole, necessarily forcing its way into every part and oozes out on the inside. Here (as is shown by samples in Mr. Boothroyd's hands) it forms a bead, larger or smaller as the case may be; if a superfluity drops away it does not matter. the thin stream pressed together through the tire ends in a beady head and a perfect non-return valve is made. Put by for a short time the repaired puncture is impervious to air, and the tire may be pumped up hard. * * * Mr. Boothroyd has decided to throw his invention open to the trade at large; he only asks that he may have the credit of having discovered a solution of the problem. The tire may be made by anyone. * * *."

ONE of the neatest advertising folders we have ever seen is that issued by David Pettitt & Co., manufacturers of "The Common Sense Bicycle." It is an illustrated parody (if we may use the term in this case) on "This is The House that Jack Built." It is very clear and shows great originality. Send for a copy to D. Pettitt & Co., 1219 Collowhill street, Philadelphia.

TOM T. ROE of the Chicago Cycling Club has been added to the Gormully & Jeffery staff of travelling men, and is now doing Pennsylvania in their interests.

GORMULLY & JEFFERY have a cushion tired ordinary—an American Light Champion—on exhibit at their Chicago store, the first we believe in this country. Gormully & Jeffery also claim they turned out the first cushion tired safety, a Rambler of course.

A CHANGE has occurred in New Haven, Ct., in the cycle business, the Wm. M. Frisbie Co. having made an assignment on account of the mismanagement of the financial part of the business, which was conducted by Fred M. Case. The concern goes out of business and the Columbia and other wheels handled by them will be taken by the New Haven Cycle Co., which has gone into the control of Messrs. F. M. Bailey and W. P. Weaver.

ONE of the neatest little spoke grips is that made by Avery & Jenness of Chicago, Ill. One of these useful little instruments should be in the possession of every rider. See page 274 for Messrs. Avery & Jenness' announcement.

MESSRS. SINGER & Co. have passed through a most prosperous year, and Mr. W. L. Ross, the American manager, has made most satisfactory arrangements for the coming season, and will place at least three times the number of machines in this country during 1891 than during the past season, prosperous though it was. The reputation of the Singer wheels for excellence in every way is one that is deserving, and we look for a still greater increase in the business of the future of the United States branch of Singer & Co. Mr. Ross has made an extended trip West, and among other good things done the appointed Messrs. Thorsen & Cassidy, No. 60 and 62 Wabash avenue, Chicago, as sole agents for that city, and selling agents in the near West and Northwest. Both members of the firm are lively, bright, young business men such as have made Chicago a possibility, and they will drive the business for Singer & Co. in a manner characteristic of the men. Mr. Ross will soon leave for the South on an extended business trip.

"SENATOR" MORGAN has decided not to open a store for the sale of cycle sundries in Chicago. He will remain in Portland, Oregon, and will probably engage in the bicycle business on the Pacific Coast.

ROUSE, HAZARD & Co. have just received two car loads of '90 pattern Crescent and Juno safeties, as an advance shipment of a large job lot of those makes they have just purchased from the Western Wheel Works. They are listing the full ball Crescent at $70, the regular Crescent at $60, and the Juno at $50, from which price they will allow dealers very liberal discounts. This firm is making a stronger specialty of their job lots than ever and already have upwards of one thousand of that class of machines purchased and now mostly in store at Peoria, including such wheels as the Speedwell at $85, Springfield Roadsters at forty per cent off, Mercury Diamond Safeties at $75, Champions, Light Champions, etc., etc.

THE following letter has been received by the H. B. Smith Machine Co., the manufacturers of the "Star," from Assistant Secretary W. H Wharton: "I have to inform you that the Department of State has received through the Consul-General at Melbourne a certificate of award by the International Centennial Exhibition, Melbourne, 1888, of the first order of merit, and a silver medal granted you for bicycles. Upon the return of the enclosed receipt the certificate and medal will be forwarded to you."

BRONCHO No. "405" on which Mr. Barr rode over 3000 miles across the continent is on exhibition at the Boston store of the Livingston Cycle Co. The excellence of the material is shown in that the machine scarcely shows any wear at all, the tires are almost intact and the enamel and nickel are almost in perfect condition. In fact, to look at the machine, one can scarcely conceive that it has had 3000 miles of hard usage. By the way, while speaking of the Livingston Cycle Co. and the "Broncho," we are pleased to note that Messrs. Keafe and Becannon of New York have been appointed agents for Eastern New York for the Broncho.

THE Knight Cycle Co. of St Louis, Mo., now occupy both first and second floors at 207 N. 10th street, giving ample room and steam power. They report a good winter trade and speak highly of the WORLD as an advertising medium.

MR. C. W. DALSEN of the Century Wheelmen will represent the Coventry Machinists' Co. in Philadelphia.

DON'T put your cycle away because the ice and snow have come but just write to the Ohio Cycle Supply Co. of St. Mary's, Ohio, for a set of their attachment by which ice and snow cycling becomes not only possible, but an actual joy. It is the best thing of the kind ever invented. See page 271.

ON January 1st the name of the Weed Sewing Machine Co. at Hartford was changed to the Pope Mfg. Co The factory has been greatly enlarged during the past year, and the Company is driving for all it is worth to get the '91 machines on the market in time for the spring trade.

THE 1891 catalogue of the St. George's Engineering Co. is before us and it shows the 1891 patterns of the New Rapid wheels In speaking of the illustrations they say: "A woodcut can only be expected to illustrate the design of a machine, and we strongly advise intending purchasers to call upon one of our numerous agents and see the actual machines which the woodcuts are intended to represent." This Company guarantees their wheels, "That only the best materials are used and skilled workmen employed * * * and we undertake to make good at any time within a year any defects in them not caused by use, misuse or neglect. * * * * " They reproduce a paragraph on tires written in 1889, in which they show that in that year they favored large tires and fitted them to their wheels. As to cushion tires this is what they have to say about the matter: "These tires at the present time bid fair to effect a complete revolution in cycling. Something of the sort happened a few years ago when the safety bicycle was first introduced, but if we are correct in our surmise, this will be greater and more lasting than any previous radical change the cycling world has witnessed; because the great objection to the safety lies in its excessive vibration * * * We have been very successful indeed with our cushion tires, not having had a single one cut. * * *" The catalogue is artistically gotten up in two colors and it contains fifty pages of descriptive matter and cuts. Send for a copy of catalogue to the St. George's Engineering Co., Birmingham, England,

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

WARWICK CYCLE MFG. CO., - Springfield, Mass.

CATALOGUE. JANUARY. 1891.

Brief Specifications of the GIANT SAFETY BICYCLES, '91 Pattern:

The Giant has 30-inch wheels, tangent spokes, ball bearings all over. straight and hollow handle bar, rear brake, weldless steel tube backbone, Bolte spring fork, Yost saddle, an ample chain guard and is listed at $85.00

The Giantess has a 28-inch rear wheel, 26 inch front (we make the front wheel smaller to secure the additional space needed by a lady), tangent spokes, straight and hollow handle bar, rear brake, weldless steel tube backbone, Bolte spring fork to both front and rear wheels, ample chain and skirt guard, and Yost saddle. By applying the Bolte spring to both forks, we offer our lady friends a spring framed machine devoid of all vibration at the seat. The Giantess is listed at $75.00

The Ball Bearing Little Giant is similar in construction to the Giant, with ball bearings all over. All wearing parts are steel, the backbone tube is weldless steel, handle bar solid and straight, cranks drop-forged, wheels 24-inch with tangent spokes nickeled to intersection, and is listed at $45.

The Little Giant is precisely the same as the Ball Bearing Little Giant, excepting it has adjustable cone instead of ball bearings. It lists at $35.

THE GALES SAFETY.

THE GALES SAFETY is designed with a view of meeting the demand for an ALL BALL BEARING Safety at a moderate price. The frame is of weldless steel tubing and steel forging throughout. The rear wheel is 30 inches, with 7-8 inch tire, geared to 54 inches. 30 inch steering wheel, with 3-4 inch tire. Best quality moulded rubber tires, firmly cemented into the rims. The spokes are direct, of No. 12 special drawn steel wire. Straight front fork; corrugated rubber coasters. The handle bar is one piece steel tube 30 inches long, bent back, and is detachable and adjustable.

Both wheels, crank-axle and pedals are fitted with ball bearings. The pedal rubbers are soft and tough, and so made as to prevent the rider's foot from slipping. The saddle rests upon an L seat rod, and is adjustable to height, also forward and back. The saddle is the famous Fish patent Hammock, is adjustable in all directions. The brake is of the Plunger style and very powerful. Neat Lamp Bracket, Mud Guards over both wheels. Finely enameled, with bright parts nickeled on copper. Each machine is supplied with tool bag wrench and oiler.

CYCLING

FOR

Health and Pleasure.

CHAPTER II.

This is the historical chapter of the book; its subject is the "Evolution of the Bicycle." This is treated of succinctly and clearness is assured by the use of some sixteen illustrations, showing the different types of machines as they appeared at various times between 1816 and 1890. Very few wheelmen are familiar with all these types, nor do many know of the slow process of development through which the well-nigh perfect machine of today reached its form. Perhaps two-thirds or three-quarters of those now cyclists have begun riding within three years. This vast majority, as a rule, know only by hearsay of what has gone before. In the twenty three pages here given to the subject will be found a clear, concise and complete account of the growth of the bicycle, and it cannot fail to prove of interest both for the information it contains and the curious machines it shows.

The Cycling Psalm of Life.

Tracks of weary men remind us,
Walking makes us tired of limb,
But cycle riding leaves behind us
Lines that prove we're in the swim.

Let us then be up and riding,
With a heart for setting pace;
Still a-pedalling, still a-gliding,
Learn to ride a winning race.

Drop a line to us, then, brother,
And we'll send a list to you;
Finally, like many another,
You will say we've used you true.

"BRONCHO,"

NOISELESS, CHAINLESS, LIGHT ROADSTER, SAFETY BICYCLE

[CLIPPING.]

The performance of Charlie Woods on the "BRONCHO" Safety last Sunday was quite remarkable, when it is taken into consideration that it was his first road ride. He started from town at 8.20 A. M., arriving home at 5.30 P M., in the meantime passing through Southboro, Northboro, Shrewsbury and Worcester, returning through Westboro and Woodville, and was compelled to dismount but twice, at Shrewsbury and Quinsigamond Hills.

A great deal of riding outside the regular course made the distance covered more than 43 miles. Charlie Woods is but 13 years old.

HOPKINTON, Mass., 10, 19, '90.

Gentlemen—The boy Charlie Woods is but TWELVE years old and weighs 78 pounds. The "BRONCHO" weighs 45 5-16 pounds.

What is the matter with "BRONCHO"?

CUSHION TIRES---

an apt term, is it not? One which has been heard oftener in the past year than any other term connected with bicycles.

Please note that we do not put quotation marks on this term. We would if it were borrowed. Do you know where the term "cushion tires" originated? We will tell you; it was first seen in the Overman Wheel Co.'s catalog of '87, where a tire is described having a hole in the bottom and is described as a new tire "which provides for an inner open space into which the rubber can cushion." This is illustrated in the same catalog.

In 1884 we made a tire on these lines and patented it in 1885. This is the starting point for cushion tires. We have constantly experimented since, and have been well aware that it was only a question of time with the old fashioned solid tires. The principle of the solid tire is wrong, and the day is already here when, unless mounted in a thorough spring fork, the wheel with solid tire must be abandoned as a thing of the past.

You have heard much talk during the last few months concerning cushion tires. While others have been talking we have been working. We have tried many costly experiments, and are of opinion to-day that we have solved the problem, and are ready to place upon the market a tire which shall embody the best results of all our experimenting, and shall give to riders the effect for which they have been striving.

Our cushion tire is not the ordinary hose-pipe section, which is known in the trade as a "cushion"—it is entirely different and better. One feature of our cushion tire is that it will be thoroughly warranted—that it is guaranteed to be in every way better than a solid tire.

Please note that this is the first time during the past year that we have publicly expressed our opinion with regard to cushion tires.

We are owners of the best and latest patent devices for pneumatic tires, but it is our conviction that inflated tires are a thing of the future, that they are far from perfect as now made, and cannot receive the approval of the best bicycle critics until much more experimenting has been done in order to perfect them; in fact it is still a problem as to whether or not pneumatic tires will ever be of permanent value.

The Victor cushion tires will be illustrated in this space next week, and description of the Victor line for '91 will follow in rapid succession.

The Overman Wheel Co. will place upon the market for the coming season 5 high grade Victor Safety Bicycles and 4 medium grade machines, making 9 Safeties in all, or the largest line in America.

"COVENTRY * RIVALS"

TO THE FRONT.

The unparalleled success of this wheel has proved most gratifying to the manufacturers, Messrs. Warman & Hazlewood, Limited, of Coventry, England, and the Importers, the Sweeting Cycle Co., of Philadelphia. The Coventry Rival Safety is a striking illustration of the truth that good goods and low prices always command a market. We do not wish to be invidious in our remarks, but we cannot help being gratified by the fact that out of the multitude of English machines that flooded the market, the "COVENTRY RIVAL" is the ONLY imported wheel sold under $135 that still holds its own, and is in its third season. From all over the country we have testimonials from dealers and riders, praising the wheel. Many consider our No. 1 Rival at $85 equal to any $135 wheel; and there is no doubt that many riders can get as much pleasure and health from it as from one costing $50 more. We are now registering the names of all who desire catalogues, and a postal card with your name and address will bring the catalogue as soon as printed.

We desire a live, hustling agent in every place where we are not represented.

BOSTON, 16 JANUARY, 1891.

THE Stanley Show of 1891 will be of more than usual interest from the fact that the exhibit of tires will be of great value to the riders and to the trade. Tires of every conceivable shape will be shown and out of the mass there is no doubt but a comparative few will survive the test of practice and expert opinion. It will be an exhibition of tires in which the cycle itself will have to play a secondary part. The years 1890-91 will be long remembered as the "tire years." It is excusable to even hint at a pun editorially, but, chestnutty as it is, we cannot but think there will be to some people a significance in the name we give the present period (i. e.), the "tire years."

SOME months since we printed an urgent appeal from Mr. Isaac B. Potter, Chairman of the Committee on Improvement of Highways, asking members to furnish photographs showing the ills of bad roads and the advantages of good roads.

Alas! this urgent appeal has been practically barren of results, but the offer made by the New York and the Connecticut States Divisions to pay $100 in prizes for three of the best collections of photographs may stimulate the "camera contingent" to bestir themselves. We are sorry that the motive which should have been strong enough (i. e.), the good of the cause, did not prove adequate to bring about the results desired by Mr. Potter, but probably this is one of the cases where everybody's business is nobody's, hence the appeal to the members of the League failed of results.

In the official columns of this issue will be found the details in full as to the offer of the above mentioned prizes. Read the conditions carefully, and above all see that the New York and Connecticut Divisions' enterprise meets with fitttng and generous results. There are three prizes, $50, $30 and $20 waiting for somebody.

AS intimated last week the fellow what "knows it all" has appeared, and allows his imagination to run riot in dealing out "facts" (?) as to the doings of the joint committee of the A. A. U. and L. A. W. It is very amusing to note that those who claim to be specially well posted, still insist that the question of the suspensions was what occupied the attention of the Committee. Until the official results are given we can look for guesses of more or less (especially less) accuracy.

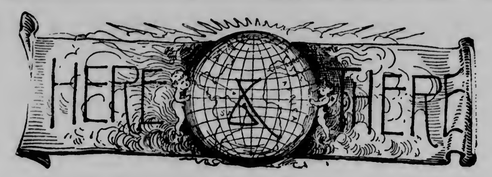
THE Joint Committee of the L. A. W. and A. A. U. have not yet reconvened to give their approval of the terms of agreement reduced to writing as arrived at verbally on the 20th December. Probably within the next week the matter will be finally settled and the results given to the public.

GOV. HILL of New York continues to place himself on record as being in favor of "advanced civilization" by renewing his plea in his message for a change in the road laws of the State. Among the many good suggestions he says:

"* * * The plan suggested involved merely the construction at State expense and under State supervision of two highways running tranversely through each county, intersecting in about the middle of the county or at its principal place, and so connected as to form a network of well built roads through the State.

It was not intended that the State should assume greater responsibility than this, but it was believed that to this extent the matter of Road Improvement was one of State importance—adding largely to the wealth and attractiveness of the State, as it would, by bringing agricultural lands into easier and closer access to the towns, enhancing the value of rural property, and attracting, especially in the summer months, large numbers of strangers to the State. * *. I need not remind you of the present disgraceful condition of our highways. For a great part of the year many of them are almost, if not quite, impassable. They are, as a rule, inferior to those in other States, especially in New England, and they are said to compare most unfavorably with those of England and the continent. The fault has been in ignorance of construction, in lack of responsibility and in waste of energy and money in maintenance. Sooner or later our State must begin a systematic attempt at improvement, or our farming lands will depreciate still further in value, and other States will attract the wealth and population to which our resources and natural advantages entitle us. * * *."

HARLEM WHEELMEN NOTES.



THE Harlem (N. Y.) Wheelmen intend putting up a fine club house at the expiration of the lease of their present quarters. This club held its annual meeting last Thursday night. The election of officers for the coming year was very lively. Three tickets were in the field and the wire pulling was something great. The friends of the retiring Captain, after having him defeated for Vice-President, tried to put him before the club as a candidate for Captain, but the boys would have none of that and elected their popular "bottle winner," R. B. Morrison, by a large majority.

The club will be represented in all the principal track and road races this year by Messrs. Macy, Olmstead, Osborn, Bellmer, Putney, Litchhult and Morrison. The club will take more interest in racing than ever before.

There is a rumor that Powers, the fast rider who defeated Rich, will again make his appearance on the track this year. He will probably ride for the H. W. The H. W. not only beat the New Yorks for the "Tarrytown Bottle," but gave them their first defeat in the bowling league.

"JONES."

AMONG those who will be in the Elwell Bermuda party are Wm. C. Roseboum, Junius E. Beal and lady, P. H. Van Alstyne and lady, Geo. E. Tyler and lady, Mrs. C L. Bolton, J. Washington Hare and others. The party leaves New York on the 29th. The trip cannot fail to be a most delightful one to all who participate. There is just time enough to join before the time of starting. Send in application to Mr. Elwell at once.

BOSTON NOTES.

"TONEY."

MANY ways and means have been resorted to by the curious wheelmen to ascer ain the identity of "Toney," but so far but few have been productive of anything but deluding theories. The latest is the invitation recently sent to me by a local bicycle club to attend its annual masquerade party in Union Hall, Cambridgeport, on the evening of January 23, for which I am very thankful, and request that the hospitable gentlemen of the Cambridgeport Club to bear in mind the fact that I shall be there, if not in person in spirit. Every effort will be made by me to accept of the kind invitation, and for the benefit of those who desire to gaze upon my feminine form I give this description of what I shall wear. The dress will be of a sky pink material, cut decollette back and front, with a long court train such as is befitting the occasion. The number of the ticket I shall present to the gentlemanly door keeper will be No. 165. Now remember that I shall also wear in my corsage a large bunch of Jacquiminots presented by my admirers in Pigtown.

"'Tis Nothing to Speak of," but then it might as well be known that the gentleman who has appeared before the public in the role of Sir Rowdon Slolmondley McAllister in the Cadets theatricals, is no other person than our old friend Tom Hall of the Rovers Cycle Club of Charlestown.

THE members of the Wakefield Bicycle Club held high jinks at their annual meeting last Monday evening. After routine business had been transacted they adjourned to the banquet hall where a flow of wit followed in a 2 30 clip on the heels of a feast of reason. That it was nothing more that a feast of reason was evidenced by the scarcity of "small hats" the following morning.

ARRANGEMENTS for the pool tournament and the dancing school of the Rovers Cycle Club having been completed, the members are now striving to defeat each other in a whist tournament. Three tables were necessary at the opening of the tournament last Saturday evening to accommodate the entries. Capt. Robinson and "Little Tot" led at the close of the evening.

A LITTLE bird whispered in my ear not many days ago that another one of the Rovers had "gone and done it." I naturally asked myself if it was Little Wrighty, but before the echo had time to answer the above mentioned little bird said it was Totman, and that the young lady was Miss Sawyer, a popular school teacher of that district.

THE Charlestown Rovers have issued neat invitations to the annual party which occurs in the Cadets armory on January 20, and which never fails to attract a large number of the leading wheelmen of this State.

THE Somerville Cycle Club men are getting into trim for their annual minstrel show, which occurs shortly. The local jokes and severe jibes at the individual members of the organization are warranted to convulse one with laughter. The whole aggregation of talent which the club possesses will be put to the test when the pretty maids and gallant youths of that city sit in deliberation upon the entertainment when it occurs.

NOTES BY

"HAWKSHAW."

I SAW a girl dismount from her wheel the other day and the picture of health and grace that young athlete exhibited I will not soon forget. Removing her heavy gloves from a pair of hands that were by no means tiny, but strong and capable hands, she gave her wheel to the attendant and passed from view, leaving upon me a lasting impression of what wheeling can do for woman. For my own part I admire not the fragile maiden so much as she who rejoices in her strength. Youth, in woman as well as in man, should be brave and lusty; clean of limb as well as of heart; strong of leg and arm as well as of will, enduring hardness of voluntary labor as well as of involuntary pain; with feet that can run and walk and with hands that can hold on. Such a girl as the wheelwoman I have referred to, so tall, so strong, so healthy, offers, methinks, a home ready made for all the virtues, and especially the virtues feminine, to house themselves therein. Here they will remain, growing stronger every day, until at last they have become part and parcel of the girl herself and cannot be parted from her. Whereas, when they visit the puny creature who never exercises, weak, timid, delicate—but, no—'tis best to remain silent.

THE able-bodied man who will crouch down shiveringly in a corner of a street car—in air rank and fetid from the pack of humanity breathing therein—when he has only two or three miles to go, deserves to be assailed by the demons of influenza, neuralgia, coughs, colds and headaches that lurk therein. Even a ride in a carriage robs the trip of half its benefits. The air is good, to be sure, but the exercise is lacking and its resulting benefits to the blood and the muscular and nervous system. Winter cycling, whenever the roads permit, is a cure for cold feet. It banishes the "creep-crawls" from the spinal column and sends the sluggish blood about its business. As a "nervine" it is a million times better than medicine, and for improving the complexion it is worth a whole harbor full of lotions and washes. It will put an edge to the appetite that you can't buy at the doctor's, and in promoting digestion is better than a corner drug store's entire stock of bitters and pills. If you have never tried, take a ride; if you have tried it you know that these assertions are true, then why neglect to keep up the practice? Keep your mouth closed, dress only in woollen garments, don't lean over like a grasshopper in a fit, give your lungs a chance to expand, and remember that your legs—especially your ankles—were given you to ride with, at least that is what wheelmen should use them for when cycling. Some people ride with bodies, shoulders and arms, and no wonder they don't like it. Who would? There is an art in riding as in other things. If you don't believe it observe the action of some one who knows how to ride well, and see how easily and safely even the roughest bit of road is negotiated by him. There ought to be a professor in cycling in every gymnasium and school throughout the land. By this I do not mean a teacher in the rudimentary art of propulsion, but of the more advanced and not less necessary knowledge of correct form, and in the principles of perfect riding, i. e., the maximum of speed, comfort and safety from a minimum of strength and exertion. But do not let the absence of such a professor prevent my readers from using the wheel at any and all times in winter and in summer that the roads and weather will permit them to; each ride they take is a deposit of health in the savings bank of life and none can afford to risk overdrawing there since to do so is physical bankruptcy and an early death.

HERE'S one for use at an amateur minstrel show: "What is the difference between the present excitement among the Indians out West and a bicycle?" Answer—One is "war feeling" and the other is for wheeling.

I NEVER had a man come to me for advice upon which was the best wheel for him that before he got through he did not have more advice to offer than to ask for.

"NOTHING is impossible but a bicycle without wheels," said Smart Aleck, "and if you come up to the club you'll see it." "See what—the bicycle, or that there's nothing else impossible," chorused the astonished listeners. "Neither," replied Smart Aleck, "but you will see the club." Awful, was'nt it?

DENHAM (not Thompson, though) says:

> "'Tis the most certain sign the world's accurst,
> That the best things corrupted are the worst."

A couplet containing so much wisdom as this one is of course beyond the mental capacity of a "scorcher's" brain, but at least he can get it near to that minute organ by cutting these lines out and pasting them in his cap, and whenever he starts out on one of those body destroying rides of his let him take off the cap, read the lines, and thank God that Denham lived and wrote them, then remount and like a man of sense proceed leisurely on his way.

CHICAGO NOTES.

"WAYNE SCOTT."

THE Associated Cycling Clubs held a meeting Thursday evening and started the ball a rolling appointing President C. E. Randall of the Chicago Club a committee of one to make arrangements for the great Pullman road race. It was voted to ask that the national L. A. W. meet be held in this city the World's Fair year; also deciding to hold a show (a la Stanley) at the same time.

THE Illinois Cycling Club, the largest L. A. W. club in the United States and the wealthiest organization in the city, held their annual election of officers Tuesday evening, Jan. 6 Voting by proxy was not allowed, which accounts for the number of votes cast. A number of the members had sent proxies. One hundred and six votes were cast. The club has 285 members, only about 20 of whom are associates. The main fight was between W. A. Davis and Geo. Kertz for Secretary, Davis winning by a majority of 50 votes. A. J. Street, the retiring secretary, in his annual report did himself proud. During the last year over $7500 was taken in and Jan. 1 the club had in the treasury $1100 and all bills paid. The cafe in three months, including the cigar stand, has yielded monthly nearly $450 receipts.

THE Oak Park Cycling, the Lake View Cycling, the Washington Cycling and Douglas Cycling Clubs also held annual elections.

THE 20 or more members of the Washingtons who resigned have formed the Cook County Wheelmen with a charter membership of 57 Within this organization has been formed the Jackson Club for literary purposes. A membership in the cycling organization entitles one to a membership in the literary club also without additional dues. The latter club will issue $5000 worth of bonds at 75 cents on the dollar, payable in five years at 4 per cent. They are now looking for quarters on Jackson boulevard.

THE Æolus Club at their meeting Wednesday evening accepted the resignations of 20 or more of their younger members. The latter have formed the Columbia Wheelmen and have already a charter list of over 50. They have rented and partly finished a club house at 737 North Hayne avenue. Their reasons for leaving the Æolus Club were of a political nature. They objected to the admission of political schemers to membership.

THE Oak Park Cycling Club handicap billiard tournament has 50 entries. On account of the great number of games which would have to be played this number will be reduced by trial games to 12. The whist tournament has now been in progress two weeks, playing every Monday night. Twenty players are entered, of whom Mills, Fox, Ludlow and Turner are leading.

THE Lincolns are also arranging for a whist tournament. There are a number of good whist players in the Lincolns and a very interesting series of games will be arranged.

A COMMITTEE of West Siders has been appointed and the wheelmen of that quarter of the city may soon have boulevard riding to the centre of the city and connection with the great South Side boulevard system. Jackson street this committee will try to gain, laying asphaltum from Michigan avenue to the western terminus of the street. As it is now the West Side wheelmen have no good roads into the centre of the city, and many would have bought wheels could they have used them conveniently to ride to business.

THOSE who were members of the old Ashland Club wish me to correct an impression which now prevails. They are not nor will they be members of the Garfield Cycling Club, which club is composed of members of the Americus Club, the successors of the Ashland Club. The Americus was disbanded last fall and the old-time Ashland members will reorganize in the spring.

BUFFALO NOTES.

"SETAGEC."

AND still they grow. Another club this time on Richmond avenue. Press Cycling Club held a meeting last Friday evening at which, besides much other business, President Schooley was instructed to place a member of the press at the head of each committee. The club is growing fast and has many members who are not pencil pushers.

ON Wednesday evening the Roamers had a very pleasant bal masque at the Metropolitan Hall.

THE bicycle contingent of the Iroquois Athletic Club are to stay in the club and those that race will not desert the Tomahawk. Charlie Doentge, their flyer, was elected one of the directors at the last meeting.

THE Ramblers now have a harrier's team and will do more running.

IN last Sunday's papers there appeared a portrait of Bert Myers, who is well known to most of my readers; the cut bore no resemblance to Bert as I could see. I have noticed this coincident in most of the cuts of cycling celebrities sent out by the syndicates. Who is to blame?

One firm in town has contracted for over a thousand safeties and two other firms have ordered nearly as many each, while four dealers are importing, two of which have taken agencies for the whole country.

THE Press Cycling Club will rent rooms till May, when they will open up a roomy club house. They don't propose to climb two or three flights of stairs just for the sake of being down town like some of the other clubs. They will have room for wheels, too; none of the clubs here have wheel rooms at present.

THE Ramblers have an athletic entertainment in their "Gym" on the evening of the 17th, each member being allowed to bring one friend.

MOST of the cycling clubs are now holding pool tourneys, while the Buffalos are enjoying a whist tournament.

THE Roamers are very proud of their convenient club house and were thinking quite generally of adding a "Ladies' Annex," but after thoroughly debating the subject at the January meeting the members thought 'twouldn't do to take in the ladies, so if the Press Cycling Club does not decide to allow ladies to become members when they get in their club house there will be no club in the Bison City open to both ladies and gentlemen.

THE Women's Wheel and Athletic Club is very much alive every Saturday afternoon. They have either a walk, talk or bowling contest. Their walks generally end at the factory of some interesting industry and all go through the establishment, so that the walks are largely attended and make up for the lack of cycling runs which the weather taboos. The walking mileage is recorded same as though done by wheel. At present the club is deciding on what kind of athletics to follow; the evenings of this week illustrated lectures on the Delsarte and Swedish movements and other styles of gymnastics were given in the gymnasium, and one system will be taken up thoroughly when decided upon. The ladies also listen to health talks and have one or more lectures a fortnight; so the ladies don't have much time to waste, aside from what is taken by society or business. All our bicycle clubs might profit by the example set by the Women's Wheel and Athletic Club.

MISSOURI.

"LINNEUS."

DETROIT will make a big mistake if she fixes the dates for this year's meet on July 2, 3, 4, 5, as numerous Divisions, including Missouri, hold their meet on these dates. I would suggest some days later in the month of July, as I understand holding the meet in May or June in that city would be impossible. Without a question of a doubt Detroit is the best place to hold the meet, and the attendance from the western Divisions will be large. Missouri Division will hold its meeting at Carthage this year. The programme, which extends over July 3, 4 and 5, embraces a fine afternoon's racing, a hill climbing match, a smoker, a banquet, and tours and runs without number. Fully $150 has been submitted towards the entertainment fund, and twice that much is in sight.

I WAS lately shown a sample of the cloth for next year's uniform and was greatly pleased with it. Now if the prices would only be reduced to a reasonable figure, say $10 or $11 per suit, the uniform would be universally worn. I understand there will be no reduction from present prices, which are entirely too high. Local tailors will furnish clubs of 25 or 50 men with good, serviceable uniforms for the prices I named, and no rider, however loyal he may be to the League, will pay the increased cost just for the privilege of wearing the National uniform. Why not advertise the contract and award it to the best bidder?

CLUBS which are making a special bid for young men are springing up like mushrooms in the West End, and where formerly the Missouri's club house was the only one within a radius of five miles which catered to this class of people, there are now the Office Men's Club, Marquette Club and Pastime Athletic Club. The former is elegantly housed, and the latter's building will be completed by May. As all of these organizations charge less than half the dues which are at present demanded from active members by the local cycling clubs, I think it perfectly proper to call attention to this matter and suggest that the dues be reduced so as to be as nearly equal as those of the organizations named as possible. If this is done the membership will be largely increased, and the danger of wholesale desertions be avoided.

LOCAL CONSUL BREWINGTON writes me that Chas. Patterson of Kirksville was paralyzed at the supper table on December 31 and died on January 1. He was one of the best known wheelmen of that town, and his sudden taking off is greatly regretted.

THE coming club elections are furnishing a good deal of discussion among the Missouri's members, and the renewed interest which is being taken in them augurs well for the club's prosperity. For the last three years the elections lacked the usual excitement and were generally very tame affairs. This year a number of candidates will be in the field, and the men spoken of for President are E. W. Pattison, Dr. Keith and Robt. Holm. Treasurer Hildebrand will surely be re-elected unanimously, as his administration has been all that could be asked for. The road officers will be selected with special care, as it is intended to boom this feature the coming season for all that it is worth.

SOME weeks back a committee was appointed to confer with Street

Commissioner Murphy relative to the sprinkling of our asphaltum streets. Through the exertions of Secretary Gardner, the meeting was finally arragned, and on last Monday Chief Consul Holm and Secretary Gardner appeared before Mr. Murphy. He gave them the assurance that next season the streets would remain dry the larger part of the day as he had already decided to adopt a plan which would make sprinkling almost unnecessary. To say that the committee was gratified is putting it mildly, and this decision will boom cycling like it never has before.

NEXT Monday the damage suit of H. A. Canfield vs. P. & B. Donnelly comes up in Circuit Court No. 1, and Horton Pope, Esq., Chairman of the Rights and Privileges Committee, has been retained to prosecute the case. The case is causing a great deal of interest, as it will bring about the first decision in Missouri recognizing the bicycle as a vehicle. This, it is said, will be denied by the defence, and on this the case will rest to a certain extent.

THE handicap pool tournament of the Missouris opened last night in the presence of a large number of members. As the number of entries is very large each player will only play one game of 15 balls with every other player, instead of 50. The scratch men are: Blossom, Nicholls, Bowman, Ludwig, Platt; 1 ball—Hurck and Corneli; 2 balls—Lewis A. Sheldon, S. Sheldon, Young; 3 balls—S. A. Pratte; 4 balls—Wright; 5 balls—Knapp; 6 balls—Cummings. Games will be played on every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday night, and the prizes will be a finely inlaid cue and a gentleman's smoking set.

A RUMOR has come to my hearing that the cycling club was about to consolidate with the Missouri Gymnasium and Athletic Club, but I could not have it confirmed. Many wheelmen hope that this is not the case, as the loss of the club as a distinctive cycling organization would be keenly felt. For some time the club has had a committee on the still hunt for larger and more convenient quarters, and as it has always been in good financial condition I would think the consolidation scheme to be hasty and ill-advised.

CHICAGO.

"ALERT."

I NOTICE your little editorial anent our Mr. J. H. Robbins of the Sporting Review (or as it is sometimes called the "tri-monthly" because it comes out one month and "tries" to come out the next. Can it be possible that the fame of Robbins has not reached the editor of BICYCLING WORLD? Why, he was the man who "chased Tom Roe across the continent" and wrote all the "scare heads" about that "wonderful" tourist. 'Tis Robbins who tells the cyclers of this town what they want, and in justice it must be said that his opinion is always listened to as he is invariably on the wrong side of every question on which he sheds the light of his dense ignorance and they always heed his advice and do just opposite. 'Twas he who engineered the celebrated transcontinental cyclist through 106 miles of roads over which no wagon should venture and where the mud came to within an inch of the pedals (i. e., mud 22 inches deep?). Verily, Mr. Robbins is great in his own estimation. Mr. Robbins has one great redeeming trait, that is his imagination. O, what a vivid imagination he has! He can make a prosaic ride of ten miles over good roads, a daring flight over the worst roads in the country. He never does think by halves, does this disciple of Munchausen. I know he is a Chicagoan, but even that fact cannot cover up the many "imperfections" (to be charitable) in his character.

IT'S funny, very funny, how a man's wealth will cover up his defects. A man may be poor in body and mediocre in mind, but let his estate amount to more than four figures and he has the world at his feet. This has had an examplification in the case of one of our cyclists. He has in the last seven years fallen heir to three fortunes, aggregating over $100,000 and they went almost as suddenly as they came. When he had money he had friends and the flattery of those sycophants was meat and drink to his soul and a loosener of the strings of his purse. But each time there came a day when the exchequer was at the lowest ebb, then his followers floated gently from him, and he might say "Poor Tom's a-cold" with very good grace. Each time it has been whispered around that more money had come and immediately (as in the stories of the fairies, where they "press a button" and summon the fairies, brownies, etc.,) there came back the host of friends (?) to share in his new fortune, only to "evaporate" when the fickle goddess turned her face away. A week or so ago the tocsin was sounded for the fourth time and once more the buzzards of the cycling world fly round, seeking some inroad to the new fortune and generally finding it. The heir of these fortunes is more to be pitied than blamed, more to be petted than scolded.

THE member of the Illinois Cycling Club who was never defeated for any office in the gift of Chicago cyclists has again been elected to an office, of which I will have something to say next week.

LOUISVILLE.

"GX. EX. JX."

THINGS wheelingly in this city are not booming, but socially the cyclers are having gay times. The Lousville Cycle Club is becoming famous for its entertainments and receptions and many ladies now wear and swear by the blue and white. The last entertainment was an exclusive club affair, and it was way up. Twenty-six couples, all in full dress, occupied the dancing floor, which was as smooth as ice. At midnight the band sawed out a march and to its enlivening strains Mr. Charles Crush led the way to the supper room, where a banquet was spread by Club Caterer Hehl. The feast lasted an hour after this; dancing was indulged in until 2 A. M., when carriages came and the company dispersed.

THE Louisville Cycle Club at its meeting last Tuesday night elected officers for the ensuing year. The club now has 47 members and is in a prosperous and harmonious condition.

THE Independent Cyclers are getting on swimmingly. Their present quarters are too cramped for their increased membership and they expect to move shortly to a larger and better home on Fourth avenue.

THE dates for the Kentucky Division meet have been decided on —June 26 and 27, Friday and Saturday, and work is now going on actively. The programme will be issued early in March. Some entertaining and new features will be brought out at the meet. One will be a trip to Mammoth Cave.

PRINCE WELLS is booming the Division meet in the right way. On all of his envelopes and billheads he has had printed an announcement with the dates.

STANLEY HUBER, a veteran wheelman and one of the best liked riders in the city, leaves shortly to go into business in Detroit. He has long been a member of the bicycle firm of Huber & Allison in this city.

DETROIT.

"JUDGE."

EMMA ABBOTT died the same night I penned the note which appeared in last week's WORLD. She was an honorary member of but few organizations and the Detroit Wheelmen have the honor of being one of them. It is but a little while since she presented each member of the club with a fine photo of herself. These will be highly prized by us all now. She was a noble, sweet woman, and her memory will long be cherished. Her body will be brought here to be cremated and the ashes will be buried beside her husband at Gloucester, Mass. A set of resolutions has been forwarded to her father by order of the Board of Directors.

DETROIT is being indorsed on every side. "Setagec" of Buffalo praises us to the skies. The "Eagle" of Dayton screams for us and the "Coaster" of Jersey City coasts into line for Detroit.

FRED ABEL (of Old Goggle's fame) leaves soon for St. Augustine to fill a musical engagement.

He will scrape away on his 'cello,
And bask in the sun of the South,
And flirt with the frisky mosquito,
With an orange in his mouth.

GEO. LANE (ex-champion of Michigan) has accepted a position with H D. Edwards & Co. and will remain in this city. This will be welcome news to all wheelmen in this vicinity.

WE acknowledge the receipt of a complimentary ticket to a concert and social given by the Belmont Bicycle Club of Taunton, Mass., on Jan. 14. Please accept the thanks of the Detroit Wheelmen.

MR. R. PHILIP GORMULLY spent two days in Detroit this week. While being shown through the club house he noticed we needed a mantel clock and before he left presented the club with a very handsome reminder of the club rules, viz.: "Rooms will be closed at 12 promptly." Mr. Gormully will please accept our thanks.

MR. A. H GRIFFITH ("Griff") has accepted the position of director of the Detroit Art Museum and as a result will remain in Detroit for an indefinite number of years. The deal with the museum directors has been going on a long time and was only brought to a focus to-day (the 10th). The members of the club do not as yet know of this splendid news, but will be informed to-morrow. They will be the happiest crowd of wheelmen in this country. It looked very much as though we were going to lose him. He is almost worshipped by every member. It is hardly necessary to say that the Detroit Wheelmen may well be proud that their President is thus honored. Many artists, whose talent is unquestioned, were applicants for the position, but "Griff" was the chosen one. This means much good for the meet in '91, and with "Griff" at the tiller we may well say,

Hurrah for Detroit in '91.

IT IS A FACT

THAT YOU WANT AN

Eagle Mileage Book

FOR 1891.

Our mileage book for 1890 was so popular and so much appreciated, that we shall issue it again for 1891, and on the same terms, viz: Free to all on application.

Do not stand on the order of your coming, but send in your name, and at the same time remember that

YOU ALSO WANT AN EAGLE

FOR YOUR 1891 MOUNT.

The Eagle is so popular and so much appreciated that we shall continue to sell it at the same price, viz: $135.

The Eagle and the Mileage Book go well together. On the one you can make the fastest time and cover the greatest number of miles, and in the other you can keep the best record of it.

THE FINEST LADY'S SAFETY EVER PRODUCED.

THE JOHN WILKINSON CO., Sole Importers, 269-271 State St., Chicago.

GIVEN: A man or woman without prejudice or preference, a desire to purchase the most satisfactory mount and trials of the several high-grade safeties, to decide the selection. RESULT: (In three cases out of five), the purchase of a Rambler.

A COUPLE OF PRACTICAL ILLUSTRATIONS.

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 23, 1890.

I hereby confirm my wire of the 21st, requesting you to ship an American Rambler by express. The boys here are slow in making up their minds, but when they do conclude to buy, nothing slower than electricity will suffice to convey their wishes. I am particularly pleased to sell this wheel. It is for a Mr. George Sims, whom I consider the most expert safety rider in the state. Had him in view for some time, but he put me off until he had tried the ••••••• and ••••••, (each having an agent here), not to mention off grades, but Saturday morning he came in and said: "Wire for the Rambler. It is the boss."

With best wishes for a year of prosperity for the 'Americans" and success to yourselves, I am, Yours truly, N. C. MUNGER.

BALTIMORE, Md., January 5, 1891.

My Rambler is perfect. I tried about all the different makes of wheels before I purchased one, and found none that would come anywhere near the Rambler for ease of riding over Cobble Stone and Belgian Block, which I have to do, as I use my wheel in my business. My wheel attracts a great deal of attention, being full nickeled, and is considered very pretty. I have had no trouble with it whatever.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

THE ladies of the Buckeye Cycling Club of Columbus, Ohio, gave a reception at the club house on New Year's afternoon. It was a great success. The house was beautifully decorated with evergreens and potted plants, and a bicycle decorated with flowers and club colors. Notwithstanding the rain the attendance was large, and refreshments were served to all. The correspondent who sent us the above item gailantly winds up with, "Long live the Buckeye ladies!"

WE constantly hear about the grand effect the salubrious climate of California has on mankind, but we have never seen a more conclusive evidence of the aforesaid salubrity than in the person of Col. Pope, who has returned from the Pacific slope with 15 pounds added to his weight. We shall never smile superciliously again on hearing any one crack up the "glorious climate of California."

WE do not marvel that we are receiving many expressions of wonder at the marvellous announcement made in a late issue that eight St. Louis wheelmen covered 21 miles in 38 minutes! The fact is we strongly suspect that the comps. and the proof reader had received something more than copy from "Linneus." A case of Anheuser-Busch we think it was. As both comps. and proof reader have been sojourning for a long time in Maine, it will be seen that the indiscretion is pardonable and easily explained. The 21 miles were covered in 1h. and 38m. (Mem. to "Linneus:" The empty bottles will be returned immediately.)

THE Zig Zags of Indianapolis, Ind., held their first smoker on the evening of Jan. 13, last Tuesday.

JOE GOODMAN'S most excellent of all monthlies will hereafter be known as the American Cyclist. This will prevent any confusion arising from confounding the English and American publications. Mr. Goodman has been deservedly successful with his paper. May that success continue is our hearty wish.

MR. HUNTINGTON in his article printed in the January number of the American Cyclist avers that "the League has yet to learn the A. B. C. of amateurism!" While we have the utmost respect for Mr. Huntington's opinions on every subject we must say we cannot agree with him in condemning the Racing Board for inforcing the rules as they stand on the books.

THE Rover Bicycle Club of Charlestown, Mass., will hold their fourth annual party at Cadets' Armory on the evening of Jan. 20th.

MR. R. M. JAFFRAY, of the Chicago Referee, has been in Boston during the past few days in the interest of his paper.

CHIEF CONSUL BULL is known to the League and wheelmen generally as being a hustler. His latest is a beautiful calendar and recruiting card combined, which is as fine artistically as it is useful. By getting out the combination Chief Consul Bull reasoned that he was getting out a card that would be used to the end of the year. He was the originator of the recruiting card and the '91 issue is an improvement of the first effort. The artistic portion of the card was intrusted to the care of Mr. R. W. Rummell of 7 Warren street, New York, but formerly of Buffalo, and Mr. Rummell is an old-time wheelman and he made and donated these beautiful drawings to New York State Division. The illustrations represent good and bad roads. The heavy roads showing straining horses, drawing empty wagons, broken-down wagons and walking cyclist The other picture shows smooth, hard surfaces, horses trotting along merrily drawing heavy loads and cyclists skimming along free from care and fear. Much credit is due Chief Consul Bull and Designer Rummell, and the thanks of the Division are due the latter gentleman for his generous and artistic contribution to the cause.

STEPHEN H. BAKER of Elizabeth, N. J., was committed lately to the insane asylum at Morris Plains. He was violently insane. Baker fired off a shotgun at some bicycle riders who were passing his house. He insisted they were birds on the wing.

MR. P H. SERCOMBE of Milwaukee has been East for a week or two. We were pleased to make the acquaintance of this enterprising gentleman and get from him some pointers which we shall use at an early date.

MR. HARVEY DUCROS, having settled the Dunlop pneumatic tire business for the United States, started from Chicago to visit Niagara Falls. He will sail for home in a few days.

"IF your wheel is so nicely polished, its enamel so unbroken, its spokes so firm and straight that you are afraid to lend it to a careful fellow who knows how to ride and owns no wheel, or if, for fear of damaging its glitter, you will not take it out on muddy days or damp days, I seriously advise you to kick in a spoke or two and scrape off some enamel, and pour a dipperful of water over the saddle. Better is a banged-up bicycle with a brotherly love and usefulness than the most beautiful wheel and selfishness and pride therewith. —Philadelphia Item.

MR. A. MACOWEN, of the Athlete, sailed last Wednesday on the Brittanic for England. Mr. Richwine also sailed on the same ship.

MANY of our readers are thinking of going to Europe this summer. The Elwell tours afford one of the most enjoyable ways of accomplishing this desire. They will conduct two tours this summer, one starting June 6 and the other July 8. The latter will be a round trip of 70 days and cost $290. They also have in contemplation a wheeling trip around the world to start in the fall of '92. They now invite correspondence in regard to any of their tours. Their address will be found in our advertising columns.

MR. L. D. AYLETT of Charlottesville, Va., sends in the following: Editor Bicycling World: In your issue of the 2nd of January appears the following: "Charlottesville, Va., is behind the times. At the last meeting of the Council, on motion of one of the members, the ordinances were so amended as to prohibit any bicycle or tricycle from being driven on the pavements of the city under penalty of not less than $1 nor more than $5." This is a mistake. There are a great many old fogies here, but they do not go so far as to try to do away with bicycles. The object of the recent ordinance is to prohibit wheelmen from riding on the sidewalks—not on the pavements in the streets.

THE following ill-tempered and unjust criticism on the lady cyclist was printed in a Southern paper from a Washington correspondent. We will bet sixpence the item was penned by either an ill-favored old maid or an ossified woman hater: "I have yet to see a really pretty, refined-looking lady bestriding a bicycle. They are generally sharp-faced, masculine-looking creatures who affect some characteristics of male attire. There is not a great deal of difference, so far as women are concerned, between riding a horse man-fashion, and few daring equestriennes have essayed to introduce the latter innovation."

COPIES of "Cycleland" by "Secretary" are selling like hot cakes. Better send in your 50 cents to the WHEELMAN CO. "The brighest and most entertaining lot of cycle sketches ever written."

MR. JOSEPH GOODMAN of the American Cyclist was in Boston last Monday and Tuesday and called on us. We always like to have Goodman call as he always has a fund of cyclic information and lore with which to enliven and inform us. There is not a better posted man in the cycling editorial fraternity than "Joe" Goodman.

IRELAND gives America the Dunlop pneumatic tire and America gives Great Britain the Richwine ball tire. "A fair exchange is no robbery." Mr. Richwine sails for England to attend the Stanley Show. Mr. DuCros has been here, disposed of the right to sell his tires in the States, and he will return home also in time to be present at the great annual show.

MR. E. H. WILSON, secretary of the Stover Bicycle Mfg. Co. of Freeport, Ill., has been in Boston during the past few days. Mr. Wilson is a veteran wheelman, having bought and ridden one of the "Duplex Excelsiors," which were on exhibition at the Centennial in 1876.

THE Wilmington men have not yet given up record breaking this season. The local record for the six miles between the Centreville school house and the Baltimore and Ohio Railway, made by Thomas Jefferies on January 7th of 21.55 was beaten by Mr. W. C. Seeds in 20.55.

THE Baltimore Wheelmen very properly mourn the loss of Mr. E. F. LeCato who is soon to leave that city and take up his abode in Chicago. Mr. LeCato is one of the most popular and best liked wheelmen in Baltimore, or in fact in Maryland. It is Chicago's gain, however, and Mr. LeCato will carry with him those qualities which have made him so well and favorably known in Baltimore. Even in that city of popular hustlers, Mr. LeCato will not be overshadowed.

MR. G. HOWARD AVERY, one of the four members of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Cycle Club expelled, has been reinstated. He was expelled for his supposed connection with a race meeting held in that city a few months since, and in furthering which the name of the Syracuse Club was claimed to have been improperly used. Mr. Avery applied for readmission to the club, and his application was signed by 103 members.

DETROIT IN 1891—CHICAGO IN 1893.

Editor Bicycling World: It is my pleasure to inform you that at the last meeting of the Associated Cycling Clubs of Chicago held last evening, the 8th, it was the sense of the meeting that the annual meet of the League of American Wheelmen in 1893 should be held in Chicago. The meeting further endorsed the application of the Detroit Wheelmen for the meeting in 1891. Yours truly,

S. A. MILES, Secretary.

A SMALL "MUNCHAUSEN, JR.," RIDE.

I FELT satisfied when I read "Baron Munchausen, Jr's.," account of his coast that "Tertius" would relate one of his rides, and I now will relate one of my own trifling adventures.

Some years ago, not satisfied with the wheels then made, I constructed one on my own ideas, one of which was an inflated tire with an automatic attachment that pumped in the air as I rode along. Another idea in its make-up was an oscillating ball of quicksilver, weighing 100 pounds that oscillated between the centre of gravity and arc of suspension.

The above and several other attachments formed a wheel on which I could attain a speed of six hundred miles per second, it traveled so fast that I had to put on an extra little wheel as one couldn't keep up with it. I also had air brakes which enabled me to come to a dead stop in two one-thousandths of a second.

Like Tertius I like to be minute in my minutes of the previous meeting

I was compelled to give the wheel to a messenger boy, as the slowest gait at which I could travel was sixty miles per minute, and I was so often arrested for fast riding it very nearly bankrupted me.

The messenger boy told me that he lost his job by having it. He went on errands so quickly that people died from the shock to their nervous system.

I was coasting down a mountain early one morning, going at full speed, when on looking ahead I saw danger. I couldn't cry for help because the air resistance was so great I couldn't open my mouth.

The danger I saw was not a sudden turn in the road, or a pond of water, or a cow, or an L. A. W. sign, a railroad train or any other every day danger, but 'twas the absolute disappearance of the road. Right ahead of me there wasn't any more road; what had become of it I don't know, but it was gone, and there was nothing there but empty space.

In my excitement I forgot to strap myself to my seat, so when I put on the air brakes and the machine came to a dead stop my momentum was so great it overcame the attraction of gravity and I went flying along through space. As I went sailing along thousands of sportsmen, it being Thanksgiving Day, shot at me and all the papers had accounts of the wonderful meteor.

As I was crossing a wide river the sun began drawing up the water and drew me up with it. For several weeks I floated around the air eating nothing but little bits of clouds that I would tear off and swallow.

Finally the clouds marshalled together, and what a tornado we had.

As we were passing over a house I thought I saw an opportunity to escape, so seizing its roof I clung on, but the storm wasn't willing to give me up, but swirled me along, but so desperately had I held, I tore the roof off, and seeing three men walking along a road I dropped it on them and crushed them to death. That was some satisfaction to me.

The storm next carried me through a forest where I tore up trees by the thousands, endeavoring to escape from its clutches. Finally I saw my best chance.

A mile ahead arose a stone wall three feet thick. Putting my hands above my head like one preparing to dive, I guided myself at it. There came a terrible shock that stunned me. When I regained consciousness there I was embedded in the wall, head sticking out one side, feet the other. So fast was I stuck that I had to stay there until the wall crumbled to pieces from old age and the disintegrating forces of time.

I have never before related the above, for, as "Tertius" says, such minor, such trivial adventures are not worthy the telling.

"SECRETARY."

QUEENS COUNTY WHEELMEN.

ON Jan. 7th the Queens County Wheelmen of Brooklyn held its annual meeting in its new club house, which is almost completed. In a week or so it will be ready to occupy. The chief business of the meeting was the election of officers for the ensuing year

The treasurer made his annual report, showing a balance of $105 61. The mileage committee reported a total of very nearly 30,000 miles ridden during the past year. The highest individual mileage was that of Mr. Kimber, who had 2312 miles. Mr. Berton was second with 2207 miles.

Messrs. Kimber, Salt and Roberts were appointed a committee to furnish the club house and procure prices for a pool table.

The $165 worth of bonds remaining to be raised in order to complete the payment of the club house was raised after the meeting during the intervals between the recitations and songs rendered by the members.

Our entertainment came off on Monday evening, Dec. 22, '90, and was a grand success. The spacious Jamaica Opera House was well filled and the performance went off very smoothly.

The circle rendered several solos and choruses, which were well received and repeatedly encored.

The O'Connor brothers, masters of their art, gave us some splendid pieces on the banjo.

The club quartet then rendered several pieces very skillfully and Mr. McGowan delighted the audience with his performances on the bones.

The feature of the evening was the duet sung by Messrs. Hadley and Birch. Their rendering of "Our Sports," "Dougherty's Party" and "Fishing Up McGinty" brought down the house. The quartet sang "Where's My Wandering Boy To-night," and the wandering boy in the shape of Mr. Magee, one of the minstrels, wheeled across the stage with two fine large hens squawking at his back.

Messrs. J. Birch and Lenz following with a very pretty duet upon their zithers.

In the afterpiece a representation of a plantation scene "Before the War" was very realistically presented.

Count Ciani, the great and only, gave one of his inimitable performances upon the horizontal bar.

The programme ended with a tableau of some of the members in full uniform, with their wheels, while the club colors in colored fire lighted up the stage.

The whole affair reflects great credit upon the committee, Messrs. Hadley, Magee and M. W. Birch and put a neat sum in the treasury—more than enough to furnish the house. "TREBOR."

"BIG DEAL IN PNEUMATICS."

THE Chicago Referee got in a big scoop on the DuCros-Featherstone deal, in which Mr. A. Featherstone of Chicago controls the Dunlop patents for the United States. Mr. DuCros since his arrival in the States has emulated "Brer' Rabbit" by "laying low and saying nuffin," that is he avoided and dodged the ubiquitous newspaper man with a persistency worthy of a better cause. At last, however, when the contract was signed, sealed and delivered, Mr. DuCros consented to talk, and Mr. Miles in the Referee of Jan. 9 has an exhaustive article on the matter, thus making a fine scoop on this most important item of news.

After giving the history of the origin of the pneumatic, which has been treated of more or less before, Mr. DuCros came down to practical points as to the tire thus proposed to be put on the market during 1891. He said:

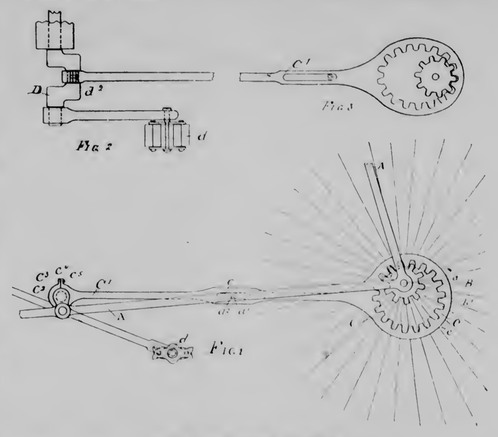
* * "As a matter of fact the 1890 tire is to the 1891 as a $10 suit to a $40 suit. Commencing right at the root we find the rubber air chamber just double as thick and of infinitely better material than formerly. The tube was formerly inclosed in a bag of canvas, fastened together by a solution. This canvas serves as a protection, at the same time fastens the tube to the rim and relieves it of the strain of the compressed air. The constant strain was occasionally too great for the solution, the case opened at the side, the rubber tube was pushed through the opening over the edge of the rim and thus cut, of course bursting the tire. This has been prevented by using double the thickness of canvas, and stitching it thoroughly as well as using the solution, rendering a flaw in this direction practically impossible. Another fruitful cause of bursting was riding the tire when not thoroughly inflated. When the least bit soft, the tire must necessarily bulge out over the rim, and was in this way cut. The best remedy in the world for this is to keep the air chamber well filled, but, for the benefit of those who are too careless to give this attention, a double thickness of this year's canvas has been placed between the edge of the rim and the rubber tube."

"The bursting," said Mr. DuCros, "was frequently due to the inexcusable stupidity of riders. When we shipped racing tires to England we took the greatest pains to impress on the men that they must not, under any circumstances, be used on the road. They were built, just as a light wheel is, for use on perfectly smooth paths. Despite this, and the fact that the heaviest pneumatic would be faster than the solid tire, the men rode in road races with them and of course ruined them. However, having, as we claim, overcome the bursting trouble, we decided that more protection was needed to prevent puncturing. This could have been gained by placing another stout covering of canvas over the first one—between the canvas bag and the outer covering of rubber, but you will easily understand that the more layers of covering to the air chamber the less life the tire will have and the less speed. To overcome this we took stout canvas so made, to our order, that it would stretch lengthwise only. This we had vulcanized to the outer covering, which is of rather stouter and much superior rubber to last year, thus making it all one piece and yet as elastic and lively as ever."

"Now, as to oil. Everyone knows that it has an injurious effect on rubber, and we found that in cases where it had been allowed to run down to the tire it had rotted the solution which bound the canvas casing. I have already explained how we have stitched this, but we have gone even further and placed around the rim, and far enough up the tire to prevent any possibility of its getting beneath it, a coating of a solution which is impervious to oil and damp."

There were many other points which the speaker pointed out, which all go to make the new tire much superior to the old one. The improvements will be covered by six patents, now pending in this country and England.

The agreement with Mr. Featherstone covers the whole United States. The Pneumatic Tire Co. are now able to make 1000 tires a week, and for the present the American supply will come from Ireland. Later on, possibly, they may be made in Chicago. Mr. DuCros is determined that the tire shall make a good impression from the start in America. He will send over to Mr. Featherstone the best man in his employ, who is thoroughly posted on the tire and its peculiarities. This man will be sent to everyone who purchases of Mr. Featherstone to thoroughly instruct them in fitting and otherwise handling the tire. One of the points in the agreement is that everyone shall be entitled to purchase tires at the same price. No one maker or importer is to be given the slightest advantage over another, except that of course a man who buys 500 tires will buy cheaper than a man who buys 10. A scale of prices will be drawn up in a few days and submitted to the trade. * * "



TRADE NOTES.

IT is getting to be an old story that "the Overman Wheel Co. have been compelled to enlarge their factory," but the oft recurring statement as above is a most eloquent proof that the necessary expansion means increased business, and increased business is the most conclusive evidence of merit and excellence. The Overman Co. are just completing an addition which will give them 75,000 square feet more floor space to its already large factory. This, the company claim, gives them the largest factory in the country which is exclusively devoted to the manufacture of high grade bicycles. The plant of the company is in extent and excellence equalled by few and excelled by none. The Overman Wheel Co. will, during the coming season, put on the market five patterns of high grade safety bicycles particulars of which will receive our attention as soon as the company can furnish us data. It has been remarked in the press of this country and abroad that the Overman Wheel Co. in 1884 produced the first hollow tire to be used on bicycles, and it is we believe a fact that the word "cushion" as applied to this style of tire was first adopted by them in 1887 catalogue where they allude to this hollow tire "which provides for an inner open space into which the rubber can cushion." The word "cushion" as applied to tires, therefore, seems to have had its origin with the Overman Wheel Co. as did the tire

MR D SNITJER of St. Louis, Mo., has issued in pamphlet form the article written by Lucy M Hall, M. D., for Chautauquan. In the last paragraph Mrs. Hall says: "* * It is not a passing craze with most people, but a steady, permanent source of pleasure, satisfaction and health. * *" Mr. Snitjer handles a full line of high grade and also second grade, and boys and girls' safeties. If you are in St. Louis call on him at 1118 Olive street, but if you live out of town send for his price-list and his delightful little pamphlet referred to above.

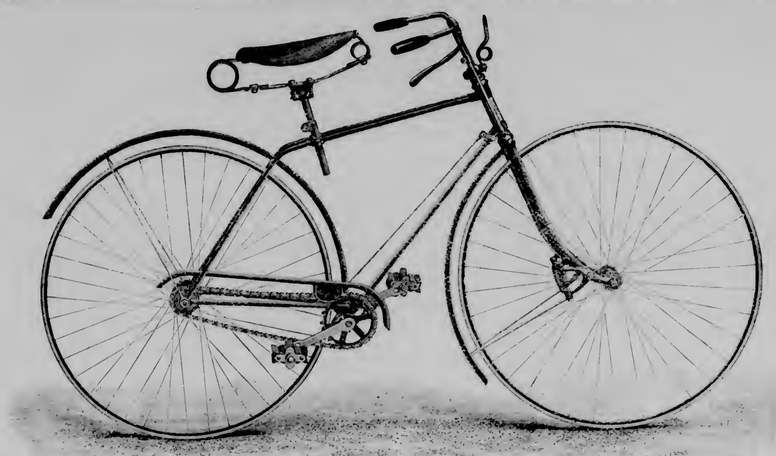
DO you use a bell on your bicycle? Well if you do not you ought to. In some localities it is compulsory, but no matter whether it is on the Statute Book that cyclists must carry bells or not, we repeat, you ought to carry and use a bell. Having struggled with your conscience and decided that you will get a bell, then the next thing is to decide what bell will you get? It is always cheapest to get a good thing no matter if it does cost a bit more at first. This axiom being admitted, the final question comes up for decision. Reader, did you ever see a "Daisy," not the flower but the bell? Here is a bell that has all the requirements It gives a sweet but loud continuous ring. It is handsome, it is durable. It does not wind, but has a perpetual positive movement, and it is warranted. When such houses as W. Read & Sons, Overman Wheel Co., Jno. P. Lovell Arms Co, W W. Stall and others unreservedly pronounce it the best, why the excellence cannot be questioned. (See page 291). This bell was pushed for the first time among cyclists last year, and the sales were very large. This season the "Eureka Door Bell Co." have already booked big orders for houses mentioned above and others. A good thing is bound to take, and in the "Daisy" will be found qualities which go to make the very best cycle bell ever put on the market.

A. W. GUMP & CO.'s sales for 1890 have increased 50 per cent. over that of 1889. They are now fixed up in their new rooms. They report that their safety sales for 1890 were just double those of the uprights.

THE BROOKS GEAR.

THE above cuts represent a device, patent applied for by Henry O Brooks of Lowell, Mass., intended to displace the chain on safety bicycles. AA. is the frame of the bicycle. CC is the connecting rod and the internally toothed ring which engages the pinion b1., which is attached to the axle of the driving wheel. "a1" is the stud fastened to the frame A. and on which the slot "c1" slides back and forth. At the point, which is usually occupied by the chain sprocket, a U shaped crank is fitted to the bearings, the ends of which are fitted on to the regular pedal cranks (see Fig. 2). The rotation of the crank shaft not only gives the connecting longitudinal movement, but will cause the front end of the connecting rod to describe a circle and will cause the rear end of the rod or the toothed circle to describe a curve which will be more or less a true circle according to the position of the stud on the frame. It is apparent if the stud is placed other than equal distance from centre to centre of the driving shaft and driving wheel the curve described by the rear end of connecting rod will be more or less of an ellipse. (See Fig. 3.)

With the cuts as above and the brief description the working of the device will be plain to any one with the slightest knowledge of mechanics. Mr. Brooks in writing of the invention says:



"We claim that it is superior to a chain and sprocket wheels because it is much simpler, having half a dozen parts to replace say 400. The usual chain has some fifty joints, every one of which moves with each revolution, and all such movements cause friction. This device being solid gets rid of the joint friction, and once adjusted for length needs no further tinkering.

With this device only three or four teeth are in mesh instead of 15 to 18 with the chain. The power is transmitted from the crank axle to the driving wheel as directly and economically as with the chain, and with much less friction, so that we claim that it will run easier, which is the great desideratum. Other advantages will suggest themselves to any thoughtful rider."

THE Overman Wheel Co. has enlarged its Boston branch by moving back into No. 182, and this gives the Overman Co. the same rooms they had when first they moved up on to Columbus avenue, and before they moved the main office to Chicopee Falls. The Boston address will hereafter be No. 182 and 188 Columbus avenue as of yore, and Mr. W. C. Overman, the New England Manager, will be glad to see all who will give him a call.

SIDWELL & SABEN have moved into much larger quarters at No. 243 Columbus avenue, the store lately occupied by Murray. Messrs. Sidwell & Sabin are making preparations for a big increase in their trade during 1891, and with a prospective increase in business the accommodations had to be expanded in a like ratio. Old friends and new will be welcome at No. 243 Columbus avenue by Messrs. Sidwell & Sabin.

MR McDOWELL of the Union Cycle Mfg. Co. was in Pittsburg, Pa., last week, and placed the agency of the Union Safeties with Banker Bros Cycle Co. The Pittsburg firm placed an order for 50 Unions. They will also handle the Referee, Meteor, Broncho, Eclipse and Giant safeties.

THE COLUMBIA SAFETY—1891 PATTERN

WE take pleasure in presenting cut and particulars of the Columbia safety for 1891. In outline the machine speaks for itself, being extremely graceful and business-like. It is a diamond frame of the most approved form, the upper part of the diamond being made of double tubing, while the mud guard is made of concaved piece of steel tubing connecting the frame at the bracke end with upper double frame, thus making an extremely strong frame.

A departure in the way of spokes has been made. Instead of tying the spokes at the point where they cross they are inserted in such a way that they do not touch at the crossing point, thus they are much easier to draw and the wheels are more elastic. Both ends of the spokes are enlarged, so that the necessary cutting of the threads does not weaken the spoke at all. Great care has been taken to make the bend of the spoke at the hub "easy" so that breakage at this point be avoided. The rear sprocket wheel has been made detachable, so that in case of excessive wear it can be replaced easily. A new and simple device for the chain adjustment has been fitted.

The chain is self-lubricating, of the Elliott pattern. Each block of the chain carries an absorbent capable of carrying enough oil to lubricate the chain for a distance of at least 500 miles.

The pedals have been fitted with dust caps so that when the wheel is laid or falls in the dust the ends will be protected from the dirt and dust that would otherwise be forced into the bearings.

There is not an ounce of cast metal in these wheels, every piece being of forged steel.

The wheel is a beauty, and it is bound to find its full meed of favor in the eyes and opinion of the riding public. These machines will be fitted with either solid or cushion tires. The machine will be made in two forms, spring joint on front fork for solid tires, while rigid forks will be used if desired by those wishing cushion tires.

THE Rouse-Duryea Cycle Co. completed arrangements with the Ames Mfg. Co. of Chicopee, Mass., some time ago to build the Sylph spring frame safety for 1891, and that Company is now busily engaged building machines for the 1891 trade, and will soon have machines ready for the market. The facilities, reputation and ability of the Ames Mfg. Co. are so well known as scarcely to require mention. The Rouse-Duryea people are to be congratulated on having secured the co-operation of such a firm. The Rouse-Duryea Cycle Co have not been in haste to market their goods before fully perfecting the same. They have spent two entire years and a large sum of money in perfecting their machine and the tools and processes for its manufacture, until they feel sure they have a machine, although weighing less than 45 pounds all on, which will stand any weight rider over any roads. Mr Duryea is well known to all old-time wheelmen as the inventor of the original hammock saddle, and one of the most prolific of cycling inventors. He has perfected a new type of cushion tire, avoiding the difficulties encountered and embodying new points of advantage. It is now in the patent office, hence details are not given, but sample tires are promised soon, and from the ability Mr. Duryea has shown in other directions, something good is expected.

A. W. GUMP & Co., Dayton, O., are using extra efforts to save money for their customers in job lots. They have just purchased a job lot of over $40,000 worth of safeties and will probably list full ball bearings men's safeties, new, as low as $50. They are getting several car loads in at once and will be ready to fill orders this month.

HAVE you sent for one of those handsome Columbia Calendars? "The finest cycling calendar ever issued" is the verdict. Send for one and beautify your home or your office.

Annual Meeting of the National Assembly L. A. W.

To the National Assembly, L. A. W.:

In accordance with Section 1 of Article V. of the Constitution, the annual meeting of the National Assembly of the League of American Wheelmen will be held on Monday, February, 16, 1891, at Willard's Hotel, Washington, D. C., convening promptly at 10 o'clock A. M.

The following gentlemen are hereby appointed a committee on Credentials: Sanford Lawton, Mass.; Geo. F. Updegraff, Maryland; A. H. Griffith, Mich. Proxies may be mailed to the Chairman, care of Willard's Hotel, and members having proxies should report to the Committee immediately on arrival at the hotel. Fraternally yours, JAMES R. DUNN, President.

New York, January 7 1891.

The Secretary will be at Willard's Hotel on the day before the meeting, and communications for the Assembly may be sent to his address, and should reach Washington on Saturday, February 14.

On the printed notices sent to members of the Assembly the name of E. F. LeCato appears as a member of the committee on Credentials. The resignation of Mr. LeCato has been received since printing, and the name of Geo. F. Updegraff is substituted as above.

ABBOT BASSETT, Secretary.

Proposed Amendments to the By Laws.

Complying with the terms of Article XII of the By-Laws, I here by give thirty days' notice that I shall at the meeting of the National Assembly, to be held in Washington, February 16, 1891, move the following amendments to the By-Laws:

Article I., Section 5. Expunge the words "National Assembly" and insert the word "League."

Article III., Section 1. Expunge the figure "2" and insert "3."

Article III., Section 4. Expunge the entire section and make Section 5 to be Section 4.

*Article III. Insert a new section to be numbered 5 and to read as follows: "If a Division shall fail to elect delegates to the National Assembly as provided in Article IV., Section 5 of the Constitution, the President shall appoint to fill the vacancy or vacancies thus caused."

Article IV., Section 2. Expunge the last sentence of the first section beginning, "In the case of a," and expunge clause b entire.

Article IV. Expunge Section 4 entire and insert in its place the following: "To the Committee on Rules and Regulations shall be referred all amendments to the Constitution published in the official organ in compliance with Article X. of the Constitution, and all amendments to the By-Laws published in the official organ in compliance with Article XII. of the By Laws. All such amendments the committee shall consider and present in proper form to the body authorized to act upon the same; but this provision shall not prevent the proper body from acting upon any amendment legally given notice of if the committee fail to consider the same and report upon it."

Article IV., Section 7, Line 1. Expunge "are" and insert "shall be." Same section, expunge the word "they" in lines 2 6 and 7, and insert "it" in each instance.

Article IV., Section 7, clause b. Expunge the words "their duty" in the first line and insert "the duty of the Board." Same clause, line three, expunge "will" and insert "shall," Same clause, line sixteen, expunge "will" and insert "shall."

Article IV., Section 7 clause b. Expunge "for a removal of the reasonable doubt" and insert the following: "or a satisfactory explanation of the circumstances which gave rise to the doubt."

Article IV., Section 7, clause c. Insert in third line following the word "merits," "If the Board shall be satisfied that the best interests of the sport will be enhanced by the restoration of the applicant to the status of an amateur it may declare him to be re-instated and invest him with all the rights and privileges enjoyed by amateurs."

Article IV, Section 7, clause d. In second line expunge "they" and insert "it." Same clause, third line, insert after the word "dealing" the words "in connection with cycle racing." Same clause, sixth line, close sentence with the word "Board," expunge "and" and begin new sentence with the word "any."

Article IV., Section 7, clause e. In second line expunge "its" and insert "cycle." In fourth line expunge "their" and insert "its."

Article IV., Section 8, clause b. Expunge "his" and insert "the."

Article V Expunge the entire article and number all subsequent articles one less than the number they now bear.

*Article VI. Expunge clauses a, b and c, and insert the following: "(a) Any member holding a position in the League, either as an officer, member of a committee, or member of the National Assembly, who shall be charged in writing by ten members of the League with malfeasance in office, or with conduct prejudicial to the interests of the League, may be suspended by the President pending an investigation of the charges.

(b) Any member against whom charges have been preferred as above, shall be furnished with a copy of the charges, and shall be heard in his own defence, after not less than twenty days' notice, before a committee consisting of the President and the Chairmen of the Committees on Rights and Privileges, Rules and Regulations, Membership and Improvement of Highways, and if found guilty of the charges preferred may be reprimanded, suspended for a specified time, removed from his position, or expelled from the League.

(c) Any member found guilty and sentenced as above shall have the right of appeal to the National Assembly, a two-thirds vote of which shall be necessary to overrule the decision of the committee. Such appeal shall be filed with the Secretary within twenty days after the finding of the committee, and until it shall be decided the judgment shall stand."

*Article VI. Expunge section d and insert the following, to be called Section 2: "Any member of the League, not holding a position, charged with conduct prejudicial to the interests of the organization may be protested in writing by four members of the League. In case of such protest the charges and specifications shall be sent to the Secretary, who shall make a record of the protest, and forward all the papers to the Membership Committee. The Membership Committee shall furnish the protested member with a copy of the charges and hear him in his own defence. If, after a full hearing, the committee shall find that the charges are sustained, it may impose a penalty of reprimand, suspension or expulsion, but in the latter case an appeal may be taken to the Rights and Privileges Committee.

Article VI. Add new section to be marked Section 3: "A member of the League charged with being a professional wheelman may be protested in writing by any member. In case of such protest the charges and specifications shall be sent to the Secretary, who shall make a record of the protest and forward all the papers to the Racing Board. In a case of this nature the Racing Board shall proceed as provided in Article IV., Section 7 of these By Laws, and its judgment shall be final and without appeal."

Article VI. Add new section to be marked Section 4: "An applicant for membership may be protested in writing by any member, but the protest must be in the hands of the Secretary within two weeks from the date on which the applicant's name is published in the official organ. All such protests shall be regarded as confidential so far as a disclosure of the protesting member's name is concerned. The Secretary shall make a record of the protest, and forward all the papers to the Membership Committee. If after a full hearing the Committee shall find that the protest is a just one it shall sustain the charges and deny the applicant admission. In case the applicant is denied admission his fee shall be returned."

Article VI. Clause e shall be Section 5.

Article VII. Expunge the entire last line and insert —"an equitable share of the fee and dues paid to the League during the year current by the member asking for the transfer."

Article IX. Expunge in Section 2 the words, "said tailors to obtain the cloth of the Secretary of the League," and insert, "under such regulations and restrictions as the Committee on Uniform may make and impose."

Article IX, Section 4. New section to read, "Wearing the uniform or the badge shall not be compulsory, nor can they be held to indicate membership in the League, the League ticket being the only reliable certificate of membership."

Article XI. Expunge the entire article and substitute—"All officers of the League shall be elected by written or printed ballot, and a majority of all the votes cast shall be necessary to elect. Each officer shall be elected by a separate ballot."

*Article XII. Add Section 1 to read as follows: "The Executive Committee may amend these By Laws at any time when a Constitutional Convention shall have amended the Constitution and rendered these By-Laws inconsistent therewith. But this power to amend shall be limited to such changes as shall remove the inconsistences. Announcement of all such amendments shall be published in the official organ.

Article XII. Mark the article as it stands "Section 2." Expunge "no amendment shall be made" and insert, "it shall make no amendment"

The above amendments contain very few, if any, changes of policy or routine. The amendments marked with an asterisk look to changes of a moderate nature. Nearly all the amendments proposed are called for in order to make the By-Laws in harmony with the Constitution as amended at Niagara Falls, and a few verbal changes are necessary to make them in harmony with the English Grammar. I have rewritten several sections in order to make them less obscure than they now are, and I have introduced several sections which embody certain unwritten laws of the League which have always been employed but never before expressed. Notable among the latter are the sections which give the Racing Board power to reinstate, and the sections which provide for protests against League officials and against applicants for membership

I have suggested that the President have power to appoint delegates in case a Division fails to elect, because under the present rules a Chief Consul has the power to default an election and throw the choice of delegates into his own hands. With this provision in the By-Laws there is little doubt but that Divisions will hold elections for Delegates. I have given the Executive Committee the right to correct inconsistences between Constitution and By-Laws that we may never again see, as we have this year, the two codes at variance and no power to correct the inconsistencies till the February meeting of the National Assembly.

Respectfully submitted, ABBOT BASSETT, Sec.

Photographers, Attention.

To stimulate the collection of photographs to be used in showing the need of improved roads in the United States, we hereby offer three prizes aggregating as follows:

1. One prize of Fifty Dollars (Gold) for the best collection of not less than three photographs.
2. One prize of Thirty Dollars (Gold) for the second best collection of not less than three photographs.
3. One prize of Twenty Dollars (Gold) for the third best collection of not less than three photographs.

This offer is made subject to the following conditions and suggestions, which should be observed:

(a) All photographs must be accompanied by negatives, unless the latter have been destroyed.

(b) Competition will close on the first day of May, 1891, and all photographs must be submitted on or before that date.

(c) Photographs must be confined to such subjects as most strongly illustrate the unfitness of the present public roads (especially the common "dirt" roads), to be used as public highways.

(d) To aid you by a suggestion we will say that we want:

Photographs showing the common spectacle of the farmer's team and wagon, hub-deep and knee-deep in the muddy road;

Photographs showing rough, rutty and muddy roads in their worst condition;

"Stuck in-the-mud" photographs, showing the farmer or the merchant with his loaded wagon, vainly trying to drive his patient team and load out of the inevitable mud-hole;

Photographs showing the every-day break down caused by rough or muddy roads or steep grades;

Photographs showing smooth, hard-surfaced roads, and (if possible) teams hauling loads over the same;

And other pictures illustrating the goodness of good roads and the badness of bad roads; your own opportunities and observation will suggest the proper thing in this line.

(e) Each photograph must be accompanied by a full statement of particulars, giving date, location, &c., by which the picture may be identified. (Blanks for this purpose will be supplied on application.)

(f) All photographs and negatives submitted must be sent marked with a fictitious name or pseudonym, by which the competitor is to be known until the date of award. Each competitor must also send a sealed envelope containing his (or her) real name and address marked upon the outside with the fictitious name of the competitor.

(g) At least ten persons must compete in order to insure the award here offered.

(h) All photographs and negatives submitted in this competition are to remain the permanent joint property of the New York and Connecticut Divisions of the League of American Wheelmen.

(i) In deciding upon the respective merits of the works submitted the following points will be considered:

1. The subject of the photograph and its force in illustrating the necessity for better roads;
2. Clearness and general excellence of photographic work;
3. Location (giving preference to those views which show bad roads in important counties, suburbs of large towns, &c.);
4. Size of photograph. The question of size will be considered leas and last of all.

The prizes will be awarded before May 15, 1891, by a committee to be selected by the Chief Consuls of State Divisions of New York and Connecticut. All communications will be in every respect confidentially treated, and further information will be furnished on application to either of the undersigned, to whom all photographs and negatives should be sent.

E. F. LeCato Resigns.

Mr. Albert Mott, Chief Consul Maryland Division, L. A. W. City:

Dear Sir—Please accept my resignation as a delegate appointed by the Board of Officers of the Maryland Division L. A. W. to the National Assembly. I take this step because the question of my eligibility might arise in view of the fact that after the 19th inst. I shall no longer be a resident of this city. Yours fraternally,

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 5th, 1891. E. F. LECATO.

The above resignation is accepted with sincere regret. Mr. Joseph T. Chism is appointed a delegate to the National Assembly to fill the vacancy.

ALBERT MOTT, C. C. Md. Div.

Baltimore, January 8, 1891.

Connecticut Board of Officers.

In accordance with Article IV. of the rules of the Connecticut Division the following question has been submitted to the Board of Officers:

It is moved that this body instruct the Chief Consul to expend at his discretion a sum of money not exceeding $75 in the collection of photographs of "bad roads," the photographs to be used in the furtherance of Highway Improvement work.

The Board of Officers, by a mail vote taken between December 30, 1890 and January 7th, 1891, vote: "yes," 19; "No," 2 on the above question.

The above is respectfully submitted to the Board of Officers and to the Connecticut Division.

ARTHUR ALLEN DEAN, Chief Consul.
EDWARD A. DEBLOIS, Sec.-Treas.
Hartford, Conn., January 8th, 1891.

Kentucky Division.

It is time for us to brace up and get to moving. The committee having the State Meet in charge has accomplished much work, and will do a great deal more in a short time. The programme will be out early in March, and it will be novel and entertaining. A track is now being arranged for, on which the races may be run, and the Entertainment Committee is at work devising schemes for fun and pleasure. One thing already practically decided on is a trip by rail to Mammoth Cave.

But the members of the Division must help the Louisville contingent. First we need and must have 200 members by the 1st of June. Let every Local Consul and every member of the L. A. W. promise himself that he will get at least one name, and then let him do it. This Meet is going to be the biggest thing on wheels in Kentucky, but the Louisville boys must be aided and encouraged by their brethren throughout the State.

The dates are June 26 and 27, Friday and Saturday. Paste these figures on your tool bag.

Missouri Division.

The regular semi-annual meeting of the Board of Officers of this Division will be held at the Missouri Bicycle Club at eight P. M., Saturday, February 3d. A full attendance is urgently requested. Reports are expected from the Chairmen of the Racing, Touring and Highway Improvement Committees, and on such other matters as may properly come before the Board.

Fraternally yours, ROBT. HOLM, C. C.
St. Louis, January 9, '91.

Missouri Division.

To Members:

Not a single application for membership has been published from this Division for three weeks in spite of the fact that I have called your attention to the great necessity of recruiting in each issue of this paper. It is certainly not encouraging to receive such support, and I earnestly hope for an early improvement. The answer to the question of how much can you lift? depends on what you lift with. Archimedes said, "Give me a fulcrum on which to rest and I will move the earth." Many a Division has enough capital and energy, and yet barely holds its own or fails altogether because these forces are not wisely utilized. Hundreds of non-League wheelmen are scattered throughout the State, you doubtless have many friends among them, who only wait to be asked to become members of our organization. Wont you lend us your aid in this matter?

Fraternally yours, ROBT. HOLM, C. C.

W. A. DAVIS, Chief Consul.
Chicago, January 8, 1891.

Illinois Division.

The Illinois Division at their annual meeting held at Bloomington, 1890, ordered the drafting and issuing of a hand-book of the Division for the general information of our members.

The Board of Officers at their September meeting of 1890, appointed a committee to take charge of that work, and at the same time to revise our Constitution and By-Laws to conform to the National Organization, and submit the same to the Division for their approval or rejection. Our Constitution says in relation to amendments Articl. XIX, "Additions or amendments to this Constitution may be made at the annual meeting after publication in the official organ of the L. A. W. at least one month previously."

Recognizing the fact that according to our Constitution no alteration or additions could be made to our Constitution until our July meeting, and that they must be made to conform to the L. A. W. Constitution in order to provide for our annual election, also that it is the desire of this committee to have the new Constitution printed and made a part of the Division hand book, your committee desiring to have the same printed and distributed this coming season so that the members may be able to have the use of it as soon as possible, take the stand that any body has the power to change its laws in Constitutional Convention when unanimous consent has been given therefor.

Unanimous consent can be obtained by asking that objections be filed after due notice of call has been given to all members of the organization or body. Therefore your committee ask that unanimous consent be given for the adoption of a new Constitution and By-Laws to govern our Division on the date to be fixed by our Chief Consul. Fraternally yours for the hand book Committee, THOS. F. SHERIDAN, Chairman.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

CATALOGUE, JANUARY, 1891.

Brief Specifications of the GIANT SAFETY BICYCLES, '91 Pattern:

The Giant has 30-inch wheels, tangent spokes, ball bearings all over, straight and hollow handle bar, rear brake, weldless steel tube backbone, Bolte spring fork, Yost saddle, an ample chain guard and is listed at $85.00

The Giantess has a 28-inch rear wheel, 26 inch front (we make the front wheel smaller to secure the additional space needed by a lady), tangent spokes, straight and hollow handle bar, rear brake, weldless steel tube backbone, Bolte spring fork to both front and rear wheels, ample chain and skirt guard, and Yost saddle. By applying the Bolte spring to both forks, we offer our lady friends a spring framed machine devoid of all vibration at the seat. The Giantess is listed at $75.00

The Ball Bearing Little Giant is similar in construction to the Giant, with ball bearings all over. All wearing parts are steel, the backbone tube is weldless steel, handle bar solid and straight, cranks drop-forged, wheels 24 inch with tangent spokes nickeled to intersection, and is listed at $45.

The Little Giant is precisely the same as the Ball Bearing Little Giant, excepting it has adjustable cone instead of ball bearings. It lists at $35.

THE GALES SAFETY.

THE GALES SAFETY is designed with a view of meeting the demand for an ALL BALL BEARING Safety at a moderate price. The frame is of weldless steel tubing and steel forging throughout. The rear wheel is 30 inches, with 7-8 inch tire, geared to 54 inches. 30 inch steering wheel, with 3-4 inch tire. Best quality moulded rubber tires, firmly cemented into the rims. The spokes are direct, of No. 12 special drawn steel wire. Straight front fork; corrugated rubber coasters. The handle bar is one piece steel tube 30 inches long, bent back, and is detachable and adjustable.

Both wheels, crank-axle and pedals are fitted with ball bearings. The pedal rubbers are soft and tough, and so made as to prevent the rider's foot from slipping. The saddle rests upon an L seat rod, and is adjustable to height, also forward and back. The saddle is the famous Fish patent Hammock, is adjustable in all directions. The brake is of the Plunger style and very powerful. Neat Lamp Bracket, Mud Guards over both wheels. Finely enameled, with bright parts nickeled on copper. Each machine is supplied with tool bag wrench and oiler.

CYCLING

FOR

Health and Pleasure.

Chapters III. and IV.

How to use a wheel, in Learning, Riding and Touring is the subject of these two chapters, but there is much that is fresh and striking in the exhaustive treatment, and such suggestions as are trite from iteration are put in a clearer and more forcible manner than is usual. The skilled rider (none too common) and the adept (still more rare) can find pertinent suggestions in them, and others will discover much to ponder over. Many hints will also be discovered, showing what misuse of the ordinary has allowed it to be so easily displaced The important questions of Economy of Power, Proper Position, Suitable Reach, Good Form and the like, are carefully elaborated. Veterans who have read the work are most pronounced in its praise.

The Cycling Psalm of Life.

Tracks of weary men remind us,
Walking makes us tired of limb,
But cycle riding leaves behind us
Lines that prove we're in the swim.

Let us then be up and riding,
With a heart for setting pace;
Still a-pedalling, still a-gliding,
Learn to ride a winning race.

Drop a line to us, then, brother,
And we'll send a list to you;
Finally, like many another,
You will say we've used you true.

"BRONCHO,"

NOISELESS, CHAINLESS, LIGHT ROADSTER, SAFETY BICYCLE

[CLIPPING.]

The performance of Charlie Woods on the "BRONCHO" Safety last Sunday was quite remarkable, when it is taken into consideration that it was his first road ride. He started from town at 8.20 A. M., arriving home at 5.30 P. M., in the meantime passing through Southboro, Northboro, Shrewsbury and Worcester, returning through Westboro and Woodville, and was compelled to dismount but twice, at Shrewsbury and Quinsigamond Hills.

A great deal of riding outside the regular course made the distance covered more than 43 miles. Charlie Woods is but 13 years old.

HOPKINTON, Mass., 10, 19, '90.

What maker in America made the first high grade bicycles with tangent spokes, hollow rims, dropped handle bars, etc.?

Who first reduced prices on bicycles in America?

Who made the first Rover type safety bicycle in America?

Who made the first square rubber pedals in America?

Who established the price of $135 for Rover type safety in America?

Who originated the term cushion tires?

Who made the first cushion tires?

Who has the largest and finest bicycle plant in America, devoted exclusively to the production of high grade bicycles?

We have the documents in hand to prove that there is one answer which fits each of the above questions, and that answer is, THE OVERMAN WHEEL CO.

"COVENTRY * RIVALS"

TO THE FRONT.

The unparalleled success of this wheel has proved most gratifying to the manufacturers, Messrs. Warman & Hazlewood, Limited, of Coventry, England, and the Importers, the Sweeting Cycle Co., of Philadelphia. The Coventry Rival Safety is a striking illustration of the truth that good goods and low prices always command a market. We do not wish to be invidious in our remarks, but we cannot help being gratified by the fact that out of the multitude of English machines that flooded the market, the "COVENTRY RIVAL" is the ONLY imported wheel sold under $135 that still holds its own, and is in its third season. From all over the country we have testimonials from dealers and riders, praising the wheel. Many consider our No. 1 Rival at $85 equal to any $135 wheel; and there is no doubt that many riders can get as much pleasure and health from it as from one costing $50 more. We are now registering the names of all who desire catalogues, and a postal card with your name and address will bring the catalogue as soon as printed.

THE DRUMMER'S GUILE.

A pretty maid I call to mind,
Once loved a dry goods' drummer.
'Tis said that love's considered blind,
Especially in summer.
Her friends who saw how matters blew,
And watched the moves between the two,
All positively said they knew
She'd wed the dry goods drummer.

But sentimental promises
Are not to be relied on,
And very likely you will guess
Another suit was tried on.
He was a tailor from the West,
Named Thomas J. De Quincy Guest
O'Brien,—never mind the rest,
Enough, his suit he tried on.

With hatred gleaming from each eye
The rivals came before her,
Requesting her to signify,
The fortunate adorer.
This was a point where judgment sound
Was needed much, to get around
The difficulties which are found
In choosing an adorer.

O'Brien's chance was very good,
His cognomen was spotless;
The drummer's worth she understood
And found she loved him not less.
I know you think from what I've said
That Thomas J. had turned her head,
And that the drummer's hope was dead,
Although she loved him not less.

But no, the drummer did not squeal,
—A match for wealth and station—
He purchased him a UNION wheel
Without much hesitation,
And sent it by the first express
All carriage paid, to her address;
I'm glad to say he gained the day,
She wrote and said she wished to wed,
Without much hesitation.

It is almost needless to say that it was a No. 13, and the young man's foresight is to be commended.

Young men finding themselves in the same position as was our friend, the drummer, should write immediately for assistance to the

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 23 JANUARY, 1891.

THIS week's issue has a lot of interesting trade notes. We regret to say that some of our correspondents who sent in their contributions l te will have to lay over one week. Notably "Toney," "Salina," "Palisades" and some miscellanous communications.

THE Committee on Rights and Privileges of the Massachusetts Division has rendered an opinion to the Chief Consul on the recent muddle. The committee decides that there was no election of delegates at the September meeting on account of an informality in the notice, and that the Chief Consul had no power to appoint delegates under the By-Laws. This leaves Massachusetts this time with no representation in the National Assembly except that of its delegates ex officiis. The Committee has further decided that a new election can be held at a properly called meeting. In accordance with this opinion a meeting of Massachusetts Board of Officers will be held to-morrow evening for the purpose of discussing the selection and choosing a delegation.

AS the time draws near for the meeting of the National Board of Officers at Washington, February 16, it will be of interest to notice the candidates that are in the field for election to the offices.

In the first place we hear of no opposing candidate to the re-election of Mr. James R. Dunn as President of the L. A. W. Mr. Dunn has done faithful and efficient service, and his undisputed re-election is only a just acknowledgement of his careful administration.

For Vice Presidents we have the names of Albert Mott of Baltimore, Maj. C L. Burdette of Hartford, Conn., Dr. G. Carleton Brown of New Jersey, and W M. Brewster of Quincy, Ill. Here certainly is a list of names, out of which a selection can be made, and the election of either one will bring to the Executive Committee strength. Sectional feeling will of course govern many of our readers in their choice, but a mistake cannot be made by electing any one of the named gentlemen for second and third positions on the ticket. The probable reason why Mr. Bidwell's name is not mentioned for re-election is because both he and President Dunn now hail from New York City, hence it was thought good policy to name men from other sections of the country. Mr. Bidwell's record as Vice President is certainly worthy of recognition in the form of re-election, and were it not for the reason as above alluded to, there is no doubt but that Mr. Bidwell would be up as candidate for re-election.

In regard to the probable outcome of choice as between Mr. Mott, Maj. Burdette, Mr. Brewster and Dr. Brown, we are very much at sea. Connecticut is working for Burdette all it can, and the same can be said of New Jersey for Dr. Brown, while Messrs. Brewster's and Mott's strength is really unknown.

We never knew an election to be so close at hand without some straws to show the probable trend of the membership opinion.

This time last year the positions of the different Divisions were pretty well defined, and some forecast could be made. This year "pledges" seem to be scarce outside Connecticut and New Jersey; we doubt if any of the States are pledged to support any particular candidate. We venture an opinion, however, that Dr. Brown has a pull on one of the offices, and that the contest will come on the selection of the others for Second Vice President.

THE CALIFORNIA DIVISION MUDDLE.

Editor Bicycling World: The subject of forming a separate L. A. W. Division for Southern California has lately been rather seriously considered here in the southern portion of the State, as we seem to have nothing in common with our northern neighbors.

When one stops to consider that California is larger than all the New England States this does not seem strange. We have for a long time stood the burden imposed upon us by the northern wheelmen uncomplainingly, but when we are asked to advance money to defray the expenses of a century run to which we were not invited the last straw is placed upon our backs, which are now ready to break

Much has lately been said in the BICYCLING WORLD by northern correspondents about our lack of interest in League matters, while really we have done as much to advance cycling as any one, and have produced fully as many fast men in proportion to the number of wheelmen as the whole north combined. From all "S. F." has said in regard to our withdrawing and forming a new Division, I trust our desire to withdraw is mutual. Yours, etc., X. Y. Z.

Los Angeles, Dec. 22, 1890.

A CARD FROM MR. HUNTINGTON.

Editor Bicycling World: In your excellent paper of January 16, I find a reference to an article of mine in the American Cyclist which quite staggers me. Really, Mr. Editor, if you will look again you will find nothing whatever in that article which could be taken as "condemning the Racing Board for enforcing the rules as they stand on the books." Said article condemned, not the Racing Board, but the absurd, misshapen, illogical set of alleged rules which it becomes the unlovely duty of the Racing Board to see executed. The trouble is with the law, not with its servants.

Great and glorious is the L. A. W.! Well may it be proud of its record of good things accomplished for American cycling, but until it finds some more excellent criterion for distinguishing between the Ephraimites and the Gileadites, it will never be able to handle racing properly. Amateurism might very possibly be fashioned into a term of some genuine and useful significance, but the present shibboleth is ridiculousnes unspeakable. C. G. H.

WE alluded to the "Queens Co. Wheelmen of Brooklyn" last week. We should have said the Queens Co. Wheelmen of "Richmond Hill, L. I."

NOTES BY "HAWKSHAW."

AROUND this season of the year when the wordy war of canvassing for candidates is followed by the conflict of the ballot, usually is sown the seeds of future trouble in most wheel clubs. The defeated side is often chagrined at the uncalled for jubilation of the winning one and seeks with the sharpened knife of revenge to blot out the magnified dishonor of defeat, cliques are formed, the club becomes a house divided against itself, and the result is most always disaster as far as the prosperity of the organization is concerned. Democratic equality is the only basis on which a club can establish social relations between its members. When the discordant elements, caste and cliques, enter a club they bring with them a discomfort that robs club life of its principal charm. The desire to "run the thing" gets permission of a certain class of members and if they are allowed to follow out their lofty aspirations they invariably run the "thing" off its legs. Business meetings and discussions undo much of the pleasant ties formed on friendly runs and often induce enmity where before was staunch friendship. This is merely because the men who take the front rank in wheeling have to take a back pew when the tongue lashing begins, and the men who are imaginary club leaders in business affairs get badly left in wheeling events. There is nothing better than a little philosophic resignation in one case and a little democratic courtesy in the other.

SHE was young, she was pretty, she was a Sunday school teacher and it was her first day at the business. She had been telling her class of youngsters that the near approach of Lent made it desirable that in its solemn season her chagesr should make some sacrifices. Seeing that her little speech seemed unheeded by all the children except one fair-haired cherub, whose sunny locks the summers of not more than eight years had kissed, she smiled so sweetly at him, that, young though he was, the witchery of it won him, and he said:

"Would it make you very happy, teacher, if I gave up something?"

"Yes, my child."

"Then, teacher, dear, I'll give up coming to Sunday school on foot and come on my bicycle." She never taught the infant class after that.

THERE isn't quite as much anxiety among large cities as there used to be for the honor of holding the annual meet of the League. Nowadays any one of them that wants the experience and laborious honor of host usually succeeds in getting it without much of a struggle. When the first meet was to be held great was the rivalry between Boston, New York and Philadelphia, and finally the first-named won and they did the honors nobly; the succeeding year but one found New York ready to take her share of hostess, and she too acquitted herself with credit; in the natural course of events it would have followed that the third meet would have been captured by the Quaker City, but it wasn't. From the day of the first annual meet until the present, Philadelphia, with all her clubs and wheelmen, has never made any bid for the honor of having the League for guest, and the list of the L. A. W. entertainers stands Boston (twice), Chicago, New York, Washington, Buffalo, St. Louis, Baltimore, Hagerstown and Niagara Falls, each in turn undertaking the role of hosts in the order named. It seems strange that with these examples Philadelphia has never seen fit to ask the League to eat "scrapple" within her gates. Does it not?

MANY newspapers in the South and West are offering bicycles as premiums to all children who succeed in getting over a certain number of subscribers for them. The plan is not a bad one for many reasons. It spreads the gospel of cycling; it causes the papers who make premiums of bicycles to become ever afterward defenders of the use and users thereof; it makes practical converts to wheeling of the rising generation and it benefits the manufacturer by opening up a new market for his wares. It is, indeed, one of the few schemes in which projector and participator are both equally benefitted. It makes the bicycle take the place of the Waterbury watch as a business bait, and though the number of wheels in the bicycle are certainly less than those in the watch, yet it does not follow that the recipient of the latter is getting less for his labor than he did in the days of the everlasting winder. If some energetic publisher really wants to boom his paper though let him agree to give a wheel to every subscriber, and if he carries out his contract without going broke at it I will guarantee him a circulation greater than ever periodical saw before.

WHY shouldn't the wheelman defeat the trotting horse when the latter is forced to drag behind him a vehicle that is always a "sulky" one?

MILO is said to have gone around the Olympic course with an ox upon his back. So great has become the love for athletics in this country since the birth of cycling that I believe if I was to ask the readers of this column which they would prefer to have this strength of body or be gifted with the intellectual powers of Pythagoras, that even a respectable minority of them would be a triumph which the father of metempsychosis could hardly expect to secure. The racing man would of course want to be a combination of both, while the average rider confined to a choice of one of them would have no hesitancy in selecting Milo, as the visions of profitable pot hunts, in long distance road races and hill climbing contests would prove too alluring to him to cause any delay in his making a decision.

CHICAGO.

"WAYNE SCOTT."

FROM a membership of 300 in the Chicago Cycling Club but 60 votes were cast. The Illinois Club have 285 members and 106 voted. The Lincolns have 175 and 50 voted and 46 of the 75 members of Englewoods cast a ballot. No such excitement will probably ever occur at the Lincoln Cycling Club as that of two years ago when F. N. Gerould was elected President to succeed Edwin Oliver.

THE Oak Park Cycling Club is probably the most wide awake club of all the 21 clubs in this city. They are making the winter season one constant round of pleasure for their members. A whist tournament is in progress every Monday evening with 20 players. These players drew lots for their first positions at the five tables and progress as they win, the losers of course going down one table each time. Three prizes are offered and a large amount of friendly rivalry is brought about. Every other Thursday night the club gives some sort of an entertainment in conjunction with the Ladies' Cycling Club and occasionally a dancing party is given. A handicap billiard tournament will be played this winter, the trial games are now in progress to reduce the 50 entries to 12. An indoor base ball team is in course of formation. The membership has passed the century mark and the club's prospects are so good that they have offered to take the League Hotel with its 44 elegantly furnished rooms. This was offered them at $150 per month some time ago, but they refused it then.

THE Æolus Club is gradually working its way upwards toward those in the front rank. Their new club house will be ready for occupancy May 1, and their membership is most decidedly booming.

THE Englewood Cycling Club gave a well attended and very enjoyable stag party Saturday evening, Jan. 17; W. L. Bush entertained the members with a few of his comic selections. Tuesday evening, Jan. 20, this club gave a reception and dance.

THE Viking Cycling Club held its annual election lately.

THE Æolus Club masquerade ball was a great success. Two hundred couples were present and a good time was enjoyed by all. The club treasury was enriched by $200.

CHICAGO is to have a club or association similar in many respects to the Boston and Manhattan athletic clubs. Before '92 the Chicago Athletic Association will build on Michigan avenue, near Madison street, a seven-story building. Accommodations for the wheeling membership will be a special feature. On the ground floor a large wheel room and locker room adjoining will be built with a special entrance. Wheelmen may then ride to work in knickerbockers and leave their wheels and bicycle suits at the club house. Other accommodations will be furnished. The club house will be a boon to the Chicago wheelmen who can stand the initiation fee and dues.

THE Lincolns, thanks to a faithful and efficient corps of officers, finished the year in a prosperous condition. F. W. Gerould was elected President and J. M. Erwin Captain.

THE C. F. S. C. C., U. S. A., have issued very elaborate invitations for their annual banquet to be held in this city Feb. 6. This will be a game dinner and will be held at French's restaurant, one of the swellest of our Chicago restaurants.

THE Columbia Wheelmen have now nearly 75 members. They are rapidly fitting up their club house at 737 North Hayne avenue. Their membership is composed chiefly of active young riders, over 30 of whom belong to the L. A. W. They have now under way plans for an opening reception, which they say will far eclipse anything ever held in that part of the city.

THE Cook County Wheelmen and Jackson Club have rented and are fitting up an elegant and commodious club house at 709 West Adams street. These clubs have over 20 applications for membership. Friday evening, Jan. 16, they gave a "Hard Times" carnival. Over 100 couples were in attendance at the rink. Skating and tobogganning passed away a very pleasant evening.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"ARIEL."

SECRETARY-TREASURER, George C. Pennell, of New Jersey, was in Philadelphia the other day and was very chatty on League politics. The New Jersey Division feel that they are entitled to some recognition at the hands of the powers that be, and think that an excellent method of obtaining this recognition would be by having Chief Consul Dr. G. Carleton Brown nominated for the Second Vice Presidency. As Pennsylvania and New Jersey have always stood together, this Division would be pleased to see Dr. Brown slated; but for First Vice Presidency Pennsylvania is, I am inclined to think, for Mott. Mott of Maryland you know.

ROAD BOOK details took up a good bit of our time. Mr. Pennell is one of the Jerseymen who engineered their excellent new road book through, and with the bright prospect this Divisions' Road Book Committee has before it, in the compilation of an entirely new issue, I feel that any stray scraps of how it was to be done which I could beg, borrow or steal from Mr. Pennell would be just so much gained. The one great drawback to the work is the difficulty in getting the local consuls to put their shoulders to the wheel and write up the various routes in their vicinities.

THERE will be a meeting of the Racing Board in this city February 13th, prior to the meeting of the National Assembly at Washinoton, when a number of important questions will be brought up. Quaker hospitality will endeavor to render the visit of Davol and his confreres a pleasant one.

THE Pennsylvania Bicycle Club have decided on adopting a junior membership plan on the same general lines as that just accepted by the Philadelphia Club, which briefly is the admittance of riders eighteen years old by reducing or waiving the initiation fees and putting the dues at a nominal figure. This is a good move in the right direction.

I STUMBLED across a new idea in cycling manufacture the other day, which its projectors believe is going to revolutionize the process of wheel construction, and it happens to have among its backers several substantial and clear headed business men who are not given to putting their money into wildcat schemes. It is no less than a newly discovered process by which, on the introduction of a certain chemical, cast steel tubing can be manufactured so as to be not only perfectly ductile, but also by actual test, of greater tensile strength than the best Credenda cold drawn weldless tube. Full details will be given later.

NEW ORLEANS.

"LA. DODGE."

WE can shake hands with the wheelmen of Northern California when we consider the climate best suited for wheeling, and agree perfectly with "S. F." when he speaks of the delightful riding between showers in the fall and spring. At no season of the year is riding unpleasant in New Orleans, and there are numerous riders who hardly ever miss a day, and that only when rains interfere, and even then a few hours after a shower when the sun comes out warm and bright it takes but a short time to dry the smooth surface of our asphalt paved avenues. And frequently the rain does more good than harm to the surrounding roads, as it lays the dust, and when thoroughly dried they are harder and better suited for riding than before the shower.

A FINE gravel road is being constructed through Audubon Park from St. Charles avenue to the Horticultural Hall, the most favorable rendezvous of the cyclists of New Orleans. This is one of the loviest spots in this city, situated near the river in the midst of a grove of the finest oaks festooned with the clinging Spanish moss, and around which still linger the pleasant reminders of the gay and happy times of the World's Exposition.

THE officers of the Louisiana Division are working quietly and earnestly, and the increasing membership evidences that they are not working in vain. Keep it up Messrs. Born and Chapman, and in a few years the number 126 reversed will be the figures that will stand at the head of the list of applications in the official part of the WORLD.

THE other night at the Grand Opera House where Keene was playing Richard III., just when he rushes out and yells for "A Horse! a Horse! My kingdom for a Horse!" one of the "gallery gods" shouted, "What's the matter wid er Bicycle?

PORKOPOLIS NOTES.

"STAR."

"TEDDY" ALLSUP feels very much aggrieved to think that after working so faithfully to make that mileage record that some one should question the accuracy of the figures. "Non-Contestant" in his startling array of figures falls into several errors. If he will go to Hanauer's and consult the daily mileage during October he will see that "Teddy" rode 30 days instead of 28 as he states, and that on Sundays he rode from early in the morning till late at night, making on one Sunday 153 miles. His Sunday average was nearer twice what was done on week days, so that in finding the daily average he should divide the mileage for the month—2671.7—by 34 instead of 28, when he would get an average of 78.5 instead of 95.4 as he states, quite a difference. Again, "Teddy" did his riding during the week days from four A. M. to seven A. M., and from seven P. M. to 11 P. M., when, as all local wheelmen know, there are very few vehicles on the streets. Now as the riding during October was done on asphalt streets, and as a pace of from 12 to 15 miles an hour is nothing uncommon with "Teddy," one need not be "a fit subject for an inquiry as to his sanity" to accept the record. If "Non-Contestant" or any one else who doubts the record will put up a medal "Teddy" declares that he will not only repeat the performance, but will add several miles to the record.

THE following from the Wheel shows that the editor did not recognize a joke when he saw it: "The Cincinnati Commercial of Sunday last devoted two columns to a lurid and highly sensational story about the annual election of a wheel club in which two factions were working for office, and topped it all with a fourteen line heading. It gave the affair very nearly as much prominence as a New York paper would a municipal election." The club mentioned never had any existence, and is a companion piece to the Society for the Prevention of Music that amused the readers of that paper several years ago.

"AH!" exclaimed a local wheelmen on passing a confectionery store and seeing some candy pigs in the window, "If there isn't 'Star' and his pet club!"

THE Porkopolis Wheelmen will celebrate the anniversary of their organization, March 11, with an elaborate banquet at the Palace Hotel.

THE Cincinnati and Covington Suspension Bridge Co. have made a sweeping reduction in their total rates. The toll on hogs has been cut down from three cents to one and one half cents each.

THE Crescents are organizing a team, and if there should be a team race at the State meet they expect to——.

THE ORANGES.

"ESSEX."

WITH this issue I start my corresondence from the Oranges, the land of perfect roads and mosquitoes. I am going to start recklessly, by stating that we have as many riders to the square man as any other place in this whole country, with perhaps the exception of Washington, D. C. (not Washington, N. J.). This is a large statement, but you only want to visit the Oranges during the riding season to be convinced. So, Wie gechts?

NATURALLY in a locality where there are so many riders there would be some good clubs, and in this respect we are not behind. The East Orange Cyclers and the Orange Wheelmen are a couple of A1 clubs.

IN regard to racing men, Grosch, Wheeler, Brock, Coggeshall, Coffin and Pring are good ones. Of these Paul Grosch easily leads. I predict that this young man will surprise some of the fast ones next year. He lives at the top of the Orange Mountains, and has developed his muscles and wind in a wonderful manner by riding up and down every day on an ordinary. Harry Wheeler probably comes next among our talent. He has any number of medals, prizes, etc., won last season. He distinguished himself last season by winning first place in the mile safety at the Union County games at Rahway, where he defeated Lersner of the N. J. A. C. Both Grosch and Wheeler are young, and are comparatively novices at racing.

A GREAT many "fair" riders can be seen about the Oranges at lmost any time. Several of them do not hesitate to start on club runs when the sterner members fall out on various excuses, and hey always are first at the finish. A run of twenty miles at night over rather heavy roads makes some of the boys hesitate, but several of our fair riders have accomplished this a number of times, and have come in as fresh as a d isy.

LATE last fall John Clarke of the Cyclers began to develop considerable speed, and showed himself especially clever at turning corners. The other day he brought out his 1890 wheel and happened to run across Frank Fieger. Now Fieger has lately come forth with a brand new cushion tire, but Clarke, not knowing the virtue of that latest wrinkle, proceeded to give him a brush. Mr. Clarke found himself "wid out his gait" so to speak.

RACEY and Coggeshall of the Wheelmen have secured the agency for a couple of well known wheels, and are about to start in for themselves in the business. Tha boys have a host of friends in town and are sure of success.

One of our riders was guilty the other day of springing on an unsuspecting crowd of listeners the following conundrum: "Why is a person continually using pins like the '91 wheels? Because he is cushion tired."

BUFFALO NOTES.

"SETAGEC."

THE beautiful calendar of the State Division is out, and every wheelman in the country should have one. In addition to the calendar there is a perpetual application blank holder, which can be renewed as often as desired. The photogravure illustrations of good and bad roads say more than any words can for needed improvement in the highways of the country.

THE next great wheeling event here will be the indoor tournament of the 65 Regiment A. A. assisted by the Ramblers Bi. Club on the evening of Saturday, January 31.

MUCH important business will come up at the next meeting of the State Division, which will be held at the Delavan House, Albany, February 9. Chief Consul Bull's plan for a State racing circuit will probably be settled on at that meeting, and the Chief Consul tells me that clubs who fail to elect representatives up to the tin e allowed will not have representation hereafter. This is right, many League Clubs don't seem to know "beans when the bag is untied."

PENSEYERES and Conn of the Press Cycling Club; Kane, Lewis, Spitzmiller, Crooks and Klipfel of the Ramblers; Dorntge of the Iroquois, and several other local wheelmen will compete in the races at the indoor tournament.

A LOCAL rider has been treated with Prof. Koch's lymph.

ANOTHER Buffalo rider carries a large family on his safety.

HOWARD SMITH expects to soon open up a cycling store on Cycle Row.

TWENTY-FIVE HUNDRED safety bicycles have already been ordered by our dealers, and this to start with, part of which have been delivered.

Among the events of the indoor tournament, January 31, will be the following: 5-mile championship of city, 1-mile Ramblers indoor safety championship, 1-mile 65 Regiment A. A. indoor safety championship, 1-mile novice safety, 1-2 mile safety, 1-mile open, etc. "Pendragon" of the News will be general referee, and Consul Bull referee of cycling events. The rest of the officers are made up from the two clubs. Capt. Johnson of the Press Cycling Club will be a flyer on the ordinary this season.

SEVERAL rational patterns of ordinaries were used here last season, and many rationals will be used this year by safety riders of last season who did not find the safety the thing for country roads.

STEIN is still ahead in the Ziz Zags pool tourney.

THE Columbia Bicycle Club are to have a ball at Turn Hall.

THERE has been a wordy war going on in the columns of one of the evening papers over Frank Brinker as champion safety rider of the city. Brinker don't seem to be interested in it though.

A LOCAL cycling manufactory is turning out a large lot of light ladies' bicycles.

THE Zig Zag's annual ball was largely attended and much enjoyed.

IT has long been a wonder to me that the Ramblers, Zig Zags and Koaxes do not take the money they have to pay for suits of rooms on the third or fourth floor, and hire a house where they can enjoy themselves and not have to climb so many stairs.

Now is a good time to arrange for that annual road race from Buffalo to Rochester so as to get even with the Flower City. Evidently Buffalo will be just as slow in the next century. There seems to be plenty of good riders here, and lots of material to make racing men out of, but somehow there is a lethargy in the air, or is it in the beer?

ANNA SYLVESTER, who once did charm the world as a fancy rider, is giving exhibitions with a variety company in the theatre of the Musee here, yet I have heard none of the wheelmen rave over her.

THE Ramblers' "Gym" was filled last Saturday night to witness their athletic exhibition; fully two hundred and fifty were present. The programme consisted of boxing bouts and wrestling The most exciting event was the last set-to between Dempsey and Fitzsimmons; three rounds were all they were allowed; another round would have terminated in a knock out. "Fitz" had the best of it.

THE Columbia's first annual ball Monday night was a success, and these hustlers have the making of a great club.

L'HOMMEDIEU, of the Zig Zags, is named as a strong man for the indoor races of the 29th. Racers from Rochester, Niagara Falls and Lockport are expected to compete.

THE grand ball of the Press Cycling Club, which is to come off on the evening of February 5, will eclipse anything done by cycling clubs in the past. The pen pushers have engaged the massive Music Hall, where two hundred couples can dance at once, and Prof. Woods, a famous terpsichorean, will lead the grand march. The club expects to sell 800 tickets, and will have the finest orchestra in the city. Nothing slow about the pen pushers.

THE regular monthly meeting of the Press Cycling Club will be on January 30.

IT looks as though that Buffalo to Rochester race would come off this year after all, and as before Rochester will make the challenge. What ails the Ramblers? Why ain't they in it?

DETROIT.

"JUDGE."

'JUDGE" has been home sick all this past week and knows very little cycling news. It is rumored, however, that Bradish has sold his "fish net" tie to Burrell, the pool referee, who will use it as a "pool shark" net. Let "Schimmie," "Boy wonder Marks" and Handsome Fred Eckliff, the champion, beware.

THE two Jones brothers make a very "Jonesey" paragraph in the daily papers when they both play in one evening. I clip the following from the morning Free Press: At the Detroit Wheelmen's tournament last night G. M. Jones defeated Holcomb, Schimmel defeated C. R. Jones and Ekliff defeated both C. R Jones and G. M. Jones, and C. R. Jones defeated G. M. Jones at pool and Watson defeated C. R. Jones at billiards.

WHEN you come to Detroit next July remember one thing, bring your L. A. W. ticket, we intend to make that ticket worth more to you than it cost. First you will get 25 per cent reduction on hotel bills; second, it will admit you free to our Stanley Show, and third, it will admit you to the races for 25 cents instead of 50. The Stanley Show part was thought of over a month ago before we heard a word of the move in that direction in Philadelpia. We see no reason why both shows should not be a success, this country is considerable larger than "The Tight Little Island." We will give details later when the meeting in Washington is over.

DENVER.

"BRONCHO."

WHAT a pity that we should be "out of sight" (literally speaking) every week in the WORLD and just for the want of a few rustlers. There are thousands of riders in Denver, and yet our membership in the L. A. W. is far below 100, and the few, they speaketh not, neither do they sing—the praises of our League. I think we have a Chief Consul, but his hustling abilities are on a par with those of the ossified man. And yet this same Chief Consul is filling his second term. I don't want to insinuate insiduously, but the truth of the matter is we should have a Chief Consul who would put more life into the office. That it would be an easy matter to get a large membership here my own experience proves. In the last year I sent in three names and one of them sent in four more new members. Why, actually, I have spoken to boys who have been riding over two years and did not know of the existence of the L. A. W., "Never heard of it!' But I have kicked enough and the present incumbent still holds the office. Will the next President kindly reappoint him so that the end of the L. A. W. in Denver may be quick?

THE Ramblers (that man-to-man enemy of the League) held a reception New Year's night, which I hear was a very pleasant affair. They have some fast men in their club—Gerwing, Jack Prince and several others.

NOW IS THE TIME

—TO SECURE THE—

Agency for the Eagle for 1891.

We are constantly placing new agencies, but there is still some good territory unoccupied and it will pay to take advantage of it.

We want good, live, pushing men, who can appreciate a good wheel and bring others to their way of thinking.

The Eagle is a lively wheel on the road and we want lively men to handle it, men who can 'get there."

The Eagle has now a reputation which is unsurpassed.

It is acknowledged to be the fastest and best all-round road wheel on the market.

There is good money in the Eagle agency for any agent who knows how to hustle just a little bit

NEWS AND COMMENT.

NEW YORK CITY is to be congratulated on the improved state of its roads, and it is rapidly becoming a paradise for wheelmen on that account. The amount of asphalt pavements laid and the general improvements in all the roads duridg the past season have given to wheelmen what they hardly thought possible a few years ago.

HAVE you a copy of "Cycleland?" If not, send 50 cents to the Wheelman Company and procure the same, as no cycler who appreciates anything laughable can afford to be without it. The best collection of cycling sketches ever published.

THOMAS J. TANN of Elwell, Mich., has marked the 50th milestone of life all right, but he owns a bicycle and passes all the boys like a professional.

THE Portland, Me., Wheel Club gave a very successful minstrel show at the Portland Theatre on the evenings of Jan. 14 and 15.

MR. BIKAGENT—"The last lot of lubricating oil I bought of you was so full of grit and acid that it destroyed the balls on every wheel it was used on."

Mr. Oiler—"Very sorry, sir. Just as soon as I discovered the fact I returned the entire lot to the refinery, and what I have on hand now is warranted to be the very best lubricant in the market. In fact the longer it is used the more perfect the bearings become; really, with it the balls never can wear out. I am sorry about the last lot, but I shall never again have any more of it in my establishment."

Mr. Bikagent—"Pshaw! That's just my luck! I wanted to buy a barrel of it. Business gets so dull in the winter time that really we poor wheel agents have to do something to keep our repairers busy, and just as I thought I had the very thing I wanted for the purpose you tell me you haven't got it."

THE annual dance of the Park Avenue Wheelmen of Philadelphia will take place on the evening of January 29.

THE Berkshire County Wheelmen will retain their organization, and claim to be the oldest bicycle club in the country. None except wheelmen will hereafter be admitted to membership, the "social" tendency of the club being the cause of its decline in the past.

THE New Haven Bicycle Club will hold a meet on June 8, 1891, at which prizes to the amount of $1000 will be contested for.

THERE is an absolute need of some form of athletic exercise for city men who cannot in their short daily walks lay up that fund of health and strength necessary to the accomplishment of any considerable business. Those men, who by cycling keep their bodies in fine working order can at all times draw heavily upon this resource of strength, and always find their drafts honored.

THE Wappingers Wheel Club will hold their fourth annual reception and ball at the Opera House on Friday evening, February 6.

A COLORED individual strolled into the establishment of an uptown dealer recently, and asked to be shown some patterns of first class bicycles. The polite salesman exhibited to him the various styles, and finally succeeded in producing one that in every way satisfied the intending purchaser. Arrangements were almost finished and the trade consummated, when the buyer, who was busy examining the machine, suddenly changed his mind and left the store in anything but a good humor. The salesman was astonished at the sudden alteration in his manner, and was somewhat chagrined at losing his customer, especially as he was unaware of having done anything to offend him. As he wheeled the machine he had been showing to the colored gentleman back into the rack in which it belonged, he glanced at the name of it, and the mystery was explained, it was called "The Blackbird."

NEARLY two hundred firms have entered their names as exhibitors in the Stanley Cycle Show to be held in London.

THE Oak Leaf Wheelmen of Stockton, Cal., gave a successful entertainment and dance on January 9.

THE annual ball of the Riverside Wheelmen of New York City will be held on the evening of January 23.

LECTURES on Roads Improvement by members of the League in various towns and cities, and a literary bureau for disseminating information on road building, and the necessity and advantage of good roads are among the schemes of President Dunn, to be put in active operation by the L. A. W. this season.

C. L. S. WALKER, a gray-haired wheelman about 65 years of age, out-distanced all the young blood of the Atlanta Wheelmen of Newark, last year by riding 4193 miles as registered by the cyclometer. He received the club's long distance mileage medal.

O. F. BUNNELL, President of the Park Avenue Wheelmen of Philadelphia, has projected an European tour. The party will start May 5th, and the programme contemplates a trip lasting through two months.

NEW JERSEY WHEELMEN are vigorously pressing the claims of that State to representation on the L. A. W. Executive Board, and present the name of Dr. G. Carleton Brown as candidate for second Vice President.

THE bicycle exhibition of the Associated Cycling Clubs of Philadelphia will take place in that city, March 2 to March 7, at Horticultural Hall.

IT looks very much as if the L. A. W. meet for 1891 will have to be held in August to avoid clashing with the dates set for the various meets. This a pointer to Detroit Wheelmen.

THE latest journalist convert to cycling is Allan Forman, editor of the Journalist.

MR. H. E. BRANNFELD of Pittsburg, Pa., has secured a patent on a bicycle to work by hand instead of foot power; the advantages claimed are lightness, speed, concentrated power and convenience.

SUIT was last week entered by the Thomas Inflatable Tire Co. of Philadelphia against the Sweeting Cycle Co. for alleged infringement of the former's rights, which are claimed broadly, under the patents of Mr. Thomas, the latter covering everything in the shape of inflated tires.

I SIMPLY wish to give my voice heartily and cordially in favor of the bicycle. If I could not get another one I wouldn't give up mine for its weight in solid silver. I wouldn't give it up for its weight in gold. For fifteen years, up to six months ago, I lost from three to eight days every month on my back with incurable, stubborn sick headache. Since I have been riding the bicycle I have lost only two days from that cause. I haven't spent a dollar for a doctor since I have had a bicycle.—Rev. George F. Pentecost.

THE St. Paul, Minn., Bicycle Club gave an entertainment at the armory on Saturday evening, January 17. Mr. W. S. Maltby, who is in St. Paul at present, contributed an exhibition of wonderful feats on the bicycle and unicycle.

OMAHA is to have a six-day, three hours a day, bicycle race at the Coliseum, commencing January 26 and ending Janvary 31. The contestants will be J. S. Prince, Robert Gerwing of Denver, Ned Reading of Fort Omaha, Frank Schill of Omaha, C. W. Ashinger of Oklahoma and William Martin.

DOES your library of cycling volumes contain a copy of "Cycling for Health and Pleasure?" If not, send 50 cents to the WHEELMEN Co., 12 Pearl street, Boston, Mass., and get a copy, as it is a book no wheelman should be without.

FRED WING, a cyclist of Ottawa, Ill., recently rode a half-mile on the ice in 58 3-4 seconds. He was mounted on a solid tired safety, weighing about 48 pounds. He made the last quarter in 26 seconds. At least, so says a Buffalo paper.

THE Milford (Mass.) Wheel Club will hold its annual dance in Washington Hall, Friday evening, January 30, the music being by the Fadatte Ladies' Orchestra of Boston.

FIVE HUNDRED patents on tires and tire constructions have been taken out at the patent office in London, Eng.

T. A. EDGE of Manchester, Eng., is trying to arrange a team of racing men to visit America this year.

OWNER WANTED—Since the National meet at Niagara Falls in August last, an unclaimed bicycle has been knocking around one of the depots there; if any wheelmen who attended the meet is looking for a missing wheel it might prove to his advantage to write, giving full particulars, to L. A. W. 14,374, care Niagara Falls Bicycle Club, Niagara Falls, N. Y.

WE welcome to the ranks of cycling literature a new English weekly, a prospectus of which we have just received, to be devoted to the sport and trade, and to be styled Cycling. The initial number will make its apearance on January 24, the opening day of the Stanley Show, with a special edition of 20,000. The endeavor of the manager to give its patrons a high class paper may be partially judged from the fact that he has secured the entire services of Mr. George Moore, who as an artist on cycling sujects has no equal today. Mr. Moore will be ably assisted in his artistic work by Mr. Percy Kemp, special cycling artist of the Pictorial World; the names of these two artists being alone sufficient to guarantee good illustrations, which is to be a prominent feature of the new weekly. The editor's chair will be filled by Mr. Chas. P. Sisley, whose name is well known in connection with cycling. It is intended to include in the paper a special illustrated trade section, thus enabling advertisers to publish their latest novelties and improvements when sufficiently important to be of public interest. Mr. Edmund Dangerfield is the manager of the new weekly, to whom all business communications should be addressed.

MR. E. L. FERGUSON, manager of the Western Cycle Co., of Chicago, is in town.

MR. CHAS. ASZMAN, Secretary of the Creecent Wheelmen, sends us the following: "'Non-Contestant' in his note in News and Comment in issue of January 9th, refers to the big six of Chicago in their famous one day ride from Indianapolis to Cincinnati, and infers that it has never been accomplished. I wish to say that Mr. 'Non-Contestant' is mistaken in his belief. The Crescent Wheelmen of Cincinnati made the trip on August 3, 1890, the thermometer registering 98 degrees in the shade while passing through Richmond, Ind. If (he or anyone) doubts this assertion they will find members of the Crescent Wheelmen ready at any time to accompany them on the trip" The Crescents can also give him names and addresses of quite a number of parties along the route who were witnesses to this ride. The distance is 138 miles."

THE European party, managed by Clarence H. Smith of Detroit, will sale for Liverpool on the City of Berlin, July 29, the tour ending at Antwerp, October 3d. There will be several ladies in the party.

OUR Memphis (Tenn.) correspondent "Anchor" writes us that cyclers there are exercised over a complication arising from the non-fulfillment of an offer made by Mr. Robert Black to furnish a medal to the winner of the club championship July 4th or 5th last year. Mr. Julius Wood won the race, but up to the present time has not received the promised medal. The medal was made, but for some reason has never been given to Mr. Wood.

"THE Bicycle Insurance Co." is the name of a company with home office 1411 G street, N. W. Washington, D. C., organized with a capital of $10,000. The company for a yearly premium of $3 00 propose to insure against the loss of cycles by theft. The company issue a neat and comprehensive prospectus, and in these days of cycle thieves it is well to insure against these pests. Mr. Geo. S. Atwater is President and C. R Overman Vice President.

CENTURY'S MINSTREL SHOW.

FOR weeks past the circles of Philadelphia cycledom have been on the qui vive in regard to mysterious rumors of something new in the line of social entertainment to be sprung on an unsuspecting public by those past masters in the art of interesting ventures out of the beaten path—the Entertainment Committee of the Century Wheelmen; and when these rumors resolved themselves into a "Minstrel Show," everybody told everybody else that it was going to be something out of the common run. And it was.

The entertainment took place in the spacious wheel room of the Century club house, and large though this is, it could not accommodate the crowd which was on hand, blocking the aisles and rendering the stereotyped phrase "Standing Room Only" worse than a misnomer. The stage was set at the Carlisle street end, and was a very creditable piece of work, being entirely the production of home talent. Indeed all of the talent was from the club, with the exception of Lew Simmons, the old-time veteran of minstrelsy (who does not remember the names of Simmons, Slocum and Sweatnam's minstrels?), and even he is a member of the Columbia Cyclers nowadays. Comparisons being always "odorous," it would seem hardly fair to bestow more praise upon one than upon another, where all did so well; but apart from the professional work of Lew Simmons it is safe to say that Mr. James M. Oellers bore off the honors, his impersonations being far beyond the average burnt cork amateur.

Of the opening olio, the most prominent features were the tenor solo of Mr. W. T. Walker. "Falling Leaves," which was most exquisitely rendered, although Mr. Walker took the part at an hour's notice; Mr. Oeller's comical take-off on certain prominent club mates, entitled "Once Was Enough For Me;" "Steering Home," Mr. Bretz's solo; and the Finale in which Mr. Bretz shone resplendent as Lieutenant Malone

Lew Simmons of course received encore after encore when he made his appearance, and old as his experience is in that line, he seemed greatly pleased Of course it is needless to say that his renditions were most enjoyable.

Some clever sleight of hand work was next presented by Mr. E. H. Collins, who duplicated a number of Heller's tricks, and made eggs, cards, handkerchiefs, oranges, etc., appear and vanish in the most mysterious and unaccountable ways, following which came a duel scene between Messrs. G. M. Schell and S. Johnson. the latter of whom used a grand tragedy air with great effect. Into the mysteries of Mr. Schell's attire as the Fairy Queen, it were well not to inquire too closely, being gotten up, as it was, on the ballet girl style of architecture, with short, green tarleton skirts, while the fit and general get-up of his low corsage, cut decollete, was the admiration of the ladies.

"Our Boyhood Days" wound up the evening's fun, so far as the stage presentation was concerned, and of this part Mr. Oellers was again the hero Of a truth he scarcely appeared to relish his role as the star when a raw egg was crushed on his head, leaving the fluid contents streaming down his face; or again when his frolicsome companions turned loose a dozen squirt syringes upon him, but no serious inconvenience resulted he presently making his appearance from behind the scenes in time for the dance, which brought the affair to a merry conclusion, a dozen numbers being on the programme, and it was way toward morning when the participants took their homeward roads.

Nearly all of the ladies and gentlemen were in evening dress, and the entire assemblage was one thoroughly representative of Philadelphia's cycling club lite, all of the local organizations being represented.

The Centurions covered themselves with glory, and to Mr. E. H. Collins and the chairman of the Entertainment Committee, Mr. W. J. Walker, attach most of the praise for the manner in which the idea was planned and carried to a successful conclusion.

Philadelphia, January 19, 1891. "ARIEL"

A WARNING FROM THE EAGLE BI. MFG. CO.

Editor Bicycling World: We have noticed in several copies of cycling papers notes to the effect that a firm near Philadelphia are changing ordinaries into Eagles at a charge of $25. We have taken action in the case alluded to, and these parties have been shown that they are infringing on our rights by constructing said wheels, and have discontinued doing so. As the articles referred to are likely to mislead the public in regard to our rights in the matter, we would be obliged if you will make a note in your paper of the above fact, and also state that we will take prompt action in prosecuting any infringers on our rights. Our machine is fully covered by patents both as to its separate parts and in combination.

Yours truly, THE EAGLE BICYCLE MFG. CO.

Stamford, Conn., Jan. 19th, 1891. E. S. Walsh, Sec.

"W. H. GRIFFITH & CO."

THE managers of this paper accepted and inserted reading notices from Messrs. Alden & Faxon of Cincinnati, Ohio, setting forth the advantages of a certain plating machine. Having faith in the responsibility of Messrs. Alden & Faxon, we inserted the advertisement. Some six or eight weeks ago we received a complaint as to the unsatisfactoriness of the outfit. We at once wrote to Alden & Faxon that we could not advertise a fraud, and asking for information. We received a prompt reply in which they gave us their personal and positive assurance that Griffith & Co. were O. K, and that the plater was all that was claimed for it, as they had one in their office which they had personally tested The letter from Alden & Faxon, dated December 26th, reads as follows:

"CINCINNATI, Dec. 26, '90.

Publisher of BICYCLING WORLD, Boston, Mass.:

Dear Sir—We have yours of the 19th inst., and would say, that you can rest on our assurance that the thing is all right, that W. H. Griffith & Co. are not frauds in any way. The machine they send out is a plater, a simple battery, it is worth $3. They do not send the materials for plating; that is, the anodes and the solutions, these are extra.

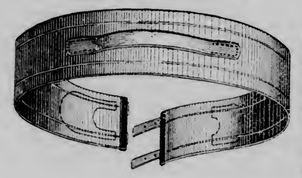
We are perfectly willing to make our guarantee to you good, and that is, if any of your subscribers, who have been defrauded by this advertisement that appeared in your paper, we will refund them the money they have spent. If you will send us the letters we will be glad to write to your subscribers and help them to succeed with this plater.

The main trouble we find is, that the majority of the people are not electricians, and they suppose that the battery will plate whether any are is taken or not in its use.

We have one of these batteries in our office and know perfectly well that it will plate nicely. Another thing is, the general ignorance of people regarding the necessity of having things clean when they plate. No battery in the world will plate a greasy silver spoon. These points are all made clear in W. H. Griffith & Co.'s circulars, and if the people would pay a little attention to all the facts, they would have no occasion to complain. There is not an ounce of frand about W H. Griffith & Co Yours truly.

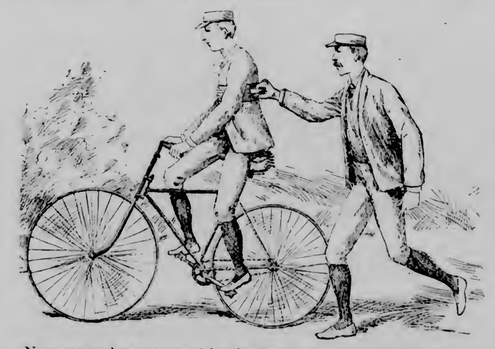
ALDEN & FAXON.

Dictated by F. H A." Steno. W.



We are in receipt of several further complaints since the ones referred to in our letter to Alden & Faxon, and we have of course concluded to discontinue Griffith & Co.'s advertisement We are much chagrined that space should have been accorded this concern, but we submit that any publishing house would have been justified in continuing the advertisement after receiving the word and assurance of such a concern as we suppose Alden & Faxon to be.

We specially call attention to the guarantee of Alden & Faxon, and would say that their address is 66 and 68 W 3d street, Cincinnati, Ohio.



TRADE NOTES.

THE INSTRUCTION BELT

(Patent applied for by the St Louis Wheel Co.)

THE St. Lous Wheel Co. send us cuts and descriptions of their new device, an "Instruction Belt." As the name implies it is a belt to be used by the instructor for beginners, and in it will be found the following advantages over the old way of supporting a learner by the dress or person. It combines the following good qualities: Perfect safety for beginners, as the instructor is enabled to get a firm hold on the handle of the belt, and can easily keep the novice in equilibrium.

No wear and tear to machine in learning; riders frequently purchase a new machine, and in learning scratch the enamel, bend the bars, crack the handles, etc.

A fine thing in instructing ladies, as in the first place it does away with the necessity of the instructor grasping the lady around the waist, by the arms, etc.; a grasp on the arm that a man would hardly feel is often painful to a lady; also it avoids pulling their apparel out of shape.

From exercise the hands of the instructor become covered with perspiration, which stains the clothes of the beginner. Lastly, it does away with the necessity of an experienced instructor, as with this device a novice can teach a novice.

THE STOVER BICYCLE MFG. CO.

BARELY a year ago a young concern started in to manufacture bicycles at Freeport, Ill., under the name of the Stover Bicycle Mfg Co., and from that time to this the progress of the concern has been most flattering in its success until now they enter on the second year with an established national reputation and an assured future. The reason for this condition of things is most evident; not only were the sinews of war forthcoming in ample supplies, but experienced men were put at the head, who not only were riders of long experience but cycle mechanics of experience also. This is a combination hard to beat, and the present standing of the company is due to the alliance of capital, business ability and mechanical knowledge of the requirements of a high grade bicycle Until lately the Stover Bicycle Mfg Co. have practically confined their efforts to the West and Middle States, but now they propose to make a more decided effort to push their business in the Middle States and New England To that end Mr. Wilcox has been taking a trip East and has established the following agencies: At Buffalo, the Standard Cycle Co., for Western New York; Sweeting Cycle Co., for Pennsylvania, and Sidwell & Saben, for Boston and vicinity. We he had the pleasure of being "introduced" to the ladies' machine for 1891, the "Paragon," and we had the further pleasure of giving the spring frame of that machine a good test over the Belgian blocks and the ice-covered surface of Columbus avenue, and we were much impressed with the anti-vibration qualities of the frame and the lightness and ease of running. The machine of '91 is practically the same as that put on the market during 1890, excepting tangent and not direct spokes are used, but in finish and care as to detail the '91 machine is an improvement on the last year pattern. "In matter of material," said Mr. Wilcox, "we could not improve, as we have always put the best there is to be had in the construction. We use nothing but Credenda steel tubing and drop forgings."

The saddle has also been changed and much improved, and this saddle with the spring frame gives the most satisfactory anti-vibrating results. In lines the "Paragon" (as indeed are all the Stover outputs) is most pleasing and grateful to the eye. Another change but of minor import is the change in the dress guard, which is made of fine strips of rawhide instead of wire. There is nothing stronger than rawhide, and furthermore there will be entire absence of rattle caused by wires vibrating and striking other metal surfaces as is sometimes the case. The machines have been lightened as much as consistent with positive strength, and the machine is of course fitted with balls all around as necessary to high grade construction. The Stover Bicycle Mfg. Co. will be heard from this year in a way that will leave no doubt in the minds of our readers as to their tangible existence.

Of course we sounced Mr. Wilcox on the all absorbing matter of cushion tires. It is very evident that the Stover people pin their faith to the spring frame and easy saddle as against cushion tires. "But," said Mr. Wilcox, "we propose to be in the swim and we shall furnish cushions to those who desire them, though we believe in the spring frame and especially in the form of spring frame which we have found to give the utmost satisfaction."

Our attention was especially called to the new saddle and we in turn must say that this, one of the most important sundries of the cycle outfit, is worthy of the prospective purchaser's most careful consideration; the requirements of a saddle, "comfort and adjustability," seem to have been met in the most satisfactory manner.

The company is well along in the completion of the '91 wheels, so that there will be no delay in the delivery of machines as soon as the season opens.

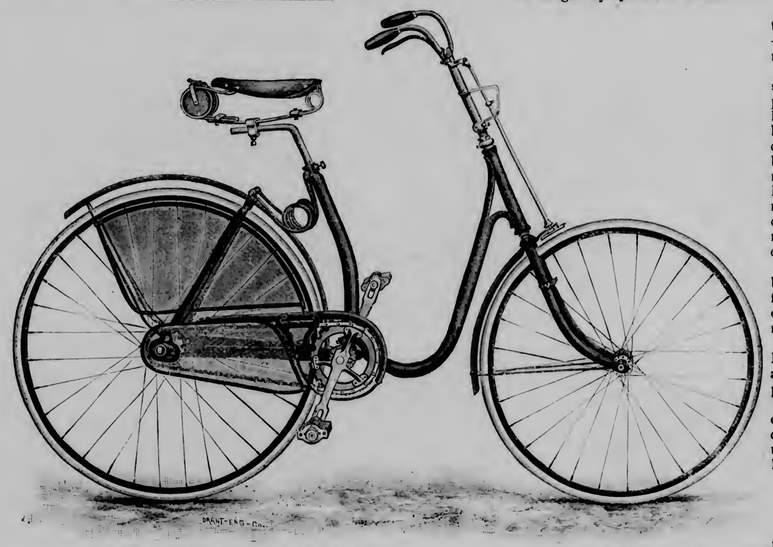
W. W. STALL.

FRESH from the enjoyment of good British roast beef and ale, we found our super-energetic friend, W. W. Stall, literally up to his eyes in the confusion attendant on the improvement of his quarters at 509 Tremont street. After answering our salutation and assuring us with true English gusto that he was "(h)'earty," we asked him what was to be the programme for the year 1891 at "509." "Well," said Mr. Stall, "I'm not ready to talk much yet." Notwithstanding this modest denial of having any points to give away, we wormed the following facts from him: Mr. Stall will, at an early date, open a gilt-edged place on Bellevue avenue, Newport, for the sale and hire of cycles. This place will be fitted up in a luxurious style as befits the "high-grade" tastes of the Newporters, and it will be within a stone's throw of Redfern's place and a block or two of the Casino.

During the coming season (1891) Mr. Stall proposes to open a down town branch store, location to be given hereafter. Not satisfied with making plans for 1891, Mr. Stall has under advisement a plan which will, in 1892, give him much larger quarters, to include a very large and elegant show-room, offices, shop, storerooms, etc., in a new location, particulars of which we are promised as soon as details have been decided on.

Mr. Stall represents the following wheels for New England: Psycho, Rivals, Indianapolis, St. Nicholas and Hickory He also represents the Eagle for Boston and vicinity. Mr. Sweeting, of the Sweeting Cycle Co., and who represents the Rivals in this country, is making arrangements with the factory in England, which Mr. Stall described as one that would "knock 'em silly; and I am in it for New England," he added. He is expecting the Psycho samples in a week or ten days, and he is loud in his praise of the excellence and beauty of the new wheel.

Samples of the new Indianapolis goods are received by Mr. Stall, and they are worthy of the closest attention of those who want a good wheel at a low price.



The new 1891 "Hickory," which is to list at $150, will be on exhibition at an early date, and Mr. Stall in speaking of this wheel said: "They will be sold only to those who bring highest references and are of good personal appearance!!!!"

He has just returned from a conference of importers and makers, held in New York, the results of which when known promise to excite the interest of every one interested in the trade. Particulars later.

The fact that Mr. Stall was only awarded a silver medal at the late Mechanic's Fair in Boston has excited his ire, and he is decided and emphatic in his denunciation of the "Fair" officials.

A trip to Stall's will pay you, and if you cannot go in person, write him at 509 Tremont street for prices and particulars.

GORMULLY & JEFFERY MFG. CO.

AMERICAN LADIES' RAMBLER.

THE concern which makes safeties and does not specially cater to the ladies nowadays is a concern that is but a remnant of the Dark Ages. "Remnants of Dark Ages" do not flourish in this country, therefore the Gormully & Jeffery Mfg. Co., which represents the antithesis (i. e., progressive and wide awake side) have anticipated the undoubted demand, by placing on the market a machine specially designed for ladies use to be known as the "American Ladies' Rambler."

Although listed at a lower prize, $125, and weighing considerably less, this wheel retains the spring frame, small steering wheel, long bearing distances and all of the other essential features of the American Light Rambler, the same care in construction and excellence in material being rigorously observed. The specifications are as follows:

Frame—The main portion of the frame is of seamless steel tubing in one piece from steering head to seat stem. The front forks and rear frame are also of seamless steel tubing, but of a smaller size and thinner gauge than that used in the American Light Rambler. The spring frame and hinged joint are similar to those of the other Ramblers. Two grades of frame springs are used, light and medium, for riders weighing 110 and 140 pounds, respectively. Machines are always fitted with the lighter spring unless otherwise specified.

Steering Head—The steering head is of new design, and turns on a series of balls at each end, the long-bearing distance feature being observed here as in their other safeties.

Wheels—The driving wheel is 28 inches in diameter, the steering wheel 24 inches. They have true tangent spokes and crescent rims.

Tires—Both wheels are fitted with one inch cushion tires, but when desired, hollow rims and three fourths inch solid tires will be substituted without extra charge.

Handle Bar—The handle bar is of one continuous piece of seamless steel tubing, and is of new design, being turned upward and inward, somewhat similar to the ram's-horn bar, affording more room in which to mount than does the usual single curved bar. The handle bar is also adjustable to height. The handles are of hard rubber and of approved shape.

Dress Guards—Great care has been used in providing sufficient and correctly shaped guards for protecting the rider's costume. Both wheels have, of course, suitable mud guards, and the chain and driving wheel are completely covered by dress guards made of fine wire cloth, leaving no possible chance for the rider's skirts to be caught by spokes or chain.

Pedals—A reduced pattern of the Champion ball pedal is used—reduced, of course, to accommodate a smaller foot.

Saddle—The saddle has been specially designed for and is particularly well adapted to ladies' use. It is of moderate length and capable of yielding downward at both ends, and of being tilted to adjust the inclination of the leather surface. It has a wide range of adjustment from or toward the handles and for increasing or diminishing the elasticity of the ends.

Gearing—The Ladies' Rambler is geared to 54 inches, but for hilly sections a lower gear of 48 1-2 inches can be furnished if desired.

Weight—The American Ladies' Rambler weighs, with all guards and fixing on, 45 pounds.

The brake, bearings, chain, cranks, and all other parts not described here, conform to those used on the American Light Rambler.

THE PREMIER CYCLE CO.

AN important event in the cycle trade this year is the incorporation of the Premier Cycle Co., under the laws of the State of New Jersey. The company has purchased the cycle business of Llewellyn H. Johnson, which has increased so rapidly since taking up the Premier safeties two years ago as to render this step necessary.

The Premier Cycle Co. will manufacture and import cycles and cycle sundries of the highest grade only, with head offices and warerooms at 846 Eighth avenue, corner Fifty-first street, New York City; branch at Orange, N. J., and agency houses throughout the country. The officers of the company are: L. H. Johnson, President; H. C. Douglas, Treasurer, and Sumner L. Beals, Secretary.

Mr. Johnson is too well known in cycling circles to need an introduction from us, having been successfully engaged in the importation of cycles since 1880. After handling a number of well-known manufactures, he contracted with Messrs. Hillman, Herbert & Cooper to build him a line of Premier safeties to his own specifications. The success of these machines was instantaneous, and their sale has become universal, increasing in 1890 over 1889 seventy-two per cent. Mr. Johnson spent last November at the works in Coventry, preparing a line of wheels for the Premier Cycle Co.'s trade that is one of the most complete ever shown, comprising eleven adults' and three youths' safeties. All are built on special lines best adapted for American roads and riders, retaining at the same time the simplicity and sterling integrity for which the Premier wheels are famous. Cushion and pneumatic tires have received a large share of attention, and patterns adopted after thorough trial only. The company guarantees its cushioned tires and rims to be more durable than solid ones, and will replace free of charge any that may prove defective within one year from date of purchase.

Quite as important in the sundry trade is the contract closed with Messrs. Joseph Lucas & Son for the sole American control of their famous "Cyclealities." This line includes the celebrated

AMERICAN LIGHT RAMBLER.

Improved only in a few minor details (the only points where improvement was found necessary or possible) the American Light Rambler is this year presented with this fact as one of its strongest recommendations, and one which must carry its own convincing story to every thoughtful mind. We daresay, though, that never before was such an earnest, extended endeavor made to find improvement as was made last season in the interests of the Rambler. We did not rely wholly upon our own observation and experiment; neither did we await criticism. We inaugurated a hunt for it. More than a thousand circular-letters, in which were embraced a series of questions calculated to draw criticisms, suggestions and recommendations, being sent out during the summer and fall. And that the letters served well their purpose, may readily be imagined. A host of replies were received. Most of the criticism was very flattering indeed, but of course, there was no lack of impracticable and unreasonable ideas advanced as well. Boiled down, however, the general trend of the replies showed that it was only in details that improvement was necessary or possible. And, as we have said, these and other slight details have been altered; radical changes, there are none. And yet, bless you, dear reader, you'll find people who, notwithstanding all this, will consider the Rambler "not worth a dam" and who "wouldn't (!) ride a Rambler if it was thrown at them." Men must have their preferences, and if it wasn't for those sort of folk, this world would fail of its object. By the by, if you haven't already done so, better send for a copy of our '91 catalogue "right away, quick." It is downright pretty, and aside from that, will interest you.

N. B. Don't forget to keep your eyes open for those proverbial straws. The wind has already caught up and whisked a few of them about, and there are more to come, and as we have remarked, there's an object lesson in every one of 'em Satisfaction-giving articles are'nt discarded for the sake of experimenting with new ones

GORMULLY & JEFFERY MFG. CO.,

NEW ENGLAND BRANCH HOUSE:
178 COLUMBUS AVENUE,
BOSTON, MASS.

FACTORY AND PRINCIPAL OFFICE:
222-228 N. FRANKLIN ST.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

CHICAGO RETAIL STORE, NO. 85 MADISON STREET.

"King of the Road" lamps, "Cyclorns," Bells, and the thousand and one little necessaries to the wheelman's comfort, turned out at the "Tom Bowling Lamp Works." These goods will be placed before the public at every prominent dealer's, irrespective of representation.

The New York offices are on the asphalt pavement of Eighth avenue, connecting directly with the Boulevard and Central Park; they are two blocks from stations of the Sixth and Ninth avenues elevated roads, or may be reached direct to the door by Eighth Avenue surface road. The company extends a cordial invition to metropolitan and to visiting wheelmen to call and "shake."

THE LOZIER & YOST WELDLESS STEEL TUBE CO.

IT has come to light that Messrs. Lozier & Yost did not take a trip to Europe last fall exclusively for the benefit of their health, but that they kept their eyes peeled for business, and made a big scoop in securing the American rights to manufacture weldless steel tubing under the English patents, and they will be able to produce absolutely the identical weldless steel tubing made by the English concerns. It is a well known fact that the process is a secret one, and the machinery to make the same is also specially made in England. The machinery for the Lozier & Yost Weldless Steel Tube Co. is now in this country, and will be placed in a factory now specially building at Shelby, Ohio. The company own ten acres of land in that city, and the building and placing of machinery is being pushed to the very utmost extent, so that tubing can be drawn at the earliest possible moment.

The officers of the company are H. A. Lozier, Vice President, and J. L. Yost is Manager. There is a big market for weldless tubing in this country, and the new concern will push the business for all they are worth, and when one reflects that Messrs. H. A. Lozier and J. L. Yost are the pushers, it becomes evident that the new concern will push the new enterprise on to certain success.

THE New England Department of the Gormully & Jeffery Mfg Co. has been exceedingly properous during the past season, and the business done at the New England depot of the enterprising pioneer Western manufacturers has more than exceeded the expectations of that concern. This is as it should be, for where enterprise and push are combined with excellence of goods presented, success is sure to follow. The prospects for the coming season of the New England depot of Gormully & Jeffery Mfg. Co. is most flattering, and steps have been taken to build a large storehouse in the rear of their office and salesroom at 178 Columbus avenue for the storage of a stock of machines, which news is a comfortable assurance to the New England agents and patrons that they will not suffer any delay in having their orders filled promptly the moment the active cycling season begins. Thus it will be seen that the Gormully & Jeffery people are up and dressed, in fact very much "in it" in New England as well as other locations

THE Victor Cycling Club of Chicago, Ill., has a membership of over twenty, all riders of the Victor cycles. They hold a meeting next Thursday evening to more thoroughly organize and elect officers for '91. A committee will then be appointed to secure a club house.

SOME surprise will be created when "The Isham" is seen. This is one of the wheels the Buffalo (N. Y.) Cycling Works are bringing out. It will be a full roadster, yet will weigh less than 40 pounds all on The frame is a braced diamond, wheels 30 inch, solid rubber tires 7-8 and 3-4 in It will be geared to 54 and 57 in.

THE Eagle Bi. Mfg. Co. will finish and assemble its own machines hereafter. This company is erecting a three story 32x80 feet building in which they will finish and assemble their 1891 wheels, the parts of which are made by the Ames Arms Co. The Eagle after two years' trial has assumed a position in popular fancy that undoubtedly is permanent. The success of the wheel has been all and more than the most sanguine of its promoters had hoped, and so successful has it been that the company has determined to put a much lighter wheel (weighing 36 pounds), and also a boy's Eagle, to list at $50 on the market. The flight of the "Eagle" we hope and believe will be as satisfactory in the future as it has been in the past. Certainly its record during 1889 and 1890 has been one that the company can proudly point to.

EDWIN D. LOANE, JR., formerly with the Overman Wheel Co., later with Spaldings in Baltimore, will hereafter be connected with the New York and Philadelphia houses of A. G. Spalding & Bros.

MCDANIEL & MERRIHEW have opened at 28 North 13th street, Philadelphia, under the title of the McDaniel & Merrihew Cycle Co., where they will handle the Eagle, Swift, Sylph, Rover, and one or two other makes.

AN important adjunct, lately completed, at the works of the Overman Wheel Co. at Chicopee Falls, Mass., is a splendid artesian well, which furnishes an independent water supply, equal to all needs of the company, its capacity being 30,000 gallons a day, and depth 500 feet.

MESSRS. WM. READ & SONS are not yet ready to make announcements in detail, but we learn that they will get out a $100 man's diamond frame, and also a $100 lady's machine, both fitted with cushion tires, that will be guaranteed. We shall give full details of these machines at an early date.

J. RUGGLES WELD, JR., formerly with the Pope Mfg. Co., has accepted a position with A. G. Spalding & Bros. as manager of the Bicycle Department in their Philadelphia store, vice Mr H. Crowther, who has been promoted to a more important position with the same firm.

Chief Consul of Tennessee.

I am in receipt of the announcement of the resignation of Joseph R. Wilson, Jr., as Chief Consul of the Tennessee Division L. A. W. Mr. Charles J. Scherer, the former Vice Consul, succeeds to the office. While sincerely regretting the resignation of so efficient an officer as Mr. Wilson, I cannot but congratulate the Tennessee Division upon its good fortune in obtaining the services of so worthy a successor.

Yours truly, JAMES R. DUNN, President.

Massachusetts.

A meeting of the Board of Officers of this Division will be held at the Clarendon Hotel, No. 523 Tremont street, Boston, on Saturday evening, January 24th, at 8 P. M.

It appearing by the opinion of the Committee on Rights and Privileges that Massachusetts has no legally elected delegates to the National Assembly, it is important that every member should attend, as this matter will be presented to the meeting for action.

Fraternally yours, ARTHUR W. ROBINSON, Chief Consul.

To Consuls:

Good Consuls, by which I mean men who know their business, can easily guarantee a successful journey to those who put themselves under the banner of the League. In order to reap the golden gains a hustling Consul should possess a good argument, backed up by push and enterprise. Such a man can give great impetus to a Division's membership, even though it be in a languishing state. If you wish to experience that gratification which large accessions to our ranks bring to a Division officer, you had better commence at once in obtaining your share of recruits.

Missouri: January 1st, 1890—330 members.
Missouri: January 1st, 1891—400 members.
Increase in 12 months, 40 per cent.
Number yet needed to make 500—35

Does looking backward over the old year bring regretful thoughts for wasted opportunities of recruiting? Rejoice, then, for the new year is ahead of you to do better. You have the experience; now you are wiser. Therefore, I speak to you with greater confidence. "You are members of an organization that appeals to every wheelman, and if you speak about it to your non-League friends they will be sure to join." There is profit for you and the Division in so doing. There is no other way by which the many benefits of membership can be secured for so little money.

Fraternally yours, ROBT. HOLM, C. C.

Annual Meet.

Dear Sir—It is my pleasure to inform you that at the last meeting of the Associated Cycling Clubs of Chicago, held last evening, it was the sense of the meeting that the annual meet of the League of American Wheelmen in 1893, should be held in Chicago. The meeting further indorsed the application of the Detroit Wheelmen to have the meeting held at Detroit in 1891. Very respectfully yours, S. A. MILES, Chicago, Jan. 9, 1891. Secretary.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objection able person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

EVERY rider who has an Eclipse bicycle will tell you that it is the best wheel he has ever ridden. He will also tell you that he can ride the Eclipse three times as long as any other wheel he knows of, without re-adjusting the bearings. The Eclipse is the only wheel on the market that has the cones so arranged as to revolve on the shaft and which are not screwed to the shaft by threads.

Do not make a mistake and buy until you have seen the Eclipse, with its elegant spring fork and the saddle that is unequalled

ORMONDE, (HIGHEST GRADE.)

England is the home of the cycle and from the beginning of the sport until the present time the English makers have been from one to two years in advance of the leading American makers. At no time in the past has this been more true than to day. The leading English makers clearly lead not only in cushion and pneumatic tired wheels, but also in high grade light weight safeties. There are light weight American made safeties on the market this year for the first time. Whether they will stand and give satisfaction remains to be seen. The Ormonde is no experiment as a light weight machine, and can be purchased with full confidence that it will stand. At Peoria we have a cushion tired Special Ormonde, which with pedals, saddle, tool bag and tools, but without mud guards, which weighs 34 1-2 lbs., and appears to be as rigid as any machine ever made and is apparently amply strong for the average rider over average roads. No American maker is making a roadster as light as this by several pounds, and none will admit that a machine of that weight is practical. Yet Bert Myers and other hard riders have been riding machines of that weight for a year without difficulty. The moral is plain. American riders desiring the best and latest will have to purchase English made machines, as in the past. We are headquarters for the machine that is to-day the most popular in England and used by 75 per cent. of all the English flyers, and are ready to make favorable arrangements with dealers. Cata. soon ready. Corre solicited.

THE GALES SAFETY.

THE GALES SAFETY is designed with a view of meeting the demand for an ALL BALL BEARING Safety at a moderate price. The frame is of weldless steel tubing and steel forging throughout. The rear wheel is 30 inches, with 7 8 inch tire, geared to 54 inches. 30 inch steering wheel, with 3-4 inch tire. Best quality moulded rubber tires, firmly cemented into the rims. The spokes are direct, of No. 12 special drawn steel wire. Straight front fork; corrugated rubber coasters. The handle bar is one piece steel tube 30 inches long, bent back, and is detachable and adjustable.

Both wheels, crank axle and pedals are fitted with ball bearings. The pedal rubbers are soft and tough and so made as to prevent the rider's foot from slipping. The saddle rests upon an L seat rod, and is adjustable to height, also forward and back. The saddle is the famous Fish patent Hammock, is adjustable in all directions. The brake is of the Plunger style and very powerful. Neat Lamp Bracket, Mud Guards over both wheels. Finely enameled, with bright parts nickeled on copper. Each machine is supplied with tool bag, wrench and oiler.

CYCLING

FOR

Health and Pleasure.

Chapters III. and IV.

How to use a wheel, in Learning, Riding and Touring is the subject of these two chapters, but there is much that is fresh and striking in the exhaustive treatment, and such suggestions as are trite from iteration are put in a clearer and more forcible manner than is usual. The skilled rider (none too common) and the adept (still more rare) can find pertinent suggestions in them, and others will discover much to ponder over. Many hints will also be discovered, showing what misuse of the ordinary has allowed it to be so easily displaced The important questions of Economy of Power, Proper Position, Suitable Reach, Good Form and the like, are carefully elaborated. Veterans who have read the work are most pronounced in its praise.

[CLIPPING.]

The performance of Charlie Woods on the "BRONCHO" Safety last Sunday was quite remarkable, when it is taken into consideration that it was his first road ride. He started from town at 8.20 A. M., arriving home at 5.30 P. M., in the meantime passing through Southboro, Northboro, Shrewsbury and Worcester, returning through Westboro and Woodville, and was compelled to dismount but twice, at Shrewsbury and Quinsigamond Hills.

A great deal of riding outside the regular course made the distance covered more than 43 miles. Charlie Woods is but 13 years old.

"TIRE" YEARS — YES; BUT NO PANIC YET.

QUIDPROQUO. XLII.

AFTER an absence of two weeks from this page, I turn the leaves of my "BI. WORLD" and my Columbia Calendar for the desk, and find in each something interesting. The Calendar (January 20) quotes the American Storekeeper as saying about the Pope Mfg. Co. that "their business is larger than that of any other bicycle manufacturer in the world, and probably larger than any other five combined importers and manufacturers in the United States." *The reports of reliable Commercial Agencies, for 1890, show that that is a very intelligent estimate of the position the makers of the Columbia Cycles hold in the trade; and their facilities, through Branch Houses, Agencies, traveling men, and patrons, as well as through their own constant experience and contact with practical wheelmen, for gathering knowledge and forming opinions, have corresponding proportions. Age alone does not mean much, but the accummulation of well-used years of experience does count for much; and the "old reliable," conservative, safe, unimpetuous Columbia folks are pretty apt to know what they are about, as well as anybody. They are not claiming any infallibility, however, and certainly don't pretend to "know it all." When they offer their knowledge, it is in all candor, for what it is worth.

A FLUTTER OF OPINIONS.

THE BI. WORLD hits the gold when it says: "Tires of every conceivable shape will be shown, and out of the mass there is no doubt but a comparative few will survive the test of practice and expert opinion. * * * The years 1890-91 will be long remembered as the 'tire years.'" There is a good deal to be said on the subject of tires, for it has been agitated, discussed, experimented and practiced, in solid, hollow, and inflated shapes for some twenty-two years on bicycles, and for some forty-five years on other carriages. All Columbia tires are cushions; all rubber tires are, when you come down to fact. When you come to arbitrary fictions, for instance to "Cushion Tires," as used in advertisements, or "cushioned" tires as they were sometimes termed,—then you have many various kinds of cushions. And on these, some concerns younger in the business than the Pope Mfg. Co., have wavered in their opinions. Youth is always positive, you know. Some concerns have to be dogmatic; positive the truth is their way of stating it now, equally positive it is another way of stating it at another time.

THE VALUE OF "WIND."

FOR example: One concern, making and offering the smallest of American solid tires, less than a year ago put it down strong in its catalog this way,—"Riders are often told by makers that the introduction of strings, wire, wood or wind will improve rubber tires. Such methods will * * * not improve them." The same maker now announces that "the principle of the solid tire is wrong." It isn't wise to be too positive on both sides of the same question within a year, because something may turn up to show that the latter is as erroneous as the first opinion. Pendulums swing. The Pope Mfg. Co. don't mean to be dogmatic on either side of the tire question. They put out their machines with "Cushion" or "solid" tires as buyers may choose, and have been doing so for some time. They say that they do not yet believe that the principle of the "solid" tire as they make it is wrong. The indications are that for the greater number of machines in their line of trade this year will be demanded with "solid" tires, whatever it may be for other makers. They may be mistaken, but as they read their orders and the signs of the times, the number of buyers wanting "Cushion" tires with Columbia machines this spring will be less, owing in part doubtless, to the proper adaptation of the rest of the machine. They will make and sell whatever the riders want (that is, any large number of riders, for they don't make single machines to measure or to whim as a small maker sometimes can), but their best opinion on the right construction of a machine for a gentleman or a lady to ride will be seen in the machines they advertise. One of their new ones was offered promptly at "New Year's," and another will be offered soon.

* The American Storekeeper continues: "The well-known reliability of the machines made by this company is an important factor in the establishment of their reputation, and the present state of affairs affords a striking exemplification of 'virtue reaping its own reward.'"

"K'LUMBIAR KAL'NDAR"

THE large edition of the Columbia Calendar for the Desk was exhausted in about a week after our XLent advertisement here of 26 December. At this usual Monday editorial time of writing, the Columbia Hanging Calendar for 1891, of which a shadowy suggestion was printed here last week, is still obtainable—moyennant "15 cents to cover package and postage." About twice as many of this form were made, and they are going like snow in a January thaw. It is really a fine piece of lithographic art, in fourteen printings, from a new and ingenius design, by Mr. Charles Copeland, an artist whose figure drawing and other work have long been a delight to discriminative wheelmen, and as long have adorned the publications of the Pope Mfg. Co. That company goes on the principle that whatever is worth its doing, is worth its doing well.

WORTH DOING BEAUTIFULLY.

IT even supplements that well approved principle with another—that whatever is worth its doing is worth its doing beautifully. How their application of this rule has been appreciated by the public, is shown in the many letters which people have taken pains to write under a generous impulse aroused by the receipt and use of them heretofore. I select a few sample sentences from some 1890 letters:

A Cincinnati gentleman wrote: "It is a fine work of art, and, like your bicycles, is simply perfection."

A Saco (Maine) sexaginarian expressed it—"The Calendar is a beauty. Have hung it in a conspicuous place." And the L. A. W. Chief Consul of Ohio said—"I am in receipt of your Calendar, and it's a real beauty. Please accept my thanks and warmest congratulations."

SUGGESTIVE OF THE HOUSE.

THE frequency of similar comparisons of the beauty of their publications with the beauty of their machines is quite gratifying. It is an æsthetic age. Beauty and truth are equally important with strength and effectiveness to a sensitive rider using a wheel for pleasure. A Los Angeles Californian put it rather tersely: "One of your fine Calendars, and also your catalogue reached me yesterday. They are gems:" but a Providence (R. I. (gentleman not only complimented the Calendar, but added—"Its beauty, together with its practicability, is suggestive of the product of the house it represents."

And a young Minneapolitan said it pleasantly thus: "The Catalogue is very interesting reading, and the illustrations give it a finish almost too fine for an advertisement. The Calendar occupies a position of honor in my 'den'—a typical student's study. I have worn out two wheels of shady character, and graduated into the Columbia. My safety just aches for spring."

THE BICYCLING WORLD & L. A. W. BULLETIN.

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF CYCLING.

Volume XXII. Number 14. BOSTON, 30 JANUARY, 1891 $1.00 a Year. 5 cents a copy

What maker in America made the first high grade bicycles with tangent spokes, hollow rims, dropped handle bars, etc.?

Who first reduced prices on bicycles in America?

Who made the first Rover type safety bicycle in America?

Who made the first square rubber pedals in America?

Who established the price of $135 for Rover type safety in America?

Who originated the term cushion tires?

Who made the first cushion tires?

Who has the largest and finest bicycle plant in America, devoted exclusively to the production of high grade bicycles?

We have the documents in hand to prove that there is one answer which fits each of the above questions, and that answer is, THE OVERMAN WHEEL CO.

"COVENTRY * RIVALS"

TO THE FRONT.

The unparalleled success of this wheel has proved most gratifying to the manufacturers, Messrs. Warman & Hazlewood, Limited, of Coventry, England, and the Importers, the Sweeting Cycle Co., of Philadelphia. The Coventry Rival Safety is a striking illustration of the truth that good goods and low prices always command a market. We do not wish to be invidious in our remarks, but we cannot help being gratified by the fact that out of the multitude of English machines that flooded the market, the "COVENTRY RIVAL" is the ONLY imported wheel sold under $135 that still holds its own, and is in its third season. From all over the country we have testimonials from dealers and riders, praising the wheel. Many consider our No. 1 Rival at $85 equal to any $135 wheel; and there is no doubt that many riders can get as much pleasure and health from it as from one costing $50 more. We are now registering the names of all who desire catalogues, and a postal card with your name and address will bring the catalogue as soon as printed.

We desire a live, hustling agent in every place where we are not represented.

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 30 JANUARY, 1891.

THE editor of this journal has gone West to draw inspiration from the great lakes and the pathless prairies, and to persuade a little business to move hitherward. Perhaps we should have put the last clause first to give it the prominence it possessed in the mind of the young man when he determined to move Westward, and perhaps we should mention that he hopes to fall in with some of the wonderful people of that locality who in common parlance are called "the boys." We wish for him a safe and speedy journey, plenty of business and a pleasant experience wheresoe'er he go West.

THE editor has left an inexperienced substitute in his chair. Perhaps it is unnecessary to say this, but we know that there are some people so very dull that they never can tell one person's style of writing from another's. And so we think best to mention the fact. The substitute prefers to hide behind the little pronoun generally employed by the editorial fraternity, having in mind that discretion is ever the better part of valor, and he does not want the real "we" to be held responsible for the many slips and headers of the inexperienced "we." When inexperience grasps the handle bar no one can tell where the wheel will run to. We hope no ungenerous ones will suggest that in this instance the wheel is not guided by the bar, but rather by a crank. If we should hear such a remark our reply would be that the onward movement of every wheel and every progressive step in the history of the world can be credited to the movement of the crank. As an editor we may not be a glittering success, howbeit, we shall endeavor to attract attention.

BY the way, that was a bad slip that the Simon-Pure "we" made last week. He is out West now, and we are going to set things right. He said that "Mr. Dunn now hails from New York City." We don't know just what meaning to give to that word "hails," for Mr. Dunn does not live in New York. He hotels there for a short space of time, but he votes in Ohio, has an office there and has his washing done there. No ambitious man ever gives up his residence in Ohio, for it carries with it alluring chances for being President of the United States, which a residence in no other State can boast. And so we must still write our honored President as an Ohio man, temporarily absent from his home, with no idea of giving up the alluring chances before mentioned.

WE wonder how many remember the first appearance of President Dunn in National League affairs. It was at Buffalo in '85. Ohio wanted to make Kirkpatrick a member of the Executive Committee, and they were willing to vote for an Eastern man for Vice President. They pitched upon Bassett and delegated Brother Dunn to nominate him. Now Dunn didn't know Basset and Bassett didn't know Dunn, and the man from Ohio hadn't an idea what to say about the man from Massachusetts. When the Massillonian got upon his feet he said that some one had told him that some one had said that Bassett of Massachusetts was a thoroughbred and ought to be Vice President. During the speech Bassett whispered in the ear of a friend, "Who's the man in whiskers that knows so much about me?" When the speech was ended Will Harris of Boston got up and on behalf of Massachusetts nominated Stephen Terry of Connecticut, and Terry was elected. The President had the best intentions, but his combinations were not right. Since then Brother Dunn has been more particular with his combinations, and has met with more success in the arena of political life.

EVERY once in so often we find a man taking up arms against the amateur rule with a view to tearing down the house that we have builded; and yet the edifice still stands. If the reformers would offer a substitute for the rule, that would give us results more satisfactory than those that now obtain under the present rule, they might obtain a following. No man cares to see his house pulled down about his ears until he finds another one to go to. If Mr. Huntington of Connecticut can find us a new sheltering roof better appointed than the one we now have, which, by the way, Mr. Huntington calls "ridiculousness unspeakable," we shall be ready to move in our furniture at short notice.

WE do not believe that any fair-minded advocate of the amateur rule will contend that it is absolutely perfect. We are quite willing to say that it has apertures in it large enough to drive a load of hay through, and yet we have seen nothing better offered in the way of a corrective to an abuse that must not exist.

IT is easy to detroy. We imbibed this doctrine when we opened our doll to see what was inside, and it has been proved to us many times since. If Mr. Huntington will offer a solution of the difficulty in the shape of a new amateur rule we will guarantee that every big "we" in the country, and every little "we" as well, will pounce upon it and tear holes in it large enough to sail a gun boat through.

SHOULD we not arrive at a quick and correct solution of the whole difficulty if men would be honest and be what they really are? If we should offer only certificates of victory and laurel wreaths as prizes in amateur races and forbid the payment of expenses, it would injure amateur racing no one can doubt, but if, at the same time, we should take the stigma from professionalism, encourage professional racing with all its accompaniment of professional trainers, travelling expenses, money prizes, etc., should we not see an adjustment of things to our taste? In the natnre of things we cannot expect to see the best racing among amateurs. In no trade, profession or art do we get better results from the amateur than comes from the professional. So long as we resist the working of natural laws, just so long shall we wrangle over the amateur question.

NOW we've got a story to tell about the "expense" question. That's the topic uppermost in the minds of those who have the racing interests in charge at the present time. Lon Myers went to England to compete under the colors of a New York Athletic Club, and the club officers found in his expense account the following item which they had to allow, "£5 used to bet on the Derby." We think that Myers was lucky and won the bet, and the club was reimbursed. Now it is apparent that if Myers had lost the bet his expenses would have been increased by just so much, but he won, and the expenses were not increased You will readily see that the club profited by the bet, and they should have passed a vote of thanks to the better. Those who would put the question "what chance had the club to win?" are requested to look at the subject with a more penetrating gaze.

PRAY excuse us gentle reader (if the reader is not gentle the remark applies just the same) for discussing the amateur rule, but you must remember that cycling interests are not particularly lively just now and we must talk about something. A noted editor once told his staff that there was always one topic to fall back upon. "When you have got nothing else to say pitch into the Pope." The readers of that journal always knew how to account for articles upon Rome. Cycling scribes cannot "pitch into the Pope," but they are not without resources in cases of emergency.

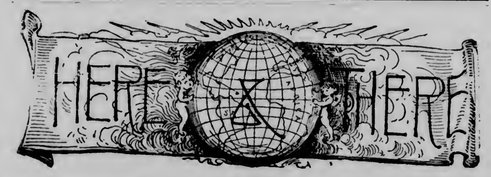
WE have been asked why the League does not encourage the growth of League clubs by making a reduction in the dues to all members of properly accredited League clubs. The League does not fix the dues. Divisions have the power to make concessions of this kind if they see fit, but as yet nothing of the kind has been done. Until we can be persuaded that a member does not receive full value for the dollar paid for dues we shall be inclined to believe that no reduction should be made in any case.

BOSTON is a city of clubs and yet it has no cycling club. We do not forget that the Boston Club and the Massachu- Club preserve their organizations and eat an annual dinner, but the average cycler gets hungry oftener than once a year, and the two clubs do not supply the much-talked of long-felt want. It would seem possible for a number of influential wheelmen to get together and form a club that should meet at least once a month in the winter and discuss the larder of some moderate price hotel. It need not be altogether a gastronomic entertainment for, given a gathering of wheelmen under such auspices, and we should have an interchange of ideas on pertinent topics, a making and conserving of friendships and very much else that would tend for good. Who can tell but that such a club would grow into an organization of influence and be of great value to its members. Will Boston members please take note? The above is written for the latitude of Boston, but it will be found good in any climate.

A NEW cloth has been adopted by the League for uniform purposes which, in regard to wear, quality and color, gives general satisfaction. The price, however, has caused considerable grumbling.—[Wheel.

If Brother Prial will put us in communication with some of the people who are "grumbling" we shall be delighted. We are advised by those in authority that the price has not yet been fixed, but if we can get it of the grumblers we shall have an exclusive. We understand that all the large Divisions will have League tailors this year, and these tailors will make prices under contract for the uniform. There is good prospect that the League uniform will be the best and cheapest on the market.

"I WOULDN'T give two cents to belong to a wheel club that has no lady members." Thus said a well-known wheelman the other day. Now we don't know that any club not possessed of this desirable annex would admit a man for so small a fee as two cents, but we are obliged to admit that there was a grain of good sense behind the remark. The most popular and the most successful wheel clubs of the day are those that admit lady members. In the summer season the runs, the picnics, the tours, are made doubly attractive by the presence of ladies. In the winter the socials, the balls, the festivals, are hardly possible without our fair sisters. Clubs are beginning to realize this, and very many are taking in the ladies. The advent of the ladies has secured a permanency to the sport that no one thing could have given it, save only the safety bicycle, and as this brought the ladies we have to give it first place among the things which rescued cycling from innocuous desuetude. Here's the kind of item we find after a club has taken in lady members:



"The ladies' social in the R. I. W. Club rooms last Monday evening was attended by about 40 members. The lady members, as they always do, made the moments most enjoyable for the boys. Dainty refreshments of cake, ice cream and coffee were served. A feature of the evening was a "Speculative Bean Auction." It was more exciting than the orthodox bean auction, an element of chance being introduced; for further information regarding which application must be made to the members. The arrangements for the evening were under the supervision of Mrs. James A. Kinghorn."—Providence Journal.

There's only one thing about the above that troubles us. We are a good deal distressed to think that another city than Boston should discover anything new in the employment of the bean, and we regret that the Providence people should desert the native clam and make merry over Boston's favorite esculent. But if we were of Providence we should also be of the R. I. W.

THE writers in the American press who from time to time twit the C. T. C. upon having "pirated" the L. A. W. membership emblem, will perhaps tell us whether or not it is a fact that the L. A. W. never possessed any legal rights to the device, and whether or not Mr. C. H. Lamson, the patentee, ceased to possess any property in the design nearly three years since. We are informed on good authority that these are facts which cannot be gainsaid, and that the L. A. W. emblem has been common property even in the United States since the date named. The C. T. C. badge, upon the contrary, is the subject of a valid patent in America, for the principle it embodies is new and original.—C. T. C. Gazette.

We really wish that Mr. Shipton would let this matter drop, for he has a very weak case, and we cannot discuss the question without saying unkind words about the officers of an organization for which we have the highest regard. Yes, Mr. Shipton, the L. A. W. did possess legal rights in the design which was "pirated." No, Mr. Shipton, Mr. Lamson did not cease to posses property in the design nearly three years since. If Mr. Shipton will produce the facts given him by "good authority," we guarantee to produce documents that will gainsay them. The last clause in the quotation from the Gazette is deceptive. It is true that the C. T. C. has a patent on a metallic badge with an opening lid, and it also has a patent on an alleged "trade mark" that is not a trade mark at all. If any unprejudiced person will look at the two badges, that of the C. T. C. and that of the L. A. W., we think it will not take him long to decide that the owner of the L. A. W. design could go into court and easily show that the C.T.C. design is not a trade mark. and that it infringes his, the prior patent issued, for the League badge design. No, Mr. Shipton, the adoption of the badge design by the C. T. C. was a theft. That is the only word to be used. The L. A. W. has been very generous, and allowed the C. T. C. to use the badge, but the American contingent of the C. T. C. is now reduced to a beggarly handful. The theft has been resented by the individual. The American patent on the trade mark is not worth the paper it is written on, did any one care to contest it. The officers of the L. A. W. have preferred to regard the adoption of the design by the C. T. C. as a compliment to their taste, but they have regretted the poverty of resources shown by the C. T. C. officials. Whoever wears the pirated badge carries about with him a conspicuous compliment to American ideas, and we are content to have it that way.

WE are very sorry to be obliged to use anything in the vinegar line this week. We prefer molasses and would like to stick to that, but if Mr. Shipton goes about stirring up animals with a sharpened pole he must expect to hear them roar.

BOSTON NOTES.

"TONEY."

IT was with pardonable pride that the members of the Rovers' Cycle Club looked forward with great pleasure to the holding of their annual party in Amory Hall, Charlestown, last Tuesday evening, for long before the first notes of the inspiring waltz wafted down the corridors the room was filled with gallant wheelmen and those ladies whom our most esteemed friend Prial of New York thinks, "with exception, not nice to look upon." There were pretty girls in plenty and numerous gallant youth who tried to make everyone feel at home on the auspicious occasion.

ON the same evening the members of the Somerville Cycle Club blacked their faces and hands and appeared before an appreciative audience composed of their friends and endeavored by hook and crook to convulse them with laughter. The jokes and jibes of the end men were particularly funny and had the effect of making more than one member of the sterner sex place a good size pin where a suspender button ought to have been. The ladies also turned out in goodly number and applauded, smiled and bowed before the young, yet ambitious, negro minstrely, and were afterwards heard to express a desire that this might not be the last lay of the minstrel for that growing and influential organization, the Somerville Cycle Club.

ONE would think that the social wheelmen would have had sufficient attraction for one week with the minstrel show and annual party to be in a better condition to enjoy the comforts of home than gallavanting to another party. But, fortunately for themselves, wheelmen as a rule are peculiarly constructed insects and can stand more than a dozen ordinary beings; in fact they seemed to be imbued with as many lives as a cat and are able to do anything they desire to satisfy their own sweet will. From all indications a great number had a desire to participate in the masquerade party of the Cambridgeport Cycle Club on the following Friday evening, for when I, disguised in my recently imported evening dresss, tripped lightly in the highly polished floor was crowded with wheelmen and their lady friends, each endeavoring to solve the identity of the other from behind the shelter of pretty and in many cases frightful masques. Pushing my way through the hall I was soon approached by a gentlemen wearing the costume of the last century, and who upon asking me to enjoy the next catch as catch can with him, I recognized as my old and once ardent suitor, Mr. Spear, or "Happy Harry" as we once called him. What fond memories his familiar voice awoke within, but, alas, they soon faded away like the driven snow, and I came in contact with the genial ex-Captain of the organization, George F. Kehew He was too busy to take any notice of me, so I drifted to the side of the hall and was soon keeping step to the merry music in company with Herby Grew of Charlestown. To tell the names of all the gentlemen I had the pleasure of dancing with would be too much for me at the moment when I am thinking of the glorious past, and therefore let it suffice to say that in addition to the members of the home club who were present there was a delegation of ten members from the New Bedford Club, Charlestown Rovers, Somerville Cycle Club, Roxbury Bicycle Club, all of whom entered into the spirit of the occasion. They contributed their share towards making the party one of the most successful, both in brilliancy and attendance, that has been held within the classic shades of fair Harvard for many years.

EFFORTS have been made by the friends of one of the candidates for the office of First Vice-President of the League to get the Massachusetts delegates pledged to support that particular person, but all to no purpose, for the present delegation, the last one I mean, proposes to enter the convention untrammeled by pledges and able to act for the best interests of the wheelmen as dictated to by their own conscience. None of the newly appointed, or rather elected delegates, have as yet given the slightest idea of whom they propose to support, but it would not surprise me in the least if for the sake of giving an Eastern man that position they vote for Major Burdett.

THE seventh annual party of the Somerville Cycle Club was held in Odd Fellows' Hall last Tuesday evening and proved as glowing a success as any of its predecessors. For the first time in the history of this club it did not have to go outside its own ranks to secure an orchestra, for the club orchestra, which is fast demonstrating its ability to play at all places, furnished the music to which 200 couples kept time with flying feet.

ONE of the features of the Rovers' party was the exhibition of the club album, which contained photographs of the members and perhaps the only one of myself in existence.

NOTES BY "HAWKSHAW."

MR. T. A. EDGE, the cycling editor of British Sport, takes a "rise" out of me for an item of mine in this column, where I quoted and indorsed a statement of Dr. E. B. Turner's, that 'to run one mile at a twelve-mile per hour gait takes more out of the runner than it does for a cycler to run twenty miles within the hour. Easier it is for the wheelman to ride eighty-four miles than it is for the runner to do eight, and if an individual is fit to run eight miles he can easily ride one hundred." Mr. Edge then goes on to say on his own hook that "a man must be equally 'fit' to ride a twenty-four hours' race as to run a twenty-four hours' race." A statement I am sure neither Dr. Turner or myself will deny. Mr. Edge further says: "It is ridiculous to assume that it is easier to ride one hundred miles than it is to run eight." Then why does Mr. Edge "assume" any such thing and go in to demolish the assumption? Neither Dr. Turner or I have made any such statement, nor should we be held accountable for that "assumption" on the part of Mr. Edge. To get me into an argument, the opposite sides of which are upheld by Dr. Turner and Mr. Edge, is to place me in a position where I am sure to get the worst of it, as Dr. Turner is to-day recognized by the entire cycling world as not only the greatest theorist concerning cycling and racing, but as the greatest exponent in practice of the theories he teaches. Mr. Edge, so an advertisement in his paper informs me, has ridden "the fastest 100 miles in the world," having driven a safety that distance over the "North Road" in the wonderful time of 5 hours 27 minutes 38 seconds, beating all previous records for the world, either on road or path." Now for me to get into any discussion with such "cracks" is to have to "choose between the devil and the deep sea," and I don't "choose" either one of them. If Mr. Edge, though, really thinks he has the best of the argument why does he not meet the author of it who lives at his door and not go 3000 miles away to hit at him over my shoulders? Had I made the statements on my own authority then I should expect to prove them, but as I have not it seems to me that Mr. Edge is just taking a little bit of long-range shooting more for the pleasure of hearing the noise of the report than from any intention of bringing down any game.

REFERRING to the British Sport in the above paragraph causes me to clip therefrom the following item: "At the adjourned annual general meeting of the Cheetham Bicycle Club good business was done, for were not fourteen resolutions passed? The club have adopted the Cheetham Arms as a badge and the uniform now consists of badge, cap and sash." Of course this annual general meeting of the Cheetham Bicycle Club was held around the season of the year when everyone is inclined to make good "resolutions" and therefore it was but appropriate that the Cheethams should do so, though most persons find one or two of them more than they can keep let alone "fourteen," but this club seems ambitious and I hope it may not fail in its numerous "resolutions." I also hope that among the "fourteen" was one discouraging any games of chance by members of the club, because an organization with so suggestive a name could hardly afford to do otherwise, for fear that those who lost might be tempted to cast unpleasant imputations upon the fairness of things. To the ballet brigade of America I wish to call attention to how they are getting badly left by the more progressive Cheethams, and to ask them in the name of all that is idiotic, which they hold so dear, not to allow their world-wide reputation of superlative idiocy to be stolen from them by any body of wheelmen, English or otherwise. I am aware that in this respect it is very difficult to even approach the ballet brigade, much less surpass them; but really I think in their new uniforms the Cheethams are a little bit ahead of the balleters, since it consists only of a "badge, cap and sash." This, while being a trifle airy, and consequently somewhat unfitted for public use in cold climates, may yet encourage the ballet brigade to still further outrage the feelings of the former and brave the dangers of the latter, upheld as they will be by the example of the Cheetham Bicycle Club, which of course gives to the costume the hall mark of being thoroughly English. I shall watch with some anxiety the effect of this item upon the balleters, fully confident that they will not let their reputation for scanty cycling costume be stolen from them by any nation on the earth, though it is somewhat difficult to imagine how they are going to exceed the Cheetham's "uniform" in scantiness unless they dispense with the badge and cap part and wear the remainder of it only.

WHEELMEN should remember that upon the public highway, as well as in the drawing-room, that the only source of true politeness is consideration—that vigilant moral sense which never loses sight of the rights, the claims, the sensibilities of others. This is the one quality over all others necessary to make a gentleman.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"ARIEL."

A PROSPECTUS has been issued by the Associated Cycling Clubs in accordance with the motion carried at their meeting last week, setting forth in detail the plan of the Cycling Exhibition, which comes off in Horticultural Hall, this city, during the first week in March. Some twenty-five or thirty of the principal manufacturers and importers have already signified their intention of taking part, and there is no longer any doubt as to the success of the exhibition. There will be some forty spaces on the two floors, ranging in price from twenty to forty dollars, those in the centre of the main hall being the most desirable, and of course the most expensive. But these figures are, it is thought, low in comparison with the benefits to be derived. During the progress of the show a band of music will be in constant attendance, and fancy riding exhibitions will be given, together with other attractions not yet decided on. All of this will, it is thought, attract large audiences, and with this in view, while single admissions will be twenty five cents, season tickets admitting a gentleman and ladies will be issued at one dollar.

AT the regular meeting of the Associated Cycling Clubs held at the Quaker City club house last week, the annual election for officers resulted in the re-election of the Board of Officers.

INCITED thereto by Century's success, the Park Avenue Wheelmen have decided on holding a minstrel entertainment in one of the uptown halls, their club house being too small.

STARTED a year ago with seventeen members as the Edgely Wheelmen, the Quaker City Wheelmen grown to one hundred and seventy, last week celebrated their first anniversary at their new club house, 1400 Oxford street, which was a blaze of light and decorations, the front having rows of Chinese lanterns festooned from window to window, with the name "Quaker City" swung across the arches of the piazza; while the halls, parlors and dining rooms were filled with flowers and palms. Vocal and instrumental music was provided for the aural entertainment of the visitors, while the collation provided for the delectation of the inner man has never been surpassed by that of any similar affair ever given in Philadelphia. The local clubs were nearly all represented by their Presidents and Captains, together with shoals of the rank and file, while among the visitors from abroad were President Stansbury of the Baltimore Cycle Club, Captain McFadden of the New York Bicycle Club, Dr. Long of the Mayland Bicycle Club and others.

BY THE WAY—Taxis, who has been under the weather for some time, has begun training again at the A. C. S. N. gymnasium.

The Park Avenue Wheelmen were last week re-inforced by half a dozen of the Columbia Cyclers, who joined them in a body.

The inter-club pool tournaments are attracting great interest, competition among the various clubs being exceedingly keen.

The Germantown Wheelmen will hold a house warming in their new quarters, No. 24 Price street.

A lion's head, rampant, charged upon a wheel, is to be Park Avenue's emblem, having been adopted at their last regular meeting.

Members of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club have organized a glee club preparatory to the coming musicale.

On February 12th, the Camden Wheelmen will have a banquet.

On February 5th South End celebrates its annual ball at St. George's Hall.

The Park Avenue Wheelmen's ball at St. George's Hall last Wednesday evening was one of the most brilliant social events of the season. All of the clubs were represented, and many of the toilets were very handsome. The hall was beautifully decorated with flowers and plants, and presented a very animated appearance, there being about seventy-five couples in attendance.

Captain Dalsen of Century offers the following prizes for the season: A silver cup for the highest mileage; a gold medal for best attendance on club runs, and another gold medal for best 24 hour record.

DETROIT.

"JUDGE."

THE annual election of the Detroit Wheelmen resulted as follows: President, A. H. Griffith; First Vice President, B. J. Holcombe; Second Vice President, R. T. Deacon; Secretary, Geo. S. Mackay; Assistant Secretary, L. W. Schimmel; Financial Secretary, Fred S. Ekliff; Treasurer, W. T. Watson; Assistant Treasurer, A. E. Sutphin; Captain, Fred L. Abel. Metzger refused to run for any office. He has associated himself with a Mr. Huber of Louisville. They will run a bicycle business here, and Mr. Metzger, feeling that a man in the trade should not hold office in a club, manfully held out against the unanimous vote of the club. The reason for our having so many assistant officers is on account of the probability of the L. A. W. meet coming here, when we shall need them all. The Lieutenants will be appointed by the Captain.

ALL the games are not yet played in the billiard and pool tourney, but Ekliff has played all of his and won all, making him champion "pool shark." Burt Holcombe wins first place in the billiard tourney. The complete score will appear later.

MESSRS. Marks, Osborne, Ekliff, Downs, Mackay, Abel and Schimmel made a run to Pontiac last Sunday and met there Charlie Wolverton and Kellerman of Flint, who rode down from there and met them. They report a splendid good time and almost perfect roads.

RALPH TEMPLE spent Thursday in Detroit.

WELL, well, what do you think, a certain gentleman accuses me of booming "Griff" for President of the L. A. W. My dear fellow, you are way off. In becoming the director of the Detroit Art Museum Mr. Griffith has reached the height of his ambition, and well he may, the position is one in two millions. There are about forty-six museums of art in this country. No, no, not yet anyway, do I think of "Griff" as anything but President of the Detroit Wheelmen.

Burt Holcombe is now club orator. His eulogy of Messrs. Griffith and Metzger the night of the election was well worth listening to and a great compliment to both gentlemen.

KENTUCKY.

"GX. EX. JX."

Two statements I have noticed recently going the rounds of the press have afforded me considerable amusement. One was by a laymen, who argued that cycling was injurious to the eyes, "because"—and then this wiseacre adjusts his spectacles and puts on the airs of wisdom—"because so many bicycle riders wear glasses!" Shades of Brewster, Bassett and other veterans, gaze upon him! Did it never occur to this man that this greatest sport in the world recruits its ranks from the office, the counting-room, the newspaper desk, the students' quarters, where constant pouring over the ledger or the book ruined the eyes long before the bicycle was taken up as a means of saving the other functions of the body from premature decay? More cyclers wear glasses, it is admitted, than base ball player or pugilists, but the ranks are recruited from a different class of citizens. The other statement which effected my risibles came from a wheelman. It was on the ordinary vs. safety controversy. This authority rides the ordinary, and will continue to do so as long as he can get one. He says the difference between the two wheels may be compared to the difference between shooting live birds and shooting clay balls. One is sport, the other is not. I should like to ask if this gentleman ever coasted down a smooth,

NOW IS THE TIME

—— TO SECURE THE ——

Agency for the Eagle for 1891.

We are constantly placing new agencies, but there is still some good territory unoccupied and it will pay to take advantage of it.

We want good, live, pushing men, who can appreciate a good wheel and bring others to their way of thinking.

The Eagle is a lively wheel on the road and we want lively men to handle it, men who can 'get there."

The Eagle has now a reputation which is unsurpassed.

It is acknowledged to be the fastest and best all-round road wheel on the market.

There is good money in the Eagle agency for any agent who knows how to hustle just a little bit.

steep hill on a safety. If that is not sport, what is it? I may be a bit rash, but I believe that had the rear driver safety been discoverd fifteen years ago, instead of the ordinary, there never would have been an ordinary. I am not a novice, but have had some experience. I rode fifty-inch wheels for three years, and was among the slow safety converts. The chain driven safety, by the way, is not the outcome of the old velocipede. you can trace the evolution of the ordinary from the bone-shaker of twenty-five years ago, but not the safety.

THE Independent Cyclers of Louisville nominated officers at their meeting Monday night, to be elected at the meeting February 2. They will move from their present quarters to a suite of rooms in Honda Block. Fourth avenue, shortly.

THE Saturday night smokers of the Louisville Cycle Club have become a necessity. The occasionals were so popular that the amusement committees has been requested to have a smoker with a literary or musical attachment every Saturday night.

THE arrangements for the Division meet in June are going on actively. Contracts will be let this week for a full sheet special lithograph in four colors (no stock work); these will be posted all over the State, and sent to every club out of the State. The programme, 32 pages, will be out early in March. Several of the most prominent racing men of Illinois will attend the meet, and some Eastern stars are expected. A feature of the meet that should attract outsiders will be a trip to Mammoth Cave by rail. It is practically impossible to get to the cave awheel, so the reception committee is arranging an excursion to leave Louisville Saturday night after the banquet to go to the cave and return in time for work Monday morning. No wheelman ever comes to Kentucky who does not want to see the Mammoth Cave, and this will give all an opportunity. After seeing this greatest natural wonder, he can take a tour through the Bluegrass or God's country.

SYRACUSE.
"SALINA."

THE sixth annual meeting and banquet of the Syracuse Cycling Club occurred on the evening of Jan. 9. The memory of this occasion, however, will probably be a lasting pleasure to all who were fortunate enough to participate in the festivities. Frank H. McChesney, the retiring president, in his address reviewed the year's work, which was the grandest in the club's history. The membership at the commencement of 1890 was 53. One year later finds us with 122 members, 106 of which are bicycle riders, in a beautiful club house furnished at an expense of about $2000, with $500 in the treasury and not a single debt. Such is the record of which the S. C. C. feel justly proud. At 11 o'clock, after the business session, the banquet was held at the Globe Hotel. The tables were arranged on three sides of the room. At the middle table was seated the retiring president, F. H. McChesney, who was the toastmaster; on his right was seated the club officers of 1890 and on the left those of 1891. The table cloths were of orange, black and purple, the club and League colors. At each plate was a beautiful menu and a button-hole bouquet. An orchestra was concealed behind a stack of wheels and discoursed enlivening music during the evening. Several flash light views of the banqueters were taken by the club photographer, John Winter. During the evening our popular Captain was presented with a diamond badge, and the club steward, Andrew Perry, with $50 in gold.

THE long longed-for banquet is a thing of the past, and, as Mr. Wilson said, another year will go by before we hardly know it.

THE new officers are elected, the old ones discharged and each member had his stomach filled with the best of viands, his mind filled with great ideas and thoughts; his ears filled with choice music and his eyes filled with pure tobacco smoke.

ONE-DOLLAR MACK and Hunting House George can now breathe free and easy, God bless them.

CAPTAIN BOB JUDD, Horace Doxsee, Hod Rounds, Winnie Chapin, Bill Johnson, Bert Hall and Fred Penn are still in it. They each have another year to serve the good old club in their respective offices

CATERER ANDY and Captain Bob can shake and each say, "You were just as much surprised as I was," or vice versa.

WHO will win the prize at our next euchre party? Not Ted, because he is now on the house committee and that will take the snap out of him.

MR. HARRIS has gone to Florida.

JOHN (HAIL) WINTER is in New York.

BILL NYE has taken a nap.

WILL some one suggest to little Mack that we have no flag on our flag pole?

DAYTON, O.
"EAGLE."

A GRAND reception and banquet was given by the D. B. C. Thursday evening, Jan. 22. at the Phillips House parlors, which proved to be one of the finest of the season and a great success, over 100 guests being present. Dancing was the most prominent feature of the evening, a programme of 20 dances being arranged. The music was provided by one of the leading orchestras of the city, while one of the best professors had charge of the dancing. Those not dancing enjoyed themselves at the various card tables in the different apartments. At about 11:30 a delicious supper was served, which consisted of the rare dainties of the season. After the repast dancing was again resumed until late hours in the morning. Great credit is due Messrs. John McGee, J. Floatron, Edward Wise, Dr. Brandon and J. Milton Finch, the managing committee, for the manner in which they conducted the reception.

IT is now an assured fact that Dayton will soon have some decent streets for riding. Contracts are now out for asphaltum and other different grades and work will be commenced early in the spring. This is accepted with delight by the many wheelmen of this city and will be the means of increasing the number considerably.

THERE is some talk of admitting ladies to the club as League members in the spring. Dayton has increased its lady riders considerably and by the time riding is in its bloom the boys will have no trouble in getting the fair sex to accompany them on some of the short club runs. The club will first need a larger and more accommodating club house than the one they are at present situated in.

CHICAGO NOTES.
"WAYNE SCOTT."

THE past week there has been no snow and the roads generally have been in good riding condition. We have hardly had enough snow as yet to prevent riding at any time. There has been but one or two Sundays this winter that wheelmen have had to give up riding. From neighboring towns wheelmen report good roads and a general use of the wheel. Pullman has been visited by several good-sized wheeling parties and several other near-by runs have also been gone over.

THE Illinois Club's athletic show Saturday evening was well attended, about 300 being present. The musical and athletic programmes were carried through without a hitch. The 300 spectators were enthusiastic. A lunch was served after the entertainment. The Illinois Clhb entertainments are always deservedly successful.

THE Chicago Cycling Club have a handicap billiard tournament and pool tournament now being played every Saturday night, both have a large entry list and a great deal of interest is taken in all of the contests.

THE Lincoln Cycling Club will give an athletic entertainment Saturday evening, Jan. 31.

THE Oak Park Cycling Club has again abandoned the League Hotel club house scheme and now have plans submitted to them for a new club house which will be built for them in the near future.

MESSRS. ROBERTS, BARRETT AND BETTS, a committee appointed by the Associated Cycling Clubs, will select courses in this city which will be suitable for road races and the establishment of road records.

THE Englewood Cycling Club gave a reception and dance last Tuesday evening. President Treadwell and Miss Hahn led the grand march, followed by over 50 couples. Fitzgerald's orchestra discoursed their best music. Bob Garden and Art Taylor were guests of the evening.

THE Illinois Division, L. A. W., hold a constitutional convention in this city Saturday, Feb. 7. The business meeting will be called to order at 10:30 in the morning, the afternoon will be spent showing the visitors around town and in the evening an entertainment will be given at some large down town hall. To this entertainment none but L. A. W. members or those who apply for membership will be admitted. R. G. Betts, chairman, Dr. C. B. Gibson and R. D. Garden are the committee on arrangements. A large number of out of town League members are expected. If the present good weather continues they should bring their wheels.

THE Englewood Cycling Club smoker last Saturday evening was a great success. W. L. Bush entertained the members in his own inimitable way. Bush is a wheelman and is much sought after at cycling club entertainments. He's a circus and menagerie all in one. The Englewoods encored him again and again. An excellent programme followed and supper was served later. The club will continue these smokers through the winter.

THE Æolus also gave a very successful smoker last Saturday. One hundred and twenty-five wheelmen were in attendance. An athletic and musical programme was carried through and a supper followed. Stag parties are becoming very popular; they gather the members together, promoting social intercourse and good feeling among the members.

THE Columbia Wheelmen are pushing right to the front. They have now over 75 members. The club house is furnished nicely, a pool table and piano have been added this week.

THE Douglas Cycling Club members have photographic outfits and are now actively working to land one of those prizes offered by Isaac B. Potter. Drs. J. C. and C. H. Wachter, Frank and Will Slavik, Ed Frothingham, Joe Langbein and O. C. H. Rellihan have already several excellent views.

THE Washington Club gave another of their musical and card parties last Wednesday. The attendance was good and an excellent musical programme was carried through. The Washingtons are still in the swim, although weakened by those resignations. The Cook County Wheelmen hold the informal opening of their club house at 709 W. Adams street this evening. A general invitation to all wheelmen to be present has been extended.

NEW JERSEY NOTES.

"PALISADES."

STATE REPRESENTATIVE H. S. FULPER of Flemington suggests the following route for the consideration of those having the next century run in charge: Start at Newark, to Springfield via Irvington and Milburn, to Plainfield, to Summerville, to Flemington via South Branch and Neshanic, to Lambertville, to New Hope, to Centreville, to Hatboro, to Jenkentown and Philadelphia.

THE Ladies Auxiliary of the Orange Wheelmen at their last meeting decided to work a handsome banner for the club.

THE youngest cycle club at present in Newark is the Business Men's Cycle League, but if the other clubs do not hustle, I prophesy that they (the B. M. C. L.) will soon be the strongest and largest. Their membership is rapidly increasing, and a goodly number are L. A. W. members.

EVERY member of the New Jersey Division is expected to use all his personal powers to further the objects of this Division and the League; to enlist non-League members, and in every way improve the interests of cycling. The officers of our Division can do but little without our hearty co-operation, therefore it behooves us to work.

THE New Jersey Division will send a solid delegation to the National Assembly at Washington, D. C., on the 16th prox. They will "whoop it up" for Brown.

THE new Constitution and By-Laws of the New Jersey Division are being distributed to members. Their completeness, neat appearance and general excellence will commend them to L. A. W. members

THE Orange Wheelmen having been incorporated, purpose building a club house, cost of which is to be $5000. The stock for same is nearly all taken.

ONE of the Crawford Wheelmen pours into my ear this week another edition from his "tale of woe." He is absorbed in the investigation of the following queries: "Will the captain give up wheeling and take to the stage for good?" "Will Sutton's anti-header prove a success?" "Does Bergen intend to tear things to pieces with his machine?" "Is Denman really afraid of Fred Wood who is developing into a scorcher?"

THE Flemington Bicycle Club are rehearsing a drama to be given February 19th at the Flemington Opera House. This club is fast assuming proportions of a club, and I am glad to hear of their intention to join the L. A. W. in the spring. Individually they are pushing the matter of good roads, and are able to show one and one half miles at present that can be traced to members of their club.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

THE Fall River (Mass.) Cycle Club held its first annual ball on Tuesday evening, Jan. 20, at Music Hall. The decorations, which were very tasty, were a special feature of the occasion and were much admired by the large assemblage present. The excellent music was furnished by the High School orchestra, whose fine playing excited much favorable comment. The floor was under the able direction of President George Sharples. The affair was a grand success financially as well as socially, and will enable the club to furnish its rooms with all the elegant things they desire. This club was organized in August, '90, and has rapidly grown in favor on account of the progressive spirit manifested by its members who are always ready and willing to do their share toward any movement which will increase the popularty of the sport to which they are wedded.

WE have received a number of letters asking the reason why Sterling Elliott's ad. is no longer to be found in this paper. We are not at liberty to give the facts regarding it, though it is possible that he may do so later. However, we have reason to expect his reappearance on the second page before long.

THE bicycle is used in business more and more every day. The latest use to which it has been put in Crawfordsville, is for the delivery of express packages. The driver of the U. S. Express wagon is an expert bicycler. Instead of driving several squares to deliver a package or two he jumps on his wheel and has the goods delivered and is back before he could have had a wagon turned around.

NOTHING that has recently come into favor with the American women promises to be more beneficial than bicycle riding—a healthy exercise, getting one out into the open air along country roads, bringing the most important muscles into use, and not making too great a demand upon the bodily strength. Women who are only in ordinary health can ride without fear of physical injury. Those who are less vigorous can, by beginning with short runs, easily acquire new strength.

IT has been estimated that there are 25,000 cycle riders in New York City, and over 75,000 within a radius of 75 miles of the city, yet there are but six clubs in the city.

THE third annual ball of the South End Wheelmen, to be held Thursday evening, February 5th, at St. George's Hall, promises to be the most successful yet given by the down-town club. Parties are being formed in a number of the other clubs to attend, and nearly every cycling organization in the city will be represented. Carey and Gardiner's enlarged orchestra has been engaged for the occasion. The number of tickets is limited to 125, and may be procured of any members of the club.

ROME (N. Y.) CYCLE CLUB.

Editor Bicycling World: The Rome Cyclers' Club is a young one, but it is pushing rapidly to the front. The coming season we not only expect to be strong in numbers, but we also expect to turn out some of the best racing stock in central New York. About two months ago we took possession of our new and handsomely furnished rooms in the White block, recently erected on West Dominick street. The rooms are pleasantly situated, and in fact are the coziest club rooms in the city. On Tuesday evening, Jan. 13, we held our first annual banquet and election of officers for the ensuing year. A most enjoyable time was had and the only misfortune of the occasion was that only about ten out of town cyclers were able to be present; as it was the club and invited guests made a party of about 60. During the early part of the evening the cyclers entertained their friends with games, music, etc. At 9 o'clock Vice-President Miller called the members of the club aside and the elecion of officers followed. After the election the members and their company immediately proceeded to Stanwix Hall, where a sumptuous repast was enjoyed. After thoroughly discussing the eatables, President Prescott called the gathering to order and named G. P. Fessenden as toastmaster, which position he filled in a most creditable manner. The first toast responded to was the "History of Our Club" by W. A. Parker. Mr. Parker in a neat little speech told the company present the facts that led up to the formation of the club and how it has stimulated wheeling interests here. Other toasts followed and were interspersed with vocal selections by a quartet, and selections were also rendered on the zither, mandolin and guitar and banjo, many of which were repeatedly encored. After the banquet the party returned to the cyclers' rooms, where games, vocal and instrumental selections and other amusements were enjoyed until the early hours of the following day, when the company dispersed well pleased with the entertainment.

The next interesting feature on the programme will be our second annual tournament at the RiversidePark in this city on next Decoration Day. The occasion, no doubt, will bring out the largest assemblage of cyclers in central New York, excluding the State meet at Syracuse. The members of the club will soon begin to make the preliminary arrangements for the tournament.

OBITUARY.

In memory of Charles R. Eisenbrandt, who departed this life Tuesday, November 25th, 1890, in the 26th year of his age.

In chronicling the death of Mr. Eisenbrandt, we realize most forcibly the loss which the cycling fraternity and its interests sustain thereby. Energetic in his business relations as President of the "Eisenbrandt Cycle Company," zealous in the discharge of his duties in matters pertaining to Division interests, and ever active and genial in his relation to the "Chesapeake Wheelmen" as a member thereof, his death, coming as it has in his early manhood, and the beginning of a career of great promise, causes deepest sorrow among his wide circle of friends and associates for their loss, and profound sympathy for the family of the deceased in their greater loss of a loving, dutiful and kind husband, son and brother.

The Chesapeake Wheelmen in recognition of their appreciation of his worth, and in token of their sympathy for the bereaved family, adopted the following resolutions at their recent meeting, a copy of which, with a suitable memorial, was ordered sent to the widow.

Whereas, It has been decreed by the Great Creator of us all, that we shall look no more in this world upon the living face of our esteemed friend and club mate, Charles R. Eisenbrandt, "since its inception one of the leading spirits of this organization;" therefore be it,

Resolved, That we, the Chesapeake Wheelmen, in regular meeting assembled, do hereby express our kindly recollection of the many estimable personal qualities of our deceased friend, and record our keen appreciation of the valuable services which he in his lifetime was ever so ready to, and did so frequently and effectively render to the League, the Division, the club, the individual wheelman and the sport in general.

Resolved, That in his death we have sustained a loss which is not ours alone, either as individuals or as a club, but which will be shared by wheelmen wherever the influence of the deceased has at any time extended.

Resolved, that while humbly acknowledging the bounds which our humanity puts upon our understanding of the beneficent plans of the Infinite Wisdom, we bow to the fulfillment thereof with mournful regret that the loss of our friend should have been necessary thereto; and in doing so we extend our heartfelt sympathy to his family in their bereavement.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this meeting, and that they be published in the BICYCLING WORLD.

Baltimore, January 9th, 1891.

ELWELL EUROPEAN TOUR NOTES.

THE Elwell European party will have the assistance of Mr. Arthur G. Collins, formerly of Boston, now a resident of Paris. Mr. Collins is thoroughly conversant with the language and customs of France, and has personally explored the entire French route of the Elwell party and will accompany them on the tour. The party is now being formed, and all who are interested should address Elwell & Higgins, Portland, Me.

TRADE NOTES.

WRIGHT & DITSON.

BELOW we present to our readers the announcement of Messrs. Wright & Ditson, the well and favorably known dealers in sporting goods. Although a new line of goods with this concern, they start into it with a vim which presages success. We refer our readers to their advertisement on page 348 as regards agencies, etc.

THE BUFFALO TRADE.

UNDER the kind guidance of Chief Consul Bull, the editor of the WORLD a made brief but most pleasant tour among the trade in Buffalo the other day. We found Mr. Bull in the store of the

BUFFALO CYCLE CO.

Mr. Harris, the presiding genius of that company, was away East looking up certain parts for the machine that this company intend introducing during the coming season. Mr. Harris enjoys a well earned local reputation as being one of the best practical cycle mechanics in the country, and unless all signs fail, he will, at no very distant future, enjoy a wider reputation. The output of the Buffalo Cycle Co. for the coming season will not be large, but what will be put out will make up in quality; that being one of the requirements of Mr. Harris, that what he does put out must meet all the specifications of a first-class wheel. From the office of the Buffalo Cycle Co. we wended our way to the store of who is making preparations for placing a very large line of cycles in the Buffalo market. He has placed large orders for the Ormonde, Swift, Rover, Psycho, Union, Giant and Gale cycles. Mr. Doll also carries a good line of sundries. He is a young man, a hustler, and is one of the most popular wheelmen in Buffalo. From thence to the store of

MR. J. F. DOLL,

is but a few steps, and on entering their fine store we found alterations and enlargements going on, made necessary by the increasing business. We met Mr. Thomas, one of the principals. Mr. Thomas is a well seasoned business man of experience in the cycle and sewing machine trade, a pusher from the word go, and a man who is bound to get his share of the cycle patronage. The Standard Co. control a section of New York State, part of Ohio and part of Pennsylvania for the leading machines, and they "are in it for business." The machines that they will handle are the Warwick, Featherstone pneumatic, Stover and the Indianapolis machine. Mr. Thomas showed us a photograph of a Mr. Grabbenstater on his Warwick safety carrying his three children, the aggregate weight of himself and family being 374 pounds. He is in the habit of carrying his three boys to school and back home every day, and during the past season the trips thus made aggregate 1500 miles! "A pretty fair comment on the strength of the Warwick" said Mr. Thomas, to which we acquiesced. Mr. Grabbenstater has made the trip to and from the Falls with the above load on one or two occasions. Just across the way is the store of

MESSRS. J. B. & G. C. SWEET, and here again we found Mr. Sweet superintending the removal of furniture (in which they deal largely) to the upper floor, so that the splendid large store on the street will be devoted exclusively to the sale of cycles and children's carriages. Messrs. Sweet handle the full line of Victors, Referee, and a low grade of wheel made by the Buffalo Tricycle Co., an excellent all ball bearing, ball head machine, which lists at $75. They will also carry a line of children's safeties. Messrs. Sweet are going to cut a wide swath in the Buffalo trade this season, and will give more attention to the bicycle business than they have done heretofore. Five miuutes' walk uptown brought us to the shop and salesroom of that veteran cycler and we believe the pioneer dealer in Buffalo. Mr. Bowen, handles the "Hickory," but he is making a special drive on his home trainer and bicycle stand. We found him at work on a pattern for the latter, changed so that it would take in "the large tires of the future." The last place we visited was the store of Mr.

J. H. ISHAM.

Mr. Isham is in the swim with the Gormully & Jefferey machine and the Columbias. A fine trade he had last year and so impressed is he with the outlook that he has determined to move up town in the vicinity of the other dealers; the new quarters will contain three stores, all of which will be used for the cycle business. Mr. Isham has associated with him Mr. W. C. Boak, formerly of LeRoy, N. Y., and it is his intention to go very largely into the "sundry" business. They will make a special drive in this branch as will be seen in future announcements.

Our brief visit to Buffalo has impressed us with the fact that the bicycle business in Buffalo is decidedly on the BOOM, and that there will be some lively bustling for biz among the trade of that bustling city we think the season of 1891 will show.

THE BOLTE SPRING FORK SADDLES.

Adjustable to any position.

WE call the attention of our readers in this issue to the illustrations of the Bolte Spring Fork Saddles, which are manufactured by Mr. P. H. Sercombe of the Milwaukee Bicycle Co. It will be observed that Style "B" is constructed on the same general principle as Style "A," with the exception of the coil spring attached to the

of a pound lighter and is full nickel plated, adjustable to any position and also adjustable to stretch of leather. Style "C" has a flat spring; it is also very easy riding, adjustable to any position, and it will be observed that all the material used in this saddle acts as a spring and serves to lessen vibration.

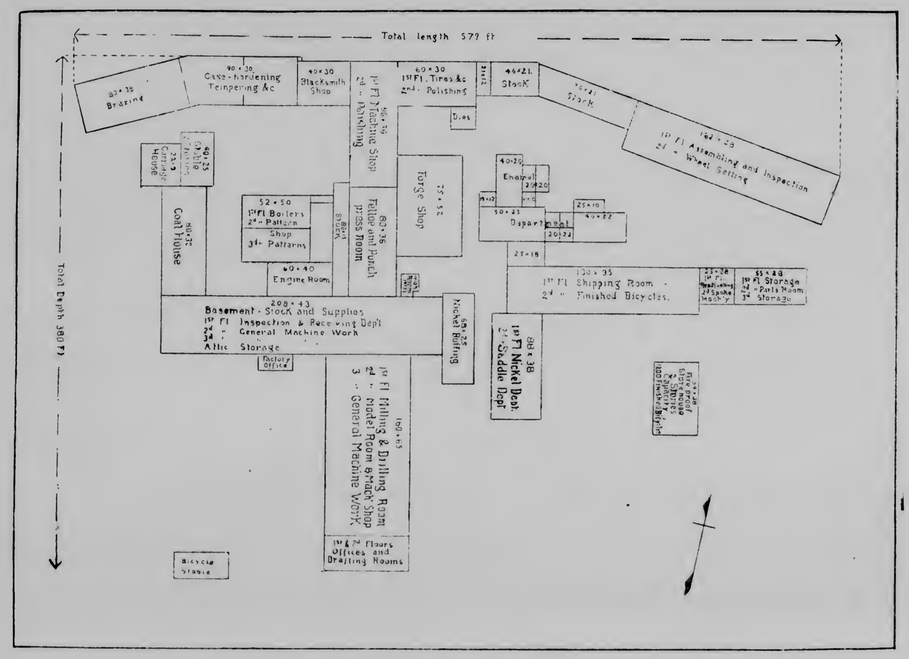
Mr. Sercombe has been in town during the past week or 10 days and the orders he has taken for his saddles from many of the leading houses seems to justify the opinion of the saddle's being an excellent article.

HAVE you a copy of "Cycleland?" If not, send 50 cents to the Wheelman Company and procure the same, as no cycler who appreciates anything laughable can afford to be without it. The best collection of cycling sketches ever published.

THE FACTORY OF THE POPE MANUFACTURING COMPANY

THE FACTORY OF THE POPE MANUFACTURING COMPANY



THE Columbia bicycle factory comes out this year with a new hat and overcoat, so to speak; at least that is the way it impresses one as he approaches it from Bushnell Park. The growth of this factory is particularly noticeable. The front building has received an entire new top story and roof, giving a different form and finish to the front view. The main additions made during the past fall and the present winter, however, are in the erection of a two-story building, 88x38 feet, in the front side of the group of buildings shown in the cut, and in a row of buildings along the back side, or river edge, aggregating about 600 feet in length, of which about 450 feet in running length is new. Other additions and renovations are obvious all through the group. With ample ground space and normal growth through many years this factory appears like a conveniently arranged and connected group of more than 30 buildings. They contain a capacity now in buildings of about three times, and in machinery and effective plant more than four times, what they did twelve years ago.

Thousands of wheelmen have visited this largest factory devoted to the manufacture of bicycles and will recognize, with this slight introduction giving them the hint of the additions, the accuracy of the perspective view and the ground plan which we offer herewith. At the right of what used to be the porter's lodge, but is now the bicycle stable for the workmen, and facing the oval between the factory buildings and the street leading from Bushnell Park, nearly parallel with the river, is the main office entrance, with the offices and draughting rooms and inventors' rooms in front. The first and second floors will be remembered by visitors as milling and drilling rooms, model room and machine shop. The top story added this winter is for general machine work and is now fully fitted up and in operation. The large main building at right angles to this is the oldest part of the factory. It was once devoted to sewing machine manufacture, but none are made in it now. Indeed, in this whole group of buildings the only part not devoted to bicycle construction is about one-eighth of one floor in this main building—that is to say, about 1120 square feet of floorage, which is occupied by machinery for the manufacture of typewriters. Of the long row of buildings on the river bank, recently constructed, the most interesting are those on the left in the picture, containing the best modern fixtures and furnishings for electric and hot blast brazing and for case hardening, tempering and enamelling. They also contain polishing rooms, wheel setting rooms, tire setting rooms and assembling and inspection rooms.

Of the other buildings all visitors will remember the noisy, blazing and almost Titanic forge shop, the labyrinth of machine rooms, the rolling mill for felloes, with the mysterious corridors where the ball machinery is and which so few can tell whether they have seen or not; the storage rooms, shipping rooms, polishing and buffing and nickel rooms, etc. The only thing that can be said in our space about these rooms is that most of these departments have been entirely refitted during the past year, and the gradual re-arrangements for greater room and effectiveness have made it seem like a new factory to the visitor.

One naturally recalls the few years since 1877. The Pope Mfg. Co. was organized March 23d of that year by Col. Albert A. Pope, who furnished all the capital for it. The first bicycle, which was rather a forerunner than a beginning, was a composite one of wood and steel made in the summer of 1877, under the direction of Col, Pope and Mr. John Harrington of "cradle spring" fame. When Mr. Harrington, in August of 1877, returned to England he took with him an order for bicycles for the Pope Mfg. Co., whose store was then at 45 High street, Boston. In the spring of 1878, Col. Pope retired from his other business, which had theretofore been carried on under the name and style of Albert A. Pope & Co. for twelve years. On leaving that concern, Col. Pope presented, as a token of his good will, to his brother, Arthur W. Pope, and to his junior partner, Mr. Vinal, ten shares each, and to Mr. Crowell, his book-keeper, two shares in the capital stock of his new company. He told them it had not much value, but that it would be likely to be valuable in the future. Soon after Messrs. Vinal and Crowell sold their shares to Mr. Arthur W. Pope for a few hundred dollars. In January, 1882, Arthur W. Pope sold his stock to Mr. Edward W. Pope and Charles F. Joy, both of the Pope Mfg. Co., for $5000. Since that time all the stock of the Pope Mfg. Co. has been owned by its officers and a few of those connected with the company by employment. None of it has been held outside.

In the spring of 1878, pursuing his plans of establishing the manufacture of bicycles in this country, Col. Pope visited Hartford and placed a contract with the Weed Sewing Machine Co., which had been in successful operation then for some years, had a large plant, an efficient corps of native American mechanics and a reputation for fine and durable work. The Pope Mfg. Co. took root in that place at that time, and the process of control, absorption and ownership began and continued until last year, when the whole property became in name, as in fact, that of the Pope Mfg. Co. That company has made the cycle business drive out substantially all other, and the growth still continues.

The writer, from some experience and facilities of knowledge about home and foreign manufacture, feels safe in saying that there is no other concern that has made and sold bicycles to the amount of a million of dollars in one year. He is satisfied from the books of the concern that the Pope Mfg. Co. has done it; but how much more than this the company did last year he is not at liberty to tell. What also equally interests riders and the trade is that the company has a constant corps of contented men in its employ. It keeps full force running all the time steadily, and avoids mostly the strain and haste of working nights, the losses from discharged experience and the risks of new hands. There has never been a strike here. The best fire-proof, fire-preventing and fire-suppressing arrangements and appliances are kept. The leading fire insurance authority in the country has said that he had nothing to suggest for improvement, and that it was already the best of risks for insurance companies, who carry large amounts on the property.

It is a policy often pursued by manufacturers in other lines, and prevails, we believe, with most manufacturers of bicycles, not to admit visitors to the works; and the would-be investigating bicycler is confronted with "No Admittance" when he looks beyond the office or the wareroom of the company. With the Pope Mfg. Co. it has always been the generous reverse of this. Wheelmen have always been welcomed to the factory, and many times especially invited to visit it. Of course in this as in all such factories there is much that is common to machine shops, such as drop forges, lathes and planers and milling machines; but there is also a great deal that is not common. Processes, special tools, special machinery and appliance are developing all the time in a live factory, that are peculiar to the line of manufacture and to the art of the particular factory. It is these specialties that make manufacturers shy of admitting anybody who might see and profit by what they saw. The Pope Mfg. Co. have shown through their works makers as well as riders. If anybody gets hints how to make bicycles better, well and good; and they say their principle is that they are not afraid of losing their specialties, because while somebody else might be imitating them, they themselves would be improving and going on to something else. They say the imitator is always behind the originator, and it's about so. At all events here are works which interest one from the quiet employees' reading room to the noisy forge shop, from the crude stock room to the doors of the private invention and inquisition rooms, which you cannot enter, and the sunny factory offices where you are treated with the most open hospitality by genuine fellow wheelmen.

THE Somerville Cycle Club gave a minstrel show and dancing party at Odd Fellow's Hall on the evening of January 20. The entertainment was a decided success in every way, and the club will net quite a sum from the result of their enterprise.

THE Riverside Wheelmen gave their annual reception at West End Hall on 116th street, on the evening of January 23, 1891. The hall was prettily decorated, and a large number of visiting wheelmen were present to enjoy the festivities of the occasion.

THE Columbia Bicycle Club of No. Attleboro, Mass., will hold its annual ball on March 10. This organization is in a prosperous condition, having quite a neat sum in the treasury.

THE five mile bicycle race for the indoor championship of the city of Buffalo on Saturday evening, January 31, at the athletic meeting of the 65th Regiment Association and the Ramblers Club bids fair to be a very exciting contest, as all the contestants are pretty evenly matched, and whoever wins will be obliged to hustle.

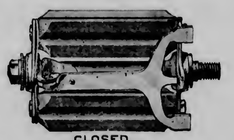
SAFETY RIDERS—THIS IS FOR YOU!

The INDISPENSABLE Safety Bicycle Support is just what you have been looking for. It can be attached to either side of the pedal. Can be opened or closed in three seconds. Always ready for use—never in the way. Folds on the underside of the pedal—cannot unlatch and drop down. Will not rattle. Is of sufficient weight to keep the pedal right side up. Will fit any pedal by trimming off the fork end to a length corresponding with the width of the pedal used.



Buy an Indispensable Support and carry your own curbstone; weight, 2 oz. 14 pwt. Your dealer will supply you, or if more convenient, you can send the make of your machine and width of pedal between flanges, as indicated by dotted line in cut, and I will mail support to you ready to put on; any one can attach them, as a screw-driver and wrench is all that is required.

To attach the support, remove the pins that hold rubbers in position, insert spring and joint plates between the rubbers and end plates; replace pins, passing them through the holes in the spring and joint plates.

When the support is open, and the pedal is down, the machine will lean slightly, and in all cases when the inclination is not more than five degrees from the perpendicular, the support will sustain both machine and rider.

Buy an Indispensable, use it, and you will say it is rightly named.

All orders will receive prompt attention, and goods will be sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price.

Price, per single support, $1.75.
Liberal Discount to the Trade.

EAGLE BICYCLE MFG. CO.

WE present to our readers' view in this issue a cut of the new Eagle Light Roadster and also specifications of the same. The Eagle Co. are having quite a steady demand for their wheels and are predicting a splendid season's trade.

Price, $132.50, for size 50-inch; for full nickeled, excepting spokes and rims, $10 additional (a difference of $2.50 will be made for each two inches in size up or down). Handle bars, saddle spring, brake parts, hubs, cranks, pedals and small trimmings, nickeled, balance enameled, ball bearings all around, Eagle ball pedals, one-piece hollow tapered cowhorn handle bar, Eagle adjustable suspension saddle, tangent spokes, hollow rims, tool bag, wrench, oiler, etc; weight, 37 pounds.

SCHOVERLING, DALY & GALES.

WE would call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Messrs. Schoverling, Daly & Gales on page 349, which displays their 1891 model of the Gales Diamond Safety, the specifications of which will be found in the advertisement. This well and favorably known concern has done a large and successful business in past seasons in bicycles and bicycle sundries, and are making preparations for a splendid season's business. In addition to their '91 model this enterprising firm have a Ladies' Convertible Safety, to which we call the attention of any of our readers who may desire such a machine—the principal points of which are ball bearings to both wheels, crank axle and pedals, adjustable seat and handle bar frame of best quality cold drawn steel tubing, hollow handle bar one piece steel tubing, first quality horn handles, adjustable and detachable foot rests, wire dress guard entirely covering chain and rear wheels, ladies' Fish saddle, model '91, or Garford saddle, at purchaser's option. The machine is finely finished in enamel and nickel; weight, all on, 39 pounds; price $85, and the purchaser of this machine cannot fail to get good value for the money invested.

In addition to these two machines they offer the Gales Safety, model '90, in view of meeting the demand for an all ball bearing safety at a moderate cost. The frame of this machine is of weldless steel tubing and steel forging throughout. The spokes are direct, of No. 12 special drawn steel wire; both wheels, crank axle and pedals are fitted with ball bearings. The saddle the famous Fish patent hammock, is adjustable in all directions. The brake is of the plunger style, and very powerful. The machine is finely enamelled, with usual bright parts nickelled on copper. Each machine is supplied with tool bag, wrench and oiler, all for the very reasonable price of $70.

THE HARTFORD CYCLE CO.

THIS company, although of comparatively recent origin when placed side by side with many of its competitors in the manufacture of bicycles, has already gained an enviable reputation, and has come well to the front; as to their output for 1891 their Ladies' Safety is their only new wheel. In this machine the company has used every endeavor in design, workmanship and material, all of which is the very best obtainable, to make it the best ladies' safety in strength, durability and ease of running, for the money, on the market, and they feel confident that it will prove a strong favorite. The Hartford Safety for 1891 will be on the same general lines as the 1890 machine, although a few changes will be made in minor particulars, which are considered an improvement. This year's machine will have the Kirkpatrick saddle, which can be certainly counted an improvement, and the complement of tools will include the B. & S. wrench and the Cushman & Denison perfect oiler. The company has received many flattering testimonials from riders as to the general good qualities of the Hartford Safety, and they feel confident that it will show well to the front in 1891 as one of the best $100 safety bicycles on the market.

THE Overman Wheel Co. gave a complimentary sleigh ride to their office employes on the evening of January 21. The Overman Wheel Co. Band accompanied the party, and before starting out they serenaded the President of the company, Mr. H. A. Overman. The party then drove to the "Glendower," in Springfield, and at 10 o'clock sat down to one of the choicest of Landlord Butler's menus, the table decorations being very beautiful. After a thorough discussion of the eatables the company enjoyed themselves by dancing to the music of the band, and at 12 o'clock started for home, much pleased with their evening's enjoyment.

WE desire to call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of W. S. Maltby on page 350, the all around the world champion scientific and artistic cyclist. Mr. Maltby has just completed his second tour around the world, and has fairly electrified his audiences by his daring feats on the bicycle, and far more difficult unicycle. He is now wending his way toward his native home in Wallingford, Conn., and he will be open to engagements from bicycle or athletic clubs for a short season only. Any organization which may be looking for a novelty in connection with any entertainment they may be considering should bear Mr. Maltby in mind.

HOWARD A. SMITH & Co. are now located at their new and handsome store, 518 Broad street, a few doors from their old stand, and are enjoying it with increased business and greater facilities for handling it, their trade during the past year necessitating a removal to larger quarters. In connection with their store they have erected a machine shop where bicycles can be repaired or manufactured, as necessity demands. A new edition of their "Encyclopedia of Cyclers' Wants" is ready for mailing, which can be obtained by application in person or by postal.

THE Elastic Tip Co. has issued their 1891 catalogue, which can be obtained by mail or at their headquarters, corner Cornhill and Washington streets, Boston.

DOES your library of cycling volumes contain a copy of "Cycling for Health and Pleasure?" If not, send 50 cents to the WHEELMEN Co., 12 Pearl street, Boston, Mass., and get a copy, as it is a book no wheelman should be without.

Massachusetts.

Mr. John C. Kerrison of Boston is hereby appointed a State Representative in the place of Mr. Chas. S. Howard resigned. Fraternally,

ARTHUR W. ROBINSON, C. C.

Massachusetts.

To Arthur W. Robinson, Chief Consul Massachusetts Division, L. A. W.:

Dear Sir—It being unnecessary that I should retain both the office of Secretary, Treasurer and Representative of the Massachusetts Division Board of Officers, I hereby tender my resignation as Representative.

Very truly yours, CHAS. S. HOWARD.

Massachusetts Division.

A meeting of the Board of Officers of Massachusetts Division L. A. W. was held at the Clarendon Hotel, Boston, on the evening of January 24. Chief Consul A. W. Robinson presided, and the others present were Vice Consul Perkins, Secretary-Treasurer Howard and Representatives Dean, Kendall, Lowell, Wells, Carsley, Adams, Pillsbury, H. W. Robinson, Pierce, Bean, Kerrison, Kchew, Moultrop, Gorton, Whitten, Lamont and Scott.

Chief Consul Robinson took occasion to refer to the recent resignation of Dr. W. H. Emery, and explain his own position, which he considered at this time one of peculiar embarrassment. He said that he never would have willingly stood as a candidate for the office of Chief Consul, for he felt that the position required more attention than his business would allow him to devote to it. The office having come to him in the way that it had, he did not feel that he could leave the Division without a head, so accepted the position with the promise of doing everything in his power to promote the interests of the League in Massachusetts. He expressed the hope that complete harmony would be restored among the members; that if there had been any jealousies or ill-feelings in the past, that all would henceforth be forgotten, and that the members of the Board would give him their united support.

Referring to the chief business of the evening, that of electing delegates to the national convention, he said that the election was called upon advice received from the Massachusetts Division's Committee on Rights and Privileges. He had also asked for advice from the National Committee on Rights and Privileges, but had received no reply.

Chief Consul Robinson's request that the report, or letter of advice, received by him from the committee be read to the meeting, led to a lengthy discussion. Mr. Bean declared that the question as to whom were elected delegates of this Division, should not have been submitted to the Committee on Rights and Privileges; that it was a matter which rested entirely with the National Committee on Credentials, and therefore that no communication from the former committee should be read to the meeting, or be allowed to influence any vote which might be taken on the subject. He was supported in this opinion by Mr. Moultrop and one or two others.

Vice Consul Perkins said that the Division owed a heavy debt of gratitude to Mr. Robinson for the able manner in which he had taken charge of the affairs of the Division at a critical time, and that the Board of Officers should do all in their power to assist him. He believed that reading the report would materially assist Mr. Robinson, and therefore moved that it be read.

Mr. Dean stated that it had always been the practice to refer matters of a legal nature to the Committee on Rights and Privileges. In fact, it was for this purpose that the committee was created, and all its members were lawyers. He further explained that the matter could not come to the Credential Committee until credentials were issued by Secretary Bassett. Secretary Bassett had informed him that he would not issue credentials to either the delegates appointed by the Chief Consul or to those elected in September. Therefore if another election were not held, Massachusetts would lose its representation at the National Convention.

It was finally agreed that the report should be read, but that no action should be taken upon it by the meeting. The report was as follows:

Arthur W. Robinson, Esq., Chief Consul Massachusetts Division:

Dear Sir—Your communication to the Division Committee on Rights and Privileges under date of December 30, 1890, was duly received by your Chairman. We assume that the meeting in September was not properly called, through failure to notify the Representatives as provided in the By-Laws of the Division. The rule provides that five days notice shall be given of all meetings of the Board of Officers; article VI., section 3 This was not complied with. We decide, therefore, that the delegates chosen at that meeting were not properly elected.

We are of the opinion that the action of the September meeting could be ratified and confirmed at a meeting of the Board of Officers duly called and held for that purpose.

In answer to your third question we are of the opinion that the Chief Consul had no power to appoint delegates under article VI., section 5 of the By Laws. The Chief Consul has power to fill vacancies only when they occur either by death, resignation, promotion or removal. There was no death, resignation or promotion, and there could be no removal of what did not exist. In fact, there having been no delegates elected, none of these causes exist. We think you could call a meeting for the election of delegates, the provision in the Constitution that the meeting for the election of delegates shall be held in September, we regard as directory merely. We cannot believe that it was the intention of the framers of the Constitution, that a Division which failed to hold its election of delegates during the month of September should be deprived of its proper representation in the National Assembly. If a meeting is called and a new delegation chosen, the National Assembly would have the right to determine the legality of their election, but we have no doubt the delegation would be admitted. We recommend that in calling any meeting that the purpose of the meeting be stated fully. Your respectfully,

JOSIAH S. DEAN,
GEO. A. PERKINS,
WINFIELD S. SLOCUM,
Committee on Rights and Privileges.

Boston, January 7, 1891.

The motion to ballot for new delegates was discussed at great length. Mr. Perkins said that owing to the withdrawal of Messrs. Kendall, Pillsbury and Barber, those gentlemen having sent letters of declination, there would be room enough for both factions to be fully represented on the new list of delegates, and he expressed the hope that they all would be elected, and harmony restored. Mr. Bean believed that those appointed by the Chief Consul were legal delegates. The motion was finally carried, and of the fifteen gentlemen balloted for, the following were elected:

I. S. Dean, Boston; A. C. Copeland, Worcester; J. Fred Adams, Haverhill; C. G. Wells, Boston; I. E. Moultrop, Boston; H. W. Robinson, Charlestown; W. L. Palmer, New Bedford; W. W. Griffin, Lynn; J. W. Bean, Cambridgeport; G. H. Kchew, Cambridgeport.

On motion of Mr. Adams, the Chief Consul was instructed to countersign all checks drawn on the Division treasury.

On motion of Mr. Dean the vote of the last meeting, refusing to allow expenses to delegates was rescinded, and on motion of Mr. Perkins, the Secretary-Treasurer was directed to pay each delegate who attended the National Convention at Washington, February 16, the sum of $25. CHAS. S. HOWARD, Sec.-Treas.

New Hampshire Division.

According to the present membership of this Division we are entitled to a Vice Consul. As an inducement to increased efforts on the part of old members to send in new names the following plan has been decided upon, viz.:

The Vice Consul will be chosen from the city showing the largest number of new members secured from Jan. 1 to March 1.

Said Vice Consul to be appointed by the Chief Consul, and to hold office until the annual election of officers. Shall expect to see a hot fight for the above position, and hope we shall not be disappointed. The relative positions will be furnished at any time to interested parties.

Names to be counted must appear in the Official Bulletin on or before the issue of Feb. 27th, 1891.

Fraternally yours, R. HARRY SCOTT,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Ohio.

As all attempts to get a report out of F. D. Gadsby, Representative of the Richland Ramblers, who has charge of District 10, have been about as successful as pumping a dry well would have been, no Local Consuls for 1891 have been appointed in any of the following localities: Ashland, Belleville, Mansfield, Shelby, Mt. Vernon or Gambier. If the League members in each of the above localities will unite in recommending one of their number to me he will be appointed at once.

Fraternally, M. A. HIGH,
Cincinnati, Jan. 24, 1891. Chief Consul.

Ohio.

January 17, 1890, Ohio, 846.
January 16, 1891, Ohio, 1187.
Still 813 short of the desired 2000.

Do you realize that we ought to and could have 2000 members in the Ohio Division? If you do not it is high time you were waking up. We need the moral influence of numbers to aid us in our crusade for better roads. A Division with 2000 members might succeed where one with only 1200 would fail. Now go to work, and "let no guilty man escape."

Fraternally, M. A. HIGH,
Cincinnati, Jan. 24, 1891. Chief Consul.

Missouri Appointments.

This Division being entitled to an additional Representative, I have this day appointed H. C. Woodruff, 320 Chestnut street, to fill the office.

M. J. Gilbert, No. 209 W. 4th street, St. Louis, is appointed Representative, vice F. W. Wrieden removed.

Brose Conkle is hereby appointed local consul for Luray, Mo., and vicinity. Fraternally yours,

ROBT. HOLM, C. C.

St. Louis, January 23, '91.

Missouri's Disappointment.

To Members:

The Indian Brave longs for the good old times when hunting was easy; and in the ghost dance he thinks he sees the signs of their return. Of course he is doomed to disappointment. But so likewise is the local consul who sighs for the days when recruiting was easy and members came unasked; and thus spends his time hugging a phantom instead of adapting modern methods of recruiting. Hustling for members is better than waiting, and if you have not adopted the former method, do so at once. Forceful facts plainly told seldom fail to hit the mark. Truth in an argument will always find favor, while falsehood falls flat. If you wish to gather many recruits, remember the above advice. Membership of Division at this date, 462. Number yet needed to reach the coveted 500, 38. Suppose all of us start the New Year aright. We don't want to waste your time or ours to talk about recruiting if there isn't profit in it for all of us. There is a profit in it for the Division, and with a prosperous Division all members share alike in the additional comforts which a good fat treasury can provide. With 500 members much more work can be done than with 400, and each new recruit brings us one nearer the mark. Fraternally yours,

ROBT. HOLM, Chief Consul.

San Francisco, January 15, 1891.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.

THE KING

—FOR—

STRENGTH

EVERY rider who has an Eclipse bicycle will tell you that it is the best wheel he has ever ridden. He will also tell you that he can ride the Eclipse three times as long as any other wheel he knows of, without re-adjusting the bearings. The Eclipse is the only wheel on the market that has the cones so arranged as to revolve on the shaft. and which are not screwed to the shaft by threads.

Do not make a mistake and buy until you have seen the Eclipse, with its elegant spring fork and the saddle that is unequalled

Strictly high grade and material and workmanship the best.

CYCLING

FOR

Health and Pleasure.

Chapters III. and IV.

How to use a wheel, in Learning, Riding and Touring is the subject of these two chapters, but there is much that is fresh and striking in the exhaustive treatment, and such suggestions as are trite from iteration are put in a clearer and more forcible manner than is usual. The skilled rider (none too common) and the adept (still more rare) can find pertinent suggestions in them, and others will discover much to ponder over. Many hints will also be discovered, showing what misuse of the ordinary has allowed it to be so easily displaced. The important questions of Economy of Power, Proper Position, Suitable Reach, Good Form and the like, are carefully elaborated. Veterans who have read the work are most pronounced in its praise.

The Six-Day-Go-as-You-Please,

Just closed, gave the winner 518 miles. On a bicycle a good man would cover this distance in two days, and not hobble the last half with sore "peds" either. Walking is too slow for this mechanical age, especially when you can get a good mount for $15.00, and the very best and late style for $50.00. You don't believe it? Well, send for list and you will see.

Prices are right and terms to suit.

EIGHT INQUIRIES CANDIDLY ANSWERED.

QUIDPROQUO. XLIII.

HARTFORD, Connecticut, affords to the traveller by railway not its worst back side, as most cities do, but its very front, its beautiful face,—the finest picture seen by railway in or near any city in this country. The winding river banks, green lawns of Bushnell Park, beautiful Memorial Arch, magnificient white granite State House rising and raising its graceful lines and gilt top over all, make a view worth travelling to see. Here is a bright and clean and homelike city, yet a busy hive of manufacture in the finest lines of machinery. Here is the chief location of bicycle manufacture,—but for this I can refer this week to the inside pages of this paper, where the interested reader will find something fresh and correct about the recent enlargements of the Columbia factory.

TOUCHING BIGNESS.

WHATEVER may be though about one's claiming credit for mere bigness, there are two things settled by the common sense of mankind. One is that spasmodic effort to appear bigger than one naturally and really is, is disastrous. This was illustrated many years ago by a witty freedman named Aesopus, in his fable of the frog who bursted herself trying to make some young ones believe she was great as an ox. The other thing is that greatness attained by normal growth and honest exercise of one's powers, is interesting and commendable. The growth and magnitude of the Columbia factory and the attainments of the Pope Mfg. Co., for example, are creditable and interesting because they represent a healthy, natural growth and prove the value of their machines and the genuineness of their abilities to serve the public well. They would not, of course, have the largest factory and do most business and hold the most popular position in the trade, if the public did not, year after year, find that they sold the best machines and kept at the head in improvements and had the most satisfactory way of doing business with their patrons.

LAST WEEK'S CATECHISM.

SOMETIMES it's one concern and sometimes another that tries to climb into this leading place by claiming it before winning it. When they do it is generally by broad assertion or sweeping statement. But it may be done by question and implied answer. This method of question and answer has been familiar to us ever since our early experience with the query, "Who was the first man?" A writer on the first page of last week's BI. WORLD propounded some eight interrogatories relating to cycle trade and manufacture, leading up to and ending in a boost for another concern toward this kind of a climbing in some other way. As his inquiries seem to me interesting, I will answer unto them briefly but candidly according to the facts of record as I find them. The reader who may turn to that catechism will bear in mind that the manufacturer in whose favor it is offered made and sold its first bicycles in 1885 and its first safeties in 1887. Here they are:

Q. 1. "What maker in America made the first high grade bicycles with tangent spokes, hollow rims, dropped handles, etc.?" ANS. THE CUNNINGHAM CO., THEN OF BOSTON, IN 1884, IN THEIR "YALE" BICYCLES, MADE AT THE FACTORY OF THE PETTEE MACHINE WORKS, MET EXACTLY THAT DESCRIPTION; BUT, the Pope Mfg. Co. had made and sold the Columbia in 1878, the "Standard" Columbia in 1879, the "Special" Columbia in 1881, and the "Expert" Columbia in 1882, and the Columbia Racer in 1883, all of which in their time were "high grade bicycles."

Q. 2. "Who first reduced prices on bicycles in America?" ANS. THE POPE MFG. CO., IN 1878, BY EIGHTEEN PER CENT. At that time the average of thirteen different English makes listed by the importers in Boston was. for 50 inch size, $109.00. The Pope Mfg. Co. put the price of their new Columbia, modeled on one of the best and improved over that, at $90.00. At that time the different sizes of bicycles were sold at different prices, varying $4.00 a size from 50 inch upward to 60 inch; and 52 was the average size sold. The Pope Mfg. Co. not only reduced the prices in 1878 and the following years on the lower sizes, but reduced this difference or added price per size from $4.00 to $2.50.

Q. 3. "Who made the first Rover type safety bicycle in America?" ANS. OVERMAN WHEEL CO., IN 1887, "VICTOR" SAFETY. It was the first safety made and sold by that Co. This is without counting the Pony Star, previously made by H. B. Smith Machine Co., which was driven with levers instead of a chain, or the "Surprise," made by Pope Mfg. Co., which had two steering wheels, but both of which resembled the "Rover" about as much as the "Victor" did. Up to 1887 the majority of the riders and the results of use seemed in favor of the "Kangaroo" or "front driving" type, of which the Columbia Safety of 1886 and 1887 was the best.

Q. 4. "Who made the first square rubber pedals in America?" ANS. OVERMAN WHEEL CO., IN ITS FOUR-BAR TRICYCLE PEDALS, FOR ITS "VICTOR" TRICYCLE OF 1884. That company and the Pope Mfg. Co. first made BICYCLE pedals with these rubbers in the same year, 1885; but the Pope Mfg. Co. gave them a still further improvement, in the "double-grip" form, which is the form most generally used or imitated since the spring of 1886.

Q. 5. "Who established the price of $135.00 for Rover type safety in America?" ANS. STODDARD, LOVERING & CO. AND SINGER & CO. IN 1886, "BICYCLETTE" AND "APOLLO" SAFETY. The price of safeties was set in in 1885 at $135.00 by the American trade generally.

Q. 6. Who originated the term cushion tire?" ANS. BATES, BIDLAKE AND FAULKNER, IN ENGLISH PATENT NO. 3799 of 1878 FIRST USE THAT TERM IN RELATION TO BICYCLE TIRES, so far as I remember; but Leigh and McDowell, in English patent No. 4898 of 1876 describe and illustrate the thing. Then then there are Birley, of 1884, and others before and since.

Q. 7. "Who made the first cushion tires?" ANS. You will find SOME MADE BY GOLDING, IN ENGLAND, DESCRIBED AND ILLUSTRATED WITH CUTS IN STURMEY'S "TRICYCLISTS' INDISPENSABE" FOR 1884. Overman Wheel Co. was American publisher of the book in that year. Hollow rubber tires had been made and patented long before that, but these had the hole nearer the rim side. About two years later the Overman Wheel Co. made and sold a few similar ones.

Q. 8. Who has the largest and finest bicycle plant in America, devoted exclusively to the production of high grade bicycles?" ANS. POPE MANUFACTURING COMPANY, AT HARTFORD, CONN., U. S. A., WHERE THE COLUMBIA CYCLES ARE MADE. It has been the largest and finest bicycle plant in America ever since 1878, and seems likely to stay so. It is more than half as large again as any other bicycle plant in America. There is no other that produces two-thirds as many high grade bicycles a year, and no other bicycle concern that does two-thirds as much volume of business in bicycles as is done by the Pope Mfg. Co. that owns it.

TOUCHING "DOCUMENTS."

I NOTICED that the one who made the above inquiries intimated a notion of his that "there is one answer which fits each of the above questions, and that answer is the Overman Wheel Co."; but I don't find it so in the facts. And indeed it is seldom that one finds outside of the patent medicine trade, a remedy of one name good for everything. It has long been assented to that "one can ask more questions than seven wise men can answer," and I would claim an equal value for the proposition that almost anyone will guess right once in seven times. The "documents" are accessible for proving the truth of the foregoing answers, including the Columbia Factory itself. Eighteen thousand invitations have been sent to members of the L. A. W.; if any reader of this page has not received one, and wishes one to use fairly as an interested wheelman (or "wheelwoman" as the French say it now) he can have it by applying for it; they have been worded as follows:

"M. — — --- --- ---. We cordially invite you, as a member of the League of American Wheelmen, to visit our factory on any business day prior to July 1, 1891, when we will take pleasure in showing you how Columbias are made. A special permit may be obtained at the factory or any office of the company after that date, but it will be to your advantage to see the factory when the machinery is all in operation. POPE MFG. COMPANY."

VIBRATION VANQUISHED.

"THERE ARE DIFFICULTIES IN EVERYTHING EXCEPT EATING PANCAKES, AND NOBODY OUGHT TO BE EXPECTED TO UNTIE ALL THE KNOTS IN A NET."—Spurgeon.

In presenting the "Sylph" to the public, we do not claim to have reached absolute perfection. (Our wood-shed is overrun with experimental cycles just as much as ever), but we do claim to have untied one knot "for keeps." If any rider now complains of vibration, great or small, it is because he has not ridden the "Sylph." Now have we added two knots to get rid of one. We have not sacrificed rigidity, strength, beauty, speed or hill climbing power for easy riding, but have rather gained on these points.

C. W. FOURDRINIER. J. S. DEAN.

BOSTON, 6 FEBRUARY, 1891.

HERE we are again! Excuse the language. We know that it smacks somewhat of the circus ring, but what of it? Why should we reject an apt phrase merely because it has associations not to our taste. We are here again to drop words of wisdom or of unwisdom just as they shall come uppermost in our mind. We propose to do all we can to settle the disputed points in cycling politics and in cycling mechanics before the editor gets home. We don't wish to take away his business, but we are going to leave very little for him to do.

IN cycling mechanics there is a great deal of interest. Shall we blow up our tires or shall we bore a hole in them. We think we will let the great and good public decide this question. Wheelmen are an incredulous lot, and they have seen so many experiments that they now take nothing on faith. The coming summer will settle the tire question and until riders have ridden the wheel up hill and down dale we cannot tell if it pays to put so much weight and expense into the additional immunity from vibration. We have heard riders who have ridden ten miles on a cushion tire say that it is an ecstasy, and we have seen a cushion tire that went to the bad after being run the equivalent of seventy-five miles. The experiments of 1891 will give us a better tire in 1892 than ever before. We cannot believe that the pneumatic tire is the perfect one, but it has shown us results that are surprising and has set men to thinking. We do not doubt we shall soon have a tire no less effective than the pneumatic and without the objections that can be urged against it. Meantime inventors should not forget that vibration can be economized by a good spring frame.

ONE thing more in cycling mechanics. Wheelmen will oblige us by laughing the next time they read about the aluminum bicycle of the future that is to be four times as strong as the steel bicycle of to-day and only one-quarter as heavy. That is a fairy tale. Bicycles will never be made of aluminum. Do you want to demonstrate this? Take a piece each of aluminum and steel the size of a lead pencil. The aluminum you can bend easily in your hands. We don't think you can bend the steel. By just so much as the steel is more rigid than the aluminum is it better for making bicycles. When you have demonstrated this you will know just how hard to laugh at the men who write about aluminum bicycles.

THE joint conference has passed into history. The representatives of the L. A. W. and the A. A. U. have met, discussed, argued and agreed upon a scheme of expense allowance in athletic sports. So far as the conference is concerned the work is finished, but the scheme has yet to be adopted by the two organizations. Will it be adopted? Not without a struggle. Should it be adopted? Emphatically, Yes.

THIS expense evil is a mighty one. The burglar's art keeps pace with the locksmith's, and the former has picked every lock that the latter has made. The expense fiend gets around every law that can be made, but there are some laws that only the most expert can avoid.

THEY tell of one rider of a cycle who is thought to ride in the interest of a manufacturer. It cannot be proved that he does this, but it is known that he owns a block of stock in the company and receives regular dividends on the same. And it is also known that no other stockholder has received a dividend. One well-known athlete received from his club only his expenses, but when he returned from a great victory he was wont to play poker with the officers of his club and he always won heavily on these occasions.

THE new rules suggested by the conference take gigantic steps in the direction of pure amateurism, and if they become the law of the two organizations we shall see very much less abuse in the direction of paying expenses.

LEAGUE Clubs and no others are allowed to pay expenses, and no training expenses whatever may be paid. Moreover, clubs are allowed to pay only actual expenses, and these are limited to railroad fares, board and lodging and entry fees. Parlor cars, carriage hire, tips to waiters, theatre tickets, etc., etc., are cut off, and all board and lodging fees have to be attested by vouchers.

THIS reduces expenses to their lowest terms, and the cut is more severe from the fact that these meagre expenses can be paid only when competitors go to championship games. To no other meetings may expenses be paid.

ONE more step in the direction of amateurism is taken in the provision which forbids other prizes than medals, badges, cups, banners, diplomas or wreaths, and all these shall be of limited value. It was contended that he who rides for an article of merchandise with the hope of winning the same is not imbued with the true amateur spirit. Your true amateur should be satisfied with the glory which comes from his victory, and the prize should have no consideration with him. Put away the merchandise and bid the laurel wreath come back.

WE think the dealers will hail the prize clause with no little satisfaction when they remember the very many contributions they have made to the prize lists of race meetings and the large item of expense thereby entailed. Not that these contributions have not been cheerfully made at times, but it has often happened that race promoters have pursued a system of blackmail, have stirred up a spirit of rivalry between dealers, and have otherwise made themselves obnoxious. We shall have no more dress suits, laundry bills or theatre tickets on the lists of prizes.

THE item "diplomas or wreaths" was put in at the suggestion of the representative of the Turnverein. The Germans give these in their games, and never award prizes of great intrinsic value. When the new prize law shall be put upon the books we hope the L. A. W. will arrange to have a good medal of its own that may be supplied at a contract price to race committees.

THE team race has been cut out of the list of races. This race has made and fostered more ill feeling than any other, and it was given up in the interest of good fellowship.

SO far as the suspensions of the offending riders go nothing has as yet been done. We commend to our readers a careful reading of the correspondence on this point. The conference was not asked nor granted to deal with this subject. Nothing will be done with the suspends till the question at issue in the conference has been finally disposed of.

IT may be interesting at this time to consider the effect which the adoption of the recommendations of the conference will have upon the two organizations. On the part of the League we may look for little or no difficulty. The abuses aimed at, except the prize abuse, hardly exist with us, and where they exist at all they are of small proportion and of recent date. With the A. A. U. it is different. It has undertaken to slay a monster in whose greedy grasp it has many years lain. The expense system has engrafted itself deeply into the policy of the athletic organizations, and it will be no easy matter to eradicate it. The officials of the A. A. U. are suffering from the great evil and they heartily desire to break it up. They pledge themselves to earnest efforts in this direction, and we hope they will meet with success, but it will not be an easy victory. The bloodsuckers who are hanging upon the clubs will not willingly give up their sustenance, and they will make a fight against, what they no doubt will call, this invasion of their rights.

WE believe the reform has got to come and the the time is now ripe for it. It would please some of our impetuous League members to see a war between the L. A. W. and the A. A. U. If war should come it would be a bitter one, and at the end of it we should see a compromise agreement of about the nature of the one drawn up, and it would be gained at the expense of much "blood and treasure." War is always regretable and never should be resorted to, except when all other attempts at meeting the issues have proved futile. In this instance war has been avoided and it will not transpire unless the hot-headed and inconsiderate members of the two bodies get control of affairs.

THE recommendations of the conference if adopted will call for a marked change in the conduct of athletics. Such meetings as that to be held in Boston by the Athletic Club on Feb. 14 cannot exist. Well, let them go. If they cannot live without the existence of a class of men who are professionals at heart and amateurs for revenue only they had better go. If the Athletic Union can rid itself of the hanging-on class of athletes it will be a bright day for gentlemanly athletics.

WE have been told by an A. A. U. man that the scheme if adopted will lead to the formation of a separate organization of the boxing men. Boxers want and will have expensive prizes, and when costly cups are given to the bloody-nose promoters they do not hesitate to ask that the cups be filled with something that will buy provisions. We intimated last week that we were, perhaps, what the world calls a "crank," and this may account for the fact that we never could see anything very elevating in boxing matches, nor do we believe that sparring encourages the growth of those gentle qualities of nature which we expect to see in your true gentleman. And for our part we shall shed no tears when we see the boxers depart for other fields where they can flock all alone by themselves and black each others eyes to their hearts' content. Perhaps these results alone will justify the reform

FOR the reason that the colleges and the oarsmen are not yet ready to move onward they have been excepted in the scheme. So far as the colleges go they are allowed to pay undergraduates' expenses to college games, but when they come out into the wide world they must act like other men. Let us hope that the college men and the oarsmen will have an object lesson that they will heed.

AND so we rejoice that a new order of things will prevail. A long step is about to be taken towards pure amateurism. Other steps will come later. The first advance is always the hardest to make. We hope to see this, our first step, taken with a determination that shall carry with it the conviction that it will never be retraced.

AND when the death blow has been dealt to the fraudulent amateur let us hope to see the birth of a professional league that shall show us the best results of training and practice. Let the professionals be governed by stringent laws that shall prevent jockeying and trickery. Let us see as well regulated professional athletics as we now see professional ball playing. Let us see competition under the best possible conditions. The public will pay to see the best and when the public pays business can be conducted with satisfaction. Such a league would not have the mission and aims of the amateur organizations, but it need not be antagonistic. Amateurs can always learn of professionals and we do not doubt amateurs would patronize, though they could not participate in the contests.

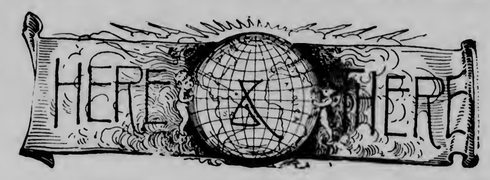
WHEN the emancipation proclamation was issued Emerson said: "We have not prospered because we have been trying to get along without justice, and now all will be well." The sport of cycling in its racing aspect has been trying to get along without honesty and justice and it will not prosper till emancipation has been proclaimed.

A FEW weeks ago a young man named Robbins of Chicago made some very silly statements to the reporter of a Buffalo paper, and the editor of this paper gave his opinion of the statements and the stater in very forcible language. The reply has come. Mr. Robbins answers the forcible language, and our cherub (we do not keep a devil) has put the article on our desk for notice. We have noticed it. We notice that the writer builds up a very elaborate argument, all the assertions of which he claims to be beyond contradiction. But inasmuch as the whole argument is based on the assumption that Secretary Bassett is the editor of this journal, and the writer of the forcible language aforesaid, and inasmuch as this assumption is ridiculously incorrect and grotesque, the whole fabric tumbles to the ground, and we have nothing left to notice. If Mr. Robbins will glance at the head of this column he will find the names of the editors who are responsible for what appears in the editorial columns of the BICYCLING WORLD (excepting this week and last), and he is hereby informed that the Secretary neither writes anything nor knows anything of what goes into this paper outside the official column. When there is a question about the advisability of inserting an article regarding its effect upon the League, the Secretary is asked to pass judgment, and his judgment is always final. Now if Mr. Robbins will write another story based upon facts it may be that the real editor, who will be once more at his desk, will have some fun with him. Meantime we commend to our young friend the remark that those things about which a man is absolutely certain are the very things in which he is most likely to be mistaken.

BEING inexperienced and free from guile we hardly know how to treat a man who practices the economy of truth to such a degree as does this man of Chicago. If we fail to notice him the world will believe him. If we answer him we give a great deal of space to advertising a man who has not won the right to have prominence. We have a great many gentlemen and a great many ladies on our list, and we cannot on their account reduce ourselves to the level of this man by accusing him of falsehood, even if we were inclined to. Here is a man who wishes to revenge himself on a manufacturer because that manufacturer believes it will be money thrown away to advertise in his paper. And so forthwith he proceeds to slate the manufacturer. He builds up a very elaborate set of charges, none of which are true, and threatens to do great things in the name of what he calls justice. If he were responsible, the manufacturer would have a good case against him for criminal libel. If what he says had an ounce of brains behind it we might have something to write about. As it is—whiff, the house of cards is blown over, and the author goes into the obscurity from which he never should have risen.

THE sad hour of parting has come. Next week the Simon-Pure editor will be in the chair to entertain and instruct you, likewise to correct the mistakes that we have fallen into. If we have rattled about in the chair, remember that we are young and inexperienced, and may do better later on. And so we look towards you, and we likewise bow ourselves from out your presence.

MR. BREWSTER states that he is not to be considered as a candidate for one of the Vice Presidencies at the next election. This, therefore, narrows the contest down to Burdett of Connecticut and Mott of Maryland. It being generally conceded that Brown of New Jersey is pretty certain of a position.



MR. BREWSTER IS NOT A CANDIDATE.

Editor Bicycling World: Permit me to correct the false impression conveyed in your editorial of last week concerning my candidacy for Vice President of the League. I am not now, nor have I been at any time, a candidate for Vice Presidential honors. Perhaps the reason for this may be similar to the one that influenced the man who "would not live alway"—he has not been urged sufficiently—but however this may be I cannot help feeling honored at being even mentioned for this high office along with Messrs. Mott and Burdett, and having it said that any one of us would be "equally as good." Believe me, this is quite as pleasing to me as an actual election would be, and the labor is nothing like as great.

I trust that the contest between Messrs. Mott and Burdett—if there is to be a contest—will be waged on friendly lines and develop no acrimony. If, however, the contest should get too lively and the best interests of the League would seem to indicate the bringing out of a compromise candidate on whom we could all heartily unite, I beg to present the name of Mr. Griffith of Detroit.

Very truly yours, W. M. BREWSTER.

NEW JERSEY NOTES.

"PALISADES."

A RUMOR has been in circulation that the Business Men's Cycle League of Newark was about to consolidate with the Atalanta Wheelmen, but such is not the fact. Although perfect harmony exists between the two clubs, the members of the Business Men's Cycle League declare that they are strong enough to take care of themselves. They have a membership of 130, and at their next meeting will appoint a committee to consider the purchase of a suitable site upon which to build a home for themselves.

THE devotion that "Billy" of the Crawford Cycling Club shows to the new case of beer is surprising; and by the way while speaking of the Crawford Club, I would like to know if there is any truth in the rumor that "Bigelow" is running up his mileage in his garret.

THE Plainfield Bicycle Club through three of their prominent members, the doctor, the patriarch and the boy with the auburn hair, performed the "mystic rite" at their club house on the 3d inst. The club is renewing the festivities of last winter, and are having a jolly good time.

THE clubs in "The Oranges" will be represented in the BICYCLING WORLD hereafter by their own reporter.

THE last report I have from the Bowling League places the Atalantas in first place, and the H. C. W. tie the Harlem Wheelmen of New York for third place. Truly, Jersey is doing well.

ED. BOUKHOUT of the Crawford Cycling Club claims a record of 4700 miles for last season. Previous to receiving this, the best record, in this State for last season to my knowledge was that of ex-Captain Day of the Hudson Co. Wheelmen with 4005 miles to his credit.—Next.

THE Plainfield Bicycle Club is now the largest League Club in this State. They are considering limiting their membership to one hundred, and Plainfield riders (not already members) had better "hustle" or they will be like the driver of a hansom cab—i. e.—not in it.

THE Orange Wheelmen have instituted a ladies' auxiliary to help them in a social way. This club appears to be extremely fortunate in the way of "auxiliaries" having besides the above, a dramatic society and a banjo club. Mr. Racy is tutoring the latter, and Mr. F. R. M. Knowles is attending to the wants of the dramatic society.

THE Bergen Co. Wheelmen I understand are going to give a first class entertainment in the Englewood Lyceum before long; they will give sufficient notice to other clubs to enable them to secure seats before putting them on sale to the public. The "other clubs" ought to appreciate this and respond when called upon.

WITH apologies to "Judge:"

We trust the National Assembly
Will cover itself with renown,
And elect as Second Vice President,
Chief Consul G. Carleton Brown.

ECHOES from Bergen Co. Wheelmen:

Secretary Whyard is exercising these wintry months. It is said he is very clever with the gloves.

Williamson and his machine are snowed under at last; it took considerable snow, but——.

Frank Church is now at Chemulpo, Korea. He will return in 1895. In the meantime, he retains his membership.

Samuel Hammond may soon treat the boys to his "tale of woe."

The judicial dignitary of the club, C. F. Park, stands ready at all times to administer his "$5.75" to Englewood law-breakers.

CHICAGO.

"WAYNE SCOTT."

THIS week news has been scarce, the calm before the storm. But a few weeks more and all the talk will be of the Pullman road race, of the probable dark horse, etc. Speculation is now rife as to the relative speed of the pneumatic tire and solid. In 12 miles two of our prominent local riders have ridden 4 minutes better and hardly tried, doing part of the distance over roads where the solid tire would have failed altogether.

Saturday, Feb. 7, the Illinois Division, L. A. W., hold a constitutional convention in this city. The meeting will be called to order at 10.30. The afternoon will be spent showing our visitors around town and in the evening a stag entertainment of an athletic and musical turn will be given at Kimball Hall. This will be free to all wheelmen. The banquet following, however, will be for L A. W. members only. Mayor Cregier and ex-Mayor Harrison are expected to speak. Such members as apply for membership on or before that evening will be admitted.

The Ravenswoods' track scheme was dropped some time ago on account of the "goodness" of some of the subscribers, who would have it no other way than that the track and grounds must be closed on Sunday. Now, however, a number of the more liberal thinkers of that pretty suburb have taken up the old matter, ousted the prudes, applied for a charter and feel reasonably sure of a huge success. The minute the papers arrive a meeting will be called and work begun.

The committee appointed at the meeting held at the Illinois Club house last Saturday evening were Frank Fanning, George A. Mason and Dr. J. C. Wachter. Representatives from the Lincoln, Douglas, Æolus Cycling Clubs and Cook County Wheelmen were present to talk over schemes for a track on the West Side. Since that time the committee has been hard at work. They have seen Mr Spalding, but hardly favor his terms for his grounds back of the Cook County Hospital. There are several other chances yet to be run down before a meeting can be called. The West Side should have a track for two-thirds of our 21 Chicago clubs are located in that division of the city.

The Washington Cycling Club have a chance which will be accepted. A club house will be built for them, with which they are sure to again come to the front numerically as well as socially.

The Chicago Cycling Club will give a calico party at Rosalie Hall, Feb 11.

The whist tournament of the Oak Park Cycling Club closed last Monday evening. Three prizes were given for games won. C. O. Ludlow won first, winning 20 games and losing 11; Ike Ulman second, with 19 won and 12 lost, and Walter Knott third, with 17 won and 14 lost. Six men are tie for third place, with 11 games won each.

The Victor Cycling Club held a meeting this last week. Officers were elected for '91. A committee appointed to select a club house have in view a house at the corner of Twentieth street and Blue Island avenue. A ladies' cycling club will be organized in conjunction with the Victor Club. Forty members have already been assured.

A "chalk talk" at the Chicago Club house last Saturday evening was well attended. A. T. Merrick, a member of the Chicago Club, illustrated on a blackboard, while E. V. Day of the Oak Park Cycling Club told the stories.

The first reception of the Lincoln indoor base ball team was given in the Lincoln Club parlors last Thursday evening. Thirty couples were in attendance.

The Ladies' Englewood Cycling Club held their annual election this last week. Six applicants were admitted to membership.

KENTUCKY.

"GX. EX. JX."

The first pneumatic tired wheel put in appearance at Louisville last week and the boys flocked around Jack Allison's to gaze on the new-fangled thing. Louisville is not a jay town; I'm willing to "pull guns" in Kentucky style with the man who says she is. But we are a little bit back number on the pneumatic tire. Some of the boys, by the way, look at the word doubtfully in print and then in pronunciation give the "p" the full benefit of its prominence. But that's another story, as one young egotist called Kipling might observe. The tire made only a fair impression. Some old riders, who have climbed Kentucky's rocky angles and slid down her rough declivities, shook their heads as if to say the road would be a mighty hard one to travel. The 50 or 100 miles that lead into the Bluegrass, or God's country, from Louisville furnish rough work for any wheel, but after the tourist passes over this he is more than repaid by smooth, well kept macadam roads, that wind over the grandest country in the world. For the Bluegrass country the pneumatic tire should be a success. Whether it will stand Louisville's rough streets and roads experiments will only tell. The tire is not a handsome thing to look at, but it may improve with acquaintance.

Jake Bauer, one of the best riders in Louisville or Kentucky, starts on a tour around the world about the 1st of May. "I shall go on a tramp awheel," is the way Mr. Bauer puts it. He proposes to take his time and work his way. He will go slow, seeing the country as he pedals along. When a place catches his eye or strikes his fancy there will he stop until he feels like moving on. Mr. Bauer is an expert electrician and a fine machinist, and he expects these accomplishments to help him along when his exchequer runs low. He will start out with a suit of clothes in his luggage carrier, a good breakfast in his stomach, a clear conscience that comes from honest and upright actions, and the very best wishes of every wheelman who has had the pleasure of knowing him. He is now Captain of the Louisville Cycle Club.

A run to Middletown has been on the Louisville Cycle Club for three Sundays now. The weather people seem to have it in for the cyclers, however, and rain has interfered each week.

What's the matter with racing by electric light? The latest suggestion of the Racing Committee of the Division L. A. W. meet is to get an asphalt track in the Fireworks' Amphiteatre in Louisville and have the races after dark, when much larger crowds could and would attend. The place is amply large for a five-lap track and is lighted by 100 arc lamps. The scheme is taking with riders.

Chief Consul Lamb is dead to the world—at least this part of it. No Louisville rider has seen or heard of him for more than two months. He has left his affairs in good hands, however.

A letter from Covington says all is quiet in wheeling matters there. Kentucky is not a good winter riding State.

JACKSONVILLE, ILL.

"G. O. O."

The Jacksonville Wheelmen, having thrown off the lethargy seemingly produced by their former cramped quarters and leased an elegant hall and club rooms, are now on the high road to prosperity, and are fast gaining the reputation of being the foremost body here. Their hall has been fitted up as a first-class gymnasium with commodious bath and dressing rooms attached. The club rooms, five in number, have been furnished as only club men can furnish, billiard and pool tables, piano, etc. Since becoming incorporated, the club seems to work with more unanimity than ever before, in spite of a few timorous ones trying to act as a drag.

The club is also managing a very popular and successful lecture course comprising such humorists as Bob Burdett, Bill Nye, etc, and musical troupes as the Schubert Quartette, Ovide Musin Concert Co., Boston Banjo and Mandolin Troupe and others.

Jacksonville was well represented abroad last season, having 10 of her cyclists rambling through different parts of Europe and sending 8 to the Niagara meet; in fact each summer sees several parties starting out awheel for a vacation of two or three months.

Why is it that out of 300 riders in the town only some 50 belong to the L. A. W? The wheelmen as a club took a big stride in the right direction when they joined the League. Now all that's needed is for each member to put his shoulder to the wheel and help the cause along. This much is certainly due an organization giving so much for so little.

What can be more despicable than having a club-mate run down and attempt to belittle a worthy object, one which if he had his club's interest at heart would surely receive his heartiest support. A case of this kind recently came under the writer's notice.

Instructor Fulton intends giving a series of short health talks to the club and members of the gymnasium. They will prove quite entertaining and a great help to the work.

In case any of the boys should be seen limping around with a a "ring-the-bell-in-20-seconds" expresssion of the countenance, just put it down they have been monkeying with the "wheelmen's goat," as the home trainer has been appropriately dubbed.

"Papa" Field, representing Spalding & Bros., called on the trade last week. His fairy tales were enjoyed till a late hour by quite a few of the boys.

The Jacksonville Wheelmen extend a most cordial invitation to any and all wheelmen who may come to the city for either business or pleasure to call on them at any and all hours. If you are hot, dusty and tired, we offer you every convenience of the bath-room and can assure you the "inner man" (which is the largest part of the average wheelmen's anatomy) shall receive every attention. Should you have a surplus of muscular energy there's the "gym," which we warrant to consume an unlimited amount of man power.

NOW IS THE TIME

—— TO SECURE THE ——

Agency for the Eagle for 1891.

We are constantly placing new agencies, but there is still some good territory unoccupied and it will pay to take advantage of it.

We want good, live, pushing men, who can appreciate a good wheel and bring others to their way of thinking.

The Eagle is a lively wheel on the road and we want lively men to handle it, men who can "get there."

The Eagle has now a reputation which is unsurpassed.

It is acknowledged to be the fastest and best all-round road wheel on the market.

There is good money in the Eagle agency for any agent who knows how to hustle just a little bit.

"The philosophy of trade forces prices to correspond with quality. BUFFALO NOTES.

"SETAGEC."

AN event to linger in the memory of Buffalo wheelmen was the Indoor Tournament at the State Arsenal on Broadway which, by the way, is Uncle Sam's largest drill shed, and I believe the largest drill shed or armory in the world. The midwinter athletic games and bicycle races were conducted by the 65th Regiment Athletic Association, and the Ramblers Bicycle Club. There were over three thousand spectators though 'twas a rainy night. Space was assigned to the following clubs: Roamers Bicycle Club, Ramblers Bicycle Club, Zig Zag Bicycle Club, Press Cycle Club, Wanderers Bicycle Club, Iroquois Athletic Club, Buffalo Athletic Club, 74th Regiment Athletic Association, Buffalo La Crosse Club, Manhattan Athletic Club, Queen City Athletic Club and the 65th Regiment Athletic Association. At a quarter after eight the officers of the tourney, followed by the athletes and led by the full 65th military band, marched around the ten lap track which was located in the centre of the great building. The first event was the one mile safety novice bicycle races, and there were so many entries that three heats were required. In the final heat the starters were Conn, Bald, Neubauer and Penseyres, the first and second in the trial heats.

A HOT pace was set from the start. In the second lap Conn, who would have been the winner, got a bad fall and had to drop out. John B. Penseyres, who is a younger brother of the "dark horse" of last season, won after a hard fight with Neubauer second; time 3.15.

THE second event on the programme was a 75-yard dash in three heats, the only wheelmen among the entries were three Ramblers They made a good showing, but had small chance against the sprinters.

IN the three-legged race there were no entries from the cycling clubs, though everybody enjoyed this peculiar competition.

THE one mile bicycle race 3.30 class was one of the strong features of the evening, and A. T. Crooks and J. J. Cane of the Ramblers, R. W. Conn, Press C. C.; Chas. Dorntge, Iroquois A. C., and Wm. Conolly of Rochester competed, all but the last rode cushion tired safeties of the same style and make and were in good training. Crooks got a fall on the second lap, and Dorntge, the fastest man, got a fall and injured his wheel so that he had to drop out in the fourth lap. Conn then led, with Crooks fighting for first till the final lap, when the Rambler got the lead. There was much surprise that Conn should do so well for a novice. Crooks first, Conn second; time, 3.10.

IN the one mile run there were 18 starters, and Chas. T. Johnson of the Press C. C. did excellently, but went too fast at the beginning.

B. I. CROOKES of the Ramblers and B. S. Blanchard did well in the running hitch and kick, but had too strong a field to beat.

THE 3 mile lap safety race was rather lame towards the last, but excited the crowd for the first mile. Kane and Klipfel of Ramblers B. C., and Dorntge, the Iroquois rider, were the only starters, and Kane got the lead by the start which, by a severe effort, he kept for four laps, then the Indian took the lead of course, and lapped Kane once and Klipfel twice, having the last two miles his own way. For some reason Crooks did not start in this race; he should have done so. Dorntge won in 9.57 with Kane and Klipfel distanced, but the judges kindly awarded Kane second prize, as he had small show with Dorntge.

MACBETH of the Ramblers was the only cycler starting in the 220 yard run, though several bicycle clubs had entries, ten other sprinters started. The Ramblers did fairly well, and "got in soon after the killing."

IT was generally expected that Brunner of the Ramblers would win in the 16 pound shot putting. Fitzpatrick, however, of the B. A. C. was first with 37 feet, 1-2 in., and Tom Fallon of the "Iroquois" second by six inches. Brunner was close up for third.

THE Rambler's one mile indoor championship was contested by Walters, Kane and Crooks, but Crooks had a walk over, with Kane a quarter lap behind, and Walters a good third. Time, 3.15.

OTTO SCHMIDT, one of the oldest Ramblers, and as popular in Boston as here, won second place in the running high jump; hight, 4 feet 10 inches. Fred Kaspar, B. A. C, was only an inch ahead of him.

RUDOLBH INDERBITZIN won first, with Geo. A. Smith a good second in the one mile indoor championship (safety bicycle) race of the 65th Regiment Athletic Association. Cornwall "wasn't in it."

IN the 440 yards run J. N. Weig of Zig Zags B. C., and H. A. Macbeth of Ramblers fought against a large field of sprinters and did fairly well, though they did not get in first or second.

BUT the crowning event of the evening and the one that will be longest remembered, was the 5 mile indoor (safety) city championship in which only Crooks and Dorntge competed, Penseyres having been disabled the evening before, and Brinker didn't want any indoor racing. Very fast time was made, considering the floor and the upraised corners. Several of the miles were done under three minutes, and the time for the five was only 15 min. 3-5 sec. Dorntge set the pace, with Crooks close behind and trying to pass on each home stretch till 39th lap, when Crooks passed on the back stretch, but then lost his head by the great applause, and threw up his arm and yelled with the rest, but Dorntge wasn't dead by any means, nor asleep either, and soon led again, then it was wheel to wheel, neck to neck, spurt and counter spurt for five laps, when Dorntge shot ahead, and Crooks slowed up claiming that Dorntge fouled him by passing on the inside. Then Crooks cut out his first pace to get to the front, but he couldn't shorten the five yards lead that the "ingin" had, and so Charlie Dorntge is champion, and Crooks "isn't in it," as he told "Setagec" in that 50 mile race last July. There was a life sized melee after the race, when about a hundred Ramblers and four hundred others tried to bluff Chief Consul Bull and the judges on the claim of foul, but they could not scare Billy; he's been there before."

THE Zig-Zags have over sixty members and ought to become the leading local League club.

PENSEYRES got several bad falls while practicing at the Arsenal and injured the same ankle five times. 'Twas too bad he couldn't compete in Saturday evening's races.

THE Zig-Zags will probably remain where they are the rest of the year, as their rooms are central and near "cycle corner" too.

DANIELS of the Buffalos will enjoy the Bermuda tour and will be the only Buffalo man taking in that trip.

THE Roamers have shown remarkable push and have some good men in Bald and Neubauer as cycling flyers and Blanchard and others as all around athletes.

GEORGE HEARNE and Will L'Hommedieu of the Zig-Zags will tour to Chicago in June, using high wheels.

THE Ramblers feel pretty sore over Crooks' defeat in the five-mile race for city indoor championship and I guess they lost some money too.

WEIG, L'Hommedieu, Shirk, Lutti and several other Zig-Zags will hustle on the road this season and I expect to see some of them lower the colors of the other clubs in the coming road races.

SATURDAY NIGHT is the event of the week in all the cycling club houses except the Wanderers, who gather on Sunday.

HARRISBURG NOTES.

"W. H. EEL."

IT has often come to my ears why don't some one start in and write for the BICYCLING WORLD again? Now I shall endeavor to fill the bill and thus make the best cycling paper in the United States complete. Harrisburg is always desirous to be "in it," and if any of you gentlemen who happen to rest your eyes upon this paragraph, will reflect, you may recall, perhaps, to your memory several times when you were compelled to admit that our town was very much there. I refer of course to meets for several years back.

THE weather on Monday attracted several wheels from their winter quarters, and during the afternoon quite a few went flying o'er the asphalt, one lady being among the number.

THE Harrisburg Wheel Club have not as yet exhibitted enough of backbone to rent the house they contemplated. At present we have one large room front and one smaller one adjoining, next the roof of a four story building. Very cosily furnished in the interior I'll admit, but think of a club, the only club of its kind in a city of 50,000 people, occupying two "measly" rooms entirely inaccessible to wheels, and almost so for the tired limbs of the wheelmen returning from a trip. Absurd, boys, absurd, we can afford it, but you are afraid of injuring the feelings of the kickers. A member and his cane can hardly ascend the stairs side by side. "Tot" Jones goes up edgewise, and makes his exit via the fire escape. Chayne says even he would rub his sides did he not wear an illuminated pate. But that $1.00 per month knocks the spokes from under 'em. We will win, however, and don't fail to memorize it. We expect to send in quite a number of new names as L. A. W. men this season, and it is very confidently thought we will double the number of riders this summer.

WE have but three or four "ordinary" riders left, and they will doubtless espouse the safety before our spring opening.

CHAS. H. CHAYNE, the veteran rider, still clings to his old "Black Maria" upon which he has ridden some 40,000 miles I understand.

If the BICYCLING WORLD will kindly assist me, I trust by power of its dignity and force, lent by its space, to help the wheelmen of of the Capital City of the great Keystone State, to make up and found for themselves headquarters becoming the most of the members and the city.

NOTES BY "HAWKSHAW."

WE were touring along a country road, a friend and myself, and man seemed to have aided nature in every way possible to make a road worse already almost unrideable, when we came across a farmer who was doing his utmost to still further destroy the usefulness of that thoroughfare by ploughing up the dirt and clay at the side of it and pitching it regardless of how or where it fell into the centre. Wheeling had at last reached a point where no one but the most expert trick rider could remain upon his wheel and propel it along such a highway, and the former offered us the very excuse to dismount, which both of us had long been waiting for. Leaning our machines up against a neighboring rail fence we proceeded to interview the farmer.

"What are you doing with that plow, my dear man, going to plant potatoes or corn out here?" inquired my companion sarcastically.

"Nurther," answered brother Hayseed, "I'se just working out my road tax, doing my share of improving this here road." "Oh, I see; sort of a plough-share, eh?" said the facetious one, and before the farmer got the idea through his brain we had walked on and left him, lifting up our spirits in prayerful thankfulness that there yet remained in this benighted land some others beside wheelmen to practice and advocate "road improvements."

I HAVE just come from a drug store, where I have purchased a first-class duplex, back acting liver pad, and sent same with my compliments to Mr. William Twinkle. My reason for doing this is that I see by the Referee that the gentleman is being troubled with visions and other symptoms of a disordered liver and imagination. Among the dreams that have thus come to him is one in which he claims to have seen me in tights. When an individual bearing the historic name of Twinkle, of whom the poet sang when he wrote:

"Twinkle, Twinkle, little star,
How I wonder what you are,"

begins to have such dreams as these, one of two things is certainly the matter with him, either his brain is weakening or his liver is on a strike and no longer working as it should. I know no remedy for the first complaint, and but one for the latter, and that I have sent him. My dear Mr. Twinkle there are those who have claimed to have seen me when I was tight, but no one, not even yourself, ever saw me wear, or encourage in others, the wearing of tights, and yet I am free to confess that the absence of any hair "on the place where the hair ought to grow," entitles me to the privilege accorded to all those whose polished domes of thought are unmarred by any hirsute disfiguration and gives to me a seat in the front row of the orchestra, from which coign of vantage I am wont to quite frequently admire the display of tights and their wearers there exhibited, but when those inane idiots of cycling try to impose upon my well known credulity by displaying their forms sublime in fleshlings then they are "wasting their sweetness upon the desert air" as far as I am concerned. I am convinced that the desire to thus display one's self as an unclad specimen of the genus damphool would be one of the most certain symptoms known of that dread complaint paresis were it not for the fact that it is a disease of the brain, and of course from complaints of that sort kindly nature has removed all danger from the balleters by removing the organ which must become diseased—the brain. Trusting that even in your dreams you may not in future be annoyed by visions of balleters, I offer you my best wishes for your speedy recovery. If the liver pad does not work externally, and you still dream as formerly, swallow the pad, it will stop your dreaming and living at the same time.

I HAVE been reading an Italian work entitled "Hygiene of the Head" in which it is proven by data and biographies of over 7000 persons that the average of professors, scientists and authors, outlive artisans, lawyers and doctors. In other words, men grow older by intense application through life of their mental faculties, than where their professions or occupations are of a less brainy sort. Of course I never took this view of the matter before, being rather inclined to believe that the activity of the brain ate up the vitality of the body. Since reading the foregoing work, and thereby discovering my error, I have determined to become a modern racing man, for surely then I ought to live to be a thousand years old, because, what comparison can there be between the brain work of even the most learned of professors and that of the successful racing man? Why none at all, and all who read this item now have a sure and certain method of living on ad infinitum if they will only follow my example and become racing men

THE Chicago Athletic Club are going to build a club house to cost I don't know how many hundreds of thousands of dollars, and down in the basement of it, among the boilers, machinery and laborer's quarters they are going to have constructed a bicycle club room. Isn't this nice! They are going to ask wheelmen to pay $100 in initiation fee, and perhaps $50 per annum in dues besides, for the privilege of putting their machines down in a coal hole. Surely the privilege is very cheap at that price, but wheelmen are such peculiar people, never knowing when they are being well treated, that I am almost certain that they will very foolishly refuse to go into this coal hole game, but will instead prefer to remain members and users of their own club houses, where the prices are lower and the accommodations not so lowly. I don't want to throw cold water on this coal-hole plan of the Chicago Athletic Club, but I simply want to go on record by giving my opinion in regards to it being a great success, and I think I know more about wheelmen than the C. A. C does.

THE recent expedition sent by the Portuguese government into the interior of Africa, carried as part of its equipment a corps of wheelmen of whom great things are expected. Great expectations in anything are seldom realized, and I am very much inclined to think that this case is not going to be a very glittering exception to the rule, if African road improvements are as primitive as the native idea of the use of garments is said to be. Of course such an expedition offers the one chance in the whole world for the ballet brigade to get among a set of people where, by comparison, they will find themselves for once overdressed. I hope that they may, for the sake of the novelty thus offered them, be induced to join this expedition, and whatever else may happen them, they may rest assured that their etherial anatomies they so proudly display, will for once stand them in good stead, as no self respecting cannibal would ever think of dining off of them. I am willing to contribute my share to a fund to enable these unclad wheelmen to get to Africa, or to any other place they may elect, so long as it be away from decent and refined people, a generosity on my part which I know would willingly be shared with me by the vast majority of the wheelmen througout this and other countries.

THE ORANGES. "ESSEX."

"PLEASANT weather! Who said so?" This is about the way the boys have been talking lately. On every Saturday for the last month the ground has either dried up or been frozen hard enough for a ride, and the boys have looked forward to a Sunday spin, but alas, every Saturday night about eleven o'clock it has either thawed, rained or snowed, and consequently the above salutations.

CLUB HOUSES seem to be the order of the day in town. The Orange Wheelmen talk of building a handsome house with bowling alleys, baths, etc., and the E. O. C.'s are considering building, buying or renting. No doubt next summer will see both of these organizations with handsome quarters.

FRED TAYLOR is a great man for adapting himself to circumstances. Last summer he earned for himself the title of "Champion Header-taker" by the numerous and graceful jumps he took over his handle bars. Lately by some unknown process this young man has been developing a natural cushion of such proportions that his last year's uniform looks as if it had been made for his little brother.

A DISTRICT MESSENGER COMPANY in Orange has purchased a number of wheels and it is quite a common sight to see a boy in uniform delivering invitations or small bundles with a great deal of enjoyment to himself, and with a speed that would soon kill some of the old stories about "grass growing under his feet," etc.

THE E. O. C.'s lately created the office of Bugler, and one of the boys was elected to fill same. He purchased a bugle and has been getting into practice. It is reported that seventeen families have already moved out of the block, and that even the cats have boycotted the locality.

POSTALS have been received by the boys announcing the opening of Racey & Coggeshall's place on Monday. As both of the members of this new firm are wheelmen of good standing, and are among our best racing stock, it is quite likely that their establishment will become a favorite resort.

THE E. O. C.'s have a scorch down for Washington's Birthday. This will start the ball rolling for active work, and from that time on, the roads permitting, wheeling events will be numerous. There are already some rumors about another team race between the Wheelmen and the Cyclers. When this event comes off this year, it will be a very lively tussle. Both clubs will put forward their very best men, every one of whom will be in first class condition and will do his very best.

ED KETCHAM of Roseville is a wheelman from "way back." Mr. Ketcham is the father of a very bright boy who has reached the interesting age of eight months. Ed already predicts that the youngster is going to be a rider, and every time the youngster gurgles his proud father exclaims: "Did you hear that? 'Bicycle' plain as day."

THE E. O. C.'s have formed a couple of bowling teams. It is proposed to have the teams play together, and to select from the club a strong team of eight members. The Orange Athletic Club already have a team, and the wheelmen will without doubt soon be represented in the sport. Some good games may be looked for.

THE following is suggested by one of those races that occur in our vicinity every day in riding weather:

The driver urges on his steed,
Until said steed is wheezy;
Tho' the wheelman drives no steed at all,
He gets there just as easy.

DETROIT. "JUDGE."

WILL C. RANDS, a popular member of the Rhode Island Wheelmen of Providence, R. I., has taken up his abode in Detroit and will become a member of the Detroit Wheelmen. He was the winner of the 12-mile road race on Thanksgiving and will probably be seen on the road here.

Now all you kickers as to dates, attention! We made those dates under the advisement of wheelmen from all over the country, but we could only find out the feeling about it by publishing dates. We find we were wrong and we shall change them and they will be after the 15th of July. The dates will be fixed at Washington. Our President, Mr. Griffith, will represent us there. We thank the kind friends who agreed to change their dates to help us out. They will not need to now, and another thing L. A. W. renewals come in then and Bassett could not be here, and what is a meet without Bassett?

MRS. IDA NORTON, Miss May Leggett, Miss Agnes Andrews and Mr. Homer Warren have been made honorary members of the Detroit Wheelmen. These are the kind friends who so kindly donated their services at the concert recently.

IN case C. C. Richmond cannot go to Washington Will Metzger will. We will be represented O. K., you bet, and we will have that meet (also you bet).

What's the matter with Detroit in '91?

SHE IS ALL RIGHT.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

THE Wanderers' Bicycle Club of Buffalo, N. Y., are always progessive in furthering any object for the benefit of wheelmen at large and with this end in view they have arranged for a series of entertainments to cover the next two months, which no doubt will prove a source of much pleasure.

THE Kings County (N. Y.) Wheelmen gave an enjoyable stag racket at their club rooms on Saturday evening, Jan. 31.

THE Wareham (Mass.) Cycle Club held its first annual ball on the evening of Feb. 3, and the occasion was very much enjoyed by those present.

THE best book of its kind ever published is the verdict of the numerous readers of "Cycling for Health and Pleasure." Have you read it? It can be obtained of the Wheelmen Co., 12 Pearl street, Boston. Price 50 cents.

THE Millbury (Mass.) Bicycle Club will give an entertainment at the Town Hall on the evening of Feb. 10. This club is in a very prosperous condition and has at the present time about 40 members.

THE Detroit Lady Cyclers are in a flourishing condition. They intend becoming members of the L. A. W. this spring and are in hopes of meeting members of that able body in Detroit in the summer of '91.

THE wheelmen of Lowville, N. Y., organized a club on Jan. 26. The objects of this organization are to encourage cycling, road improvement and wheel enjoyment generally.

THERE will be a meet at Galveston, Texas, on Feb. 9 in connection with the Madi Gras, at which prizes to the value of $500 are offered for competition.

THE Cook County Wheelmen of Chicago have started out in a way which has already brought it into the front ranks of the cycling clubs of the "Garden City." Organized Jan. 3, '91, with 53 charter members, it already has a membership of 200. This record is unrivalled in club history. The club opened its fine new club house at 709 West Adams street on the night of Jan. 24. The house was crowded to its fullest extent and before the evening was over 150 applications were secured, many of them being cyclists of renown. The club has excellent prospects and at the beginning of the riding season will have nearly as many men on wheels as the Chicagos and Illinois. The club colors are old gold and white, and the cap is a black hook down with a six-pointed open star made with the club colors. The present quarters of the club are only temporary. A new club house, which will cost $20,000, will be built next year.

OUR Denver correspondent, "Link," sends us the following: "Cycling is still on the increase here and this season will see more lady riders than ever before. There are several learning to ride now and will purchase wheels in the near future. Cycling ought to boom here with the G. F. Higgins Co., George E. Hannan, Sammon Brothers, Pool, and the branch house of the Overman Wheel Co. to push things. There are about 2500 riders here now and the indications are that there will be 4000 by the end of the present season. Denver has many attractions for the lover of the wheel. The delightful climate, its broad and fine streets, although they are somewhat torn up now by the street railway and water companies. The beautiful country roads and the great number of riding days during the year. The bicycle thief is still at large, but there is a move on foot that it is hoped will be the means of bringing him to justice. The Social Wheel Club and the Ramblers' Wheel Club are commencing to train for the third and last race to come off in May for the G. F. Higgins cup. It has been won once by each club, and as both are going to make a desperate effort to win the race will be interesting. The course is from Denver to Platville, distance 35 miles. The clubs are about evenly matched.

EVIDENTLY cycling is a health promoter, as the following from a cyclist will show: "Before I began cycling I was refused by life insurance companies as a bad risk, but since I have taken to riding I have been accepted. Indeed, wheeling has made a new man of me. If all business men knew what cycling would do for them there would be less able-bodied men packed in the street cars."

THE State meet in Columbus, Ohio, in July promises to be a big event, and will be drawn on the line of the big meets at Peoria and Hartford. Money is being subscribed freely. The track will be put in first class condition; several hundred dollars will be spent on that work alone.

CHICAGO boasts of two Miles, he of the sword and he of the pen. Richelieu has that "The pen is mightier than the sword," but whether our good friend "Sam" would have made as good a figure subduing the turbulent Indians with his stylographic as the fighting general did with his "sticker" is an open question. In appearance as well as name both men are similar. The general weighs over 200 pounds, and those who have seen the scribe will at once note the great similarily in physique. They are both "large round and elegant."

WE of course called on Mr. Garden when in Chicago and we have to gratefully acknowledge the many kind and hospitable courtesies extended to us while in the western metropolis received at the hands of Mr. Garden.

GENERAL MILES is a safety bicycle rider. The valliant soldier and Indian fighter is an accomplished cyclist. Good-man-not-afraid-of-his-bicycle rather got away with "young-man-afraid-of-his-horses." Tally one for the bicycle.

ON exhibition at the office of Mr. A. Featherstone in Chicago is the identical pneumatic tired machine on which Merredy made his marvellous safety records. It will remain the property of Mr. Featherstone, a gift from Mr. DuCros.

MR. KITTREDGE of the Kittridge Arms Co. of Cincinnati died about three weeks ago The entire stock has been purchased by Hartley, Graham & Co. of New York, and will be removed to the latter city.

THERE is a certain editor whose residence is not in Boston, Chicago, New York, Philadelphia or Hartford that is preparing for himself a berth, the temperature of which will rise above summer heat before he gets through with his voting on the "most popular, etc." What is to be gained or proven by this farce it is hard to see, especially as every one is invited to vote early and as often as they please!! Please register over 100,000 votes for the ——.

TWO PHILADELPHIA DANCES.

PHILADELPHIA social cycledom danced to its heart's content last week, there being in addition to the regular informal dances of a number of the clubs the balls of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club and Quaker City Wheelmen. A reception and dance having been tendered by the members of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club to ex-Captains C. A. Roberts and W. D Supplee and their brides last Wednesday evening, the 28th ult., was the date settled on, and that night beheld the handsome club house, on Girard avenue, a blaze of light without and within, the halls and parlors being beautifully decorated with palms and flowers. Dancing began at 9 o'clock and continued until long after midnight, with an intermission for supper at 11 o'clock. Many handsome toilets were worn, and among those present were the following: President A. F. Bracher and Miss Bailey, Vice-President W. P. Street, Jr., and Mrs. W. P. Street, Jr., Captains Roberts and Supplee and Mrs. Roberts and Mrs. Supplee, Secretary Lee R. McKinstry, Captain Laing and Miss Marion McKinstry, S. B. Chambers and Mrs. S. B. Chambers, Frank Detwiller and Mrs. F. Detwiller, Caleb Cope, Jr., and Mrs. C. Cope, Jr., J. W. Baer and Mrs. J. W. Baer, A. L. Chambers and Miss Chambers, E. B. Newcomer and Miss Wright, Richard Nelms and Mrs. R. Nelms, Frank Nelms and Miss Nelms, Theodore Schaeffer and Miss Kate Muldoon, J. H. Lehman and Miss Nickerson, Robert Cadmus and Miss Emmie Street, Charles Harvey and Mrs. C. Harvey, Miss Coch, Charles Thorn and Miss Webb, Clark Dillenbeck and Miss Stokes, Clarence Baker, A. R. Justice, G. R. Nichols, W. M. Webb, E. A. Richwine, and many others.

The Quaker City Wheelmen's second annual reception came off the next evening, Thursday, at St. George's Hall with upwards of 100 couples in attendance. The ladies wore very pretty gowns and the gentlemen being all in evening dress, the scene was a brilliant one, the floral decorations being handsomely arranged. Among those present were prominent representatives of all the leading clubs and a number of visitors from a distance. The committee in charge were Messrs. W. S. Rauch, Geo. W. Lawrence, C. B Chapmans, C. B. Gillindu, T. M. Seeds. "Ariel."

A LIBEL ON THE RACING BOARD.

Editor Bicycling World: Have just read with interest Mr. J. H. Robbins' article in February issue of Sporting Review. I congratulate him upon his ability as a detective. It was very unkind to expose Col. Pope and the chairman of the Racing Board in such a manner. Why couldn't he have allowed our little "game" to proceed?

As I read the article I wondered if Mr. Robbins was not afraid of losing the Pope Mfg. Co.'s advertisement, and then I examined the paper. No advertisement of the Pope Mfg. Co. appeared. I have since wondered if that could account for the attack on Col. Pope. Mr. Robbins says that he met the "intermediary between Col. Pope and the ring." He found him to be a "pleasant gentleman socially" and a "judge of men and things." Under which head does Mr. Robbins class himself? No doubt "the intermediary" placed Mr. Robbins in his proper class at once. It would not take a poor judge many minutes to classify this Western scalp-hunter, and the "intermediary probably placed him quicker than the working of a drop-shutter. It seems a pity that this great "assault leader" is called South just as the opportunity presents itself for a "firm and determined stand." My sympathy is with the South.

In justice to the Racing Board I desire to state that Mr. Robbins' statements concerning the Board are a collection of lies. Knowing such to be the case I do not hesitate to say that I consider the remainder of his article to be false. A man that can draw on his imagination and put together such a beautiful assortment of lies has missed his calling.

Go South Mr Robbins, and when you get there—keep on going.

NEW ROAD LAW FOR PENNSYLVANIA.

It is reported from Harrisburg that a bill will be reported providing for cash tax, with privilege of working it out, and a State appropriation to be distributed among the townships. The counties will elect an engineer esch and the townships three supervisors, who shall regulate the road business of the township and appoint foremen to do the work, who shall receive laborers' wages.

Townships will be authorized to go in debt to improve the roads, provided they keep within constitutional limits. The full text of the bill will be given to the press some time this week. The amount of appropriation asked for will be $1,000.000, and the supervisors are said to be asked to serve without pay, but this feature will likely be changed. The wages are to be fixed at $1.50 a day. "Ariel."

ELWELL EUROPEAN CYCLE TOUR.

Among the participants in these tours the coming summer will probably be found E. B. Mabbell, Baltimore, Md., Wm. W. Collins and E. H. Earl, Philadelphia, Pa., Geo. R. Linn and Max Loescher, Chicago, Ill., Edwin Z. Smith, Pittsburg, Pa., Chas B. Hoffman, Red Hook, N. Y., E. B. Pillsbury, Boston, Mass., E. J. Gilbert. Mansfield, O., Howard S. Alling, Madison, Ind., F. R. Perry, Danbury, Conn., and others. As the party is limited as to numbers, and staterooms on French line must be engaged well in advance, all having the trip under consideration should inform Mr. Elwell of their intentions as soon as possible. Full information concerning these delightful trips are now ready for delivery. See the advertisement in another column.

LOZIER & YOST BICYCLE MFG. CO.

We have often received a cordial invitation to visit the factory of the Lozier & Yost Bicycle Mfg. Co. at Toledo, but not until last week were we able to accept the invitation. The factory is situated on Central avenue, and within a stone's throw the railroad passes, a side track from which is run to the rear of the factory, and cycles can thus be loaded direct into the cars and shipped to any part of the country.

Mr. J. L. Yost is the gentleman who has the entire control of the manufacture of the "Giants," and a more efficient and practical manufacturer of bicycles does not exist. Mr. Yost is ably assisted by Mr. F. S. Hodgman, assistant manager, and Mr. C. J. Moore, Superintendent, with a most efficient corps of assistants and foremen, Mr. Ridley, assistant superintendent, having charge of the lower machine room, and Mr. George F. Kern is head of the tool room.

The main factory itself is an exceedingly sightly building, three stories high, and is 200x40 feet, thus giving them a total floor space of 24,000 square feet; in addition to this are the blacksmith and forge shops and crating and store rooms. The number of men at present employed is 215, and in order to keep up with the demand and have the machines ready for delivery early in the season the factory is run every day until 9 P. M. The output of the company for 1891 will be 14,000 machines, the full capacity of the present plant, and the only thing that bothers Messrs. Lozier & Yost is that the capacity is not equal to at least 6000 more, "as we have the market for them," said these gentlemen.

All the Giants will be fitted with the Bolte Spring Fork, and this with an exceedingly easy saddle devised by Mr. Yost, make a very comfortable anti-vibration machine.

The company has not spared money or ingenuity in providing special machinery to produce first-class work, and all the special tools, jigs, &c., are carefully kept in fire-proof vaults, a vault being provided on each floor. The blacksmith shop and forge, added last summer by the company, is being fitted up with powerful drop hammers, for use on drop forgings, the latest addition being a "baby" that drops a hammer weighing 1000 pounds. Crude oil is used entirely in brazing, forging, and in the steam boiler. ELE

The first and second floors are occupied by the machinery, enamelling rooms and baking furnaces, nickelling rooms, polishing rooms and blacksmith shops. The third story is used as an assembling room and pattern shop. It is the process of assembling that is the most interesting to the novice; to watch the machine as it travels round the room, at first in a very embryotic condition, but step by step it assumes a more complete state, until at last, shining in all the glory of nickel and enamel, it passes into the hands of "the inspector," and wo to the unlucky wight who is responsible for any lack of care in assembling his particular part. After being carefully inspected and passed as perfect, the machine goes to the crating room to be packed. The ceiling of the assembling room is covered entirely with hanging wheels, while finished wheels and other parts are piled in different parts of the room in quantities to take one's breath away, and prove that the 14,000 output is not a misty fable.

Every department shows the utmost care in detail, and nothing is omitted which would go to make the Giants all that is claimed for them by the makers.

Since Messrs Lozier & Yost took the factory quite a settlement has sprung up around the neighborhood. Dwelling and boarding houses have been built specially for occupancy by the workmen, and in fact the location is known as "Cycle Dale," and the different avenues and streets have been named after the "Giant" machines, and also the members of the firm have been honored by having thoroughfares in that neighborhood named after them.

THE JOHN WILKINSON CO.

Last year this company placed a generous order with the Rover people for a line of their celebrated machines and they had no difficulty in disposing of them all, and the results to the rider has been so eminently satisfactory that the demand this year has not only compelled them to place originally a much larger order than made during '90, but they have been obliged to duplicate that order with every prospect that a still further requisition will be made on the factory in order to meet the demand. This result is most flattering to Messrs. John Wilkinson, and that the makers in England also are pleased with the results goes without saying.

We called on them the other day and were shown the pattern for 1891. The Full Roadster will be practically the same as put on the market last—the lines of the machine which distinguish being preserved in the pattern. This machine scales 48 pounds and will be fitted according to order with either solid, cushion or pneumatic tires.

The Light Roadster is built on same lines as the Full Roadster, hollow rim, balls all round of course and also ball head. This machine has 28 and 30 wheels and with solid tires will scale 44 pounds. This machine will be fitted with cushion tires, but not pneumatics.

The Rover Special is a straight diamond frame built very light, with 28 and 30 wheels, balls all round, including head. This machine with solid tire will weigh 36 pounds, but "stripped" it will weigh 30 pounds.

The Convertible Rover, suitable for either sex. Hollow rims, balls all round including head, and will be fitted either with solid, cushion or pneumatic tires.

The regular ladies' machine will weigh, with solid tires, 38 pounds. Hollow rims and balls all round, including head. Wheels, 26 and 28. This a beautiful little wheel and is bound to meet with favor.

They will also present a racing safety fitted with pneumatic tires if desired, which will weigh 28 pounds.

In addition to these high grade wheels, Messrs. Wilkinson will handle the Western Wheel Works' goods.

Mr. C. S. Merrill, who has been travelling through the East during the past four weeks, has done a splendid business in that section, and in fact in all the territory Mr Merrill has covered he has sold large orders.

A large riding school, 40x140, is in constant use and tyros are being daily converted into A1 riders free of charge.

An error of statement crept into the Chicago cycle journals in relation to who controlled certain territory for the Garford saddle. Messsrs. John Wilkinson have the entire control of Illinois and the Northwest and as far South as St. Louis, other statements to the contrary notwithstanding.

In the matter of being headquarters for sundries that company will make a drive. Everything in the sundry line will be kept in variety and quantity so that the dealer or jobber would do well to communicate with Messrs. Wilkinson, being sure that they will be able to find everything in that line that a retail dealer sells.

In the matter of sundries the John Wilkinson Co. especially desire to call the attention of the trade to their line of bicycle bells. The "London Chime" bell giving two distinct notes with one pull of the lever, the "Continuous Alarm" and the "Single Alarm" are every one most excellent in design, construction and tone. The trade will do well to remember that most favorable terms can be secured on this line of goods.

Also in the matter of saddle leathers and tool bags this concern makes a special drive for trade. They have already booked some very large orders for these leather goods from manufacturers and the trade.

THE LOZIER & YOST STEEL TUBING COMPANY.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent both in this country and England by ingenious men in an endeavor to discover the process of making weldless steel tubing, but up to the present time the process has remained in the possession of half a dozen men in England, and now since Messrs. Lozier & Yost have secured the American rights to manufacture, two men in America are the only ones on this side of the Atlantic who have the necessary knowledge to conduct successfully its manufacture. The fact that the process has been kept so closely guarded seems remarkable, and while the best mechanics could be turned into a shop fitted with the necessary rolling, drawing and shaping machinery, they would be powerless to produce weldless steel tubing unless they possessed the key. This knowledge can be and is used by the possesser, so that the foremen and workmen are kept in entire ignorance. Strange as this sounds, it is proven correct from the fact that the English owners of the process have successfully kept it dark after years of operation.

As we have already announced, Shelby, Ohio, will be the point at which the weldless steel tube works will be located, and the citizens of that place are naturally jubilant over the success attending their efforts to secure this enterprise.

Mr. Geo. T. Kern, at present foreman of the tool room of the Lozier & Yost Bicycle Mfg. Co., will be superintendent at the tube works.

The building, 125x100, is being pushed as rapidly as the weather will permit. A specially built steam engine of 175 H. P. is about to be contracted for, it being necessary to have a slow but powerful engine.

For the present foreign steel in "bloom," such as is used by the English manufacturers, will be imported until it is found and proven beyond question that American steel can be made which will produce tubing equal to that of the English manufacturer. The company will push for all they are worth so as to be ready to manufacture and deliver at the rate of 28,000 feet of tubing per week.

All the machinery specially imported from England is on the ground and can be placed in position the moment the building is roofed in.

Thus in brief is the story of the new manufacturing venture of Lozier & Yost, and that the enterprise is bound to succeed is really a foregone conclusion.

The only 64-inch bicycle ever built by the Pope Mfg. Co. is in possession of A. W. Gump & Co., Dayton, Ohio. They also have a 62-inch.

Fourteen Thousand Premier Safeties were made and sold in 1890. This the makers claim to be record, and it is certainly a very remarkable testimonial to the popularity of the Premier. The works have been added to until they are claimed to be the largest in the world, with a capacity of 25,000 machines per year.

The New Mail certainly shows a handsome line this year This wheel is at the top of the list for quality and its splendid reputation already made gives an added value and guarantee to the new '91 patterns. The $100 Diamond must have a very great demand, as it is at a popular price and one gets a wheel of established note and worth. The New Mail's graceful model frame and also its special shape handle bars make a picture. Wheelmen should examine these wheels.

Mr. D. J. Post of the Hartford Bicycle Co. has been making a trip through the West during the past few weeks. He reports business as excellent and far in advance of last year. The Hartford has secured an enviable reputation and the increase in demand for these machines is not to be wondered at.

Next week we hope to give particulars of the plans for the new store of Geo. R. Bidwell & Co., 270 and 272 Wabash avenue, Chicago. Mr. Taylor, the resident manager, had just sent them to New York the day before we saw him or we should have had the details for this week.

A. W. Gump & Co. are racking both sides of the third and fourth floors of their building for crated bicycles ready for shipment, and are really making a six-story building out of their present quarters. They are making every preparation to fill orders without any delay as soon as the season opens.

Avery & Cosner of Columbus, Ohio, will handle the Warwick and all the line of goods handled by the Standard Cycle Co. of Buffalo.

Things were temporarily quiet at the branch office of the Pope Mfg. Co. at Chicago. But the manager, Mr. R. D. Garden, ably seconded by Mr. Lumsden and a corps of assistants, were laying plans and preparing for a lively campaign. We were astonished at the volume of business done at this branch last year, but it is the intention of Mr. Garden to go "several better" on the business of 1891. That this expectation will be realized none who know Mr. Garden will doubt.

The Pneumatic Premier will find favor with those who desire to try this luxurious tire, without reaching too deeply into their pockets. It is of the favorite "Universal Premier" pattern and is fitted with pneumatic tires of the best quality. The price is $135.

The trade of A. W. Gump & Co. for January has been more than treble that of any other year. On account of the large number of bicycles they purchase they are able to reach agents with a line of wheels at prices that are hard to duplicate.

Mr. Le Cato is now established with the Chicago house of A. G. Spalding & Bro. and has transferred all his ability and business knowledge of cycle trade to the interests of that firm and the Victor. Messrs. Spalding and the Victor people are to be congratulated on securing the services of Mr. Le Cato, who in a short time will be as well known and as popular as ever he was in Baltimore.

The Coventry Machinists' Co. have a new Lady's Safety, called the Lady's Swift No. 2, which is to retail at $100, and it certainly does look like a seller.

Mr. Stokes was absent during our visit to Chicago, in fact we saw him the day before we left Boston in that city. Mr. Sieg, however, was on hand and extended the courtesies. We went over the establishment and saw a tremendous stock of machines they had on hand ready for delivery. Judging from the orders that were coming in a large stock would be needed to meet the demand. In fact a mail delivery made while we were in the store brought in orders aggregating over 300 machines. It has been found necessary to duplicate several of these orders placed for machines as the demand and sale is far exceeding their original expectations. They have a most excellent riding school and a large repair shop.

Is Recruiting a Failure in Missouri?

This season of the year finds many a Division in its darkest days, and the way out is by good live hustling for members. Systematic and persistent work is the constant washing that wears away a stone, and judicious hustling adapted to the particular person spoken to will eventually point out the sure road to an ample return for the trouble. Ingenious ideas intelligently introduced immediately interest wheelmen. Suppose you tell them of a wheelman's paper, filled with bright, pure, entertaining literature. Suppose the League always gives honest values for honest dollars. Suppose you explain the other benefits accruing to members, such as the 130 page Road Book, League uniform at low cost, the membership card, which entitles you to reduced rates at League hotels, and free transportation of your wheel on railroads, security of the right of the roads, ample protection from assault on the road, and a right to participate in all league tours and meets. Would it interest your cycling friends? Why certainly, and if you add, "only $1.50 to cover initiation and dues to July 1," you will get applications all the faster. Fraternally yours,

ROBT. HOLM, Chief Consul.

New Hampshire Division.

The time for receiving applicants under special offer, published last week, is extended to April 1st. Names to be counted must appear on or before issue of March 27th.

Invitation to Connecticut.

Mr. A. A. Dean, Chief Consul Connecticut Division L. A. W.:

Dear Sir—We, the New Haven Bicycle Club, do most respectfully request that you appoint the annual spring meet of Connecticut Division L. A. W. to be held in New Haven, Conn., on the 8th day of June, 1891.

In case you should consider the above application favorably, we can assure you that we shall do all in our power to give all wheelmen a pleasant time during their stay in this city, and do our best to provide a suitable L. A. W. entertainment in the evening.

Hoping you will favorably consider the above application, we remain, Fraternally yours,

NEW HAVEN BICYCLE CLUB,
E. J. Perkins, Secretary.

New Haven, Conn., January 21, 1891.

SPRING MEETING.

In accordance with Article VI of the rules of the Division, I do hereby accept the cordial invitation of the New Haven Bicycle Club, and appoint the annual meeting of the Division, to be held at New Haven on the eighth (8th) day of June, 1891, the hour of the meeting to be by me officially announced hereafter.

For the Connecticut Division L. A. W.

ARTHUR ALLEN DEAN, Chief Consul.

Danielsonville, January 27, 1891.

200—Kentucky—200

Why cannot we have 200 members before the close of the year? Let's try it, anyhow. Every Local Consul, every rider, make up his mind to get at least one wheelman to join, and the number will be more than made up. Brace up, boys and go to work. The riding season opens shortly; the Division meet will be held at Louisville in June, and it must be a success. Do your best to help the home riders make it such. There are a thousand cyclists scattered over the State. Bring them into the fold. Cut the blank from your BULLETIN, fill it out and send it on to Boston. Your man will get more than his money's worth, if it comes down to a question of dollars and cents, in the BULLETIN. Send in your names at once. G. E. JOHNSON, Sec.-Treas.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Tickets will be issued fourteen days after the publication of names.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Members are requested to examine carefully these lists as they are published, and to report errors and omissions to the Secretary. In order that no objectionable person may unite with the League, members are given the right to protest, but such protest must be received by the Secretary within two weeks from the date of publication, and contain specific charges so far as it is possible to make them. All such communications will be considered confidential.

The application list is closed at 10 A. M. on the Monday preceding day of publication. All applications received after that hour must go over to the list of the following week.
